NEW YORK (AP) — Correspondents trying to cover the war in the Middle East by words and pictures have encountered censorship, communications blackouts — international or otherwise—and danger on both sides of the war.

Three have died covering the war, several were injured, some have been expelled from Egypt, at least one was arrested, others have been frustrated when, braving danger, they tried to get to battle zones.

Many correspondents of news services, newspapers and magazines have been out of touch with their home offices for long periods.

Ben Oyserman, an Israeli cameraman on a free-lance assignment for the CBC, died in the Gaza Strip when he had his car to move a rock in the road. It was mined.

One of the dead, Life magazine photographer Paul Schutzer, was photographing a battle from an Israeli vehicle when Egyptian gunfire struck the vehicle and set it afire.

A Life spokesman said Schutzer's camera was retrieved but it had been burned and it was still not known whether his last pictures would be usable.

Producer Ted Yates of the National Broadcasting Co. was leading a camera crew in the Jordan section of Jerusalem when he was hit by machine-gun fire. He died later in hospital there.

A dispatch from Gerven F. Hudgins, Associated Press chief of bureau at Cairo, said he and 28 other Americans were ordered to leave with no time to gather their personal effects.

In Jerusalem, Time magazine correspondent Marili Levin reported he was "pinned down" at home with his home telephone out of order.

Ilsen Adams Schmidt, New York Times correspondent in Jordan, was arrested at midday Wednesday in Amman and had not reappeared five hours later.

The charges against Schmidt were not specified but one source said he was accused of operating a radio transmitter.

From Beirut, an AP correspondent reported telephone communications from there to Europe and other Arab cities were becoming more difficult, with calls subject to long delays and censorship tightening.

Cairo Buzzes With Rumor

CAIRO (AP) — Cairo buzzed with rumors as radios blaring throughout the tense city alternated between news of a headlong Israeli advance and defiant calls to Egyptians to fight on.

"Impossible," said an English-speaking office worker as the radio announced Egyptian forces had given up Sharm El Sheikh, the vital Red Sea post controlling the entrance to the Gulf of Aqaba. "The Israelis cannot get that far that fast."

People listened sullenly to the reports over their transistor sets.

The atmosphere of gloom deepened Wednesday night as arrivals from Suez told of a steady stream of Egyptian army trucks heading westward away from the battlefront. They saw none going the other way.

Jordan Denies U.S. Involved

LONDON (AP)—Jordan has officially denied all knowledge of any U.S. or British planes operating over its territory during the war, with Israel, the foreign office announced today.

A spokesman said this disclaimer was made Wednesday by Jordan's director of military intelligence during a meeting with foreign military attaches in Amman.

Israel's Beigin and Dayan

Won't Give Up Jerusalem Dayan Tells Reporters

TEL AVIV (CP) — Defence Minister Moshe Dayan said Wednesday night Israel has achieved its primary aim of opening the Gulf of Aqaba in its incredibly swift defeat of Egyptian forces in a whirlwind three-day conflict.

He said Israel is ready for a ceasefire the moment the Arab states stop fighting. He made it clear the conquering Israeli army will not advance to the Suez Canal, although it could have done so easily Wednesday.

"We were fighting for the free passage of Aqaba," the one-eyed general told a news conference which resembled a political campaign meeting in Canada. Scores of newsmen crowded into the room where it was being held, broke into cheers and applause at many of his statements.

The statement which brought the loudest applause was that Israel will never again give up the old city of Jerusalem which was partly held by Jordan until the Israeli army's campaign on three fronts which Dayan said bagged 441 planes and vanquished the 80,000-man Egyptian army.

Dayan, who lost an eye in the Second World War and led Israeli forces to victory in 1956 Suez War, called President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt a "paper tiger."

He said Israel was not interested in seizing the Suez Canal.

"We could have got to Suez by now if we wanted to," he said. "It is not sad was not our aim to get to the Suez Canal.

"Why go there, and get involved in something that is not our business?"

He indicated Israel's primary aim was opening of the Gulf of Aqaba. Closure of the gulf by Egypt brought on the current Middle East conflict.

Arab Animosity to U.S. Hurts Peace Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials say it may take years to rebuild relations with the Arab states after the Israeli-Arab war.

How to handle this task is one problem facing President Johnson's new cabinet - level committee on the Middle East, to which the President has assigned the over-all job of mapping plans for a permanent peace between the Arab states and Israel.

Johnson created the committee Wednesday, disclosing he had called back McGeorge Bundy, his former special assistant, from private life to serve as executive secretary of the group. State Secretary Dean Rusk is chairman.

The president, it is understood, intends to channel U.S. peace efforts through the United Nations where the search for ways to end the conflict has centred this week.

During the last two days seven Arab countries, alleging U.S. military support for Israel despite strong U.S. denials, have broken relations with Washington. An eighth country, Lebanon, made a partial break Wednesday by forcing withdrawal of ambassadors.

The seven which broke completely are Egypt, Algeria, Syria, Yemen, Sudan, Iraq and Mauritania.

U.S. relations with other Arab countries are believed here to have been embittered by U.S. diplomatic support of Israel in the events leading up to Monday's outbreak of war.

The United States along with Britain and many other countries supported Israel's opposition to the Egyptian blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba, the critical issue before the war started.

Defence Secretary McNamara announced a contingency plan has been put into operation to ensure U.S. forces overseas the oil they need in case of a cut-off of supplies from the oil-rich Arab nations of the Middle East. Several major Persian Gulf oil producers have threatened to cut off supplies both to the United States and Britain.

The federal maritime commission has approved a 25-per-cent freight rate boost for ships travelling in the Persian Gulf and Red Sea areas because of higher insurance rates now prevailing in the crisis area.

Third Bid

Fleming Woos Socreds, UN

OTTAWA (CP)—Donald Fleming is wooing support from the Social Credit and Union Nationale parties in his third bid for the Conservative leadership.

The 62-year-old former finance minister told a news conference Wednesday he wants to broaden his party's base and "halt the fragmentation" of conservative forces.

"I'm against the all-powerful state," he said as he formally entered the leadership race, joining six other declared candidates. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's intentions remain obscure.

Mr. Fleming, tanned and slimmer after four years' absence from the political wars, said he was accepting a draft from about two-thirds of the 65 Conservative MPs to run as a "party unity" candidate.

The Toronto corporation lawyer made a strong appeal for provincial support, saying the Pearson government has given scant attention to the financial plight of the provinces and municipalities.

He favored new tax-sharing arrangements that would permit the provinces to "exist in dignity without being mendicants" and permit the municipalities to ease the "crushing" tax burden on homeowners.

Political observers shot up when he disclosed that he has discussed his leadership plans with Social Credit Premier Manning of Alberta and Union Nationale Premier Johnson of Quebec, both of whom call themselves small-c conservatives but have no ties with the Conservative party.

Mr. Fleming said he also met Conservative Premier Roberts of Ontario and Stanfield of Nova Scotia recently and hopes to see Premier Roblin of Manitoba today.

He had consulted Premier Johnson even though the Quebec leader was not a member of the Conservative party.

Mr. Fleming recalled that he had considerable support from a Quebec delegates at the 1956 convention, when he finished second to Mr. Diefenbaker. He also ran for the leadership in 1948 when George Drew was chosen.

He said he has the support of nearly all his former cabinet colleagues except his five main rivals—George Hees, Davie Fulton, Alvin Hamilton, Michael Starr and Senator Wallace Nutcheon. All were personal friends whom he held in high esteem.

The seventh declared candidate is John Maclean, a Hamilton businessman from Brockville.

Mr. Maclean Wednesday issued a statement in Brockville protesting what he called a continuing attempt by a group in the Conservative party to "continue as a law unto themselves."

Mr. Maclean said in a telephone interview Mr. Fleming's statement "indicates to me that someone has told him that he will win the convention in September."

"Either the fix is in which I cannot believe and take strong objection to, or Mr. Fleming was misquoted."

He said it should not be possible for any group to control or seek to control a democratically contested convention of 2,000 delegates.

"Such an attitude is short-sighted and arrogant in the extreme.

"I am a firm believer in the necessity of cleaning up politics and I would take certain steps to make sure that the delegates to the convention will in fact decide the next leader."

Commons Gets Chance Today To Debate Middle East Crisis

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gets the chance today for a full debate on the Middle East crisis as MPs begin consideration of external affairs department spending estimates for the 1957-58 fiscal year.

Calling of the department's estimates today by Health Minister MacEachen, the government House leader, opened the door for debate of Canadian foreign policy and seemed to rule out a secret session of Parliament to discuss the Arab-Israeli war.

The closed session was suggested Tuesday by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker. Prime Minister Pearson did not reject it outright but said estimates might be a better vehicle for examining the Middle East situation.

So far, members have been able to examine the government on foreign policy only during the daily question period, when debate is not permitted under House rules.

In the Commons Wednesday, External Affairs Minister Martin said the prime minister has been in touch with several governments in an effort to pave the way for peace negotiations after a ceasefire in the Arab-Israeli conflict.

A government spokesman said Mr. Pearson was in telephone consultation twice Tuesday with Prime Minister Wilson of Britain and again Wednesday morning. He also has spoken by phone with President Johnson.

Mr. Pearson already has suggested a meeting at a high political level among representatives of the Big Four—Britain, Russia, France and the U.S., who along with Nationalist China are the permanent members of the UN Security Council.

He has said also some UN presence will be required on both sides of the Arab-Israeli border and that shipping through the Gulf of Aqaba should be allowed free passage.

Another problem that must be resolved, the prime minister has said, is the plight of thousands of Arab refugees who fled Israel when it was founded by the UN in 1948. They have been footless and stateless in neighboring Arab countries ever since.

In other business Wednesday, the Commons gave third reading to legislation making the Canadian Wheat Board a permanent government agency. Under present law its life has to be extended every five years. The bill now goes to the Senate.

During debate on the bill's third reading, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker accused the government of actions that have cost Canadian wheat farmers $190,800,000 over the last two years.

He welcomed the wheat board legislation and said the board had been "the greatest single stabilizing factor in the economy of Western Canada and of Canada as a whole."

Western farmers had been given hope by the wheat board's contributions in getting markets, but they had not forgotten that 17 cents had been cut off their price two years ago while the new international wheat agreement had called for a maximum increase of 21 cents.

Total Censorship Imposed by Arabs

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Total censorship was imposed throughout the Arab world with the outbreak of war Monday.

A loose and relatively informal system of censorship had been imposed two weeks earlier when the Middle East crisis started heating up.

But new restrictions declared under martial law required prior approval of every word and every photograph sent to the outside world.

"Anything to do with the war is banned," a top Lebanese security official declared.

This included incoming radio-photos of tanks moving through Amman, in neighboring Jordan, military activity in Egypt, and other Lebanese ally; and practically everything from Israel, including photos of damage suffered by the Israelis.

Most of the news reports from Arab capitals were monitored in Beirut or received by telephone in Beirut from correspondents scattered around the Arab circuit. They had to go through double censorship, at the source and in Beirut.

In Cairo and other Arab capitals, news copy had to be submitted in triplicate to the censors before it was transmitted by phone or cable. In Beirut this was extended to use of telex facilities, too.

Telephone communications with Beirut, but the lines were cut frequently after only a few words had been dictated.

Monday night a correspondent in Cairo declared: "Egyptian fighter . . ." and was cut off. Two hours later he got through again, this time dictated "Egyptian fighter-bombers . . ." before he was cut off.

Phone calls from Damascus and Amman were interrupted frequently. Reconnections took agonizing hours.

Awards to Encourage Breeding Considered by Governments

TORONTO (CP)— Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said Wednesday the federal government and the provinces may establish a system of national awards to encourage horse breeding.

National stakes races may also be established, said Mr. MacNaughton, who told the legislature he recently discussed these matters with J. J. Greene, federal agriculture minister.

Mr. MacNaughton urged representatives of racing commissions, horse breeding societies and the federal and provincial governments to get together and "formulate a national policy."

The federal government may allocate a portion of the half of one per cent it receives from pari-mutuel betting for breeder awards, the treasurer said, said perhaps the provinces could put up a similar amount.

Additional sums could be raised from the national stakes races.

Mr. MacNaughton referred to the proposals after opposition spokesmen objected to an expenditure of $200,000 "under treasury department estimates which ostensibly equips breeding and research."

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon moved an amendment that would have reduced the sum by $275,000 and eliminated awards in excess of $1,000 given by the Canadian Thoroughbred Horse Society.

Allan Reyden (NDP — Toronto Woodbine) moved a subamendment that would have reduced the sum to $130,000, eliminating altogether awards by the thoroughbred society.

Both objected to the manner in which the grants are distributed.

The amendment and subamendment both were defeated by a vote of 45 to 18 with Liberal and New Democratic party members opposing the Progressive Conservative government.

There are 78 Conservatives, 21 Liberals, eight NDPs and three vacancies in the 108-seat house.

Mr. Nixon said 13 breeders received grants in excess of $1,000 in the 1956-57 fiscal year from the thoroughbred society.

This was "massive support for some individual breeders" who do not appear to be "in dire need."

In all, the government paid $87,650 to the society that made 175 grants to breeders. The largest grant was $23,321.25 to E. P. Taylor.

Fishie See, Fishie Do

It may be a takeoff on the saying about the monkey, but in the case of this imported South American fish with the high sounding name "astronotus ocellatus", it's a fact. Sharon Merilhan of Hamilton found the fish would imitate her when she opened her mouth or shook her head. However, the fish — a principal in a Hamilton tropical fish show — didn't appear to appreciate the game. (CP Photo)

Having Americans Know Canada Real Centennial Achievement

CHICAGO (AP) — To have Americans get to know Canadians better "would be a real centennial accomplishment, Chairman William Allen of Metropolitan Toronto council said Wednesday.

Allen addressed the annual meeting of the International Association of Great Lakes Ports at a luncheon honoring Canada's centennial.

He said that, as members of the Great Lakes association, no group could be more aware of the areas of vital dependency between the United States and Canada, "separated only by customs officers with cash registers."

"Foreign investment has been and will continue to be basic and essential to Canadian industrial and manufacturing development," Allen said, "but hardly, more so than water oil, gas and pulp from Canadian resources.

"We are first in world production of nickel, asbestos, platinum and radium. We are second in world production of gold and zinc. We are third in world production of copper, zinc, lead and silver."

In honor of Canada's centennial, Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago officially designated Wednesday as Canada Day.

Among delegates representing Canadian ports at the meeting was Kenneth McCosig, chairman of the Great Lakes Ports Association, from the Canadian Lakehead area of Fort William-Port Arthur.

Headlight Shield Criticized

BRANTFORD (CP)— Magistrate John Ord criticized the Ford Cougar automobile headlight-shield system of the driver of one of careless driving.

"I think these shields are extremely dangerous," the magistrate said, before fining Gerald Ronson $50 and costs.

Ronson's and another car collided April 29 and two women occupants of the other car were injured. Damage was estimated at $1,500.

Ronson testified he thought his headlights were on. Three witnesses, one the driver of the other car, testified the lights of the car were not on.

The headlights on Cougars are operated by a vacuum system and Ronson said his had been repaired several times. Ford Motor Co. in Detroit, where the cars are manufactured, has recalled 85,000 Cougars for checking and modifications of the vacuum systems.

Doctor Did Not Know Drug 'Not for Babies'

OTTAWA (CP) — A three-month-old Eastview, Ont., boy died Dec. 20 from an overdose of drugs, a coroner's jury ruled Tuesday night. He recommended greater care in the administering of drugs.

The inquest was into the death of Dauny Martineau, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Martineau. Eastview is a city within the capital's city limits.

The jury found the baby was suffering from asthma, bronchial complications and a rare heart disease but that the main cause of death was an overdose of the drug corophyllne, brand name for theophylline.

Dr. Pierre Sarda, an Eastview general practitioner, had testified that he prescribed 3½ grains of the drug. He said he was not aware that the drug had three classifications—adult, child and infant.

Mrs. Martineau said she gave her baby the medicine according to directions. However, the baby's condition deteriorated. She said she later noticed on the drug container a warning: "Not for babies."

Hospital Fire Inquest Will Go to Jury Today

TORONTO (CP)—One of the longest inquests in recent times in Ontario, the investigation into the death of a patient during a fire at a Workmen's Compensation Board Hospital here March 31, goes to the jury today.

Almost 150 witnesses have testified during 10 days of evidence at the politically-delicate inquiry into the death of 36-year-old Francesco Gualtieri.

The inquest took on political overtones when the then Metropolitan Toronto chief coroner, Dr. Morton Shulman, claimed after the fire that the provincial government was trying to suppress evidence in this and other inquests.

The last of the witnesses, Herry Jordon of the engineering division of the fire marshal's office, told the inquest Wednesday there was sound economic reasons behind the hospital's lack of a sprinkler system.

Mr. Jordan said sprinkler systems were excellent fire-control devices for privately - owned buildings because they paid for themselves within a few years through reduced insurance premiums.

But public buildings cannot recover the costs through reduced premiums.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate

"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Real estate has probably produced more millionaires than any other investment field. I am often asked, "what is so special about real estate to bring about this result?" The answer following reveals the secret.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Fifteen years ago, several members of my roomate and I started an investment program. Instead of going to night school and applying the principles we had learned in our graduate business courses. He chose real estate, and I picked the stock market.

We have both been successful, but he appears to have done much better than I. Our total cash investment over the years is about $100,000 each. My portfolio now has a market value of about $220,000.

His real estate holdings now have a market value of over $2,000,000 and, subtracting the $200,000 of mortgages that he owes, his net worth has grown to considerably over $1,000,000. What's so special about real estate investments, that has allowed him to achieve such overwhelming success? — Mr. S. I.

ANSWER: Real estate, as an investment, has one characteristic that is not possessed by any other type — namely, high leverage. Because of leverage, with the proper degree of success, a real estate investment program will give much greater capital accumulation.

Each dollar invested in the stock market has only $1 working (hoping and praying increases the ration somewhat). Each dollar invested in real estate will have ten to 20 additional dollars working. This is because the mortgage is usually much greater than the degree of success.

The ratio of the mortgage to the purchase price determines the degree of leverage. As success becomes multiplied several times. This is why your roommate has been able to accumulate a much larger capital fund with the same investment.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: When I signed the sale agreement last month and gave the agent a $1,500 deposit, I was not sure I really wanted the house. He told me that if I gave him before settlement I found the house I liked better, he would tear up the agreement and give me back my money.

I have now found a house I like better, but the agent has changed his story. He denies ever having made me any promise. He is a liar! I want my money back! How do I get it?

— Mr. H. F.

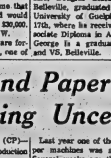
ANSWER: The chances of you getting the deposit back are much less than that of a snowball in Hades. An agreement in writing takes precedence over all statements that have been made in the negotiating stage. Any promises not reduced to writing in the agreement have little value. The sales gimmick used to get you to sign is sometimes employed by unethical brokers. You are $2,500 poorer, but richer in experience.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: A distant cousin, residing in Great Britain recently was a visitor. He stayed at my home for several days. Proudly, I showed him an acre of land that I had just bought for $5,000, on which I was going to erect a new home. He astonished me when he told me that a similar lot in England would sell for the equivalent of $30,000. Was he kidding? — Mr. W.

ANSWER: Americans are fortunate for many reasons, one of them is that land prices in this country are probably lower than in any other economically advanced country. This is one of the reasons why home ownership is so widespread in the United States.

In European countries, although wages are lower, the price of urban land is much higher. Statistics I have available show that, on the average, for equivalent good residential land, they are three to four times as high.



Dear Mr. Meltzer: My girl friend will be married in three months. I have been helping her look for an apartment. The two buildings we visited last Saturday each require tenants to install wall-to-wall carpet in the apartment before. With carpeting on the floor, the apartment below does not remember with the clickety-clack of pretty girls in high heels walking across the floor.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: At last month's meeting of our service club, a real estate consultant was the guest speaker. He advised us to buy now because real estate values were going up 4 to 5 per cent a year. I have attempted to verify this information, but have unsuccessful. What is the source for this data? — Mr. C. P.

ANSWER: There are two reasons why you have been unable to check these statements. The first being that there are no such statistics available. Even more important, the statement is not true.

The consultant was confusing real estate values with new construction cost. These have been rising in the range of 4 to 5 per cent a year mentioned and even more. Real estate values, on the other hand, depend on neighborhood, type of property, economic activity and population, and numerous other factors. We have no statistics on real estate values.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Dorothy Parker Is Dead

NEW YORK (AP) —Dorothy Parker, 74, the versatile writer known as the author of the witty couplet: "Men seldom make passes, at girls who wear glasses."

Once, reviewing a performance of Katherine Hepburn on Broadway, Miss Parker wrote: "She ran the gamut of emotions from A to B."

Miss Parker died at an East 74th Street hotel, where she resided.

Born Dorothy Rothschild in West End, N.J., she was brought up in New York and educated in convent schools. Her father was Jewish and her mother was of Scottish descent.

She was married to Edwin Pound Parker II in 1917, just a few days before he sailed for France in the First World War. They were divorced in 1928, but on several motion picture scenarios. They were divorced in 1947, but remarried in 1950. He died in 1963.

She was married to Alan Campbell, who abandoned the stage to become a successful writer and collaborator with her on several motion picture scenarios. They were divorced in 1947, but remarried in 1950. He died in 1963.

Enjoy Parks But Watch Rules!

TORONTO (CP) — Suburban Etobicoke Wednesday added two new items to its long list of regulations.

Council passed a new bylaw regulating the enjoyment of municipally - owned land and parks. It also banned open-air topless garbagemen to cover up.

The new bylaw, which carries a maximum penalty of $200, forbids one to heckle in a park, smoke on a skating rink, climb trees, wade in streams, take hands off the handle bars of bicycles, pick dew-worms, walk dogs on beaches longer than six feet, hitch your horse to an "undesignated" place, use a golf club except in specific areas and climb fences or beaches.

Mayor Edward Horton said no one will object if someone picks a few worms to go fishing.

The board ordered followed complaints from residents about garbagemen who had been stripping to the waist during the recent hot spell.

Roller Skating Begins

CAMPBELLFORD— Although the Community Arena in Campbellford is not yet officially open, roller skating was permitted Wednesday evening. A large crowd was on hand to enjoy the sport. Steel wheeled skates were not permitted because of the possibility they might break the seal on the floor.

Milk Prices Cut

TORONTO (CP) — Major dairies Wednesday announced a price cut for milk sold by the jug of two cents on three-quart sizes—Milk sold in other ways was not affected. The price for three-quart jugs now is 67 cents from Borden's, Sani-Seal, Mac's Milk and Becker's outlets. The three - quart jug delivered at homes is 81 cents from Silverwoods dairy.

London's Royal Ballet Enchants Montrealers

MONTREAL (CP) — The Royal Ballet of Covent Garden, London, enchanted a full house at Montreal's Place des Arts Wednesday night with a production of Cinderella.

The costumes and settings by David Walker and Henry Bardon could have come from the pages of Grimm's Fairy Tales for this ballet. The production with its music by the 20th-century Russian composer Serge Prokofieff, was directed by Frederick Ashton.

Tall, exquisite Svetlana Beriosova, the company's lead female dancer, was in the title role for the first-night performance of the company's week-long visit to Montreal. The performances are in conjunction with Expo's World Festival.

Jacob Siskind, theatre critic for the Montreal Gazette, called it a "sumptuous production" danced with "sublime grace."

Sydney Salmon of the Montreal Star said the star of the performance was choreographer Frederick Ashton whose production "suited Prokofieff's flowing score without losing the picturesque flavor."

Doctor Calls Health Act Giant Step

TORONTO (CP) — The new Mental Heath Act gives unanimous approval Tuesday by a committee of the Ontario legislature is "a giant step forward in removing the distinction and discrimination which exists between general and mental hospitals," the general director of the Canadian Mental Health Association said Wednesday.

"Civil liberties are protected better than under any other act," Dr. John Griffin said in a statement. "the availability of a review board survey is better than that provided by any other act."

"A patient still can be admitted involuntarily if he represents a threat to himself or to society, but his case may be subject to review by himself or his relatives after one month. The danger of a person being committed and forgotten as a custodial patient is removed."

Aussie Air Ambulances Come in for Criticism

MELBOURNE (CP) — What the doctor ordered when he came back from Vietnam didn't please the Australian government at all.

Dr. Alister Brass, an assistant editor of the Medical Journal of Australia, a noted Sydney psychiatrist, paid his own way to Vietnam to see the medical facilities available to the 6,500 Australian troops serving there.

He was impressed with the speedy evacuation of wounded men from the battlefield and the attention they received at base hospitals.

But, he said, the flight back to Australia for seriously wounded men must be a nightmare. The planes the Royal Australian Air Force was using for the long flight had no running water, no toilet bowl, no oxygen supply and no suction apparatus.

The fuselage was unlined and the noise of engines must be unbearable for a sick man, Dr. Brass reported. They were strictly a functional transport aircraft and no attempt had been made to provide for the comfort of passengers.

The doctor's report stung the government, already highly sensitive to any criticism of its handling of its Vietnam commitment.

Defence Minister Alan Fair-hall promised his department would look into the matter and commented: "There is seems validity in Dr. Brass's criticism."

But Air Minister Peter Howson, whose department is responsible for supplying and servicing the planes, defended the Hercules and said no wounded soldier from Vietnam had suffered ill - effects from flying in one. Said Howson: "We have evacuated a large number of them in C-130s and we haven't lost a patient yet."

There was further embarrassment for the government when an Australian Broadcasting Commission correspondent in South Vietnam reported that 90 per cent of Australia's casualties were draftees — and draftees made up only one-third of the number of Australian troops sent to the war.

Army Minister John Fraser called in reporters to explain that regular army men handled highly important jobs that meant they didn't go out on patrol. Draftees had to do a heavy share of infantry duty because they couldn't be prepared for these skilled and technical jobs in the one year's training they received before being sent to Vietnam.

Australia has lost 110 dead and 300 wounded in Vietnam so far.

Pulp and Paper Town in BC Is Facing Uncertain Future

OCEAN FALLS, B.C. (CP)—Faced with rising production costs and fading competitive output, its old pulp and paper mills at this isolated coastal community have an uncertain future.

And Ocean Falls, a community that has no reason other than that from the Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. plants, is worried.

The production curtailment and increasing layoffs — the 2,200-man work force will be cut to about 450 within five years— has resulted in formation of a Save Ocean Falls movement.

Permanent residents of the town of 4,000 pointed out the town's labor force have been sending letters to the government and to newspapers calling for an investigation and for action.

Until last year Ocean Falls supported a 150-ton-per-day sulphate mill, a 120-ton sulphite mill, a 180-ton groundwood mill and five paper machines. Production was largely newsprint and other paper.

Last year one of the kraft paper machines was shut down. Several weeks ago the sulphite mill was closed. On July 1 the sulphate mill will close and within a few years two more paper machines will be closed.

Crown Zellerbach, which has embarked on what it calls a consolidation and modernization program, said it plans to create a more efficient newsprint operation within a smaller and more stable community.

H. R. Rogers of Vancouver, president of Crown Zellerbach, said the company plans to spend money to modernize the groundwood mill and add a 250-ton-per-day machine.

But he agreed the newsprint machines that will remain operating are 30 years old and he doesn't know how much longer they can produce at an economic cost.

The problem basically is one of cost. Last year Ocean Falls employed 1,000 men and produced 400 tons of paper a day. But at Crown Zellerbach's new Elk Falls plant on Vancouver Island, 900 men produced 1,500 tons per day—almost four times as much with less manpower.

Ocean Falls is one of the oldest pulp and paper towns in a province that is unabrooming with paper mills. Production began at Ocean Falls in 1909.

Added to the old equipment and rising costs is another factor, the location. Ocean Falls, 225 miles upcoast from Vancouver, is accessible only by water or air. The mills are cramped into a tiny valley between mountains at the water's edge. The average annual rainfall is 130 inches.

The town has a large proportion of single workers, and a high turnover. Company records show that turnover peaks as high as 50 per cent during December and January — days when the sun rarely shines.

Mr. Rogers said he doesn't think this is the end for Ocean Falls, but he admits the mills are unprofitable and this situation will have to change soon.

Why do we need advertising anyhow?

ADVERTISING HELPS IMPROVE OUR LIVING STANDARD

You may remember the old-time huckster touting his wares up and down the block. You still see a few of them around. In season. And door-to-door salesmen turn up now and then.

But they're a vanishing breed. Replaced, largely, by a more efficient way of spreading news about products and services. Advertising.

With the development of mass production techniques, the need for mass selling techniques became evident. Advertising was already with us in those days, to be sure. But it had not become the dynamic force in our economy that it is today.

Manufacturers simply learned to use advertising more efficiently to sell the products they were making more efficiently. With the result that more people were able to enjoy the fruits of what has come to be known as the industrial revolution.

Today, advertising is still the best—and cheapest—method yet devised for spreading news about products and services.

Ottawa: From Quorums to Hockey Players

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons agriculture committee got approval to reduce its quorum Wednesday but only after MPs got in some opinions on how big committees should be and who should be on them.

The committee sought approval of the Commons to reduce the regular quorum, 25 of the 45 members, to 15.

Gilles Gregoire (Ind — Lapointe) objected. If 23 of the present members could not turn out for a meeting it meant the members did not take a real interest in agriculture problems.

The solution was to appoint members interested in agriculture.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) said the standing orders setting out quorums for committees apparently are not in line with what MPs wished. Each session saw repeated requests for the size of quorums to be reduced. The orders should be changed.

Charles-Arthur Gauthier (Cr—Ontario — Roberval) said MPs have many other duties besides committees.

There was never trouble obtaining a quorum in the agriculture committee when a topic of national interest was being discussed. But when the topic affected only one or two provinces it was difficult to get MPs from other areas to turn out.

The reduction in the quorum was approved on division to denote the opposition of some members.

DRESDEN, Ont. (CP)—M. T. McCutcheon, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Lambton - Kent, said Wednesday Canada should be a bit ashamed it took the Russians to show how our national anthem should be sung.

He was referring to the recent concert given at the Parliament Buildings by the Red Army Chorus.

"They sang O Canada as it should be sung," said Mr. McCutcheon, who is a member of the federal committee studying possible new lyrics for the anthem.

"It was enough to bring tears to your eyes," he said. It made me proud to be a Canadian."

He was in Dresden to take part in the opening of the town's new municipal offices.

OTTAWA (CP)—A New Democratic MP tried unsuccessfully Wednesday to raise in the Commons the issue of National Hockey League players being sold or traded "under archaic and serfdom-like rules."

Reid Scott (Toronto Danforth) asked whether the government had received any representation from Leonard (Red) Kelly, a former Liberal MP and player for Toronto Maple Leafs, about the system that allows players to be "traded like cattle regardless of their views."

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux said the question was not the type that could be asked during the daily question period.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) tried another attack, asking Justice Minister Trudeau whether changes are being considered in anti-combines legislation to include such "service industries" as professional hockey.

Mr. Trudeau said the question should have been directed to Registrar - General Turner and the issue was dropped.

Ontario Lifts Ban on Bush Travel

TORONTO (CP)—Restrictions on campfires, smoking and bush travel in Ontario were lifted in all but one area Wednesday by Hugh Brunelle, minister of lands and forests.

Northwestern Ontario will remain under restrictions until the fire danger is over, Mr. Brunelle said at a news conference.

In lifting the restrictions, he urged travellers throughout the province to use extreme caution in smoking and lighting campfires.

There were 74 fires still burning in Ontario. Six were out of control, he said. About 9,000 firefighters are using combed 122 blazes at two days.

Mr. Brunelle expressed his appreciation to the governments of Alberta and Manitoba, the forest industries, the Canadian armed forces and the United States forest service, all of which gave assistance at the height of the outbreak.

The acreage burned over since Sunday was revised by Mr. Brunelle downward to 35,000 across from 75,000 acres.

CHAPLEAU, Ont. (CP) — A forest fire that threatened this Northern Ontario railway town with destruction Sunday retreated Wednesday under the pressure of north winds, a steady rain and mopping up by firefighters.

Schools re-opened and most of 300 men who left their regular jobs to fight the flames returned to normal employment.

The visible reminder of the fire which swept 8,000 acres of bush was a cloud of smoke in the sky about four miles to the south.

Dislocations First Caused by Injury

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 23 and for two years have had shoulder dislocations. I can't play any sports or do anything the least out of the ordinary without a painful dislocation. What can be done.? Is there any kind of physical therapy? — G. L. H.

The story of recurring shoulder dislocations plainly starts in young adults and it usually comes down to the same history: no trouble to start with. Our joints are kept in proper position by the combined action of muscles, ligaments and the joint capsule. Damage one (or more) of these, and a bone can slip out of position — become dislocated.

Physical therapy is not the answer. Exercise isn't going to repair the injury. More likely it will make it worse.

The conservative treatment is with some sort of splinting, arranged to suit the particular injury, to prevent strain on the injured tissues until they have time to knit firmly. (Have this done by an orthopedist.)

If this does not bring suitable results, then surgical repair may be necessary. Professional athletes, of course, resort to surgery much more quickly, because it is important for them, in terms of money, to get back into action sooner.

Good function of the shoulder can be expected after the surgery.

Women also can be subject to dislocations, and from the same cause, an injury.

Dear Dr. Molner: What are some of the symptoms of menopause? I have been very nervous and the doctor has been giving me pills and hormones. Some people are hormone pills are not good to take, you should let nature take its course. — Mrs. A.C.

Why don't you read my booklet, "Make a Menopause Easier?" It is available in returns for 25 cents in coin and a self-addressed, unstamped envelope. Write to Dr. Molner, care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 136, Dundee, Ill. It will give you the symptoms, methods of relieving the problems, and a great deal of related information.

The segment of "just letting nature take its course, doesn't make sense to me.

Why not let an aching tooth suffer? Why use antibiotics to suppress infection? Why use anesthetics? Why do any of the things we do medically to make people healthier and more comfortable? We know how to take much of the discomfort out of menopause, and hormones are one of the important medications for this. Your physician should be consulted to determine the proper treatment in your case.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I make sure that all members of the family have a multiple vitamin daily. But the boy friend in high school refuses because she says it puts on weight. She dared me to write to you. — S. J. W.

Vitamins do not put on weight. However, with a properly balanced diet, people get all the Vitamins they need or can use from their food.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the cause of skin cancer? Why does it spread to other parts of the body? Why doesn't it cure? How take two years of X-ray treatment? — D. H.

We don't know the cause of cancer. We just know that it tends to follow some types of irritation: too much sun, windwind, some chemical irritants, fumes, repeatedly irritating moles and the like. Sometimes no cause can be detected.

Like any other cancer, skin cancer will spread, but being on the surface it can be seen before it has time to spread, and can be removed and thus cured. Some are removed surgically, some destroyed by X-ray, depending on location, size, type.

Extending the X-ray treatment would be to make certain that skin cancer has been completely eradicated.

Seat Belts Little Help

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — Wearing a seat belt is no guarantee against injury in a serious traffic accident, Sydney University's safety researchers said today in a report.

Dr. R. Gye, associate professor in motor vehicle safety at the university, said, the survey investigated the causes of 3,700 persons injured in traffic accidents during 10 months ended June, 1966.

"A passenger wearing a seat belt was generally no safer than a person not wearing one — except in the event of a head-on colliding," Gye told a symposium.

He also found that in the case of serious injury it did not matter whether a person was wearing a seat belt or not.

"It would appear that wearing a seat belt is no guarantee against escaping injury."

Gye said the researchers found that "the front passenger seat of a family vehicle apparently carries the greatest risk of injury."

Visitors in the village during the weekend were Jim Wood, Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Owen Carr, Ottawa; Bernard Phillips, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Phillips and family, Cow Bay Road; and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Park and family, Glen Miller.

Sectional Divisions Accented

OTTAWA (CP) —Canadian political parties have been shaped by an electoral system that has aggravated sectionalism and detracted from national unity, a University of British Columbia political science professor said Wednesday.

Alan C. Cairns, analyzing electoral and party system in Canada from 1921 to 1965 at the 30th annual meeting of the Canadian Political Science Association at Carleton University, said the electoral system has encouraged sectionalism in party campaigns and policies and prohibited MPs of the major parties from being sensitive to the sentiments of particular groups of voters.

He suggested a proportional representation system might be more appropriate in Canada than the present single member constituency system as it would eliminate sectionally oriented parties and the need to concentrate on regional differences in gain seats.

Mr. Cairns said the present system tends to give the winning party a number of Commons' seats disproportionate to its percentage of the popular vote. The system also gives greater strength to third and fourth parties in the "detriment of the second party, he said.

John Meisel of Queen's University, argued that Mr. Cairns' over - simplified matters by studying some aspects of the Canadian electoral system and ignoring others.

He said the emphasis on sectionalism applies only to the electoral side of the system and not to the legislative. Politicians once elected, have incentives for taking the national viewpoint and drop much of their sectional bias, he said.

Pauline Jewett, a former Liberal MP, said Mr. Cairns had concentrated on the role of the parliamentary party and underplayed the importance of the political organization.

Social Class Determines Ontario, BC Vote Habits

OTTAWA (CP)— Social class is the most significant factor in voting patterns in industrial constituencies in Ontario and British Columbia, says John M. Wilson, political science professor at the University of Waterloo.

Discussing the 1964 federal by election in Waterloo South that elected New Democrat Max Saltsman, Mr. Wilson said Wednesday religious and ethnic factors were shown by surveys to have only limited relevance.

He also discounted the opinion that the personality of the candidate swung significant numbers of voters. About three-quarters of the people who said they voted NDP "for the man" admitted they would have voted NDP for another man as well.

Mr. Wilson presented his theories in a paper to the annual meeting of the Canadian Political Science Association at Carleton University.

He said it was popularly believed that to discuss social class in Canada was "to assign oneself to the political wilderness," yet it remained the deciding factor in voting patterns.

Mr. Wilson said he could not interpolate the results of his study beyond seven industrial constituencies in Ontario and B.C. where the results had been checked.

The recent byelection victory for the NDP in Sudbury was an extension of the social class pattern, he claimed. Previous Liberal victories were explained by the ethnic vote of the large French-Canadian population.

In the May 29 byelection the New Democrats had succeeded in breaking the ethnic barrier and the social class pattern went into operation.

Mr. Saltsman, a member of the audience, agreed with Mr. Wilson's interpretation.

Mr. Saltsman said people needed a catalyst to persuade them to switch their vote and no excuse for themselves to justify the switch. He said the confusion in the Liberal camp caused by the party's decision to reject the expected candidate provided the catalyst.

Landreville Resigns---May Get $18,666 A Year Life Pension

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Leo Landreville has resigned from the Ontario Supreme Court amid government indications that he may get a life pension of $18,666 a year.

The 57-year-old judge and onetime Sudbury mayor resigned just as the Senate was scheduled to open debate Thursday on an unprecedented motion to unseat him for alleged improper conduct in stock dealings.

Opposition spokesmen in both houses served notice they will fight any government move to award the judge a special pension.

Justice Minister Trudeau announced in the Commons that the government had accepted the resignation, effective June 30. Asked about a possible pension, he replied amid opposition hoots:

"I think it is very much the type of matter in which the government might well give some consideration."

At a press conference later, the minister said he would have to weigh arguments for and against a pension.

Mr. Trudeau said reporters that the judge could qualify for a pension of $18,666, two-thirds of his $28,000 salary, only for health reasons.

Judges' pensions normally are paid only at the retirement age of 75 or to judges with 15 years' service who retire early. Retirements because of illness are decided by the Justice department on the merits of each case.

Justice Landreville offered to resign earlier this year if he were awarded a pension. A reference to "impaired health and wealth" in his resignation letter appeared to be a request for a pension.

Justice Landreville said in his letter: "After five difficult years and appearing in seven hearings, my health and wealth are impaired. I cannot continue."

He said the controversy arising from his $17,000 stock market windfall 10 years ago destroyed his usefulness as a judge, but reaffirmed his innocence of any wrongdoing.

His integrity or conduct in hearing court cases had never been questioned.

"In my personal life as mayor, solicitor or citizen, I repeat emphatically and reaffirm my innocence of any wrongdoing in law or ethics. But I cannot remove unfounded suspicions."

He thanked the residents of Sudbury for their "continued confidence and persistence in defending me."

The judge dated his resignation letter in Ottawa Wednesday and was unavailable for comment Thursday. His wife said in Toronto he was still in Ottawa, but a local hotel said he checked out Thursday morning.

The resignation was announced in the Commons about 30 minutes before the Senate was expected to open a long and bitter impeachment debate.

Senator Daniel Lang (L—Tecumseh), co-chairman of a special Commons - Senate committee that recommended the judge's removal in March, quickly withdrew his impeachment motion filed Tuesday night.

The resolution made two accusations against the judge:

—That he had failed to remove "grave suspicion of impropriety" arising from his acceptance in early 1957 of 7,500 shares in Northern Ontario Natural Gas Co. free of charge. He sold the stock later for $117,000.

—That the manner in which he testified at a 1962 hearing by the Ontario Securities Commission and the resulting perjury trial of Ralph Farris, then NONG president, constituted "a gross contempt of the tribunals concerned and a serious violation of his personal duty as a judge."

Israel Invades Syria Saying Truce Broken

Israelis Push Into Jordan

Israeli soldiers approach the town of Hebron, in Jordan south of Jerusalem. (AP Photo)

TEL AVIV (CP) — Israeli forces struck into Syria today and seized high ground overlooking the Sea of Galilee after charging the Syrians violated the ceasefire with a mortar barrage.

All fighting ceased on the main front along the Suez Canal after an Israeli army spokesman said Egyptians attacked east of the Suez Canal in the "central axis" area were repulsed. This presumably was in the area of Ismailia, Egyptian port in the centre of the canal.

Syria and Egypt, the last of the Arab combatants, accepted Thursday a UN Security Council demand for a ceasefire. Jordan, the third main Arab participant in the conflict, had dropped out of the war Wednesday.

There were no details immediately available on the Israeli push into Syria.

Associated Press correspondent Hans Benedict, in the general area, saw the heavy artillery duel which broke the shaky ceasefire this morning.

He said Israeli mortars in mid-morning opened fire on Israeli hilltop positions 20 miles north of the town of Tiberias, apparently in violation of their acceptance of the ceasefire. The Israelis struck back and called in air attacks.

Radio Damascus, monitored in Israel, accused the Israelis of opening fire with artillery and aircraft and said: "We shelled their border settlements, demolished nine of their tanks, shot down one Mirage jet and destroyed a column of armor invading us."

Syrian head-of-state Dr. Nouredin Attassi called on the Syrian people "to fight until death in the face of the foreign aggressors." He urged his people to "burn the world into an inferno in the face of the aggressors."

Speaking in an emotion-packed voice over Damascus radio, Attassi said the Syrian people are facing "a vile Anglo-American-Israeli plot to wipe out the gains of our people."

Attassi said the existence of the Arab world is endangered by "imperialist aggression" and urged Syrian soldiers "to turn . . . Syrian soil into a graveyard for the aggressors."

An Egyptian announcement that fighting had ended in the main zone along the Suez Canal came about three hours after the Egyptians charged the Israelis with launching new attacks.

Israeli tanks had moved to the east bank of the canal when bloody fighting broke out.

Israeli military spokesmen said that Israeli forces holding key points along the east bank moved to crush a "last ditch" assault of Egyptian infantry units in the Ismailia sector.

They said fighting was fierce in this central sector of the canal.

Mortar Fire Rakes Hue

SAIGON (AP) — Communist gunners have raised the ancient city of Hue with mortar barrages for the second time in 10 days, killing one American. Three South Vietnamese soldiers were wounded in the shelling Thursday night.

The ground war in South Vietnam leaped back into relative calm and heavy weather over the Hanoi-Haiphong area limited American pilots to strikes on supply lines. One air force Phantom was shot down and two aircrew are missing.

The mortar barrage against Hue hit the U.S. compound, a nearby South Vietnamese district military headquarters and civilian homes. Fifty rounds hit the American compound.

In Quang Tin province a company of about 150 guerrillas invaded a village, killing the village school teacher, wounding eight civilians and kidnapping 13.

In nearby Quang Ngai Province 13 civilians were wounded in a mortar attack directed at a U.S. headquarters.

LBJ and Kosygin Used Hot Line to Limit War

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson and Soviet Premier Kosygin made unprecedented efforts—even using the "hot line"—to try to limit the Middle East war and bring the fighting to a quick end.

For the first time a U.S. president and a Soviet premier exchanged messages over the hot-line teletype circuit between Moscow and Washington.

It was opened four years ago following the confrontation between President John F. Kennedy and Nikita Khrushchev in the 1962 Cuban missile crisis.

Kosygin sent the first Middle East message to Johnson early Monday after Israeli and Arab armies clashed, the White House disclosed Thursday.

The Soviet premier, it was learned, suggested the world's two great powers should work together in the interest of peace. It is understood his message affirmed what he said in an earlier note to the president —that the Soviet government did not want war in the Middle East.

Johnson replied to Kosygin the same day, also using the hot line, George Christian, White House press officer, reported.

Christian did not disclose the content of the president's response, but it was reported to have welcomed Kosygin's interest in limiting the war and bringing it to a quick conclusion.

Another series of messages were exchanged Thursday after the president learned of an Israeli attack on the U.S. naval research ship Liberty off the Egyptian coast. The ship was damaged severely, 10 persons were killed, and planes of the U.S. 6th Fleet were ordered airborne immediately.

Knowledge that Soviet radar would pick up the takeoff of the aircraft—Soviet ships watch the 6th Fleet—Johnson sent a message to Kosygin over the hot line. The president reported the attack on the Liberty and placed the Soviet leader on the alert to the scrambling of 6th Fleet planes in order that he would know that they were going only to the stricken ship and were not bound for the war zone.

Red Army Controls Arab Mob

MOSCOW (AP)—The Kremlin called out Red Army troops and uniformed police in unprecedented numbers today to stave off an angry mob of 1,000 Arab-led students from damaging the British and U.S. embassies here.

Soviet authorities stopped the demonstrators well away from both embassies. Aside from a few minor scuffles, there were no incidents and no concerted attempts to break through Soviet defence lines.

Foreign correspondents who had witnessed numerous demonstrations at embassies here in recent years said they had never before seen such protection as that provided today by some 1,000 Red Army soldiers and police.

Russian Says School for Torture Is Holding Peking in State of Terror

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet correspondent says a Chinese torture chamber holds Peking in a state of terror and aids the Red Guards in their defence of Mao Tse-tung's ideas.

The reporter says there is a special school for torture in Peking that trains Red Guards in the new sciences of "re-education."

Torture methods taught at the school include "jump without parachute," and "human torch," as well as hunger, thirst, and exploitation of the fear of death, he writes.

The story was spread over nearly a full page of Literaturnaya Gazeta-Literary Gazette—Wednesday and carried the headline, Blood on the School Wall.

The writer, identified only as V. Georgiev, says most of his information came from wall posters in Peking.

"Dozens of people have passed through the torture chamber, more than 50 of them have been tortured to death or crippled," he writes.

Georgiev describes at length the exact methods used. He said the "jump without parachute" consisted of a platform from which the victim was dropped several feet to a concrete slab.

"Experienced tutors provided the Red Guards with all necessities, beginning with pocket knives to cut tendons and including silver needles which they put under the fingernails of their victims."

He describes how a teacher of the Russian language, one Van Minh-hu, was beaten unconscious, dragged into a courtyard, doused with gasoline and set afire.

Israel's Girl Soldiers Keep Morale High With 'Chen'

TEL AVIV (AP) — Trying to look as chic, as war in the desert will allow, Israeli's shapely girl soldiers have been right behind the frontline troops in the Middle East war.

"They call them 'chen' for 'charm,'" said Col. Stella Levi, commander of the women's corps. The girls made an invaluable contribution to the blitzkrieg in Sinai and the conquest of the Jordanian bulge west of the Jordan River — as secretaries, field nurses and radio and telephone operators.

They also belong to fighting units, but serve only in auxiliary capacities.

The Israeli girls were in the conquered areas of Sharm el Sheikh, Egypt, and Jericho, Jordan, today. Most are 18 to 20 year olds doing their 20 months of compulsory military service, although several thousand women reservists up to age 34 have been on active duty this week.

Col. Levy said in an interview that her officers did nothing to discourage the girls from showing feminine charm. "It raises morale," Col. Levy said. The "Amazons in uniform" image of the Chen Corps is definitely out.

In the age of the mini-skirt, Col. Levy admitted she was lenient to girls who raised their skirts a little above the knee length required by regulation. "But we will not accept all the dictates of Carnaby Street."

Slicks Appearing Atop Harbor Waters Traced to Abandoned Gas Plant Deposits

Belleville's long - defunct coal - gas plant is showing signs of life once more — to the public detriment.

Seepage from deposits of coal by - products is now leaking into Belleville harbor more than a block away, adding to a pollution situation that has brought government investigators into the city.

Yesterday, city fire inspector Robert Fair and Frank Webb, field man for the provincial department of energy resources, spent the day probing the whole waterfront area seeking sources of pollution.

It is the second time in a year harbor pollution has been investigated. Officials say a report was sent to city hall late November but the situation still exists.

Last year petroleum seepage into the harbor was traced back to a nearby oil-company storage area and the oil slicks were believed cleared up.

This year, the slicks appeared once more and harbor master Don Bowen called in the health department for analysis.

Yesterday the investigators cleared up the mystery.

The pollution was traced back to the vacant building that once housed a thriving municipal gas operation.

The plant, first opened in 1854, was finally shut down in 1947.

Inspector Fair said the plant used coal as a fuel source which left a residue of tarry products. This probably was stored in underground tanks which now are beginning to deteriorate.

The seepage now is leaking through an ancient drainage system that once served the harbor area, said the inspector.

However, the exact location of this system is a mystery and no municipal records of its network exist, said the inspector.

Now the offending seepage can be plainly seen bubbling to the surface from somewhere in the harbor bed forming "an unsightly mess" says harbor master Barrett.

However, the oil slicks are only the latest signs of pollution. They are also the least offensive.

Officials say they still are awaiting action on the November report which complained of the presence of raw sewage in storm drains that empty into the harbor.

Inspector Fair said a report on the latest situation would be presented both city council and the harbor in about two weeks.

Lagging Color TV Sales Bring Some Price Cuts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peter Munk, president of Clairtone Sound Corp. Ltd. of Toronto, said Thursday the firm will slash prices on some of its 1968 color television models by up to $50.

Mr. Munk was commenting in an interview on price reductions announced by large manufacturers in the U.S. on new lines, running up to $30 on 18-inch models.

Chairtone's complete price structure will be announced when the firm unveils its new lines in New York June 26, he said.

Sales of color TV sets in Canada this year have lagged behind forecasts.

Last fall, it was predicted that 1967 sales would reach 165,000 units—an estimate now revised to 140,000.

C. A. Pollock, chairman of Dominion Electrohome Industries Industries Ltd., Kitchener, said his company has remained quite positive but has no plans to follow the price-slashing trend in the U.S.

"We have to have volume to be properly productive, and the volume of production is being inhibited by an additional 17½ per cent levied on the manufacturers' prices by sales and excise taxes."

He said U.S. TV makers can afford prices because they do not have such taxes.

RCA Victor Co. Ltd., of Montreal, declined comment on next year's price structure. RCA's parent company, Radio Corporation of America, is one U.S. firm to announce lower prices.

Publicity chairman Donald DuBoo was installed along with co-chairman Clarence Jaynes of Northern Electric. William Black of Canadian Pacific Railway and Michael Tookey, of Northern Electric were installed as membership chairman and co-chairman.

The year-end reports were heard and a 50 per cent increase in membership to 38 persons of management reach drawn from the Belleville area was reported.

Statistics Listed

OTTAWA (CP)—The government published Thursday a batch of new statistics about the operations and financing of large foreign-owned companies in Canada.

A 75-page report issued by the trade department lists the aggregate sales, profits and purchases in 1964 and 1965 reported by 620 subsidiaries, each with assets exceeding $5,000,000.

Most of these firms, wholly-owned by foreign interests, do not publish financial statements in Canada. The new information was gathered in a special survey started a year ago.

The 1965 figures show that the reporting subsidiaries exported goods worth $2,750,000,000 and had imports of $2,680,000,000, for a trade surplus of $70,000,000.

Loyalist Enrolment Predicted Near Limit Immediately

Pondering enrolment in the new Belleville-area college of applied arts and technology?

Better make a decision soon.

That's the message today from one of the new institution's founding governors.

Judge J. C. Anderson today estimated enrolment in the college's initial courses opening in September in temporary quarters is estimated up to 300.

"Actually we can handle about 250, but if more students than expected apply we may have to limit the registration," said the judge.

He added that students should now begin seeking information on college courses.

The college is due to open Sept. 10 in rented quarters in Centennial Secondary School.

Eight courses will start perhaps two months later, said the judge.

Enrolment will double in the first few years, by which time the college will have selected a site and started its Loyalist Campus Complex.

Judge Anderson said when in full operation the school might have a roster of 2,000 students "but that might be some years off."

"We hope to have it completed in September 1968," he added.

The judge's surmise of doubling registrations in early years building to big enrolments when permanent quarters are available, seems to be a province-wide picture.

In Toronto, Premier Robarts predicted Thursday that Ontario's 19 colleges of applied arts and technology will have more than 50,000 students by 1970.

Mr. Roberts told the graduating class in secretarial science at Centennial College in suburban Scarborough that enrolment in the colleges by next September will be 20,000.

Centennial College was the first to open last October with 500 students, and Thursday's graduation was the first from a community college. The premier said Centennial's enrolment will climb to 1,000 next fall and to 12,000 by 1970.

"The need for these colleges has become particularly acute with the rapid disappearance of unskilled and semi-skilled jobs," and their replacement by the so-called middle-management, support and technical functions in business and industry, he said.

"It is also apparent that it is neither feasible nor desirable that all graduates of our secondary schools go to university."

The premier said studies by his government indicate enormously increased requirements in the immediate future for such categories as office machine operators, chemists, engineering and science technicians, draftsmen, engineers and business machine servicemen.

A text of the speech was made available before delivery.

Picton Library Opening Slated for Wednesday

PICTON (Staff) — The official opening of the Picton Public Library — the town's Centennial project — will be held Wednesday, June 14.

Ceremonies will begin at 7 o'clock and will include an open house tour of the building.

The project is not yet complete, due to a lack of funds, but a new wing and interior have resulted in an enlarged and improved building.

The Township of North Marysburgh joined with the town of Picton in the venture. Reeve Harold Harrison and Picton Mayor H. J. McFarland will participate in the ribbon cutting ceremony.

In addition to the renovated adult book section and reference room, a new children's library has been installed in the basement.

The Prince Edward Horticultural Society have provided new window boxes and a new flower bed to enhance the exterior of the library. A new sidewalk on the west side of the building has been added along with colored lights surrounding the main entrance.

Hospital Auxiliary Has Membership of 285

TRENTON — An enthusiastic group attended the Trenton Memorial Hospital Women's Auxiliary general meeting at Mrs. Sherm Graham's home on McLellan Avenue here yesterday. In spite of the afternoon rain 24 active members turned out for a review of the organization's activities for the year.

Membership convener Mrs. W. R. Ellis reported the auxiliary membership to date numbered 285 and new applications continued to be received.

Ways and means convener Mrs. William Steenburg reported on the first leadership institute attended with Mrs. William McLaren at London, Ont. May 24 - 25.

The convener for the auxiliary's volunteer services committee, Mrs. Harold Keefer, reported the auxiliary had purchased 40 pairs of slippers for the pediatric wing. She disclosed junior volunteers from the high school would be taking over the senior auxiliary duties in the children's wing during the summer months.

In the business discussions the auxiliary executives decided to spend $1,169 for the purchase of two resuscitators for use within the hospital.

Plans for the auxiliary sponsored Century Tea to be held at Mrs. Gerald Weaver's home in September stimulated considerable interesting conversation.

Location Changed

PICTON (Staff) — The T. Eaton Company have moved the location of their order office. An official ribbon cutting ceremony was conducted Thursday morning by Reeve Bernard Hepburn who acted for Mayor H. J. McFarland during his absence.

The new location is in the town's main business block — not far from the location of the old store.

Present for the ribbon cutting ceremony were Mrs. Parsons, office manager and Mrs. Hunt, the senior catalogue clerk.

Twang!

PICTON (Staff) — The newly formed Quinte Archery Club, headed by Brian York of Picton, is one of the town's most attractive clubs these days. Meeting nearly every weekend, members hold practice and competition shoots. At their last meeting the club had a full turn out of 18 members.

The club plans to affiliate with the Ontario Archery Association and at the moment plans are underway to obtain the charter.

The club was assisted in its formation by Floyd Armstrong of the Belleville Archery Club and Morris Lewis of the Circle Club of Kingston.

The Pest Season Is Here Again

Going to cottage? Then take your licence to kill!

It's the most menacing season in years.

It's also open season on human beings by swarms of black flies and mosquitoes — their breeding seasons suddenly at peak thanks to unpredictable weather.

The pest season, now at its peak, has brought a run on insecticides and repellents of all kinds at some city drug stores as humans round on their mile-size tormentors.

"We even had some on special", said one druggist. "But it wouldn't make any differences. They're buying the stuff anyway".

A Department of Lands and Forests warden said a combination of circumstances helped create the nonstop menace.

Cold weather delayed the start of the breeding season, while heavy rains and, high water in creeks and ponds eventually lent impetus just as the pests began appearing.

"Everything just happened right for them," said the warden ruefully.

Youngster Breaks Leg Swimming in Moira

The old Lazier Dam swimming hole in the north end of the city may be a hot weather haven for the youngsters, but there is a danger element involved unless care is used.

This was demonstrated one evening early this week when a 10-year-old boy slipped off the dam and suffered a severe leg fracture when he struck a submerged rock.

Barry Mason, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Mason, 10 Orchard Drive, was enjoying his second swim of the season when he slipped from the wet concrete into the pool at the base of the dam.

Screaming from fright and the pain of his injury, the lad was carried from the water by three other boys, Randy VanNorman, Allan Smith, and Mark Reid, who were fishing on the bank. An unidentified woman took the Mason boy to the hospital in her car.

The injured boy is still in hospital but is expected home Saturday.

The only ill-effects the rescuers suffered were a few scratches — and torn trouser seats.

Youth Charged With Theft Is Acquitted

William P. White, charged with robbery with violence, was acquitted yesterday at his trial before Judge G. F. Smith of Napanee. The jury deliberated for over an hour before reading a verdict.

White was charged with theft of one hundred dollars from J. H. Sagvill, a Belleville construction worker.

In the morning, evidence was heard that White already had about $130 when he came to Belleville the day before Mr. Sagvill lost his money.

Suspended Term

Larry P. May of 29 Charlotte Street received a six-month suspended sentence when he appeared in police court today. Magistrate T. Y. Wills found him guilty of the theft of 20 pounds of copper scrap which was stolen from Amplifone of Canada Ltd.

Forest Fire Situation Helped by Rainstorm

The rains came to the Quinte district's northern townships yesterday, finally squelching forest fire threats to area forests.

The Department of Lands and Forests now reports only two fires are burning in the Tweed district — both under control.

Heaviest hit by rain was the Palmer Rapids area, scene of a 220 - acre basin which threatened lumberlands in Radcliffe township earlier this week.

Nearly an inch of rain fell in the area. At Bancroft and Dacre, where the hazard rating also was extreme and more than a half - inch of rain was recorded.

The rain ended the long, hot spell of recent weather which caused a state of near-emergency in district timberlands.

Youth and Employment

Napanee's Mayor Lorne Smart takes a dim view of the Manpower Centre's report on the employment situation in the community.

It is a far cry from the period a decade or so ago when unemployment in Canada assumed much greater proportions than it does today. Nevertheless Napanee reports 30 per cent fewer men and 37 per cent fewer women employed than during the same period last year.

For all that, Mayor Smart wants a positive approach. He suggests the Manpower Centre's function is to promote jobs. Moreover, his reminder that other areas are in the same boat is confirmed by the fact that here in Belleville an antipathetic increase in job opportunities has not materialized.

The mayor's attitude is understandable. At the same time facts must be faced — the graduation for instance of at least 100 young people from local high schools. Together with university graduates they will be seeking jobs, but with business and industry both experiencing a slack period many will be disappointed.

Closeups at youth employment centres in Toronto tell a similar story. More and more young people are coming onto the labor market but there is not enough work for them all. Yet doesn't this offer young people scope for initiative, to strike out on their own, to put their own talents to work?

If there is one thing young people appear to lack when vacation time comes around it is initiative, even the initiative to think about Canada. Many do not even seem to have any desire to move outside their own community. A surprising number of adults for that matter have spent a lifetime cramped inside their own native region.

Is it any wonder that columnist Ann Landers was moved to say in a recent address in Montreal that the "biggest international disease is boredom." People rightly put much on material living on having things done for them or handed them by others. Parks, recreation facilities are provided, but in many instances they are used only sparingly if at all.

There is too little for the mind, too little emphasis on the development of inner resources that can help a person along whatever his environment or whatever the external factors.

The trouble with many young people, as Miss Landers suggests, is our materialist, mechanized society. "There are too many teenagers getting too many cars with no place to go," she said.

Ultimately each must work out his own salvation. And the key once again is initiative, respect for self and one's abilities — plus hard work.

The Soft Life

In a country of climatic extremes it is strange that Canadians are so soft about the vagaries of the weather.

Last Wednesday when there was some rain over the lunch period — and men and women were observed getting the exercise they generally lack while running for cover.

They ran as if someone had pushed the button in Moscow or Washington. And those who were under cover, having lunch for instance, looked out at it and moaned about their cars being two blocks away or they had left their coats at home!

One man was even heard to say, "I wouldn't mind if I were dressed for it."

Easterners one and all just hate getting wet, and this is enough to make anyone from say Vancouver laugh. Certainly it is better to be equipped for rainy days. But even if we are not it hardly matters.

For one thing we all need to walk more, rain or shine. Above all we need to smile more, take ourselves seriously and stop worrying every time we feel a bit out of sorts. People would be much better off, if instead of being stopped in their tracks by a cold and retiring to their beds, they simply took a walk.

French Policy

While France continues to go its own smug way in world politics, refusing ostensibly to take sides in either Vietnam or the Middle East, it cannot claim to be totally free of involvement in potentially aggressive acts.

For one thing Israel's jet fighter force, so successful in recent days against the Arabs, is made up largely of French Mirage and Mystere jets.

And from Paris comes a report that France has conducted a nuclear test — the first of a series — in the South Pacific.

French today is the only country in the world still conducting nuclear tests. And while nobody suspects that the country is planning any military adventures, its involvement in these two hostilities would suggest its policies are not as neutralist or independent as President de Gaulle would have us believe.

Knowledge Gap

Harvard Establishes Canadian Faculty

An editorial in The Nation

In all the cities south of the Great Lakes, it is a newspaper axiom that Canada is not news. Except for the exploits of its hockey teams, and seasonal feature stories in the travel sections, the fortunes of the nation with which we share our longest boundary go unrecorded, and Canada remains for most of us the land of the Mounties and the Dionne Quintuplets.

This is a one-sided indifference. The Canadians care quite intensely about what the United States is up to, and increasingly they are determined that it shall not be at their expense.

Prof. Edward J. Miles, director of Canadian Studies at the University of Vermont, put it neatly in a comment quoted by him: "Most Canadians have considerable, if malevolent, knowledge of the United States. Most Americans have a benevolent ignorance of Canada."

This year, the southward flow of news (and the northward flow of tourists) will be considerably increased by Expo 67 at Montreal. But world's fairs are essentially non-events, and though Canada's jamboree looks to be more substantial and rewarding than most it is unlikely to produce a permanent increase of traffic in ideas across the border.

A more optimistic sign is Harvard's recently announced chair of Canadian studies, founded with an endowment by Canadian and American businessmen. It is the first such chair in the United States, where as of now only thirty-seven of the more than 2,000 colleges and universities offer courses in Canadian history.

The evolution of Canada into a modern democracy parallels, but strikingly differs from, the evolution of the United States. Its continued association with British powers for one thing, and its bilingual culture for another, have produced unique characteristics. Only the most complacent insularity can see it as a suburb of its southern neighbor.

And now that we are to have a chair of Canadian studies (there should be many imitators of Harvard's example), we should apply ourselves to finding a suitable form of "United States" and desist from usurping the name "American" for the diary of our Canadian and Mexican neighbours.

Cape Breton Traditions

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

The best memorial which Cape Bretoners and other Nova Scotians of Scottish ancestry can erect to the memory of the Rev. A. W. R. MacKenzie, who died last week at 76, will be the maintenance of the Gaelic College of Celtic Folk Arts, which Mr. MacKenzie established at St. Ann's nearly 30 years ago.

The college's two-month summer course, culminating in the spectacular and rousing Gaelic Mod set in the midst of the Cape Breton highlands, has done a great deal not only to provide a tourist attraction, and thus bolster the local economy, but to keep the knowledge and use of the Gaelic language, culture and traditional handicrafts alive and flourishing among Nova Scotian Scots.

The college, which in addition to the summer classes at St. Ann's sponsors extra-mural winter studies at Sydney and at Campbell, Prince Edward Island, is unique in North America, although Gaelic is also taught at St. Francis Xavier University at Antigonish, its syllabus covers such varied ground as Gaelic language and literature, clan lore, highland folk art, bagpipe music and dancing, Gaelic song and tartan handweaving.

To perpetuate all that is finest in Gaelic culture and Scottish highland tradition was the cherished prayer of Mr. MacKenzie's life's work. It was a noble work, for which he will be remembered and respected.

In Bare Feet
Girl-Watching with A Difference

Des Moines Register

Grandfather, who was a boy in the country during the Rutherford B. Hayes administration, had a knack of knowing when the girl the other day, and all he felt was admiration.

That girl, he said, was rugged.

He spoke from experience, because when he was young he'd peel off shoes and stockings as soon as he got home from the last day of school.

After being protected all winter his feet would be pretty tender. About the first thing he'd do was stub his big toe and the stained reg around it would be part of his summer uniform. Then he'd chase a ball into the briar patch and come out with scratched legs. Usually he'd step on a piece of glass or two in the process.

Then he remembered how it hurt to walk across the newly mowed hayfield. The stubble cut like spears.

In those days there were no paved roads, and if there had been, they'd have been avoided by barefoot boys. The pavement which seems so smooth under an automobile wheel is like a waffle iron to tender soles.

What he liked to do was walk through the deep dust of the village street, or better still, to wade through puddles and let the mud squish between his toes.

His feet got dirty, naturally, like those of the college girls. In that day bathing all over was not the job it is today to undertake, but he had to wash his feet in a bucket every evening.

But by mid-summer his feet would be toughly calloused, and he could walk almost anywhere except on a concrete sidewalk. A hot, bumpy city street he couldn't dream of doing it on.

That's why he admired the barefoot girl in Harvard Square.

What he said was, "Her dogs must be tougher'n an elm knot."

Urbanites Reject Trees

Milwaukee Journal

An astonishing thing took place recently in Baltimore. The city forester got some downright rude rebuffs in his program to plant trees along city streets, at municipal expense. Sometimes whole blocks of home owners rejected the proposition. Trees, they asserted, are a nuisance, they shed leaves, harbor insects and sacrilegious, like downgrading motherhood or perhaps the Baltimore Colts. Poet Joyce Kilmer would have been thunderstruck.

Many Milwaukee residents, recently bereft of their stately elms, will find this hard to fathom, may view the ensuing harsh urban baroness in a different light. They will remember the lost cathedral arch of green beauty, the cool invitation in the glare of summer, the silent sigh of wind in leaves, the softness trees gave to ageing and sometimes ungainly urban architecture and the down bird chorus that sounded from their green depths.

A vanished elm leaves a gap that no six foot whippet-stripper of a transplanted sumidel maple can expect to fill today or for many years to come. But the spindly little upstart marks an essential rebirth of urban beauty and most Milwaukeeans will bid it welcome.

BBC London Letter

In a BBC broadcast he talked about the aims of the association.

"I would be quite fair in saying that the Left-Handed Association is not just a gimmick," he said. "We live in a right-handed world and there are certain troubles which I think left-handers have to put up with, and certain things that left-handed people do. For instance, in most foreign countries children are not allowed to write left-handed in schools. Anything we could do to alter that, I think, would be a good thing. There are various household gadgets, like potato peelers, irons, scissors and so on, which are designed only for right-handed people, and I think we ought to beat the drum a little about the number of sporting men and women who are left-handed and who are world champions.

"I think every left-hander should besiege his local shop and say 'We want left-handed scissors, we want left-handed ironing-boards.' The big stores do supply them, and I'm glad to say that left-handed golf-clubs now only cost the same as right-handed ones. They used to cost more."

Barsley said he hoped the Association would become a world-wide organization. "I do a lot of travelling, television reporting and travel writing and I've been in most of the countries of the Middle East, the Far East and Africa. There you find a tremendous prejudice against the left-hand." He thought in terms of a newsletter for fellow left-handers giving bulletins and progress reports.

He added: "One thing I'm campaigning for is a left-handed cheque-book, though it won't make the cheques go any slower. They've had them in America. The stubs are on the right-hand side so that you hold the cheque book down with your right hand and write with your left. At present the left-hander has to cross hands rather like a pianist does, and if you're in a crowded bank, it's very awkward."

Walter Lippmann
Columnist Seeks New Perspective

Montreal Star

President Johnson once was heard to complain of Walter Lippmann that "every time I pull my chair nearer that guy, he pulls his farther away." This was meant, undoubtedly, as a reproach, but in its own way it served as a tribute — as fine as one could find to mark the detachment of this distinguished journalist. Mr. Lippmann is pulling away, digressing, during the "Today and Tomorrow" column that has been published for the last 25 years, and moving from Washington.

It will not be the end of his public expression, though. Mr. Lippmann will continue to write a regular weekly article, and others from time to time, from the perspective of a home in New York and in France. He has said that one no longer can find the truth in Washington. Thus, in his own quiet way, he strikes a sharp note, a reminder that Washington gradually has eroded the methods by which people can look on the world with objectivity and disinterest.

Mr. Lippmann refuses to acknowledge the theory that he has been driven away by President Johnson. "I would not give him that much credit," he says. But in itself the remark is revealing, for Mr. Lippmann has never pandered to any man who has not been coerced by any man. The fact is that his frequent dinner talks with Mr. Johnson ended long ago, because neither offered anything new that would shake the view of the other.

Mr. Lippmann has said privately that Mr. Johnson is the most disagreeable individual ever to have occupied the White House. The writing of the president, he has been equally harsh, saying "the root of his troubles has been pride, a stubborn refusal to recognize the country's limitations or his own limitations."

One of these limitations relates to Viet Nam, for Mr. Lippmann argues that the United States cannot have the same relationship with allies that it has had with Europe; America, after all, is a child of Europe. The task for the West generally, he argues on, should be to co-exist as peacefully and as constructively as it can with Asia, at the same time leaving Asians to go through their inevitable political upheavals and to evolve their own way of life.

None of this is said with emotionalism or sensationalism. Rather it is said with the pure and cool logic that has always formed the essence of Mr. Lippmann's writing. It is good to know that in his 77th year he continues to have the courage, the spirit, the energy to make decisions that enable him to write acutely — on what he calls the "madness" of Viet Nam.

Academic Freedom Under Assault

Christian Science Monitor

About a month ago, some 1,000 students throughout Britain marched in London in support of a round-the-clock sit-in by students at the London School of Economics. The students were demanding greater participation in the affairs of the university and protesting administrative heavy-handedness. Reforms were instituted and suspension of student leaders lifted.

In the recent student and faculty walkout at Catholic University in Washington, following the dismissal of a professor of theology, provides yet another example of the stir within the universities. The upshot of the protest was reinstatement and the dismissal of the theologian, an outspoken liberal in his views on birth control. Faculty movements of protest throughout the world press for increased participation in determining university policy matters.

Where trustees and administrators have pulled the reins too tight, they are going to have to loosen them. And when government attempts to restrict academic freedom, it can succeed only for a season. For there is abundant evidence that the days of coercion and oppression the human spirit will continue to reassert its thirst for liberty.

Sir Arthur Currie, the first non-regular soldier to become a general in any Imperial army, was appointed to command the Canadian Corps 50 years ago today — in 1917 — after commanding the Canadian Corps at the capture of Vimy Ridge. He led the Corps until 1919, and later became principal of McGill University. Lloyd George, British prime minister, later said that if the war had gone on any longer he would have demanded the sack of British generals and replaced them by Currie and Sir John Monash, an Australian.

Substantial Benefits Claimed

Drury Says Auto Pact Created Additional 15,900 Jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — Industry Minister Drury said Thursday that 15,900 new jobs were created last year in the automotive industry largely as a result of the Canada-United States auto pact.

The auto labor force in Canada has grown by 23 per cent since the free trade agreement went into effect in 1965, he told the Commons industry committee.

In a prepared speech bristling with statistics, the minister said the controversial auto pact has had "substantial beneficial effects."

To date, the industry had announced the establishment of 81 new plants in Canada and 168 existing plants were being expanded. These plants made cars, trucks, buses and auto parts for the whole North American market.

Exports of Canadian auto products to all countries topped $1,000,000,000 in 1966, a jump of 178 per cent from the previous year and 437 per cent from the 1964 total.

Exports to the U.S. alone totalled $845,000,000 last year, compared with $233,000,000 the previous year and $80,000,000 in 1964.

At the same time, imports of auto product into Canada rose by 41 per cent during 1966. The amount was not given.

Mr. Drury said the sharp boost in exports has reduced Canada's auto trade deficit with the U.S., but gave no figures.

Production of motor vehicles in the first nine months of the 1967 model year had dropped by four per cent in Canada, compared with a 14-per-cent fall in the U.S.

The minister said the auto pact may force some parts manufacturers to develop new lines and dispose of existing equipment or convert it.

Special adjustment loans totalling $28,00,000 had been made by his department to the auto industry in 36 cases to date. The government was studying eight more loan applications amounting to $6,200,000.

Such loans finance plant expansion or conversion and carry interest of six per cent. Loans for buildings and land are repayable in 20 years and loans for equipment and working capital, 10 years.

TORONTO STOCKS TODAY

TORONTO (CP)—Oil issues declined sharply in moderate trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the drop came from profit taking and the realization by investors that Arab oil producing countries must resume oil sales to Europe and America or ruin their own economies. If sales begin again, analysts say there will be less opportunities for Canadian exports.

Pacific Petroleum lost ¼ to 14⅝, Imperial Oil ¼ to 59¼ and Home A and Shell ¼ each to 19¾ and 27¾.

Combined dropped 1 to 31¼ after declaring a semi - annual dividend of 80 cents a share. Formerly the company paid 60 cents a share.

Uranium advanced with Denison up 2 to 74, Roman ¼ to 21 and Rio Algom and Preston ¼ each to 34¼ and 21. Lakeshore moved ½ ahead to fractions with Chemcell up ¼ to 10¼ and Distillers Seagram down ¼ to 30¼.

Speculative activity was light with Probe down 1 cent to 4.62 and Bonanzavk off 10 cents to 6.15.

On index, industrials gained .23 to 165.51, golds .84 to 174.25, base metals 1.20 to 99.51. Westerns ole lost 1.88 to 161.78. Volume at 11 a.m. was 710,000 shares compared with 552,000 at the same time Thursday.

Opportunity Class Opens In September

DESERONTO — Deseronto will have an opportunity class when school opens in September. It was hoped to house such a class and also a kindergarten in the new addition planned for next year. The building plan was voted down by last year's board, but the idea of the class was revived by the present board.

At this week's meeting of the board final plans were made. The class will be held in the school Golf Test space has been rented in the basement of St. Mark's Anglican Church to be used as a classroom for a grade three class. Officials of the church met with the board to decide what rent should be paid. Charges will be necessary, especially with respect to lighting.

Mrs. Eva Calver will teach the opportunity class.

The board still does not know what to do with the vacant high school which it now owns, but decided at Monday night's meeting to get rid of some of the contents. Any furnishings or equipment which might be of use in the public school will be retained. All other fixtures, furnishings and materials will be sold, possibly at auction. The flagpole will be transferred to the public school grounds so that two flags can be flown on occasion.

The board accepted with regret the resignation of its secretary, Mrs. Eleanor Schell, who expects to be moving out of town this summer. She was directed to advertise for a new secretary, and consented to act as adviser to her successor until July 31.

Council Briefs

DESERONTO — Clerk-Treasurer Joseph Reynolds had good news for the town Council when it met this week. The finances are in good shape, he reported, with a payment of $20,000 cleaning up the indebtedness to the Bank of Commerce. The town has a clean sheet, with the bank for the first time in at least 10 years, probably longer. Mr. Reynolds attributes the favorable financial situation to the marked improvement in payment of tax arrears in the last few months.

Three years ago council approved a plan for spending $5,000 annually on resurfacing the sidewalks. The contract for the work for 1967 was given to McIlravy and Mains of Belleville at this week's meeting.

Two young people will be sent relve training which will enable them to be of assistance in Centennial Park. Jimmy Sharpe and Judy Huffman were selected.

Council voted to give a grant of $50 to the junior softball team for the purchase of equipment. A letter of thanks was received from Harry Rands for having the ball diamond on the old high school grounds put into shape by the streets department.

On behalf of the merchants on Main St., Sherwin Bowen wrote the Council to thank the members for the good job they had done on cleaning up Main St. The work of sweeping and tidying up had been done by the streets department.

Only one picture of town council members hangs in the council chambers, that of the year when Deseronto was incorporated as a town. Because this is Centennial year, a photograph will be taken at the next council meeting June 19, to be hung here, also. It will include all members of the Town council, the clerk-treasurer, and the chiefs of the police and fire departments.

The Town Council is purchasing fireworks for July 1, to be set off in Centennial Park. The fire department will be in charge of the display.

Many Events Planned for Legion Week

DESERONTO — For Veterans' Week, beginning June 11, the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 280, Deseronto, has a full program of activities planned, president Earl Murphy has announced.

Sunday will see a veterans' service of remembrance at the Armouries, with both Protestant and Roman Catholic padres assisting. Earle J. Brant, Conservative MP, is a member of this branch and is a past president, will place the wreath.

Activities will run through Saturday are open to all Legion members, to veterans who are not members, and to their families. Monday will see a ball game at the high school grounds, between the Legion and the Firemen. Tuesday there will be special Centennial prizes for bingo. Wednesday is set aside for a dart tournament, and Thursday for a card party, a euchre tourney, with prizes both nights.

Friday will see a grand Centennial Ball, with a band from Belleville furnishing the music. Everyone is invited and requested to come in Centennial costume, and there will be a grand march with prizes awarded for costumes. The general public is invited to come and have fun at this Centennial Ball.

President Murphy explains that the object of the Legion is to give people a good time, and not to make money, so the Legion is charging only $2 a couple and there is no advance sale of tickets. These will be available at the door.

New Gas Markets Preferred

Twinning Opposition Dwindling

OTTAWA (CP) — Another objection fell Thursday to Trans-Canada Pipe Lines' plans to carriadian route for a new west-to-east gas line to feed Ontario and Quebec markets.

Northern and Central, one of the big three Ontario gas distributors, "reluctantly" withdrew its objection at a national energy board hearing. It did so because of the possibility of a new shortage.

Up to this time, Northern and Central had opposed the $330,000,000 proposal partially to twin Trans-Canada's existing route through Northern Ontario.

The distributor, along with the Ontario government, had been twinning firms, had wanted a route that would open new markets along the north shore of Lake Superior instead of the twinning project.

Another of the big three, Consumers Gas, similarly reversed itself at Wednesday's hearing.

The third is the city - owned municipal gas company in Winnipeg, the northwestern Ontario centre of Ningson. But from that point the distributors have wanted the line to swing south to serve Sault Ste. Marie, Espanola and other points before rejoining the existing route at Sondridge, Ont.

Despite the change in stance, Trans-Canada was not an adjustment of the hearing to Monday to review part of its application for the contingency of twinning project. It would proceed if the U.S. Federal Power Commission refuses permission for a loop-peg-to-Ontario line south of the Great Lakes.

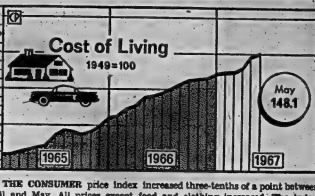
The change, not a major factor in the project, involves substitution of a 164-mile north-to loop west of Nipigon for some twinning.

Trans-Canada still faces opposition from the Ontario-Minnesota Pulp and Paper Co. on the twinning of its Winnipeg-Nipigon section. The paper company asked the application be refused.

Rather than twinning the section, the firm wants Trans-Canada to install an entirely new line, swinging south from the existing one near the Manitoba-Ontario border.

The line would cut across the Lake of the Woods region, passing through the Rainy River region of northwestern Ontario. From there it would serve coal supplying markets in Port Frances and Atikokan, rejoining the existing line north of the Lakehead.

Ontario - Minnesota officials testified the firm is prepared to enter into a 25-year contract to buy natural gas for its mills at Fort Frances and across the U.S. border at International Falls. The mills now depend largely on coal power.



Trans-Canada favors a 180-mile 12-inch lateral line from its main 30-inch line terminating at Fort Frances. Informants said privately that Ontario-Minnesota wants a big main-line loop to ensure future needs and provide economic gas for its mills.

Demand would grow with the planned addition of a kraft mill at Fort Frances and a new paper machine at International Falls.

P. B. C. Pepper, the Toronto lawyer representing Ontario-Minnesota, said the 665-mile Fort Frances loop is a public necessity that will tap potential new gas reserves.

Twinning the existing line, which runs north of Kenora, does nothing for northwestern Ontario and that is its "chief defect."

The Ontario government lawyer said his province cannot alter its original direction for the over-all twinning project. It still supports the route along the north shore of Lake Superior on the grounds it opens new markets.

MR. AND MRS. HUGH D. CAMPBELL

Campbell — Shaw

Rev. Robert Crocker officiated at the wedding and ceremony in Tabernacle United Church on Saturday, June 3, 1967, when Sharon Carol Shaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Shaw, Belleville was united in marriage to Hugh Dean MacDonald Campbell, son of Mrs. Margaret Campbell, Wellington and the late Rev. Argyle Campbell.

Traditional wedding music was rendered by church organist Mr. Clifford Templar who also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Beverley Shaw, in appropriate nuptial selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length white crepe sheath bridal gown with the Empire styled bodice featuring a scooped neckline and puffed sleeves. The back of the dress was highlighted with a sweeping train of matching material, edged with scalloped lace. Her headdress was a tiara and bead effect of white hand embroidered Swiss lace, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, carnations with stephanotis and ivy.

Miss Sandra Claus of Belleville as maid of honor wore a two-piece ensemble of a floor-length blue crepe dress in Empire style with floor-length long sleeved coat of printed blue, mauve and green. A blue and green tiara headdress was held by a white daisy and she carried a basket of white daisies and heather. The bridesmaids Miss Sandra Campbell of Wellington, and Miss Evelyn Markland, Picton, both sisters of the bridegroom, and Miss Lynda Thompson, Picton were dressed identically to the maid of honor but in green crepe dresses. The little flower girl was Miss Carolyn Shaw, Keswick, cousin of the bride who wore a floor-length blue crepe dress in Empire style with short sleeves, and band and bow at bodice. Her headdress was a band of blue daisies and she carried a basket of white daisies. Ring-bearer was Master Ricky Markland of Picton, nephew of the bridegroom.

Mr. David Purvis of Toronto was groomsman, while the ushers were Mr. Jerry Lindsay, Mr. Alan Gilbreit and Mr. Terry Bloom, all of Toronto.

For the wedding reception at the Belleville Shrine Club, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a two-piece pink shantung dress, pink and white accessories and a corsage of pink and white rose. Assisting was the bridegroom's sister Mrs. E. Markland who was one of the attendants.

Leaving on a wedding trip to Mexico, the bride donned a white A-line knitted dress with long sleeves trimmed with navy braid, navy wool cape, white accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

Upon return Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will reside in Scarborough.

Govt. Lauded for Work In Educational Television

MONTREAL (CP) — Special welfare and educational television were the topics that dominated discussion as chairmen of study committees gave their reports at Thursday's meeting of the National Council of Women.

Kathleen Morrissey of Prescott, chairman of the social welfare committee, told delegates at the council's 76th convention that the problem of unemployment could become obsolete.

Miss Morrissey's prediction was based on the possibility of establishing a basic annual income of about $3,500 for all Canadians had been brought up in the House of Commons.

Mrs. Frank Flaherty of Ottawa, chairman of the radio and television committee, lauded the steps being taken by the government to provide the country with educational television but she deplored the fact that these programs may only be available to children in school, due to the fact that the average television is not equipped to receive the upper high frequency bands over which these programs will be coming.

Her resolution to support the Canadian Association of Adult Education in asking the government to make VHF and UHF receivers standard equipment on televisions sold in Canada was approved by acclamation by the delegates.

The laws committee chairman, Mrs. F. E. Underhill of Ottawa, reported resolutions on matters relating to Canada initiate programs of about five legal lectures a year to inform women about the basic proceedings involved in such domestic transactions as house-buying.

Greetings from Federations of Polish Women across Canada were extended by Mrs. Baria Szylling of Montreal.

Mrs. Szylling said Polish women are pleased to be a part of the NCW organization but she regretted that an emergency resolution providing for compassionate entry into Canada of relatives of citizens from countries where proper screening was not possible was not adopted at the Wednesday session.

The resolution was referred for further study after a delegate from British Columbia alleged that it facilitated the "infiltration of Communist workers."

The Belgian Council of Women Journalists also sent its greetings in the person of Mrs. Marie - Louise Bernard - Venart who told the delegates in French that if she were 20 again she would stay in Canada instead of returning to Belgium. The convention ends today.

Wife Wants Truth Serum to Prove Fidelity

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I do not want to go into detail here because too many people would guess the identity of our family, but here is the unvarnished facts:

My wife always has at least three sets of excuses for the hours when no one can locate her, but she is never sorry, repentant and charming — a fine hostess and a good mother.

I have turned up some pretty good evidence that she has been having affairs with two of my friends and another man from a nearby city. When I confronted her with the evidence she became hysterical and denied everything. Now she wants me to give her truth serum (under the supervision of a physician, of course) so she can clear herself.

Do you know anything about these truth serums? Are they 100 per cent reliable? Please tell me. — RAZOR'S EDGE.

* * *

DEAR EDGE: Truth serum tests have proven to be something less than perfect. Recently, the New York Psychiatric Institute experimented with employees who volunteered to be tested. They were supplied with a ready-made lie and were promised $5 if they would stay with the lie under smobarbital. Most of them did stay with it while under the influence of the truth serum and collected the $5. So . . . draw your own conclusions.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My father and my brother never got along. Now my brother has moved into the house. He lives with my sister and her husband, who were kind enough to take him in.

Last week my father made up two new rules. I cannot see my brother and I am not allowed to go to my sister's house when my brother is there. This means I can never see my brother and the only time I can see my sister or her family is when my brother is out. I am supposed to call and check before I go.

Ann, I love my brother and I want to see him sometime, even if he and my dad don't get along. My father says he is no longer his son but he is still my brother. Please tell me what to do. — BROKEN FAMILY.

* * *

DEAR BROKEN FAMILY: The difficulty your father had with your brother was between them and you should not be involved in the punishment. An aunt or an uncle or your clergyman should speak to your father and get him to junk the two rules. They are grossly unfair and you can tell him I said so.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A friend of mine (college chum) died suddenly three months ago and left a 12-year-old daughter. The grieving widow is going through a difficult period. Her lovely house is maintained in immaculate order. She lives and still far from what they were when his dear wife was alive.

The problem is that his two sisters-in-law who live in another city keep sending their children over on weekends to clean up the house. The 13-year-old girl and take her mind off her running him ragged. They create problems with his housekeeper (she rescues cleaning up after them) and he wishes they would stay home.

Should I tell them? — WANTING TO HELP.

* * *

DEAR WANTING: No, he should tell them that if they really want to be helpful, they should invite the mother less girl to their homes.

Successful Living

No Need for One Who Does Not Drink to Be Ignored

DORIS CLARE

Dear Doris: Congratulations to Water Wagon for speaking out on his views of alcohol. I too have been ignored and laughed at because I would not indulge in alcoholic beverages.

I lived in the United States for 15 years till I lost my husband four years ago. We attended many parties where I was asked to have a highball repeatedly.

It's so easy to say "Have just enough to be sociable." All you need do is watch those who drink alcohol and see what complete fools they can be! After all, I feel it is only cowards who drink.

Don't give up, Water Wagon! — Move Over

Dear Move: Climb on. He won't give up. But it is the thoughtful host who always has a non-alcoholic pop on the bar because they know and does not push the hard stuff onto the non-imbiber.

Living in a free country means the right is abstain as well as the freedom to indulge. What we do with these precious privileges is our own individual business.

Dear Doris: I have written to you before about how to gain weight. I've tried these methods but have not gained at all. When I eat too much or eat breakfast I'm sick and sometimes vomit. My mother has taken me to a doctor and he gave me pills that never did any good and my mother refuses to let me go back to my another kind.

I'm becoming so self-conscious of my skinniness I hate going anywhere. I don't seem to be conceited but I'm not ugly and people have told me I'm cute but an skinny.

I never know how to talk to people. I don't know what to say and don't want to say anything at all. Some people think I'm a snob when I'd really like to talk to them. Sometimes I'm scared of people and I am in constant fear of losing what friends I've got. — Clammed Up

Dear Clammed Up: Reading between thee lines, I'm ing between the lines, I'm part of your illusion — a big part. The adult closest to you can either fill you with confidence or keep you on edge in anxiety.

Food hasn't a chance of getting property digested in tense-up inards. You need security. Someone to unload to, a doctor, who will take the emotional part of your dilemma seriously, a more relaxed mother — for she is the human factors which could make all the difference.

Growing up isn't easy. Could you find yourself a friendly older person to talk to, for a start?

Dear Doris: Could you mail me a copy of the poem entitled "Father's Table Grace?" I remember correctly it centers around a young man leaving home.

While the family is gathered around the breakfast table the father has a heart to heart talk ish God, asking Him to guide and keep his son in His care. — Table Grace

Dear Grace: I would if some helpful reader would mail it to me first.

Longer, fuller replies went privately to those correspondents who enclosed a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Jimmy wanted to go to camp this summer, but I know he would be lonesome away from home — and we would miss him so. He's our baby and we hate to have him grow up so fast."

An important part of good by little when the time comes to let go. It's easier for children if they achieve independence gradually through all the years they are growing up.

Mother: "We'll miss Jimmy when he's at camp, but he'll enjoy learning to ride and swim. It will be gods for him to live with other boys and learn to do things for himself."

Sweet 'n' Sour Spareribs

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I would appreciate it very much if you could send me a recipe for sweet and sour spareribs. My husband and children took me out to dinner for Mother's Day. The spareribs were so "melt in your mouth tender" and absolutely delicious. The accompanying rice was flavored perfectly. The meat was browned but I could not tell if it was pork or another meat. —Marilyn J. M.

ANSWER: My best Sweet and Sour Spareribs recipe has the bones in.

SWEET AND SOUR SPARERIBS

Ask the butcher to split at centre with his cleaver down the entire length of 2 narrower strips of spareribs — you must have at least 2 lbs. Cut the ribs into approximately 2" squares, having meat on both sides of ribs. This means that each rib is cut in half crosswise and meat is on both sides of each bone, and every other rib is stripped bare and discarded. Dip each piece in batter.

BATTER: One cup sifted all-purpose flour, 2 tsps. baking powder, ¼ tsp. salt, 1 egg, 2-3 cup water. Mix all ingredients until smooth.

Brown, batter-covered ribs on all sides in hot peanut or other cooking oil — about 4 to 5 minutes. Transfer to baking dish and pour sweet and sour sauce over.

SWEET - SOUR SAUCE: One cup sweet pickle vinegar (or cup vinegar mixed with 2 tbsps. brown sugar), ¼ cup brown sugar, 1 cup tomato catsup, ½ cup cold water, 2 tbsps. cornstarch, ½ to ¾ cup chopped sweet pickles, 1 tsp. salt, ½ to ¾ tsp. pepper.

Pour this over browned ribs and bake at 300 deg. Fahr., covered, for 1 to 1½ hrs.

QUESTION: My neighbor says if I put wood ashes from her patch as I want. I would like to freeze some for pies. — Elsie W.

ANSWER:

FRESH FROZEN RHUBARB

If possible select choice, small, pink stalks. (Red varieties are recommended.)

Wash well. Cut off leaves and root ends. Drain in colander, then on paper towels and blot dry. (Sugar is not required.) Measure 4 cups (for one 9" pie) into double plastic bags, fold over tops to make triple fold and clip or staple or seal with wire tape. Freeze.

Discrimination Against Male Nurses Claimed

HALIFAX (CP) — So what, about some equality of the sexes in that traditional female stronghold of nursing!

Many male nurses feel they are discriminated against, says J. E. LeBlanc, director of education at the Nova Scotia Hospital. He says the profession is partly to blame for the small number of men it attracts.

In April, Albert Wedgery became the first man to be elected president of the Registered Nurses' Association at its annual conference in Toronto.

But, says Mr. LeBlanc, there has been poor recruiting among high school graduates and other young men.

Several Nova Scotia male nurses say that domination of the profession by women deters many men from entering. There is also a reluctance among many hospital directors to have male nurses on their staff.

Mr. LeBlanc says that men generally can cope better with the stresses of nursing than women. They identify less with their patients and do not become emotionally involved. They also make decisions more readily, he adds.

But nursing education authorities and hospital officials say more and more, higher-paid administrative, supervisory and teaching positions suitable for men will provide increased opportunity for men in the hospital field.

They believe men are often better adapted than women in working with new electronic and mechanical hospital equipment.

Another factor, they say, is that men are less affected by marriage and don't change their jobs as frequently as women. They believe that an increased proportion of male nurses would provide greater stability in the profession.

South Korean Women Launch Drive to Elect 'Clean' Men

SEOUL (AP) — Influential South Korean women have launched a campaign to elect "clean" men to the country's new parliament and end the role of sleeping houses in Korean politics.

Kisaeng houses are expensive restaurants where kisaeng girls —the Korean version of geishas —serve guests at lavish parties featuring sing-a-long dancing, drinking and sometimes a bit of business. For centuries Korean politicians have often done much of their backroom bargaining in the private rooms of a kisaeng house. Many politicians had kisaeng concubines.

A "clean" politician, the women say, is one who has no concubine and who does not patronize kisaeng parties. They want politicians who take their wives to receptions and parties.

The Council of Korean Women's Organizations, headed by Dr. Helen Kim, 68-year-old president emeritus of Ewha Women's University, was instrumental in organizing the anti-kisaeng movement.

The campaign started in April when the council sponsored a rally at which 20 women's organizations, virtually all the influential feminine groups in South Korea.

The women's organizations have urged the government to discuss with officials with concubines, called on political parties not to nominate candidates having concubines, and asked government agencies and politicians not to patronize kisaeng houses.

Some Special Feet Care for Summertime

By Reba & Ronnie Churchill

Before your 30th birthday, you'll walk 30,000 miles, podiatrician also confirm, via a series of photo tests, that foot discomfort, feet's secret; it's instantly integrahped to the face and shown up in a painful expression, regardless of a girl's make-up. Summertime is a wonderful season to give those important, yet often overlooked, foot some special care. So why not combine a beauty treatment with your routine? As actress Karen Jensen illustrates, running along the lake or beach shore not only acts as an over-all stimulator, but the abrasive action of sand on the balls of the feet works similar to a pumice stone in smoothing rough skin and calluses.

Feet, like the rest of the body, perspire, if they aren't freed from shoes and allowed an occasional "air bath," dead skin can accumulate. Walking barefoot, try walking on the outer edge of the feet or rolling arch over a rounded bottle. Or, as Karen, seen in the Universal film, "The Epic of Eddie" illustrates, improve circulation and strengthen muscles by practicing "The Elevator." Go up and down on tiptoes in rapid action. If perspiration is excessive, ask your podiatrist about a foot bath, followed by a brisk massage with rubbing alcohol and a cooling spray of antiseptic powder.

Authorities remind, "See only to the heart, the feet carry the most body load." Is it any wonder why they are essential to keep them healthy and happy? One way is to stop wearing high heels continually. Summer is a good time to switch shoes twice a day, change to fresh hose daily, and exercise feet frequently. One tried-and-true workout is "Perky Pendulum." Swing left leg back and forth; first extend toes, then lead with heel. Alternate legs and repeat 12 times. Gradually increase to 25 invigorating swings.

P.S.: Diet tips, plus a series of exercises from beginner, to well a guide for concerning your beauty habits, are included in our new 12-page booklet. Buffer Zone Urged

PM Has New Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson coupled a review of the long-festering Middle East troubles with suggestions for a cure in a special Commons debate Thursday.

He renewed his request that a United Nations force be interposed between warring Israel and the Arab states and added a new twist — a demilitarized zone on a buffer area between them.

The prime minister warned, however, that such a suggestion is only a temporary measure in resolving Arab-Israeli hostility.

With the United States committed to Israel's cause and Russia to that of the Arab states, any conflict in the area carries the inherent danger of a head-on collision between the world's two major powers, he added.

Conservative Leader Diefenbaker sought the special Middle East debate. It was arranged by jumping the 1967-68 spending estimates of the external affairs department ahead of other departments.

Speaking after Mr. Pearson, the Conservative leader blistered the government to "trying diplomatically to be in agreement with both sides" in the dispute.

In almost the same breath he said Canada no longer is regarded "as a nation without a national interest, unbiased towards one side or the other."

And he made it clear that he found favor with the latest proposals, quoting President Nasser of the United Arab Republic as saying that his objective was to destroy Israel and "we cannot be neutral" about that.

"The Arabs no longer trust us. The Israelis wonder about us. It will take a long time for Canada to have restored to it the respect and regard of Africans and Asian races."

Mr. Pearson said the fact that the UN Emergency Force had kept the peace between Israel and the Arab states for 10 years since the Suez crisis of 1956 was evidence that such forces should be continued and made stronger.

Mr. Diefenbaker rejected this: "Much is said of the value of the UNEF force and that it maintained the peace in the Middle East. It maintained nothing of the kind . . . It was simply an international body with a superficial capacity but without the power to direct, order or enforce."

Mr. Diefenbaker took a swipe at Opposition Leader Hellyer and his bill to unify the armed forces, recently passed by Parliament. He said it had been to have the unified force play a greater peacekeeping role but Canada had been pushed out of the Middle East.

"He deceived Parliament and now he's trying to find a rabbit," the Conservative leader said of Mr. Hellyer.

Mr. Hellyer objected to this and said Mr. Diefenbaker's speech was "one of the worst" he had heard in the Commons.

Mr. Pearson recommended both immediate and long-term steps for the Middle East. He gave four items immediate priority:

—Observation by all parties of the ceasefire resolution passed unanimously by the UN Security Council.

—Freedom of access for all ships in the Gulf of Aqaba.

—Action to open the Suez Canal to Israeli shipping, closed to them by the U.A.R. since the 1956 clash.

—Interposition of a UN force between Israel and the Arab states.

Mr. Pearson said Israel had served clear warning that it will not stay closure of the Gulf of Aqaba would be taken as a hostile act. The war has been a long point for the recent fighting.

If there were arguments the gulf might not be an international waterway, those could be brought up before the International Court of Justice. But meantime there should be no claim by any nation to close the waterway and it should be open to all ships.

The prime minister suggested a demilitarized zone separating the antagonists could cut down the incidence of border-crossing infiltration and terrorism that had been a prelude to the outbreak of open war between the U.A.R. and Israel.

But the UN Security Council would have to shoulder the responsibility, never met during the last 10 years, of seeking a permanent political solution to the Arab-Israeli problem.

Israel, surrounded by Arab states, feared that someday one might be over-run. The Arab states feared that Israel, with her continuing flow of refugees from other countries, would embark on territorial conquest to find more living space.

A solid political agreement had to be found to resolve the fears of both sides.

Both the Liberal and Conservative leaders touched on the problems of the Arab refugees who have been occupying camps since the state of Israel was established.

Mr. Diefenbaker described the camps as "a blot on civilization." Mr. Pearson said that 250,000 refugees had been used as "pawns in the game of Middle East politics" and that the plight must be part of any permanent settlement of the problem.

Pearson Has Fat File

Prime Minister Pearson, files in hand, heads back to his parliamentary office after addressing the Commons about the Middle East crisis. He called for a United Nations-enforced demilitarized zone between Israel and the Arab states.

Israeli Attack Killed 10, Wounded 100 U.S. Sailors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The battered Liberty, a U.S. Navy communications ship mistakenly attacked by Israeli boats and planes off the Sinai Peninsula, steamed today toward a mid-Mediterranean rendezvous and medical aid for its wounded.

The Liberty was to meet two destroyers from the U.S. 6th Fleet, on alert in the Mediterranean since the Arab-Israeli war broke out. Pentagon officials said each carried a ship's surgeon.

Defence department spokesmen said a revised tally showed 10 sailors were killed in the attack—which came without warning—and 100 were wounded, 20 of them severely.

AP correspondent Bob Horton sailed from aboard the American with the 6th Fleet that destroyers Davis and Massey were sailing at 30 knots to meet the crippled ship, which was 450 miles to the east at the time of the incident Thursday.

Israel apologized for the attack, but not before the navy ordered planes from the 6th Fleet's two carriers, the Saratoga and the America, to scramble and head for the scene.

The attack took place in early afternoon nearly after the Liberty, which has complicated electronic gear that can pick up and relay messages, moved into position about 15 miles north of the Sinai Peninsula in international waters, about 90 miles southwest of Tel Aviv. The vessel was showing its colors.

The Liberty, a 430-foot converted Second World War cargo ship that carried a crew of 297 men, moved into position early Thursday to assure communications for U.S. government posts in the Middle East and to assist in relaying information concerning the evacuation of U.S. dependents and other citizens from the Arab-Israeli war zone.

An unspecified number of Israeli MIG jets began a series of strafing runs and three torpedo boats fired at least two torpedoes at the ship. One torpedo passed 25 yards astern of the Liberty but the second struck the starboard side.

About Thousand Canadians Still In Middle East

OTTAWA (CP)—The majority of Canadians known officially to be in Israel and Arab states bordering her before the outbreak of war in the Middle East were still there yesterday, reports the external affairs department.

It said that less than two weeks before the war started last Monday there were 580 Canadians registered with the embassy in Israel, 371 in Lebanon, 138 in the United Arab Republic, 28 in Jordan and 20 in Syria.

The department emphasized these were minimum numbers. Canadians were not required to register at their embassies abroad and many did not. There was no accurate way of knowing how many tourists were in the warring countries, let alone government and business personnel and dependents.

Two civilians have since evacuated. 123 Canadians from Lebanon Wednesday. By Thursday, Ambassador John Stearns in Cairo estimated only about 30 Canadians were left in the U.A.R.

Arrangements for further evacuations in the war zone will be put into effect whenever necessary, the department said.

It cited the situation in Israel as one example of how difficult it is for the government here to fix the numbers of Canadians in the war theatre. On May 23-24 there were 580 Canadians registered with the embassy in Tel Aviv. After the break out, additional Canadians registered, bringing the total to almost 900.

Ambassador G. G. Crean in Rome has made air charter arrangements for evacuation to Italy of those Canadians in Israel if necessary. It is thought there are some of the 700 Canadians in the U.A.R. may join Americans leaving on a chartered liner from Alexandria.

Israel Is Bully, Must Be Punished Is Soviet Version

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The Soviet Union is saying to other members of the United Nations Security Council that Israel is a bully and aggressor and must be punished.

The United States, presenting a sort of package deal, is urging the council to call simultaneously for full observance of its ceasefire resolutions and for a start on a peace - building dialogue between Israel and the Arab countries.

Canada is asking the 15-country council to make sure first that a general ceasefire is in effect and then tackle the next step without attempting to say what that step should be.

Embodied in separate draft resolutions before the council, these three approaches to the problems of the Middle East took in the United Nations organ which, according to the UN charter, is supposed to police the world.

If pressed to a vote, the U.S. motion faces a probable Soviet veto on the grounds that, in the words of Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko, it is ignoring over its ally's responsibility for aggression."

Fedorenko insisted in his draft resolution, introduced Thursday, that the council demand the withdrawal of Israeli forces behind armistice lines drawn by the UN in 1949 at the end of the first Arab - Israel war. If pressed to a vote, however, his motion appears headed for defeat because it is because a majority of council members either disbelieve that Israel is an aggressor or think that there is insufficient evidence to put the blame for the conflict wholly on its shoulders.

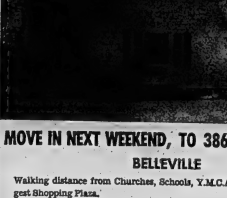
The Canadian motion, introduced Wednesday, was the first of three draft resolutions and diplomatic sources indicated the council could fall back upon it as a new starting point. The reason why it didn't become one earlier is that it was seen by the Soviet Union as opening the door to majority initiatives by the UN.

2500 UN Soldiers In Egypt

TEL AVIV—About 2,000 soldiers of the Seventh United Nations Emergency Force in the Gaza Strip and Sinai still are awaiting repatriation, the force's commander, Maj.-Gen. Indar Rikhye of India, told Israeli authorities today. More than 700 Canadians with the force were flown home last week.

A Swedish ship was reported to have reached the port of Ashdod, south of Tel Aviv, to evacuate the 300 officers and men of the Swedish contingent.

Indians, Brazilians and Yugoslavs also still have to be evacuated. The force numbered about 3,400 men before Egyptian President Nasser ordered them to leave the Sinai Peninsula.



Pope Rejoices Over Ceasefire

From AP-Reuters

VATICAN CITY—News of the ceasefire in the Middle East was taken early today by Pope Paul who expressed joy and satisfaction, Vatican sources said.

Vatican sources said the pontiff now hopes the controversy may be settled finally through honorable negotiations.

Arabs Plan to Recruit Volunteers From Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Palestine Liberation Organization recruiting centres will be opened in Canada early next week in Ottawa, Dr. George Haggar, president of the Arab Community Centre announced Saturday.

He said the decision to open offices to recruit doctors and military personnel has been taken by a strategy committee following announcements that External Affairs Minister Martin could not speak to a planned Arab rally in Ottawa today. The rally was cancelled.

Dr. Haggar, a political science professor at Waterloo Lutheran University, said arrangements will be made to send volunteers by air to Turkey, then by train to Syria to join Arab forces.

Israeli Credit Good

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Winters said Thursday the government did not authorize any statement to the effect that Israel will be unable to pay its export credit debts to Canada.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) asked in the Commons the statement was made by H. T. Aitken, president of the Export Credits Insurance Corp.

Mr. Winters said there had been a reply by Mr. Aitken in response to such a question "but I do not think it was in that vein."

Replying to David Lewis (NDP—York South), Mr. Winters said some shippers are not accepting goods for the eastern Mediterranean, but as far as the government was concerned export of non - military items was left to the discretion of the vender.

"White wings heeling in a flowing sea," sun-glinted water and the pulling set of wind-bulged canvas will, it is hoped, mark the annual nautical pageantry of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club tomorrow afternoon.

Sailing craft of many classes will feature the annual Sail-Past of the club which, I understand officially inaugurates the summer racing season for the Quinte yachtsmen.

Adding to the color of the scene will be the handsome craft of the Bay of Quinte Power Squadron augmented by powered boats from visiting squadrons.

Many non-member small craft, as in former years will likely be on the "sidelines" so to speak, adding their own touch to the nautical panorama.

Many prominent people have been invited to attend the sail-past guests of officers and members of the club. These will augment the sailing personnel on the larger craft.

These include Mayor Jack Elliz; the commanders of the Picton and Trenton — Yacht Clubs and the commanding officer of the Canadian Armed Forces Base at Trenton. Upwards of 150 people will be in attendance.

Hundreds of "landlubbers" will view the bay-borne parade from the shorelines and other points of vantage.

Yacht Club Commodore Ernie Cliff-Bowcott will take the salute from his flagship "Tedrick II" which will lie at anchor off Victoria Park.

It is expected that some 60 craft, sail and power will take part in the sail-past.

In his corvette class sloop "Windigo," Vice Commodore Jack McFarlane will lead the flotilla past the saluting base. This handsome craft was built here by Ian Morch.

The next group of boats of centreboard design and actively raced during the summer by two-man crews, will be led by Freeman Burrows in "Puffin."

Then will follow the popular O'Day Day Sailers which competed in the Regional Championships for Quebec and Ontario here last summer. Included will be a number of Northern sloops used extensively by club members in the summer program for junior sailors.

Then will come the members and guests of the Power Squadron led by Bill Bonnell in "Kelben IV."

The yacht club's racing season will officially open on Sunday with all divisions taking part and starting at 2 p.m.

The larger craft will race to Big Bay while the O'Day Day Sailers and Northergs will sail a triangular course and finish in front of the gymnasium deck.

Following the Saturday sail-past yacht club members will host their guests at a reception to be held in the clubhouse.

ATTENTION GOLFERS

If you are planning to shoot an "eighteen" Saturday morning — forget about it and take an extra hour or so in the "hay."

The Bank of Montreal is holding its annual tournament and, George Bates informs me, the tee will be closed from 10 a.m. to 12.30 p.m.

On Sunday the club championship qualifying round gets under way and the tee will be closed from 8 a.m. to 11.30 a.m.

The draw appears elsewhere on the sports pages.

Financial Benefits For Players

Cooke Gets Kelly; All Rosy In NHL

MONTREAL (CP) — Ted Kelly is out of limbo today, Jack Kent Cooke is "ecstatic," owner - player relations have reached a new high and added incentive has been given to newcomers attempting to reach hockey's major league — the NHL.

All four factors were achieved Thursday, the final day of the National Hockey League's four-day annual meeting—its first as an expanded 12-team, two section circuit.

Kelly, the former Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings star, finally made it as coach of Los Angeles Kings of the new west division after a 45 - hour hassle between the two clubs over his services.

The flamboyant Cooke, whose Hollywood - type approach to the NHL promises a lively future for his Los Angeles club, said he is "ecstatic and delighted" that "reason prevailed and the dispute was resolved in a sensible manner."

The newly - formed players' association won two points in its first meeting with management representatives in a meeting of 45 minutes Thursday morning.

Clarence Campbell, league president, announced after the final governors' session that the minimum starting salary for players entering the league had been increased to $10,000 from $7,000.

In a suddenly - consummated deal, the Kelly incident became a thing of the past when the Leafs' general manager, Punch Imlach, and Cooke agreed to a deal that sent Ken Block, a 25-year-old native of Steinbach, Man., to Toronto in exchange for the redhead.

The original dispute arose when Toronto filed with Kelly after the 10th round of Tuesday's expansion draft. Cooke and Kelly immediately cried foul, and insisted that a deal had been made with the Leafs that would free the former Toronto centre and winger for the West Coast coaching job.

Imlach maintained no such deal had been made and that Cooke was taking advantage of him by not claiming Kelly in the early rounds if he wanted him as coach.

CLARENCE CAMPBELL

RED KELLY

Both Kelly and Cooke had filed written protests with the league president before the matter was resolved. These protests had been forwarded to Toronto representatives by Campbell, but now will be filed.

Thursday saw the second meeting between the newly-formed NHL players' association, under the aegis of Toronto lawyer Alan Eagleson, and the owner's committee.

The outcome was that players now will receive payment for exhibition games played in NHL cities and between NHL teams. Previously no extra remuneration was awarded the players for these pre - season games.

Also agreed to by the owners was a 50-per-cent increase in the per-diem expense rate allowed players for meals and miscellaneous expenses incurred during road trips—$15 from $10.

When the league governors broke up, Campbell had further good news for some of the new players coming into the expanded league.

"This has nothing to do with the players' association, but after several months of study the governors voted today to boost the minimum salary for players in the NHL to $10,000."

This is an increase of $3,000 over last season's minimum.

Campbell said the average base salary in the league last year was $13,220 and that it jumped "to between $24,000 and $25,000" when additional benefits from playoff money, bonuses and pension benefits were added.

He said only one player earned less than the new $10,000 minimum last season.

Campbell said the governors ruled that 16 players and two goalies will dress for all season games and that the playoff rosters will be 17 and two as in the past, except 18 and two as recommended by the rules committee.

Campbell said the new west division will receive the same monetary awards for order of finish as the east. This is a total of $94,000.

The first-place team gets $2,250 a man, $1,250 for second, $750 a man for a third-place finish and $250 for fourth.

He said there will be only one set of trophy winners for the first year of expanded operation, despite the fact the league will be divided into two sections. Consideration was being given to setting up a new system of selection for the individual trophies in future years.

No formula has been reached for the Stanley Cup playoffs between the two sections and the governors will consider a plan whereby the quarter - finals would be divisional only, the semi-final round inter-divisional, with the winners meeting in the finals.

The annual all-star game will be held Tuesday, Jan. 16, with The Blake, Montreal Canadiens' coach, running the selects against Toronto Maple Leafs. Leafs' best Canadiens in six games to win the cup last spring.

"The all-star team must include at least six representatives from each of the new teams," Campbell said.

Judo Gals In Ring Here Tonight!

Something new for a new season!

That's the story as another summer of wrestling gets under way at Memorial Arena tonight.

And the "something new" comes in two great looking packages of female power.

A special bout will pit The Fabulous Moolah against Joyce Grable in the women's demonstration of American Pro Judo. It should be interesting.

Headlining tonight's card, which begins at nine o'clock, will be everybody's favorite, Whipper Billy Watson in a handicap bout. Watson will tangle with Yankee 2 and his manager, Manager 2 (of course).

Also on the card are midget wrestling stars of TV fame, plus Gene DuBois tackling Whipper Billy Watson Jr.

Minnesota Drafts Omaha Star

MONTREAL (CP) — Sandy Fitzpatrick, who played last season with Omaha of the Central Professional Hockey League, has been drafted by Minnesota North Stars, one of the new National Hockey League clubs.

He was picked up from New York Rangers as Minnesota's 11th choice. Omaha is a New York farm club.

The Canadian Press erroneously identified him Tuesday as Sandy McFadden.

Olympics "Dope"

No Alarm Over Rules

NEW YORK (AP)—A leading American Olympic official said Thursday he sees no reason to be alarmed about new Olympic rules banning use of dope and stimulants.

Arthur Lentz, executive director of the United States Olympic Association, said there appeared to be undue concern over a paragraph in the rules forbidding use of a synthetic male hormone, usually prescribed for muscle and weight building.

The rule states: "The International Olympic committee considers that use of anabolic steroids except for medical purposes constitutes 'doping' from the Olympic viewpoint."

Lentz said that if an athlete had a prescription for the hormone that undoubtedly would be considered for medical purposes.

Last Monday, Tom Eckar, a former coach of Sweden's national track team and also of Western Kentucky University, expressed fear that many American athletes would be barred from the 1968 Olympics because so many used the muscle building hormone.

"I don't think there's going to be much furore over the rules," said Lentz.

Braves Win Without Aaron

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

So who needs Hank Aaron anyway?

Sure, he's leading the National League with 15 home runs and save he's driven in 35 runs and scored 40 times. But, it's a fact that Atlanta Braves have been better off without him.

Aaron missed his second straight game Thursday night and the Braves, who had dropped 10 of 13 games before he was sidelined, won their second straight, downing Los Angeles Dodgers 5-4.

There were only two other games played on the National League schedule Thursday. San Francisco Giants ended Cincinnati's one-run rut, beating the Reds 8-3, and St. Louis Cardinals defeated Houston Astros 5-2.

Aaron is nursing a muscle pull in his side.

The Braves pounded out a 13-3 victory over the Dodgers Wednesday and then beat Los Angeles Ace Don Drysdale with a late rally Thursday.

Drysdale was working on a two-hitter and leading 4-1 until the seventh when Joe Torre and Rico Carty opened with singles and Clete Boyer doubled for one run. Denis Menke grounded reliever Phil (Phillie Phil) Regan with a two-run single, tying the score.

The Braves pushed across the winning run against Regan in the ninth on a walk to Menke, a sacrifice, an infield out and Felipe Alou's single.

The Reds' string of 11 straight one-run games ended when the Giants broke a 3-3 tie with three runs in the eighth inning.

Ollie Brown, who hit his 10th home run earlier, delivered the tie-breaking single and then a throwing error by Cincinnati catcher John Edwards during a between a hit-and-run two more Giant runs to score.

Willie McCovey, who had a two-run homer in the early stand, started San Francisco's winning rally with a double and rode home on Brown's hit following an intentional walk to Jim Hart.

Large "Skin" for Little "Tiger"

PICTON (Staff) — Eleven-year-old Janeen Gerow, described as the "Tiger of the Proctor Silex Amazins," may have found the opposition easier to handle than the oversized jacket she received at the team's presentation last night.

Young Miss Gerow, daughter of Wak Gerow of Napanee, also played peewee hockey in her home town this past winter in the boys' league so she should be able to cope with the jacket situation.

She played centre on the "Amazins." Picton's girls' team which reached the Ontario tournament finals before losing a tough 3-2 decision to Wallaceburgh in overtime.

Part of the money for the sparkling new jackets was donated but the girls proved they were still very feminine, despite the hockey, by raising the rest of the money needed through bake sales and other such ventures.

Among those present for the presentation of the jackets, at Picton's Benson Park House, were mayor Harvey J. McFarland, councils representative to the recreation committee Dr. Lionel Dochrill (pictured above) and town recreation director Wayne Ring.

India Humbles England

LEEDS, England (Reuters)—England touched depths of mediocrity against India in the first cricket test of Headingley Thursday.

Even a century by opener Geoff Boycott did not help to liven up the proceedings.

In fact, Boycott took three hours to score 40 and his century came after 341 minutes.

At the close of play England was fairly well placed with 281 runs on the board for the loss of three wickets. Boycott's share was an unbeaten 106.

India's bad luck continued. By mid - afternoon India was depleted of two key bowlers through injury.

Horlen Has 7-0 Record

"Have A Chaw"; It's Tissue Paper!

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Joel Horlen is chewing up opposing batters almost as fast as he is tissues.

Tissues?

That's right. The Chicago White Sox right-hander, who ran his record to 7-0 with a 5-2 victory over Boston Red Sox in the first game of Thursday's doubleheader, attributes part of his success to tissue chewing. He says chewing gum bloats him and tobacco makes him sick, so he chews a couple of wadded tissues while pitching.

"It relaxes me," he says.

His hurling, aided by his chewing, gave the White Sox a split when they lost the nightcap 7-3, remaining 1½ games behind league - leading Detroit Tigers who had the day off.

In other American League action, Cleveland Indians tripped Minnesota Twins 7-3 on Max Alvis' two home runs; Callforda, Angels edged Baltimore Orioles 6-5 on homers by Bick Reichardt, Jim Fregosi and Jimmy Hall, and New York Yankees blanked Washington Senators 6-0 in the only night game.

The only runs off Horlen came on Carl Yastrzemski's run-scoring double and Joe Foy's homer. But Gerry McNertney hit a homer of the season with none on and a two-run blow by Ken Berry offset that brief show of might.

The Red Sox erupted for five runs in the second inning of the second game that started Gary. Bell to a successful debut with Boston.

Bell, recently acquired in a trade with Cleveland, scattered nine hits, and Chicago could only touch him in the first inning when Tosh McCraw singled in two runs and in the ninth when Ken Hitmen homered.

Alvis gave the Indians a good start and a rousing finish as he opened the game with a homer and then climaxed a four-run ninth inning with a two-run blast, the ninth.

In between, Joe Azcue homered and, Chuck Hinton tripled home Alvis, who had singled, for a 3-1 Cleveland lead. But the Twins knocked out Ed Connolly with four runs in the eighth before the Indians and Alvis came to bat again.

Reichardt's two-run clout in the sixth inning brought the Angels back from a 5-4 deficit after Fregosi and Hall had given them a 4-0 lead with two-run homers.

Frank Robinson's 18th homer with a man on started the Orioles back before Reichardt connected.

Joe Verbanic, hurling a four-hitter, played the hero role for the Yankees. Along with stopping the Senators, he doubled home the first two runs of a five-run second inning with two out.

Two Games Off Pace

Leafs Crowding Wings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There's no place like home as far as Toronto Maple Leafs are concerned.

The Leafs defeated Toledo Mud Hens 8-2 Thursday night for their 11th victory in a 13-game homestand unbeaten streak within two games of first-place Rochester Red Wings.

The Leafs start a week-long road trip tonight in Jacksonville.

In other action Thursday, Jacksonville Suns downed Rochester 4-2, Richmond Braves edged Syracuse Chiefs 2-1 and Buffalo Bisons took Columbus Jets 4-2.

Toronto's undefeated righthander, Jerry Stephenson, won his fourth game of the season, limiting Toledo to eight hits in eight innings before being relieved by Pete Magrini.

George Korince, a native of Morrilton, Ont., was the losing pitcher despite hitting a home run.

Outfielder Tony Turchin drove in two Toronto runs with a homer and single.

Brewer May Coach Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP) — Carl Brewer, former defenceman with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, will decide by the weekend whether he will accept a coaching job with Edmonton Nuggets of the Western Canada Senior Hockey League.

Nuggets owner George Orchold said he talked to Brewer Thursday and both agreed to grasp a decision before the Western league's annual meeting which opens Saturday in Calgary. Brewer came out of retirement last season to play with Canada's national team.

Goalby Leads Buick

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) Even - tempered Bob Goalby, stifled by a hot putter and an even hotter wedge, was off and running today in his bid for top prize of $20,000 in the $100,000 Buick Open.

The 36 - year - old, once regarded as one of the most short-tempered members of the PGA tour, shot a red hot 69—three under par—in the opening round Thursday.

His defeat was the more remarkable since he finished tieing the 585-yard 16th hole at Warwick Hills country club, generally rated as one of the toughest holes in golf.

Goalby put two tremendous wood shots together and found himself lying some 75 feet away from the pin. He wedged in front there for an eagle three.

His formula of no putts also paid off on the 11th as he chipped in from 40 feet for a birdie three.

The 69 left him a stroke ahead of Hugh Royer and Frank Beard of Louisville, Ky., both of whom had 70s.

Germans Defeat Russians

MONTREAL (CP)— Borussia of Dortmund, West Germany, held onto a first - half lead to overcome Russia's selected team 3-1 in the fifth game of the Expo 67 international soccer tournament Thursday night.

Siegfried Held and Willie Neuberger provided the winning thrust by scoring one goal each in the first half.

Herodor Abdurseinov scored Russia's only goal late in the second half.

The victory was the second in as many outings in the tourney meet for the West Germans.

The loss was the first in two appearances for the Russians, who defeated Royal Standard Liege of Belgium 1-0 Tuesday night.

World Open Golf

Knudson Exempted From Qualifying

TORONTO (CP) — George Knudson, leading money winner among Canada's touring professional golfers, is the only Canadian exempt from qualifying for the $200,000 World Open golf championship that starts Sept. 1 at nearby Woodbridge.

The nine other Canadian pros and one amateur playings allotted to Canada by the United States Professional Golfers Association must be won through competition.

GEORGE KNUDSON

Canadian golfers don't have to win any of the eight open tournaments scheduled across Canada prior to the World Open, nor the Canadian Amateur scheduled for Victoria Aug. 14-19. The top Canadian in each will qualify.

Should one player qualify in more than one tournament, then the second-placed Canadian in the later tournament will earn a spot in the World Open.

Only in the Canadian Amateur would the simple replacement principle not apply.

In this tournament, the winner or runner-up, should he be a Canadian would automatically qualify. But should two U.S. golfers meet in the final, then the Canadian Amateur's spot in the World Open would go to the Canadian with the lowest score in the amateur qualifying round.

The open Canadian tournaments in which Canadians can win World Open spots are the Miller Trophy event at Brampton, Ont., and Richmond Hill, Ont., golf clubs June 23-24; the Maritime Open at Saint John, N.B., June 24-25; the Saskatchewan Open at Regina July 7-9; the Quebec Open at Arvida, July 7-9; the Ontario Open at Toronto July 13-15; the Manitoba Open at Winnipeg July 20-22; the Alberta Open at Edmonton July 27-29; the British Columbia Open at Vancouver Aug. 3-5.

Total prize money in the Canadian open tournaments is $37,700.

Golfers, however, would have choice between the Miller and the Maritime Open, where dates conflict, and the Saskatchewan and Quebec Opens, scheduled at the same time.

The U.S. PGA has limited the field for the Open to 150 players—lowest number since the championship started in 1964—with 105 places reserved for U.S. golfers, Canada and Latin America getting 10 spots and the remainder divided between Africa, New Zealand and Australia, Asia and Europe.

The tournament will be played 18 holes a day to wind up labor Day for a total of 72 holes, the lowest total score deciding the winner.

May Manage Vancouver Canucks

TORONTO (CP) — Annis Stukus of Toronto, former football player and coach and currently a sportswriter and television commentator, said Thursday he is negotiating for a position of general manager of Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League.

Coleman Hall, director of the Canucks, has said Stukus is one of two persons being considered for the position.

"I can't deny I've been talking to the Canucks," Stukus said. "I listened to their offer and then made some requests of my own. But negotiations are not complete and, as a matter of fact, the duration of any proposed contract was not discussed."

Itinerant Sellers Must Post $5,000 Good Behavior Bonds

TORONTO (CP) — Regulations under Ontario's new Consumer Protection Act, approved Thursday by the cabinet, require itinerant sellers to post good-behavior bonds of $5,000.

The regulations, effective July 31, also require sellers to pay registration fees of $40 and obtain annual renewals at $25.

The act defines an itinerant seller as one whose business includes "soliciting, negotiating or arranging," other than at his place of business, for a buyer to sign a contract for the sale of goods under which credit is extended.

The regulations state that the consumer protection bureau can declare a performance bond forfeited if the seller is convicted of an offence under the act, or of fraud or theft under the Criminal Code, or if the seller goes bankrupt or loses a civil suit regarding a conditional sale.

The regulations also provide that the annual percentage rate, which must be disclosed to the buyer, take into account the reduction in principal as a result of instalment payments.

Roberts Dodging Vote, Claim

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)— Donald MacDonald, Ontario leader of the New Democratic Party, said Thursday night Premier John Robarts has postponed a provincial election in hopes the public will forget issues which "had them so aroused this spring."

He said a nominating convention in the provincial riding of Sandwich - Riverside the chief "crisis" was the government's "callous indifference to the crushing burden of local property taxes."

He described as feeble the government's argument that alternatives to the provincial-municipal tax system should await the report by Ontario's Smith committee on taxation.

"The Smith report has been in the making for five years now. If the government felt it was as important as all that, it could have concentrated more resources with the committee to complete the work."

The report is expected this summer.

Civil Servants Denied Equal Pay Rights...NDP

TORONTO (CP)—Ken Bryden (NDP—Toronto Woodbine) said Thursday the provincial government has "resisted every attempt" to give civil servants equal pay for equal work.

Aides and attendants at the Children's Psychiatric Institute, Byron, Ont., won equal pay after taking their case to court, he told the legislature, but the same principle has been passed on to other mental hospitals.

He spoke during consideration of civil service department spending estimates.

Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said his principle of equal pay applies to all classifications of civil servants. In the case of hospitals, aides and attendants often cannot agree among themselves if they are performing similar work.

Aides, who are female, help look after women patients while attendants, male, look after the men.

Mr. Bryden argued that the government is splitting hairs because it does not matter to pay the women as much as the men.

He said, when the government should pay its cleaning women "a living wage."

Some women received an increase of $35 a year to bring their annual salary to $2,616.70, Mr. Bryden said, "and that is not enough to pay for a boost in transportation fares.

Mr. MacNaughton argued that the rates are 25 to 30 cents an hour higher than those paid by tradesmen in the area. The rates range from $1.62 an hour to $2.06.

In addition, he said, cleaners are paid for 37½ hours a week when they actually work 34½. The NDP member objected to a recently-implemented system of paying civil servants every two weeks instead of twice a month.

Under the new system employees will be two weeks behind in their pay when the fiscal year ends March 31, 1968.

They will catch up when they retire or quit, but in the meantime they are providing the government with "interest - free loans."

Mr. MacNaughton said the system was worked out in negotiations with the Civil Service Association.

Eddie Sargent (L — Grey North) promised to buy "a bottle of the product" for the person who found a Liberal yesterday in a government liquor store.

Liquor Control Board of Ontario employees are hired "by their political stripe," he said.

A shouting match broke out during the night session after Mr. Bryden presented a case for two civil servants fired just before their 12 months of probation expired.

He called the firings "unfair" and regretted "it should be possible to assess the capabilities and performances of an employee in less than a month or two."

House Leader Leslie Rowntree accused Mr. Bryden of presenting only one side of the cases and said it was an NDP failing to champion a cause without checking the facts.

"You don't care a damn" about accuracy," Mr. Rowntree said.

Mr. Bryden then questioned whether "the house leader is fit to be in the house."

"What to you mean by that!" Mr. Rowntree asked. He received no answer.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said the reasons of the cases should have been brought before the legislature's committee on government commissions.

Aides, who are witnesses could be called.

But Mr. Bryden was justified in bringing the cases up in the house because the government had denied the opposition an opportunity to quiz the Civil Service Commission in committee, he said.

Mr. Bryden said a civil servant hired on probation for a year now "has no right to raise the question of dismissal."

"He can be fired for any reason or for no reason and without presenting any being given, and he has no redress of any kind whatever."

Mr. MacNaughton said grievance procedures were worked out with the Civil Service Association. After six months an employee on probation is entitled to file a grievance regarding conditions of employment only.

The treasurer said an employee would not be fired without good reason.

The house approved the civil service department's spending estimates of $1,780,000 for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1968.

Sunday School Lesson

An Unhindered Church

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

After 2,000 years of Christian history, some churches are still struggling with the problem of whether they should be racially exclusive. This is no new problem. Almost from the moment of its beginning, the Christian church has faced the burning issue of whether it should reflect the segregation practices of the world around it, or open its doors to people of every race and nation.

The book of Acts reflects this struggle. In the revised Standard Version of the Bible, the book of Acts ends with the word "unhindered." In a refreshing new approach to the writing of book, Dr. Frank Stagg focuses on this word as the key to understanding the message of the early church. That struggle, he contends, grew out of the efforts of God - filled men to create a fellowship that would be unhindered by national and racial differences. (The Book of Acts — Fleck Stagg, Broadman Press, 1953)

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for June 11: "Peter and The Gentiles," Acts 10:34-43.

For the Apostle Peter, this lesson came in the form of a visit from an Italian general named Cornelius. Though a follower of Jesus, Peter still clung to religious dietary restrictions, and endorsed the racial discrimination practised by most of his people in his day, (Acts 10:28) It took a special vision to convince him that Jews and Gentiles could fellowship together in the same church.

Peter's conversion to this idea happened in an interesting way. Cornelius, a God-fearing man, was attending at Caesarea. Undoubtedly, he had heard of Jesus, and wanted to learn more. One afternoon, while he was praying, he was told in a vision to send to Joppa for Peter. Immediately, he sent messengers to Joppa to tell Peter about the vision.

In the meantime, Peter was having a vision of his own. Undoubtedly, he remembered Jesus' words, "Not what goes into the mouth defiles the man, but what comes out of the mouth, this defiles man." (Matthew 15: 11 RSV) As he waited for dinner, he fell into a trance-like sleep, dreamed that he was commanded to eat food prohibited by his religious convictions. When he protested, he was told, "What God has cleansed, you must not call common." (Acts 10:15 RSV)

As Peter puzzled over the meaning of his dream, messengers appeared at his door telling him about Cornelius' vision. The separate visions began to fit together. Peter saw that more was involved than dietary laws. He was being told that "God shows no partiality, but in every nation any one who fears Him and does what is right is acceptable to Him." (Acts 10:34 RSV)

This raised many questions. Did this mean that Jewish Christians who still cherished the religious customs of Israel were required to fellowship with those who neither knew nor cared for those customs? If Cornelius, or any other Gentile, espoused faith in Christ, could he be kept out of the Christian church? If Gentiles received the Holy Spirit, could they be denied baptism?

These questions were to plague the Christian fellowship for years to come. They were as serious to the early Christians as the race problem is to some congregations today.

The answers to Peter and the Apostles were clear. But it takes courage to buck the practices and prejudices of the community. In spite of Peter's brave assertions in Jerusalem, and his explanation to the Christian leaders in Jerusalem (Acts 11:2), when the pressure came from those who could not accept such advanced thinking, he lost his courage and began to back down. (Galatians 2:11) Barnabas did the same (Galatians 3:13). But Paul, who accepted the banner of an unhindered church and bore it, unbridled Peter, and went on to contend vigorously for an inclusive fellowship within the Christian church.

The King James Version of the Bible translates Peter's words to read "God is no respecter of persons" (Acts 10:34) This puts the accent where it belongs. Cornelius was a person regardless of his nationality. He was a person first, and a Gentile second. He was a person, whether he was a Gentile, or a Jew, white or colored.

Christians need to get over a vision of an unhindered church — a church unhindered by the prejudices of the community, a church in which everyone is accepted as a person, regardless of his national or racial background. In this way it can move forward toward the day described in the book of Revelation when "a great multitude . . . from every nation, from all tribes and peoples and tongues" shall stand before the throne of Him who shows no partiality, and welcomes all who come (Revelation 7:9)

RENOUNCES CONTEST

Catholic Laymen Form New Foreign Aid Fund

OTTAWA (CP) — Nineteen leading Roman Catholic laymen from across Canada met in Ottawa Thursday and laid the groundwork for a newly-formed fund for developing countries.

The fund called Canadacids—which will send money to foreign countries to finance development projects with no missionary objectives behind it—was called for at the recent meeting of the Canadian Catholic Conference of Canada's cardinals, archbishops, and bishops.

The laymen form the board of governors of Canadacids, which will appeal directly to the Canadian people and not just Roman Catholics for money.

Most Rev. Joseph Aurele Plourde, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Ottawa, said the fund would not finance missionary works or back any ideologies.

No objective was set for the fund's first campaign which is expected within a year. The fund will have its headquarters in Ottawa, with divisions in major cities and administrative offices in Toronto and Montreal.

Strictly Personal

Most Quotations Are Twisted

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of my private hobbies over the years has been tracking down quotations attributed to famous men. In no other field has there been so much fraud and deceit, casthry after century. And once a false quote becomes imbedded in tradition, it is almost impossible to up root it.

Also working the same mine — in a much more thorough and academic way — is Paul F. Boller, Jr., whose new book, "Quotemanship," has recently arrived on my desk. Prof. Boller's engrossing book is subtitled, "The Use and Abuse of Quotations for Polemical and Other Purposes."

"Quotemanship," according to the author, is a literary form of Stephen Potter's Gamesmanship — the use of quotations as "missiles in intellectual battles." It is a game that everybody plays; and it hardly anyone is conscientious enough to make sure that the quotation he uses was actually made by the person he stirributes it to.

Some of the world's most famous quotations were never made. Voltaire never said "I disagree with what you say, but will defend with my life your right to say it." Gen. Pershing didn't exclaim, "Lafayette, we are here!" Charles C. Pinckney didn't declaim "Millions for defence, but not one cent for tribute!"

Gen. Cabrenas didn't say, "The Old Guard dies, but never surrenders." Although he denied this quotation all his life, the words were inscribed on his monument in his home town of Nantes. And Galileo never said, "But still it moves," when making his famous recantation.

Spurious Lincoln quotes are the most numerous of all, ranging into the hundreds. He never said, "God must have loved the common people; he made so many of them." Nor, "You can fool all of the people some of the time . . ." His Lincoln quotes are those used by polemicists of all shades — to "show" that he was anti-Catholic or anti-Negro or anti-Semitic or anticapital or anti-labor or anti whatever the propagandists wanted to criticize.

Anyone who is impressed with the authority of quotations, or wonders how Washington, Franklin, Lincoln and others said so many contradictory things would be rewarded and enlightened by spending an evening with Prof. Boller's book. It would make all of us less ready to credit authority simply because it is surrounded by quotation marks.

No Blame Attached In Fire at Hospital

TORONTO (CP)—One of Ontario's longest inquests ended Thursday with the coroner's jury attaching no blame in the death of a patient in a fire at a Workmen's Compensation Board Hospital here March 31.

The jury made 14 recommendations, involving fire drills, fire equipment and hospital construction, which the coroner, Dr. Elie Cass, said could result in increasing fire safety in institutions across Ontario and elsewhere.

Both Dr. Cass and Dr. Morton Shulman, the deposed Mayo psitan. Toronto chief coroner who was closely involved with the marathon inquest, expressed satisfaction with the findings.

The jury found no negligence on the death of 36 - year - old Mary Scalzitti, but its recommendations mentioned conditions at the hospital which, according to witnesses, could have contributed to the spread of the fire.

Dupuy Tries Again to Get Kuwait to Open Expo Pavilion

MONTREAL (CP)—The Middle East crisis is in ferment and the air full of blame words, but Commissioner - General Pierre Dupuy of Expo 67 apparently is determined to keep the commonalty of nations at his goodwill-generating fair intact.

Officials of the Kuwait pavilion at Expo have been packing their exhibits for possible removal following a May 29 order by the government of their rich, Middle East country that the pavilion close its doors.

The doors were shut immediately after the order went out in protest against what Kuwait called the anti-Arab bias of Canadian foreign policy.

Expo officials said Thursday night Mr. Dupuy has asked Kuwait's commissioner-general at the fair to reconsider removal of the exhibits until definite orders for permanent closedown come through from the sheikhdom's government.

Meantime, diplomatic efforts are believed continuing, aimed at keeping the Kuwaitis in Expo.

"The position is fluid," said an official at Expo's operations control department when asked whether Kuwait was staying or going.

Meantime, an apparently minor demonstration was reported to have taken place at the Expo pavilion of the United Arab Republic Thursday.

Four young men were ushered off the Expo grounds after what was officially described as speech-making by them in the U.A.R. centre. The words seemed to have been pro-Israeli in character, the second such demonstration at Expo since war in the Middle East exploded Monday.

Otherwise, the fairgrounds were quiet Thursday, with visitors ranging from Canada's Governor - General and Britain's Princess Alexandra to the mayor of Boston.

Arab Pavilion Won't Close Doors

MONTREAL (CP)—Elements unsympathetic to the Arab cause in the Middle East have been spreading "unfounded" reports that the United Arab Republic's pavilion at Expo 67 may close but this propaganda" has boomeranged; a pavilion official said Thursday night.

Meantime, spokesmen for the Israeli pavilion say the Middle East war has increased attendance and elicited statements of visitor support at that fairgrounds centre.

Fathi Sawvi, who identified himself as deputy director of the U.A.R. pavilion, said in an interview that the unfounded reports of a closing caused many people to head in a rush for that centre. They feared it would close before they could see it or could revisit it.

He seemed convinced, however, that his government had no plans for closing the pavilion.

A neighboring Arab exhibition, that of Kuwait, closed its doors to the fair-going public last week in protest against an alleged anti-Arab bias in Canadian foreign policy.

There have even pro-Israel demonstrations at the U.A.R. pavilion since hostilities exploded in the Middle East earlier this week.

But Mr. Sawvi sounded pleased with the impact his pavilion is having at the fair.

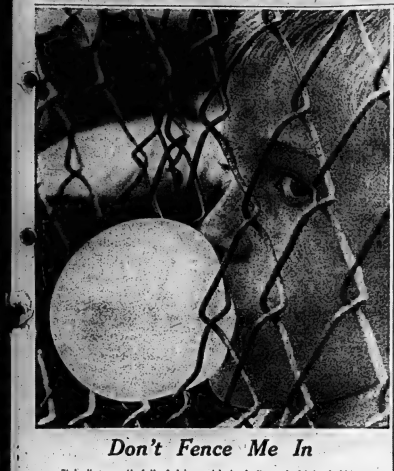
At the Israeli pavilion one official reported an attendance increase of "more than 30 per cent" since the war between Israel and several Arab countries began Monday.

Philippe de Gaspe Beaubien, Expo's director of operations, said the exhibition's net revenues until the end of May were $47,960,000.

This, he remarked, was beyond the expectations of authorities at Expo, the total cost of which was $370,446,000. The expected deficit is $137,747,060.

About the revenue figure, Mr. Beaubien said: "It's not satisfied . . . but we're pleased."

Governor - General and Mrs. Roland Michener made a seasonal tour of the site, sampling the food of Ontario and the Atlantic provinces, and the exhibitions of Britain, France and Western Canada. Their tour of the fairgrounds was forwarded in fair weather until the evening brought rain.



Equally without ceremony was a trip through Expo of Princess Alexandra, cousin of the Queen, and the princess' husband, Angus Ogilvy.

As they went, Expo was celebrating its Scandinavian Day, a spectacularly intricate drill display by Norwegian military musicians clanging cymbals.

The Norwegians were honored, as were Denmark, Finland, Iceland and Sweden.

Mayor John Collins of Boston came to the fair with a group of Boston-area municipal and business leaders.

The Thursday night rain at Expo apparently curbed attendance. Nevertheless, by 12 midnight it was 180,548 for the day, compared with a predicted 121,-000. Total attendance since the fair's official inauguration April 27 was 10,821,505.

Adversaries in Heated Debate On Quebec "Special Status"

OTTAWA (CP) — Political scientists kicked over the academic traces Thursday with an emotional debate on the question of a special status for Quebec. They shattered the somewhat sober tone of the Canadian Political Science Association's annual conference in hosted reaction to views of two old foes on the subject, Jacques-Yvan Morin and Eugene Forsey.

Prof. Morin of the University of Montreal, one of the architects of the special - status theory, said Quebec will settle for nothing less.

The alternative, he told a crammed forum at Carleton University, is a wider separation in which Quebec becomes an associate state.

He said it is the duty of English-speaking political scientists to convince Canadians outside Quebec they cannot impose their ideas of Canadian unity on French-Canadians.

Several of Prof. Morin's French - speaking colleagues angrily rejected the outspoken views of Dr. Forsey, a constitutional expert and research director of the Canadian Labor Congress.

Dr. Forsey said a special status would mean dissolution of the Confederation.

His advocates, he said, refuse to clarify what it means and how it will work. Quebec is demanding the federal government get out of its affairs, at the same time insisting on a say in Canadian affairs with a full stock of MPs in the Commons.

He charged that his series of questions about special status had gone unanswered by Prof. Morin.

Prof. Louis Sabourin, dean of social sciences at the University of Ottawa, supported Prof. Morin and deplored what he called Dr. Forsey's emotional approach to the subject.

"The problem won't be settled by malicious insinuations," he said. Dr. Forsey jumped to his feet, defending his emotions.

"There is nothing wrong with emotion. It depends on what it is founded."

He said Quebec is telling English Canada "sign here and sign quick and no notes from the English cheap seats."

To Your Good Health

Big Red Measles Are Common Kind

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain to some of us mothers who have asked "What is German measles?" Is it the big red measles? Some doctors say it is rosenla 'three - day' measles.

What are the dangers and after-effects? What can be done to protect little ones who have these diseases? Is a child who has had the big red measles likely to have the little ones later if the child doesn't have the shot for them? — M. M.

Let's get this straightened out for you.

First, rosenla is a term that can apply to quite a collection of almost-identical-looking red spots so let's discard that term and get down to the important ones.

Measles, or big red measles, or rubeola, call it what you will, is the common type of measles that so many children have.

There's been too much tendency to say, "Oh, he just has the measles," and forget about it. Actually a large proportion of children can have serious complications, including heart and other damage, and the number of deaths from measles each year — several hundred — is evidence that measles isn't necessarily such a simple, harmless disease.

There isn't much you can do to cure measles. It has to run its course. But you can keep the sick child in bed, and call the doctor to watch out for complications — and treat them at once if they develop. Of course we now have effective vaccine to prevent measles, and many children are thus protected. A lot of others are not.

There are at least three or four lesser diseases which bring spots and fever but are not nearly as severe as "red measles."

The one which concerns us most is German measles, also known as the "three - day measles, or technically, rubella.

The German, or three-day measles doesn't amount to much as a disease except for one horrible thing about it. If a pregnant woman gets that simple little disease early in pregnancy (the first three months) it can cause many defects in the baby, both physical and mental.

Thus a woman who has German measles before becoming pregnant is lucky. That is, her future babies are lucky, escaping risk of eye, heart or other defects which often occur when the mother-to-be got the disease.

Progress is being made toward a German measles vaccine, but some technical problems, such as raising enough virus to make the vaccine in quantity, remain.

Once you had German measles you ordinarily can't get it again. Reports of people having ill several times probably stem from the fact that they had some of these other similar diseases and mistook them for German measles.

To get back to plain measles vaccination protects against that; it does not protect against German measles.

That is why so much hard work is being done now to perfect a German measles vaccine.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I heard it was dangerous to pull a hair from a mole. Is it? I am past 70 and have a mole on my face. I have been getting whiskers off. Can I pull them instead? — Mrs. B. L. G.

Pulling can irritate the tissues and can leave an opening for infection. Cutting them, as you have been doing, is the right way.

• • •

Note to Mrs. N.B.: With your history of emotional illness, I cannot even guess how long your insomnia may last. You should report it to your psychiatrist for help.

"There's your breakfast—good night!"

Singer-Pianist Sought By Anthem Committee

ATTAWA (CP) — A parliamentary committee is going to hire a singer-pianist, or both, to help it make an official set of words for O Canada, the national anthem.

At an organization meeting Thursday, the joint Senate-Commons committee did not say how it wanted to make a male, female, a tenor, soprano, or bass, or a jazz, honky-tonk or classical pianist.

It just told clerk R. E. Thomas to find someone who is musical and has a knowledge of metre.

A file of 255 new lyrics or alterations to the current one-stanza anthem have been received since it was announced last December that a committee would deal with the words.

The committee plans to get a report back to the House of Commons — would make a lower key version available for singing — by the end of the session.

Parliament earlier this year adopted the committee's recommendation that the music of O Canada, the national anthem, and God Save the Queen, the royal anthem, become official.

A proclamation to this effect is expected later this month.

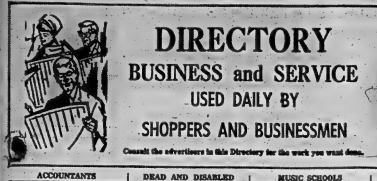
O Canada lyrics now in common use are the French version by Judge Routhier and the English one by Robert Stanley Weir.

The Routhier lyrics have been popular in Quebec since they were written in 1880 while the Weir lyrics emerged in after 1908 from a host of English versions.

The committee has a number of alternatives before it, including adoption of the present lyrics.

However, there is pressure from some MPs for a short version to remove the repetitive phrase—"We stand on guard for thee."

Trustees Want Arbitration



TORONTO (CP)—The executives of the Ontario Separate School Trustees' Association and Thursday it has agreed on compulsory arbitration as the cure to teacher salary disputes.

The executive held an emergency meeting last week to discuss the difficulty school boards in Ontario are having with teacher wage negotiations.

The executive wants a compulsory arbitration system to go into effect early enough to avoid a decision before May 31, the traditional resignation date for teachers.

It says the difficulty school boards

We mailed statements of balance owing on Public Works accounts as at December 31st, 1966 and received 90% of the replies agreeing with the balance listed including by far the major receipts received over to the City Treasurer. From our examination of the accounts and information received we feel that the allowance for doubtful accounts in the amount of $6,000 is adequate.

DUE FROM OTHER MUNICIPALITIES

It will be noted that an allowance of $6,000 has been provided for possible uncollectibility of some accounts. Approximately one half of the allowance is in respect of relief charges billed. The other half is in respect of high school debt charges where the basis of distribution of cost between municipalities has been disputed.

TAXES RECEIVABLE — EXCEPT SPECIAL LEVY

Statements showing balances owing were mailed by us to all taxpayers owing at the end of the year as well as a number of those owing 1966 taxes as of September 30, 1966 and a number owing 1965 taxes as of December 31, 1965 in connection with business taxes and 70 replies in connection with family taxes. Returned to us by the post office were 24 in business taxation and 24 family tax notices. After examination by us the replies received were found to be in order. The City Treasurer has been in touch with those who have not replied. Taxes receivable of $28,305 for school purposes and taxes in stepcause.

The taxation accounts for taxes receivable have not been reconciled since early in 1966 with the lists of taxes receivable. The lists of taxes receivable are kept on cards. The reconciliation of the control accounts with the lists of taxes receivable has been delayed because adjustments of work will be necessary to reconcile the balances but should be done at the year end.

Total taxes receivable at December 31, 1966 according to the books of the City of Belleville was $1,289,000 as compared with $1,248,000 at December 31, 1965. The amount of taxes receivable at December 31, 1965 were $686,270 and $41,808 respectively.

Syria Pleads For UN Help

Israel Talks Truce

From AP-Reuters

United Nations observers reported three Israeli air attacks around the Syrian capital of Damascus today and said Israeli troops were in the vicinity of the city. The reports to UN Secretary - General U Thant said, however, there were no attacks on the capital itself as Israel and Syria kept the Middle East war going a sixth day.

Israel announced to the UN Security Council that Gen. Moshe Dayan, Israel's defence minister, is flying secretly in Jerusalem with the chief UN truce supervisor, Lt.-Gen. Odd Bull, to arrange a ceasefire with Syria.

Thant went before the Security Council in New York with a report from Lt.-Gen. R. H. W. Bunworth of Ireland, head of the Israeli-Syrian Mixed Armistice Commission in Damascus.

The report said one Israeli air attack was against the area of Damascus Airport, a second south of Damascus and a third north and northeast of Damascus.

Earlier Syria claimed Israeli forces had captured the Syrian city of Kuneitra, nine miles inside its border and 40 miles southwest of Damascus.

Thant told the Security Council, however, that Bull reported from Jerusalem he had been informed by an Israeli official that Israeli forces were not in Kuneitra. Bull reported the Israeli official reconmended that Bull dispatch a UN observer group to see for themselves.

But Damascus radio, broadcasting Syrian Army communiques, said fierce fighting was still raging in the streets of Kuneitra, a strategic city which controls the lone highway pass through the mountains between the state of Lake Galilee and the Syrian capital.

In an earlier communique the Syrian Army said Israelis had captured Kuneitra.

Damascus radio also said three Israeli planes had been shot down over the Damascus area.

A large number of Israeli tanks were destroyed, one communique said.

In Tel Aviv, unofficial reports said pitched battles—with Israeli tanks flocking it hard going on the road terrain—were raging on the high plateau of Syria between the border and Damascus.

Arabs Talk Boycott

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—The Federation of Arab Chambers of Commerce proposed Friday that the Arab boycott against Israel be extended to all goods and services from the United States and Britain.

The proposal was adopted at a meeting of leaders of the chambers called to co-ordinate Arab economic policies "during the present crisis."

It declared:

"The export of oil to the aggressive countries must be stopped immediately, and all Arab rules of the Arab boycott must be applied to all American and British products and services. British and American means of transport should also be boycotted in all Arab countries."

Session Opens In Night

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Israeli Ambassador Gideon Rafael told the UN Security Council today that Maj.-Gen. Moshe Dayan, Israel's defence minister, is meeting Lt.-Gen. Odd Bull, head of the UN truce supervision Organization, "to make all the necessary arrangements for a complete ceasefire" on the Israeli-Syrian front.

Rafael again denied that Israeli forces are bombing Damascus, and advancing on the Syrian capital.

He said Israel has given UN observers access to its side of the front while the UN observer in Damascus has been confined to the armistice commission quarters by the Syrian authorities.

Secretary - General U Thant read an Israeli report to the council admitting that Israeli troops were in the "vicinity" of Damascus.

Thant gave his latest information to the 15-nation council as it met at 4.32 a.m. at the request of Syria.

The council went back into session at 8:11 a.m. and heard Thant read out another report from Bunworth.

It confirmed there was an air attack at 3:35 a.m. to the area of Damascus Airport, a second air attack at 4:55 a.m. south of Damascus, and a further air attack at 5:19 a.m. north and northeast of Damascus.

The report added that "all strikes appear to be outside the city of Damascus."

Truce Broken

Sanctions Threatened By Russia

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia today broke off diplomatic relations with Israel and threatened sanctions — "with all the consequences flowing therefrom" — if it does not stop military operations immediately.

The Soviet action came after a Summit meeting here hurriedly called between Russia and leaders of the East European states to discuss the Middle East war.

While Israeli tanks blazed their way up on to the Syrian plateau today, the Israeli ambassador in Moscow, Katriel Katz, was summoned to the Soviet foreign ministry.

He was handed a note which said:

"Unless Israel halts immediately its military actions, the Soviet Union, jointly with other peaceloving states, will take sanctions against Israel with all consequences flowing therefrom."

Nasser Back in Power Until 'Aggression' Ends

CAIRO (CP)—President Nasser announced today he has decided to stay on as Egypt's head of state but only until "all traces of aggression are eliminated."

In a statement read to the Egyptian National Assembly by Speaker Anwar Sadat, Nasser said he has decided to "comply with the will of the people," and rescind his resignation but added:

"After this phase the whole matter should be referred to the people for a general plebiscite."

Deputies jumped from their seats and roared approval as Sadat announced the news of the Arab leader's decision to a special assembly session.

Sadat said Nasser was unable to make the announcement himself because huge crowds shouting for his return to power were blocking his way to the assembly building.

"We do not accept anybody, but Nasser as our leader," the Speaker told the assembly, repeating a slogan that had echoed through the canyons of Metropolitan Cairo all night long.

In a letter read by the Speaker to the 360-man assembly, Nasser said:

"The voice of the masses is an order that cannot be disobeyed. Therefore I decided to stay in my place.

"I will stay in the post where the people want me to be until the time when we will be able to erase all traces of aggression, but after that period the decision should be made in a general plebiscite."

By saying that he would stay on until all traces of aggression are erased, Nasser apparently meant that he would keep his post until the effects of the last week's Israeli - Arab war are cleared up.

Observers in Beirut, Lebanon, said that any referendum for the presidency seemed certain to bring Nasser sweeping support to stay in office.

Tens of thousands milled in streets close to the assembly building during the noon-time meeting.

Trucks and buses, crammed with new demonstrators, inched forward through the throngs in an atmosphere of riotous confusion.

But the demonstrations appeared under control of mounted police and troops, positioned at intersections and all along the main thoroughfares.

The sudden offer of resignation by the 49-year-old Egyptian president—dominating leader of the Middle East for more than a decade—came Friday after Egypt's crushing defeat by Israel in the five-day Sinai war.

In a broadcast speech Friday night, Nasser took full responsibility for the disastrous events that have hit the Arab world.

But a floodtide of pro-Nasser feeling quickly welled up in Cairo, and much of the Arab world.

Hundreds of thousands of Egyptians marched in Cairo today and before the assembly met the streets were jammed with crowds shouting pro-Nasser slogans and waving banners and flags.

The first indication that Nasser might reverse himself came late Friday night when he announced over Cairo radio he would "discuss" his decision with the assembly today.

"I would like to ask the people to wait until morning," he said.

Nasser reiterated his charge that the Arab setback came about because of Anglo-American help to Israel.

Holiday July 3 Up to Provinces

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson announced Friday that Monday, July 3, has been proclaimed a national holiday.

But the cabinet action did not make July 3 a statutory holiday. An act of Parliament is needed for that.

A spokesman for the prime minister's office said the holiday applies only to banks, government offices and government agencies. It will be up to provincial governments to act if they want to close industry and business for the day. He said Mr. Pearson plans to formal approach to the provinces about a move in this direction, but hopes they will follow the federal lead.

Premier Robarts said Ontario will make an announcement on the holiday next week. He said the possibility of extending the Dominion Day weekend "seems to make sense," but did not commit himself beyond that.

It requires provincial action to close business and industry in the province for the extended period.

Bullet Holes Pock-mark Way of the Cross

JERUSALEM (CP)—The Via Dolorosa, the Way of the Cross, is pock-marked with bullet holes.

Israeli soldiers came stealthily down the Way of the Cross Tuesday night when they captured the old walled city of Jerusalem from Jordanian Arabs.

The old city is the most sacred station of the Jews and on Friday, Israeli soldiers with rifles and sub - machine - guns slung over their shoulders prayed at the Wailing Wall.

"This is the real Jerusalem," said one bearded Jew, dabbing at his eyes.

The Israeli army encircled the old city after Jordan began shelling the Israeli-owned New Jerusalem and took it practically without damage.

Christian shrines have been closed for the time being to protect them in case of any recurrence of fighting.

But any recurrence here appears remote.

In the narrow, tortuous streets of the Arab quarter, where garbage lies rotting on cobblestones merchants were again starting to hawk their wares.

Moneychangers were still closed, however, because nobody appeared sure whether to use Israeli or Jordanian money. But this didn't bother Arab beggars with their eternally plaintive cry of "baksheesh," which means "gimme."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Little change is expected in the weather pattern during the weekend with thunderstorm activity continuing across the lower Great Lakes. Cooler air and clearing skies have spread across the northern regions where overnight temperatures dropped into the 40s. The boundary between the cool and warm air masses will remain almost stationary throughout the weekend across the upper Great Lakes.

The Arabs appeared unafraid and were going and coming as if nothing had happened.

There were Israeli soldiers at vantage points but many others carried cameras or were making pilgrimages to the Wailing Wall, known to the Jews as the Western Wall, where there was a crush of people.

Tourists, who seem to be part of an army's mopping-up operations nowadays, were guided to Christian shrines, such as Mary's birthplace, by an Israeli army colonel.

In the Arab sector outside the walls, fighting had obviously been fierce.

There was heavy shell damage, especially around the Mandelbaum Gate, and many Arab shops had been wrecked by machine-gun fire. Most shutters had been pierced by bullets and there was broken glass everywhere.

Food is short in the city and Israeli soldiers had to control an Arab mob at a bakery. There was a burst of sub-machine-gun fire and the mob scattered.

A Definite Difference

Belleville Bookmaker Turns Back Clock

While most manufacturers race to keep up with computerized processes, a Belleville man has turned back the industrial clock 500 years. Turning a neat profit on an ancient process is Mick Mika, author and publisher of hand-printed books.

His goes it to be different. His satisfaction comes from being the only person in North America printing book illustrations page by page and entirely by hand. Each copy of a Mika book is a numbered, prestige item intended "for lovers of fine books. No reprints are possible; stencils and type are destroyed after the first printing.

Mr. Mika has operated an industrial silk screening business for about 12 years, turning out decorative plaques and the occasional slim pamphlet as a sideline.

One such was the history of steam locomotives in Canada. His first full-sized book, Mosaic of Belleville, was so warmly received by the people of the city he was encouraged to enter book publishing on a larger scale.

Toronto, Magnificent City and a History of Trenton, commissioned by the town, are now in the bookstores. Almost finished is Mosaic of Canada, a history shown through postage stamp illustration and intended for high school students.

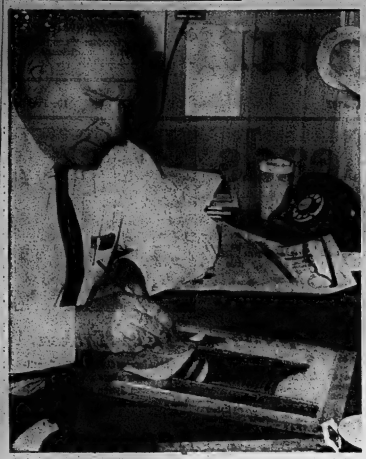
In preparation is a hardcover presentation booklet, published in co-operation with Toronto's city clerk, Edgar Norris, and intended as a gift for important guests at Toronto's City Hall. Yet to come is a volume of illustrations of old Toronto landmarks, compiled in co-operation with Toronto Library from the John Ross Robertson collection.

Mr. Mika researches all material for his books, his wife Helga writes the texts and both supervise the printing. Belleville firms set the type for the text and print it a double page at a time on a flat bed press.

The Mikas' specialty is the stencilling of colored illustrations on silk screen process. Silk screening, a precision operation, requires as many as 12 stencils for one picture. The build - up of one ink on top of another as each color is applied through a separate stencil produces a textured, almost three-dimensional effect.

The Chinese first developed silk-screening 2,000 years ago. During the middle ages it was used in Europe to illuminate manuscript books. Its revival in modern times was stimulated by the development of photographic emulsions and by the need for a quick, easy way of marking equipe on aircraft instrument panels during World War II.

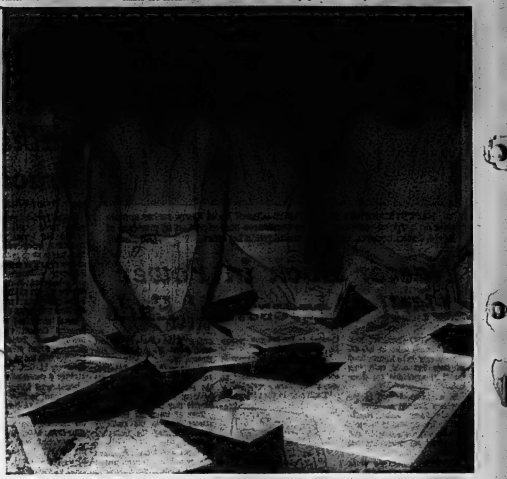
The advantage lies in its adaptability to any surface, any material and any sized reproduction. Using special inks for staining, the Mikas stencil printing on such diversified items as eyeglass frames, clock faces, appliance plates and vehicle bodies. They can even print on water, a trick Mr. Mika demonstrates to classes of high school and university students who tour his plant.



To prepare a stencil for a book illustration, Mrs. Mika first traces on transparent paper a line drawing prepared by an artist. He makes a separate tracing for each color in the picture, blacking in, for instance, each red colored area on one tracing, each green-colored area on another.

He places the tracing over a silk screen sensitized with photographic emulsion and exposes it to light for 10 minutes. The light can't penetrate the inked-in portions of the design and when the screen is placed in water the emulsion washes off the unexposed areas. This stencil is framed and hinged on a printing table.

Because of the precision required in printing several colors on one area, vacuum machines are mounted under the table to hold the paper and prevent slipping. At the rate of 2,000 sheets a day an operator slides book pages on the table, lowers the stencil and squeezes ink through the screen with a brush. The pages are dried flat in trays for a half hour before the next color is printed. A shiny enamel used to highlight outlines is the last to be applied — it needs six hours to dry.



Following printing of the illustrations the pages are sent to a job printer, returned to the Mikas for folding, then dispatched with the silk screened hard covers to Lindsay for binding.

Mr. Mika admits some of the finer points of commercial silk screening are closely guarded trade secrets. He had to spend two months in Germany and Switzerland to learn the art, where, he says, his Canadian passport opened factory doors closed to Europeans.

Campbellford Bridge Closed to Traffic

The town of Campbellford is a divided municipality today as the result of the county bridge in the centre of the town being temporarily closed for traffic.

During the period for which the bridge is closed, motorists will have to make a two-mile detour.

Campbellford Police Chief Samuel Baird, said the bridge over the Trent River was closed after a four-foot crack appeared in the steel and concrete decking. The crack is about three inches in width.

"We've been watching the crack for several days," said the police chief.

The bridge will remain closed until an inspection is made by the Northumberland county road engineer.

The bridge, which leads from the centre of the town to the Stirling Road, is an old structure. Its replacement is contemplated by the county with bridge plans now in the drawing stage.

Trenton Sea Cadets Tour Light Cruiser

TRENTON — A thrill any old seadog would forfeit shore leave to realize was experienced by 10 cadets and two of their officers from the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps Trent this week.

On Wednesday they went aboard a British Navy fighting ship at Toronto as the guests of the ship's complement. And the officers and men of the light cruiser HMS Hampshire — all 450 of them made the visit an occasion they will remember for years. The local group was provided a guided tour around the 546-foot vessel which bristles with guided missile weapons and other sophisticated armaments.

The 50,000 ton displacement ship tied up in Toronto harbor at the foot of Bay Street on exhibition as one of Great Britain's contributions to centennial celebrations. The visitors from Trenton were in company with Lieut. Gerald Pare and Simon Taylor.

CINDERELLA, as presented by the Junior Drama Club of The Ontario School for the Deaf at Open House yesterday arrives at the Prince's ball in traditional fashion.

Cinderella Playhouse Presented At Annual OSD Open House

Using their imagination, members of the Junior Drama Club of the Ontario School for the Deaf, transformed the Junior School's activity room into a Cinderella Playhouse at yesterday's annual open house.

Cinderella, directed by C. Robbins, was delightfully presented to an audience of parents and visitors. Costumes and props were made by students and Cinderella's pumpkin carriage was especially creative.

After the Junior play the program shifted to the Senior School auditorium. A rhythm demonstration by 30 of the students using bells, drums and batons was accompanied by piano. The program lasted half an hour.

Following the rhythm show a fashion show under the direction of Miss G. Lam, senior sewing teacher, was presented to the audience. All of the fashions were designed and constructed by the students who modelled them. The variety of designs varied from casual wear to evening wear.

The models' hair styles were designed by the girls in the beauty culture classes, directed by Mrs. G. Lewis.

In the evening all of the vocational shops were open to receive visitors and students displayed some of the projects they had completed during the year. Parents picked up the take-home projects completed by their children.

The beginning of the Open House began with parents and visitors touring classes in progress. Guided tours were arranged or visitors could wander at their own discretion. There was an audio - visual presentation, How They Hear directed by Mr. P. Kitcher, and two auditory training demonstrations.

A gymnastic display was also presented. It included tumbling, apparatus, general activities and folk dancing. Between the various programs parents could schedule conferences with teachers.

Market Gardeners Claim Business Getting Slimmer

"Business is getting slimmer," agree some of the vendors in the market place. "We sell well for the three summer months and then sales really drop off."

For some of the men and women trying to sell their products this must be frustrating. Some of them have been coming over ten years to Belleville. Many come three times a week.

One woman has been seen in the market square for 47 years. She sells a variable display of flowers which she grows for a hobby but still likes to exhibit in Belleville.

A man with 22 apple trees sells apples as his retirement project.

But the vendors all agree there isn't much business this time of year. But "there'll be more people out after awhile," was their optimistic prediction this morning.

This morning the vendors offered rhubarb at 20c a bunch and 60c a basket, blueberry sets at 10c each and asparagus at 25c a half pound.

Tomatoes are selling for 40c a box while flowers are 50c a bunch except for iris which are $1 a bunch.

Eggs are 50c for oversize, 45c for large, 40c for medium and 30c for small. Apples are $1 a bag and 75c a basket.

Pastry prices vary from 25c to $1 depending on the product.

Tragic Figure

One of the most pathetic figures in the Arab debacle in the Middle East is King Hussein of Jordan.

Hussein, hitherto a respected figure in Middle East politics, somehow fell for UAR President Nasser's blandishments about embarking on a holy war against the Israelis and the prospect of the Arab nations finally achieving a united front.

Originally cool toward the idea of going to war, Hussein did go so far as to sign a mutual defence pact with Egypt. That was toward the end of May, but when fighting broke out early this week Jordan's forces were no more a match for the Israelis than the Egyptians or the Syrians.

Now, like Nasser, Hussein's political future must be regarded as uncertain. No nation, or group of nations, can suffer such bitter defeat and humiliation and expect to regain their soul and their pride under suspect leadership. The resignation of Nasser is evidence of this.

Israel's feat of arms is now history. But what lingers in the mind is the real triumph of this small nation — and that is the spirit and solidarity of its people and the tremendous vigor and enthusiasm of its armed forces even in the fierce heat of the desert battleground. Here is an army of young men (and women) which knew what it had to do, and did it.

Escapism

The history of getting-away-from-it-all (meaning from family and business worries and from the general problems of everyday living) is a checkered one.

One of the most successful exponents of this cult is Sir Francis Chichester, the British yachtsman and one-time glider flyer who has just completed a solo voyage around the world.

Of course this is an onerous way of escaping from the world, and the trouble is one is never isolated. But should one ever be satisfied? Isn't discontent the divine instinct that motivates the world? Without it people are little more than vegetables. Creativeness, or the filling of the eternal vacuum, the filling of Pascal's unforgiving minute with "60 seconds' worth of distance run," isn't that what life is all about?

For, the sailor, and particularly the yachtsman, whether alone or with a crew, there is the ocean with its marvellous variations of mood, its challenge to human ingenuity and strength, its mysterious landfalls, and above all the response it evokes from the human spirit.

Perhaps besides Chichester have described vividly this magnetism of the oceans of the world — notably Joseph Conrad and more recently Hollywood actors Sterling Hayden and the late Errol Flynn. For the rest of us, the chains of routine prevent most people from embarking on such enterprises. As for the old problem of having the means to do it, well even Chichester enlisted the aid of sponsors for his recent voyage, while Hayden and Flynn both made and lost fortunes but still managed to keep the call of adventure ever in mind.

As Chichester put it, it is the 'effort' you make, and not its realization, that counts in life.

However, unless the individual or family is prepared to really go native and renounce the ways of the western world as we know it, getting-away-from-it-all is not always a rewarding experience.

There are problems of adjustment, orientation, even survival. Say you want to live in Tahiti. There, as in Canada, it helps if you can speak French. In any case if you have an onward ticket, or return passage home, because the authorities permit a stay of only six months at a time.

It is the same in American Samoa, as the Richard Ault family of Ohio, reportedly heading there to escape the frustrations of modern life, will discover. Mr. Ault, 29, a former radio announcer, his wife, Lois, 25, and their daughter, Tracy, 3, left home in Worster, Ohio, May 22, en route to Hawaii and Samoa.

"I want to learn — to experience — the way primitive people lived," Mr. Ault told newsmen.

However, regulations in Samoa do not permit permanent settlers from the outside world. Nor can they own land. Moreover, the small atoll where the Aults want to go does not have enough water to permit habitation. And again, few South Pacific islands have swimming beaches.

Really, when you think about it, there is no place like good old home, where you can do just about what you want, where you want — like going for a walk, driving a car, having a milkshake, or a hamburger, or turning a tap and you get water, flicking a switch and you get light, and so on. Or would you rather rough it in American Samoa?

Civil Service "Mandarins" A Power on Federal Scene

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The Conservatives have been crying about it ever since they were toppled — or, perhaps themselves stumbled — from power going on five years ago.

So it's all the more surprising to hear a Liberal - in reasonably good - standing now suddenly say the same thing — that it's not the Government which swings the real Federal power, but the big and ever-growing Ottawa bureaucracy.

Events such leverage where it counts most, says Steven Otto, Liberal MP for Toronto's York East constituency, that even the Cabinet Ministers — much less the ordinary Government Backbench MPs who have minus zero influence — hold the power of policy decision.

The rank-and-file MP is told nothing and asked help — except, of course, to support the Government in its continuing slam battle with the Opposition — and so, says Steven Otto, degenerates into an unthinking political tribal seal if he stays around the Commons long enough.

And the Cabinet isn't much better off, he complains, merely checking over policy decisions and even legislation for parliamentary action that have been prepared and processed by the "Mandarins," the Big Brass of the senior Federal Civil Service.

Cabinet Ministers, he charges more in sorrow than in anger, do what the Bureaucrats tell them to do because if they don't they know that these same Civil Service Mandarins are "in a position to kill them."

Like, he might have said, some of them "killed" the Cabinet Missions of the former Diefenbaker Conservative Government.

Just such a charge has been made from time to time by former Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton among others of the man who sat around the Privy Council with former Prime Minister Diefenbaker in the Tory glory years from 1957 through '62.

At bitterness after the Tories tumbled from power in '63, he spoke of the senior Civil Service as the "Grit Mafia," or for a variation the "Liberal Underground."

Plenty of election - shocked Conservatives agreed with him, especially when they recalled that Prime Minister Pearson and five of his Cabinet, Transport Minister Pickersgill, Finance Minister Sharp, Industries Minister Drury, Labor Minister Nicholson and former Justice Minister Favreau graduated from the Mandarin Division of the Bureaucracy — they were all of them departmental deputies — into Federal politics.

In fact, Mitchell Sharp came so mid-track from the Civil Service to Parliament he had an interval of not much more than a year in the work-a-day world of business.

He got the boot — or a not-so-gold-plated invitation to file his resignation — from old Conservative warhorse Gordon Churchill, then taking over as Trade and Commerce Minister.

Churchill was suspicious of Sharp's supposed political neutrality after all those years as former Liberal Trade Minister C. D. Howe's No. 2 Man.

Since then, many a Conservative has wished out loud that they'd fired some others.

For they were reminded, only days after Prime Minister Pearson took over, that he had come out of the Civil Service and commanded what appeared to be extraordinary loyalty and efficiency that they never came within shouting distance of enjoying.

That reminder — and hint! — of a bit belated it was, too — came in the form of a time meeting all the departmental deputies convened to applaud and pledge, of course, support for their former colleague, the External Affairs Deputy, now the Prime Minister.

So Steven Otto says, and few doubt him. But the Civil Service has the power of death of the government — this, or say 10 years.

One of the Bureaucracy's deadliest weapons, to hear the Tories tell it, is to drill in an uncooperative Cabinet Minister with the very minimum of urgently essential information and then let him fumble and flounder into difficulty. Just that was exactly what happened for former Transport Minister Walter Gordon, when he fell flat on his Parliamentary face with his first disastrous budget.

Other Tories would give the Bureaucrats their come-uppance by having Parliament not just "examine", but "determine" the rate at which the Federal departments and their deputies may grow over-ripe for defiance.

That way, the Commons could get to the dollar-and-cents heart of the matter — but don't count on it.

Prejudiced Youngsters

Guelph Mercury

The word from a University of Toronto anthropologist that bitter racial and religious prejudice among children in Toronto is widespread should come as no surprise. Mark Twain told us much the same thing years ago when he said we are for the most part products of our early training and environment. And it was not new when he said it.

The surprising thing is that it is always something of a shock to be told that what we know is happening is in fact happening; that the prejudices of the older generation are still being passed on unthinkingly to the younger generation. One would think that somewhere along the line a supposedly civilized people would have learned the lesson.

Students' Role

A Master Plan for Education?

Hamilton Spectator

Ontario may at last be within reach of attaining a coherent master plan for higher education, if the special commission announced by Education Minister William Davis does its work well.

Only last December 30 a report prepared by Dr. John Spiska, president of the University of Saskatchewan, indicted Ontario's post-secondary education system in these words:

"The most striking characteristic of higher—at least graduate—education in Ontario is the complete absence of a master plan, of an educational policy, and of a co-ordinating authority for the provincially supported institutions."

The primary object of Dr. Spiska' report was the field of graduate studies but he stretched his terms of reference to solve the specialized problem by proposing creation of a massive University of Ontario to administratively embrace the 14 incumbent institutions, including McMaster, which now accept public money from the province.

The presidents of the universities involved rejected this outspoken approach and suggested instead the very commission that Mr. Davis has now wisely set in motion.

It is to consist of three full-time members and 10 or 12 part times, one of the latter to be a student. The inclusion of a student may raise a few eyebrows, but after all what? Most adults have been away from the campus for many years and it will do no harm to bear the opinions, wise or foolish, of a person with immediate experience.

By moving in this direction Mr. Davis is indicating Ontario's acceptance, finally, of a basic responsibility. However perfect the ideal, the university can no longer be a totally autonomous, independent organism in a society which is collectively paying most of its bills. There has to be some co-ordination of effort so that economic duplication may be avoided. A fundamental start in this province is closely defining the role of each and every institution, and category of institution, otherwise entirely or in part, large part on public funds.

The universities already co-operate a good deal among themselves but there is still room for further co-ordination which can only be provided by the central money-dispensing hub: now the government. Mr. Davis knows well on a problem which is increasingly bothering many people:

Higher education is not a bottomless barrel of funds and increased government expenditure on behalf of the needy student was not a failure because dispersing Huron clans carried their Christianity with them throughout the Great Lakes basin.

1858—The Comstock Lode mine was discovered in Nevada.

1824—Fascist agents murdered Giacomo Matteotti, Italian socialist leader.

Backward Lands

A Question of Priorities

Christian Science Monitor

One of the unsolved riddles of the underdeveloped part of the world today can be summed up: agriculture versus industrialization. For much of the postwar period when thought turned so strongly to the problems of the backward lands, it was widely supposed that industrialization was the answer to these nations' problems.

Experts declared that only by finding work in industry for the chronically unemployed and underemployed could social unrest be prevented. It was further felt that, after a time, industrial products (such as fertilizers, tractors, and irrigation piping, etc.) would also help a backward nation become agriculturally self-feeding. Finally, it was said that, were a country's main development effort concentrated on industrialization, that nation would sooner reach the "take-off point" at which further development becomes self-generating.

This was indicated in Ordzhonikidze's acceptance, finally, of a basic responsibility. However perfect the ideal, the university can no longer be a totally autonomous, independent organism in a society which is collectively paying most of its bills. There has to be some co-ordination of effort so that economic duplication may be avoided. Of special interest is the role played by the two superpowers — the US and USSR.

Columnist Joseph Kraft refers to the intensive and highly-detailed discussions between President Johnson and Premier Kosygin in recent days as a "new duopoly." It marks the decline of the role of the middle powers as effective peacemaking agents, Kraft surmises.

Middle East

Now—the Task of Restoring Stability in Arab World

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—A short war and a long peace-making.

That's the prospect created by Israel's blitzkrieg against its Arab foes, and Egypt's acceptance of the United Nations' call for a ceasefire.

Egypt's defeat has taken the US off the terrible dilemma of commitment to aid Israel if necessary, thereby courting a showdown with the Soviet Union.

But a great many problems have to be settled in the war's wake which may affect not only the US, as well as on the USSR and their unique relationship; the future of the United Nations; hundreds of thousands of Arab refugees; Arab cohesion and global stability.

The main objective is to prevent the Middle East from again endangering world peace as it has three times in 20 years.

But how much of its newly-conquered territory will Israel give up and how much will Egypt agree to leave in Israeli hands?

How can Arab bitterness toward Israel be expected to cool off after this latest major Israeli blow to pride and prestige?

Some believe the political careers of President Nasser of Egypt and King Hussein of Jordan are finished, or close to it.

Nearly 1,000,000 Arab refugees have been a festering sore spot since 1948 when created and thousands more may have been created by the Israeli gains on Egyptian and Jordanian soil territories. Whose concern are they?

It may take years for the U.S. to patch up relations with the Arab bloc, some officials fear. Seven Arab states have broken diplomatic relations with the US.

The Soviet Union has backed Egypt in the Arabs.

compromise between the US and Soviet allies or nations middle powers, "notably Canada, India, the Scandinavian countries, working through the UN," he says.

Today, the super-powers control crucial allies or nations within their spheres of influence, says Kraft.

That says Kraft has led in both Vietnam and the Middle East to the "virtual effacement of the UN."

Jews Get Access To Wailing Wall

By MEL SUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

From a purely religious standpoint, the most significant aspect of the Israeli capture of the Jordanian section of Jerusalem is, for orthodox Jews, the fact that it makes the Wailing Wall accessible for the first time since 1948.

It was in that year that the end of the war with the Arabs resulted in establishment of the "things of Israel and divided the Holy City into two parts, the old quarter becoming part of Jordan.

For centuries before that pious pilgrims had pressed their faces against the rough surfaces of the wall, weeping and reciting dirges from the Book of Lamentations.

Specifically they were mourning the destruction of the temple—the focal point of their religion—first in 586 BC and again in 70 AD. But in addition they were honoring all the misfortunes that had befallen the Jews through the years.

The Wailing Wall, consisting of huge blocks of hewn stone, is believed to be the only Western wall of the temple grounds. It is nothing else remains of the temple, built first by King Solomon about 955 BC, rebuilt about 450 BC and reconstructed a third time, by King Herod, in 20-19 BC.

However, there is also a massive piece of masonry once thought to have been part of Solomon's stables but now believed to be the arched support for pavement above it on the south side of the temple.

Not far from the Wailing Wall is the Mosque of Omar, built by the Moslems more than 1,000 years ago. It's believed the enclosure under the Dome of the Rock in the mosque is the spot where once stood the Holy of Holies, the inner sanctuary of the Temple of Solomon.

In this room, separated from the outer sanctuary by a curtain and gold chain, was kept the ark holding the Tables of Moses. So sacred was it that only the high priest was permitted to enter the Holy of Holies and then only on Yom Kippur, the day of atonement.

The Temple of Solomon, said to have been a building of exquisite architectural design although it was only 130 feet long, 45 feet wide and 80 feet high, was the heart of Judaism during what is described as its golden age.

In destruction, first by the forces of King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon and later by the Roman legions under Titus, is commemorated on Tishah B'Ab, the ninth day of the month of Ab in the Hebrew calendar.

In the years since 1948, religious Jews in Jerusalem have had to be content with reciting their lamentations from the top of Mount Zion, the closest point to the wall in the Israeli sector.

Their practice has been to spend 24 hours, beginning at sundown on the eve of Tishah B'Ab in mid-summer, in prayer and fasting on Zion not far from the reputed site of King David's tomb.

In orthodox synagogues in other parts of the world, it has been traditional for Jews to take off their shoes on entering for Tishah B'Ab services and sit on low stools, overturned benches or on the floor as is done when mourning the dead.

Not only do they lament the destruction of the temple, they recall other misfortunes such as the expulsion of Jews from England in 1290 and from Spain in 1492, the massacres of Jews during the Crusades, the pogroms of Eastern Europe in this century and the killing of 6,000,000 Jews in Nazi concentration camps during the Second World War.

In recent years some Jews have abandoned the observance of Tishah B'Ab. They regard it as an anachronism, especially in the light of the establishment of the state of Israel in 1948.

For others, however, only the reconstruction of the temple and the coming of the Messiah will end Tishah B'Ab into a day of rejoicing.

Rabbi Says His Faith Restored by Letters

TORONTO (CP)—Rabbi Stuart E. Rosenberg, who has criticized Christians for not speaking up for Israel in the current Middle East conflict, says his good faith in people has been restored by letters and phone calls of support for Israel.

Rev. Arthur D. Brown said he got in touch with Rabbi Rosenberg because his Anglican congregation had offered prayers for Israel, but "I took it for granted that Jews would know the Christian world would do this."

Rev. Edward Bader, director of the Toronto Catholic Information Centre, said his church had no official position on "political questions such as border disputes and shipping rights involved in war."

The Catholic Church is opposed to any "holy war that the Arabs would wage to exterminate the Jews."

Rev. J. R. Hord, secretary of the board of evangelism and social services for the United Church of Canada, said:

"The Israelis are young, strong and independent, whereas the Arab countries are poor and overteched," he said. "I can understand Rabbi Rosenberg's feelings, but we see two sides to this story."

He urged that Canada increase aid to Arab refugees and consider settling some in Canada.

WHERE MEN MEET WITH GOD

Israeli Govt. Developing Distinctive Tourist Cuisine

TEL AVIV (CP) — Israel's people are drawn from about 75 countries, in a mosaic of customs and tastes that extends into the country's kitchens.

Native chefs, generally Eastern in spirit, often seem too hot and spicy to Europeans. A European common place such as potato fish seems alien to Easterners.

The Israeli government is taking an official interest in the dinner table for the country. It is encouraging the development of a distinctive Israeli cuisine and at the same time hoping to improve the quality of food served to tourists.

Mrs. Hanni Zuckerman of Tel Aviv is one of a panel of six professional and amateur cooks who judge national cooking contests for housewives and for professionals. She has attended some of the world's best known cooking schools, including the Cordon Bleu, and has a collection of 12,000 cook books.

"We started the contests because we had a lot of complaints from tourists. Food in the homes might be very good, but not in the hotels. We are trying to make the people conscious of good food.

"As you know, we have people here from at least 75 countries. The taste of people from different countries is different, from recipes from Germany. Up to now people have sold Israeli food in private fish. If you ask a Moroccan, he has never heard of it, and has no desire to eat it.

"The contests have been held every two years for six years. Zaidel Cornet in Sydney and must make use of Israeli products as their main ingredient.

"And, she adds, her main milk may be what's calling baby.

Mrs. Gilles' appetite have satisfied with a quart of milk a day, or when he is two or three months of age, it's time to start feeding him — another baby cereal," she says in an article in the Journal of the Michigan State Medical Society.

She reports that one or two children are seen each week at University Hospital with nutritional anemia due to lack of iron.

She says these usually are drinking so much milk that they have no appetite for other foods such as baby cereal, meat and eggs.

Her advice: Cut down on the milk. Offer baby more eggs, meat or cereal which he'll eat hungrily enough to eat.

She says:

"Lack of knowledge about iron-rich foods and the danger of too much milk, insecurity about feeding habits for their child, and lack of time to prepare suitable, nutritious to let baby cry, and a tendency to use a bottle of milk as a pacifier are characteristics commonly seen in parents of children with nutritional anemia."

Baby Can Get Too Much Milk

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Mmm, baby may be getting from "iron-poor blood."

Iron - deficiency anemia isn't an exclusive ailment of old codgers, as you might have thought.

For that, you have the word of Dr. Frank A. O'Connor, a pediatrician at the University of Michigan Medical Center.

Wife of Britain's Prime Minister Prefers to Stay Out of Limelight

LONDON (CP)—Mary Wilson is keeping notes on some of the remarks she would like to touch her life, but she won't write a book on her years as wife of Britain's third successive prime minister.

"The sort of book I would write could only be published 50 years after I was dead, because if I wrote a diary it would be a very frank one, and you can't publish a diary like that," she said, looking reflectively out the sitting room window at the trees of St. James's Park.

Mrs. Wilson, who makes her second official visit to Canada with her husband May 30, is not a "political" wife. She finds speech-making an ordeal and generally stays out of the limelight, preferring to remain behind her dynamic husband. She is clearly happier in the quasi domestic surroundings of the prime minister's private apartments at the top of 10 Downing Street than in the arc-lights of public life.

After 2½ years, the inhabitory responsibilities of political existence and its attendant publicity have accentuated the personality of Mrs. Wilson's husband, Harold Wilson's shy, poetry-writing wife.

She is obviously a more formal, guarded person than the frank housewife of Hampstead Garden Suburb who talked to reporters on her move to Downing Street with no more concern than anybody else would have done to the neighbors—and saw some of the small remarks become national jokes when they appeared in cold print.

On those days she used to refer to her husband as "Harold" in interviews. Now, with scrupulous correctness, it is always "the prime minister."

The private personality is still friendly and sympathetic, with a ready humor, but it is sometimes masked by official reticence.

She says the mockery of the ministers did not upset her.

"I hope I can always see the funny side of things."

The Wilsons read and chuckle over "Mrs. Wilson's Diary," a spoof column in the satirical journal Private Eye which yesterday ran Giles, 19, brings in regularly.

"My only thing about it is that I feel I could write it as much better myself," said Mrs. Wilson, a sudden laugh lighting her face.

She is a small slight woman with fiendly blue eyes and honey-brown hair brushed back from a high forehead. She uses little makeup on her face, clear English complexion. The country-bred daughter of a Congregational minister, she might easily be a aunt for the wife of a rural vicar or—as indeed she once was—the wife of an Oxford don. Wilson taught economics at Oxford for a time after their marriage in 1940.

She wears well - made, casually styled clothes in muted, becoming colors, like the oatmeal - and - mauve woolen three-piece she wore for the interview. She favors a gold maple leaf brooch bought in Montreal in 1963 as she talked with keen anticipation of Expo 67, Mayor Drapeau had shown the Wilsons his plans and conveyed such enthusiasm about the project that they were determined to see it, she said.

Despite the country - house charm of the apartment, being home of 10 Downing Street offers little scope for the kind of vigorous, practical housekeeping Mary Wilson most enjoys. She is a good cook, but doesn't like it — "Some people feel cooking is a sort of creative art, but I don't feel that at all"—and enjoys her days of a small household hold like their Scilly Isles bungalow, where "you're the electrician, you're the gardener, you're the cook, you're the manager, you can do the whole thing yourself."

She still goes back to Hampstead Garden suburb in northwest London to drop in on former neighbors, and likes to tell an anecdote about the way the independent - minded islanders of the Scillies treat the prime minister as they have always done and fiercely resent the prying awe of outsiders.

The story, which she told with delighted laughter, involves a Londoner watching the Scillonians virtually ignore Harold Wilson on the quay. Said one to the other: "They're probably so ignorant they don't know who he is."

Mary Wilson still looks back with pleasure to her days as a don's wife.

"I loved Oxford. The combination of old buildings and young people is irresistible. But I don't hanker for it now."

Robin, the Wilsons' 23-year-old elder son, wants to teach at Oxford after completing his philosophy doctorate at the University of Pennsylvania, and his mother looks forward to savoring the academic life again on visits.

It is easy to see why college life with its rather period charm would appeal to Mrs. Wilson. She has a strong streak of romanticism, expressed in her fondness for Victorian — novels, poems and sentimental tales — and resents that she picks up in Cornish junk-shops.

Usually Brenda's Wuthering Heights is her favorite novel and she also enjoys history and historical novels "so eargar the pill."

She is a voracious reader. "I front confess that if I had nothing else to read, I could read the telephone directory—in fact I have. The facts are fascinating," she laughed.

A belt in the 'Ten to one' novel, a best-seller in its day, called Carols' Then The Rye, by Helen Mathers.

"It's a real Victorian tearjerker," said Mrs. Wilson, fetching the worn blue book from the bedroom.

"I know I'll always cry at the same places and I do—it's like Pavlov's dogs!"

She was rather reticent about her poetry. She has a fine, spare style but hasn't written anything lately.

People keep asking her if she will publish, "but I just haven't said yes so far."

"Many of them are very personal. The one of course that got most publicity was the one about the bomb, and that I think was mainly for the subject-matter," she said, referring to a poem beginning "After the Bomb had fallen, after the last cry of cry."

The Soviet newspaper Izvestia reprinted it and sent her a cheque for £31, which she donated to a charity for mentally handicapped children—one of her active interests, along with the plight of old people.

A STORY OF A CEREMONY

"Perhaps because of the pleasant dealings with Indians they called the place Concord." — Mary R. Fenn in "Tales of old Concord."

* * *

Chatting with Mrs. A. V. (Phyllis) Barkley, 372 Bleecker Ave., who knows the surrounding countryside of Boston, her home town, well, we spoke of summer morning my husband and I stopped for breakfast as a small town about 15 miles west of the city, green with leafy tall trees and white with well-painted houses, during a motor trip through the state of Massachusettes.

It wasn't until we were leaving and passed a lovely old house with a sign that signified it was the home of Louisa M. Alcott, author of "Little Women," the beloved book of my girlhood, that we realized we were in the magic town of Concord, home of such well known American writers as Emerson, Hawthorne and Thoreau.

"As a matter of fact," Phyllis said, "a school chum of mine, whose father was our minister, went to live in Concord when she married, which is now her home. She fell in love with its historical background, became Chairman of the Archives Committee of The First Parish Church which rescues and preserves many priceless letters and documents gathered from attics, etc., of the townspeople. Her name is Mary Fenn.

"Upon giving a series of short talks on these at the Women's Parish Association meetings, Mary wrote them up in booklet form, by request, and I have a copy, which I shall be pleased to loan you. It is entitled 'Tales of Old Concord'. Thus it came about, with Phyllis' thoughtfulness and Mrs. Fenn's kind permission we bring this excerpt, which we think our readers will appreciate and enjoy. Its is about the Centennial of Thoreau's death.

While elaborate observances were being held at Concord his University in New York, ending with the unveiling of his bust in Hall of Fame, a simple ceremony was planned in Concord, which came about in this way! Mrs. Fenn writes:

"We didn't know whether anybody would come.

"I found that as the time of the Thoreau Centennial Observances in New York approached (May, 1917), I was a bit the only one with a sense of frustration and disappointment because people in Concord, for I had a telephone call from Mary Sherwood. She said, 'Would'nt it be nice if we had some kind of a service in Concord to have a walk from the Thoreau house on Main Street to the Cemetery, recognizing past the Church where the funeral had been held? We'll all get together and we'll say a few words and we'll get a flutist, because Hale was Thoreau's instrument, and we'll lay our flowers on his grave at just the moment of the unveiling of his bust in the Hall of Fame in New York.'

"Indeed I did think this was a wonderful idea, so she put notice in the papers and we were waited. But we didn't know whether anybody would come. Still there was a telephone call to ask whether a bunch of violets would be suitable, and I met a friend down street who said she had turned down a big dinner party because she wanted to go to the grave. Well, we'd do it anyway, if there were only a half dozen of us.

"But when we came to the meeting place that day, there were about a dozen people waiting, with others converging in from all directions. Some were townspeople, and some were from outlying towns. There were whole families; one little baby rode in a tote basket on his father's back. Everyone had flowers, mostly lovely branches of trees and shrubs. One chap brought rhodora, that curious of wild azaleas with its beautiful lavender blossom. A man had brought a basket with 20 different kinds of wild flowers.

"Mary Sherwood brought wild apple blossoms, and that morning I had gone to the woods and picked branches of andromeda, remembering that the Alcott girls had made an andromeda wreath for Henry's coffin, andromeda being his favorite flower. There was even a bunch of very veiled dandelions clutched too tightly in a little fat fist."

Ann Landers

Mother's Experience May Help Others

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please print this letter. It could save a child's life.

I am the mother of two precious little girls. My four-year-son is gone forever because of my careless-ness.

ANN LANDERS

Our car is equipped with seat belts, but because my children didn't like to be strapped in, and I was too lazy to insist, I let them stand up in the rear of the car.

Four months ago I was driving the girls to school and on the way home I had to jam on the brakes to avoid hitting a dog. My little boy, who was standing up in the rear of the car, went through the windshield and was killed instantly.

Every day I see women driving with small children standing up in cars. I have to fight the impulse to stop and tell them what happened to me. You can get the word to these mothers better than anyone. Will you please do it, Ann? — DETROIT MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: Here is your letter, and I can add nothing except fervent hope that mothers everywhere will learn something from your tragic experience.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I had to laugh at the letter from the woman who complained because her husband refused to get up and give the baby his 4:00 a.m. bottle.

I am a service wife who wishes her husband was home right now so I could let him sleep the whole night through. The idea of getting a man up to feed a child is ridiculous. Most of us service wives are lucky. If our husbands are around when our babies are born.

It makes me mad when civilian wives tell us how fortunate we are to have free medical care and a few cents off on a pound of coffee at the commissary. They forget we must be mother and mother to our children for as long as eight months at a stretch. I wonder how those civilian wives would do with a ancient wrench, I wonder, too, if they could fix the family car, and take the kids to the hospital alone, and pack up and move every few years.

I am not complaining. Being a service wife is a great life. I chose it and I'm not sorry, but I get annoyed when women who have it really good complain about meaningless trifles. Tell 'em off, Annie. — VIRGINIA.

* * *

DEAR VA: You told 'em off well enough for both of us. You can be sure your letter is going to be potated out to thousands of wives — by their husbands, of course.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 10 years old and very sad. Our cat, Jezebel, isn't even a cat yet. She is still a kitten. Yesterday my mother had her bridge club luncheon and she made a very pretty salmon loaf. Jezebel ate the salmon loaf on the table and jumped up and ate a big chunk out of it before mother caught her.

You would have thought somebody had committed a horrible crime the way my mother carried on. I told Mom Jezebel didn't know she was doing something wrong. Mom says she knew very well what she was doing. Please tell me, do kittens know things like that?—OWNER OF A KITTEN WHO CAN'T COME INTO THE HOUSE.

DEAR OWNER: Kittens don't know about bridge luncheons. They only know they like salmon. Your Mom should have kept the salmon loaf out of Jezebel's reach.

Couple Marks 40th Wedding Anniversary

GILEAD — Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Swan were entertained by their family on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary Saturday at a dinner at the Tops Motor Hotel, Belleville. Their son, Ralph Swan, proposed the toast and the bridegroom of 40 years age responded.

Following the dinner the guests were invited to the home of Ralph and Shirley Swan, Sidney St., Belleville for an evening of progressive euchre. Prizes were won by Blanche MacFarlane, Ivan Clare and Bruce Swan.

An anniversary cake and candelabra centred the table for refreshments arranged by Wanda Clare and Mona Ray. The honored couple received gifts from their family during the evening and pictures were taken.

More Women Being Pressed Into Service

SAIGON (AP) — Manpower needs are forcing the Communists to put more women into their guerrilla and main - force units.

United States troops who have captured women as isolated clashes give them credit for being good fighters.

In some areas, most notably the Mekong Delta, the Viet Cong are recruiting and impressing thousands of boys and girls into their ranks. U.S. sources say captured Viet Cong have run all the way down to 13 years old.

These sources say the Viet Cong are recruiting up to 25 per cent of their replacements from women, creating a women's army corps that is fairly formidable. The exact size is unknown.

Although some of their tasks involve little risk — such as cooking and clerical duties—increasing numbers are being used as couriers, carriers through government-held areas and as intelligence agents.

Know Your Antiques

You May Have Weekend Headhunters Near You

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Head hunters are not only found in primitive lands. Some of the most eager might be in your neighborhood. Each week-end the head hunters plan their attack and charge into the shops and homes looking for antiques.

One type of head wanted by these eager women is the heads made by the Wedgwood factory of England. The heads were busts, about 18 inches high, made to stand on a pedestal. Mythological subjects of Greece, Rome, China, and Ireland were pictured in the busts. The heads were made from a cream color and were often enamel-led and gilded.

Q. Were postal cards an American or European idea?

A. Austria claimed to be the first country to use an official postal card, starting in 1869. Great Britain started printing post cards a year later. The first post cards used in the United States date from May 1, 1873 when the post office department approved the idea.

The early cards and those used until about 1898 were not printed, not a written message. There were some users that added a personal message. The law only authorized the use of the printed card.

Reader Requests Fancy Sandwich Recipe

FOR 26 (repeated from May, 1961 by readers' request)

I ordered 2 loaves of sandwich bread, sliced lengthwise, from the bakery. These were pink and 60 per cent whole wheat and cost 50 cents each, because they were sliced on a new special sliced machine. For all of the spreading and filling I used 10 cents worth of mayonnaise and one ¼ lb. butter. I made three different fillings:

CHICKEN: Cut one 3-lb. frying chicken simmered in water to barely cover until tender cooled in cooking liquid then chilled overnight in refrigerator so it would be easy to dice and slice.

EGG: Five large eggs, hard-cooked by covering with cold water, bringing to boiling point, covered, removing from heat and allowing to stand covered ½ hr. These were then chilled in cold water and peeled. I put them through the medium-small knife of grinder and followed them with 1 green onion including top and 3 small stalky celery. I added 3-3 cup mayonnaise, 1 tsp. commercial sour cream and ½ tsp. salt and mixed them well.

CHEESE: ¼ lb. old Cheddar cheese was put through grinder and followed by the pimientoes from one 4-oz. jar. I mixed these with 2 oz. white cream cheese, 1 tsp. each horseradish and prepared mustard and about ¼ cup mayonnaise and mixed them until smooth.

RIBBON SANDWICHES

For these use 3 lengthwise slices of whole wheat and 3 lengthwise slice of pink bread. Spread 1 side of each with soft butter. Spread 3 whole wheat slices with the cheese filling put slice of pink on top. Spread it with egg filling, putting second slice of whole wheat on top, buttered side facing down. Wrap firmly in wax paper then in a towel and chill overnight, weighted down with heavy object (I used a brick). When ready to serve, with razor-sharp knife cut off all crusts and cut into ribbon sandwiches about ¾" thick. These may be cut in halves crosswise.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Sweet and Sour Spareribs (see Friday); Buttered Green Beans; Diced Turnip; Sliced Tomatoes on Watercress; Blueberry Cobbler with Ice Cream; Coffee.

PINWHEELS

Spread 2 slices pink bread and 2 slices whole wheat bread with softened butter, and spread 1 of each with the cheese and 1 of each with egg filling. Roll up these 4 spread slices, starting at narrow end, firmly, like a jelly roll into 4 rolls. Wrap airtight and chill overnight. When ready to serve, cut off crust-ends and slice into pinwheels ¼" thick. These pinwheel sandwiches are very popular.

CHICKEN

Spread all remaining slices of pink and whole wheat bread with soft butter and mayonnaise — bottom slice with butter and top slice with mayonnaise. If desired slice the cold chicken as carefully as possible. Cover the buttered bread with sliced chicken and sprinkle generously with salt. Cover with mayonnaise-spread slice, wrap firmly and airtight and chill overnight. At serving time with razor-sharp knife cut off crusts and cut long sandwiches into dainty triangles. Or later still grind chicken and instead of spreading 1 slice with mayonnaise, add the mayonnaise (about 2-3 cup) to the ground chicken and season with salt. Spread on unbuttered slice of bread. This ground chicken filling makes sandwiches which cut into neater triangles.

Outlook on Aging Changes Through the Years

DORIS CLARE

Funny how the notion of who's old changes as one grows up. As tiny tots we see Mom and Dad as old; in teen-age years — especially the dread-middle teens — we are reasonably certain they're well over the hill, outdated, worn out.

As for Gram and Gramps, they are just not in the running any more.

At 20, we take another look. Especially if we are lucky enough to have a Granny handy to talk to. She seems to have some good ideas if old-fashioned. And so does Pop. But the world still belongs, almost exclusively, to us.

With the beginnings of our own family dilemmas Dad and Mom come in for new respect. They've been through the mill and know a helpful thing or two.

But at 30 and 35 we still have a long way to go to a really enlightened estimate of who is old. Can hardly deem ourselves as ever being classified that way.

One old axe goes: "An old person is someone 15 years older than you." We keep pushing this age up as time adds to our own total of years.

It so happens that "oldness" has looked moved away from the 50's and even the 60's, with advances in medical skill. In 1900 a person of 50 was old. Now we have many in the 70's holding down full-time jobs.

In Canada—there are five times as many folk over 65 as there were 50 years ago. What is more, when we reach that age we have a 50-50 chance of living another 10 to 15 years.

SOME RULES TO GO BY

The human frame was being what it is, sooner or later one faces the need to taper off. A prominent specialist has proposed a few good practices to follow for a longer, healthier life.

If you are now a senior, take down to heart. If you are still a "junior" — in your own eyes anyway — clip for future reference. And show them to your beloved oldster.

1. Get a Regular medical checkup. You don't have to accept aches and pains.

2. Diet counts; include more proteins, vitamins and fluids, fewer fats, fewer calories.

3. Exercise, even if it's just a good daily walk. But if you can touch your toes, doing it 10 times a day (doctor permitting) will help keep you limber.

4 Get enough rest; preferably two lay-me-downs during the day.

5. Keep into things. Join a new group. Help other seniors or juniors. Keep learning something.

And a airth, which is my own addition, is to keep spunky. Which is a word I like in this one, write in for the leaflet, "Lovelier With the Years" enclosing stamped self-addressed envelope and ten cents. — Doris Seventeen million young stars were injured or killed in accidents last year, and 90 pcg cent of these accidents were in the home, according to the National Safety Council.

Young children have little judgment about danger. It's up to adults to protect them. One important rule: Never, never leave small children alone in the house.

Society Plans Rose Festival

The Rose Festival 67 committee of the Belleville Horticultural Society has decided that in view of the lateness of the season it will be to the advantage of all concerned to postpone the Festival for two weeks. It will be held, therefore, on Saturday, July 8th in the Sunday School Rooms at the Tabernacle United Church on Church St. It is expected that there will be a much better quality as well as quantity of roses available for exhibit on this date than it was originally planned to hold it on June 24th.

All growers of roses are invited to participate in this year's festival by exhibiting in any or all of the many classes established. There will be a total of 124 classes and many valuable prizes to be awarded. These classes will include 18 classes of garden flowers other than roses and four classes of Artician violets. For roses there are 16 sections aggregating 102 classes, including a junior division of two sections with 12 classes.

It will be seen that there will be a place for everyone who has roses flowers that he or she has grown, to enter in the festival. Everyone is urged to make one or more exhibits not only to compete for a valuable trophy but also to show the anticipated large number of visitors to the festival how flowers are grown in Belleville.

It is not necessary to be a member of the Horticultural Society to enter exhibits in the open and non-rose divisions. Members of any Horticultural Society in District 2 of the Ontario Horticultural Association are invited to enter in the inter-society and non-rose divisions only. Anyone seeking further information regarding the Rose Festival may obtain it by contacting any member of the society. The secretary is Miss K. B. Daly, 345 Charles St., Belleville.

This Festival of Roses '67 is a part of the group's contribution towards the Centennial celebrations of Belleville. Other events than we are sponsoring include the Trillium award program for outstanding home and commercial grounds, and a flower show in conjunction with the annual Belleville fair.

High Tourist Interest In Our National Parks Proves to Be Problem

OTTAWA (CP)—The government was accused in the Commons Friday of not expanding the national parks system and Northern Affairs Minister Laing said there is a "certain plenty" to the present parks because of high tourist interest.

Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris), the former Conservative northern affairs minister, said Terra Nova Park in Newfoundland and Kejimukujik in Nova Scotia were "the only developments . . . in the past six or seven years."

"We all recognize, or at least give lip service to the fact, that we must expand our national parks system," Mr. Dinsdale said.

"We all agree that there is a crisis in the use and availability of land area in Canada for park purposes, not only for national park purposes but recreational parks," the former minister said.

"All we need now is action by the government."

Introducing his department's $228,583,720 in spending estimates for 1967-68, Mr. Laing said the government is concerned that many persons not Canadians are buying seashore properties and that the government is considering acquiring similar land for parks.

Some 1,390,000 persons visited national parks last year, the minister said. This was a 15 per - cent increase over 1965 which he expected to continue.

Mr. Dinsdale accused the government of a "high - handed attitude" in revoking leases in Alberta's national parks.

The Conservatives had realized when they were in power, Mr. Laing said, that the leases would have to be terminated but had been pressured out of doing so. Pressure from the opposite side had grown so great "that I cannot afford to retreat" and neither could Mr. Dinsdale if he were still minister.

Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox-Alberni) said he opposed perpetual leases in federal parks but that the government owed the Alberta lease holders some consideration. Instead the residents had been given a complete brushoff.

Thomas M. Bell (PC—Saint John Albert) said the government should consider turning parks into winter resorts for curling, skiing and snowmobile activities. Park operators were suffering because of the short summer season.

Mr. Laing, also responsible for Indian affairs, said Indian education is progressing so well there is hope "we will have begun to break the back of this problem in the next generation."

He said there had been remarkable improvement where Indian children had studied in the regular school system rather than being isolated among their own people. The government was spending $47,800,000 on education out of a $100,000,000 budget for Indian affairs.

Landreville Warned-Motion Would Carry

OTTAWA (CP)—Leo Landreville resigned as a justice of the Ontario Supreme Court after being told by Conservative Senator Rheal Bellisle that a Senate impeachment motion against him would carry, the senator said Friday.

Senator Bellisle said he himself supported Mr. Landreville's case and would have spoken in his support if the impeachment motion had come up for debate.

But he said he told Mr. Landreville, in a long session Tuesday during which they discussed which senators might have backed the motion, that it was "obvious the motion would have been carried."

Senator Bellisle said he had not talked with Mr. Landreville or seen him for a year when Mr. Landreville called him Monday and came to see him the following day.

They reviewed the support that could be mustered in the Senate and Senator Bellisle told him: "Your chances are very, very slim."

They did not discuss a possible pension, the senator said.

The pension issue came up for the second day in the Commons Friday as David Lewis (NDP — York South) pressed Justice Minister Trudeau for an assurance that Mr. Landreville would not be given a "generous pension."

Mr. Trudeau did not reply directly.

Doctors Want Abortion Legal in Some Cases

QUEBEC (CP)—The general council of the Canadien Medical Association Friday worded a strong plea to the federal government to make abortion legal where the life and health of the mother is in danger and where substantial risk exists of the child being mentally or physically disabled.

In asking that the Criminal Code be amended, the council also proposed a further ground for legal abortion—where there are reasonable grounds to believe a sexual offence was committed from which pregnancy resulted.

Council's action at the 100th annual meeting of the CMA came as federal authorities are considering reference of the subject to a parliamentary committee. The subject is expected to be referred to a committee in the fall.

Storms Hit West Ontario

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Severe electrical storms accompanied by heavy rain, half - inch hail stones and winds up to 70 miles an hour struck most of western Ontario Friday.

Lightning struck three houses in London but there were no injuries or serious damages.

However, Mrs. Savetta Ivacic, 63, of London, dropped dead while standing beneath a tree at the height of the storm. Doctors believed death was due to natural causes and possibility of a lightning strike was ruled out.

A barn near Thorndale was hit by lightning and destroyed.

The weather office said a funnel cloud a quarter-mile wide was reported five miles west of Woodstock at 3:30 p.m.

Robarts Presents Bill Of Shareholders' Rights

TORONTO (CP) — Changes the government intends to make in Ontario's Corporations Act were submitted to public debate Friday as Premier John Robarts introduced a long series of proposed amendments he called a "shareholder's bill of rights."

The amended act will not be introduced at this session, expected to end next week. The amendments were introduced as "an indication of government policy."

The 15-year-old Corporations Act will be revised completely at the next session of the legislature, the premier said. It would incorporate the proposed amendments and also deal with such matters as mergers, the rights of dissenting shareholders, the purpose, function and scope of annual reports and the field of corporation finance in general.

The amendments included a proposed code of ethics for company directors, outlining new shareholder rights and established procedures for ordering an investigation into a firm's affairs. They also ensure the independence of auditors in reporting on financial statements.

They embody key recommendations made by Ontario's select committee on company law which reported earlier in the year.

Under the draft amendments a shareholder would have the right to:

1. Replace directors or auditors by majority vote at a general meeting.

2. Sue officers of the company for damages to himself or the company or obtaining an order from a high court judge.

3. Requisition a special meeting of shareholders, provided the request is made by stockholders owning five per cent of outstanding shares.

4. Obtain court orders appointing inspectors to investigate affairs and management of a company or auditors to examine the firm's books.

Directors would be required to:

1. Exercise the powers and duties of their offices "honestly, in good faith and in the best interests of the company, and in connection therewith shall exercise the degree of care, diligence and skill that a reasonably careful, diligent and skilful director would exercise in comparable circumstances."

2. Disclose any personal interest in any contract or transaction in which the company is or is to be a party, at a meeting of the directors.

3. Produce on inspectors investigating company affairs "all books and records of the corporation or any affiliate in their custody or control."

Independence of auditors would be ensured by:

1. Prohibiting the appointment of any person as auditor of a firm if he is in any way connected with the firm's operation or is related to a director or officer of the firm.

2. Preventing appointment of a company's auditor as a receiver, liquidator or trustee of the firm if it is placed in bankruptcy.

3. Guaranteeing auditors the right of access at all times to "all records, documents, books, accounts and vouchers of a subsidiaries of the company" and requiring from directors and officers of the subsidiaries any information he deems necessary to obtain a full report on the status of the parent firm.

4. Permitting shareholders to require an auditor's presence at any general shareholders' meeting.

The premier told the legislature the company law committee is to be recalled to study the operations of specialized types of corporations.

Legislature Refuses To End Liens on Homes

TORONTO (CP) — The government majority in the Ontario legislature Friday easily defeated an opposition bid to turn a proposed tax deferment for elderly homeowners into an outright grant.

Municipal Affairs Minister Wilfrid Spooner argued that the amendment introduced by Opposition Leader Robert Nixon in the form of an amendment to a government bill would amount to subsidizing the homeowners' heirs.

The government bill provides for homeowners over 65 years of age to be granted deferments of up to $150 a year through interest-free provincial loans to municipalities which pass implementing bylaws.

Mr. Nixon's amendment would have struck out clauses in the bill referring to the placement of liens on the homeowners' properties. Under the liens system the deferred taxes would fall due when the property changed hands.

The amendment was lost 34 to 15, the New Democrats supporting the Liberal motion.

In other developments:

—Labor minister Dalton Bales said his department will hold talks with the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Board on recommendations made by a coroner's jury that inquired into the death of a patient in a hospital fire.

—Attorney - General Arthur Wishart said the Ontario Police Commission has reopened its inquiry into the case of Roger Armstrong, a sailor charged in 1963 with assaulting two Toronto policemen. The charge was dismissed by a magistrate who refused to believe police evidence in the case.

Remember Wren Blair, the hat-stomping, tassel-earing blonde bombshell from Oshawa who once played a hunch that Eastern Ontario senior hockey teams were among the best in the world — and proved it.

The little guy with the curlylock droopling almost over one eye made the proud western Ontario clubs eat crow after they snubbed his Whitby Dunlops entry application into their exalted circle, inched the Eastern senior "B" clubs into promoting themselves then took his Dunlops to league, Allan Cup and world championships.

It is no news now that the exultient Blair is the general manager of the Minnesota North Stars of the NHL's new expansion division. And he is taking with him the same gimmickry and imagination that were rungs in his ladder of amateur success.

For instance, he has backed up his statement that "A manager has to use his imagination. He has to look for new ways to do things better" by equipping himself with a tiny tape-recorder.

It would be unkind to venture the opinion here that he uses the gimmick just to hear himself talk. He says writing is distracting "and with this I can transcribe my notes at my leisure. At the draft meetings I had my tapes in play back to recapture my feelings about a player at the time I was watching him in action."

And with that old gleam in his eye he added: — "If I have my scouts use these things and they recommend a player highly who later flops, I can always play back the scoundrel's tape for him before firing him."

Blair has hired Ted O'Connor, former Dunlop and Oshawa recruiting coach of Whitby and Oshawa junior clubs, as his chief scout. He also took on imaginative Joe Crozier, Cabadena general manager, Bill Dorman as a scout "because I figure a goalie knows a good goalie when he sees one."

Blair has his own ideas about coaches. He says he'll get the kind of coach who only knows about the players he's coached. "A coach should be too busy watching his own men to worry about the other guys. It's my job to assemble a team, it'll be his job to coach them."

He hasn't selected a coach for his North Stars yet and says he doesn't want a star player who wants to be head at coaching." "(Are yuh listening Red)." "I want someone who has served his apprenticeship and has worked his way up as a coach. I've narrowed the field down to four men and the man I choose may not be well-known but he'll be qualified."

Blair infers he'll take a leaf from the Imlach book and mix tried veterans with youth. "In the end," he says, "we'll want some sort of age balance, but we're going to get the best players available regardless of their age."

"If a player is in his thirties but I think he has four good years left, I'll take him; after all that's all I have left on my contract. I want to win right from the start."

"I'm a realist," says Blair. "I know that in one year we can't match the quality of the present NHL teams built over the years. But we'll be competing primarily in our own division. The last-place team in the old division may claim to be better than the first-place team in the new division, but everyone from the fans up to the owner will be happier on the first-place club than on the last place club, I'll guarantee that."

Blair plans to have his new team fit and happy before the training grind starts in September in Oshawa. He will have the squad spend ten days in a Haliburton holiday paradise.

They will have headquarters at Chateau Woodland, a rustic resort on famous Lake Kashagawigamog in the Haliburton highlands.

"I will tell them: There is a lake, go fishing or swimming. There is a golf course, go play golf. Enjoy yourselves. Most of you are strangers to one another. Get to know each other. Become a family.

When the season opens the North Stars will cavort in their new 14,500-seat in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area. When it was pointed out to him that the best of the expansion teams may have trouble finishing above .500, Blair grinned.

"That's true. It will be one for the record books. Some day they'll say 'in 1968 a hockey team finished first in its league with a mark of .498.' If that's good enough for first place, I'll take it."

Bucs Spray Phils With 23 Clouts

By MIKE RECHT

Pittsburgh Pirates are closed mouthed about their closed door meeting Wednesday, but since then they have been making plenth of noises at bat and on the mound.

It rose to a crescendo Friday night when the revived Pirates exploded for 23 hits as they punished Philadelphia Phillies 16-1 for their second straight victory since the locker room got-together.

They were not the only ones with plenty to say at bat Friday night. The National League-leading Cincinnati Reds, a noisy bunch all season, hammered Houston Astros 10-7 with six runs in the seventh inning.

WILLIE STARGELL

In other games, St. Louis Cardinals edged Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2, Atlanta Braves beat San Francisco Giants 5-3 and Chicago Cubs clipped by New York Mets 6-5.

The Pirates, the best-hitting team in the league in 1966, were a meek bunch until their playera-only meeting. They had lost five of seven games, swept by three games over .500 and had fallen to fourth place after being picked by many to win the pennant.

With manager Harry Walker and the coaching staff omitted, the Pirates, who held a similar caucus two years ago and a few more last season, presumably met to talk over their problems and bring their gripes into the open.

Friday night, every starter except pitcher Billy O'Dell, who scattered eight hits for his fifth victory in seven decisions, had at least two hits. Manny Mota and Gene Alley each had four.

Bill Mazeroski drove in four runs with two singles and a sacrifice fly and Willie Stargell, Alley and Jerry May accounted for three each as the Pirates slugged 20 singles, one double and two triples.

The Reds did not get as many hits—only 14—but three of them were homers by Pete Rose, Deron Johnson and Don Pavletich for six runs in the seventh inning that overcame a 7-4 deficit.

Rose's blast came with two on and tied the score. After Tony Perez doubled, Johnson and Pavletich spoke up.

Pavletich had doubled home two earlier runs and Rose and Perez singled in the others.

Pitcher Dick Hughes hushed Los Angeles with a run-scoring single in the seventh inning that broke a 2-2 deadlock. The lanky right - hander also scattered seven hits before leaving in the ninth. Orlando Cepeda had an inside - the - park homer for one Cardinal run.

Joe Torre snapped a 1-1 tie with a run-scoring single that put Atlanta ahead in the sixth inning and Dennis Menke followed with a clinching homer off loser Mike McCormick. Ken Johnson yielded only solo homers by Ollie Brown, Jack Hiatt and Jim Hart in 8 2-3 innings.

Ernie Banks did most of the talking for the Cubs. He opened the eighth inning with a double that led to two unearned runs and a 5-5 tie and then he singled home the winning run on a 3-2 count with the bases loaded and one out in the ninth. The Mets had walked Lee Thomas to get to Banks the final time. Ed Charles and Tommie Davis homered earlier for the Mets and Randy Hundley hit one for the Cubs.

Baltimore Orioles wasted no time teaching Cal Ermer the facts of American League life.

Ermer, new manager of Minnesota Twins, climbed into a uniform only 20 minutes before the game time Friday night and then watched the Twins absorb an 11-2 loss at the hands of the Orioles.

Frank Robinson slammed a three-run homer, his 17th of the year, and Boog Powell had a three - run shot as Baltimore jolted four Minnesota pitchers action, Kansas City Athletics for 14 hits.

In other American League shut out Cleveland Indians twice, 2-0 and 4-0; Boston Red Sox nipped Washington Senators 8-7, New York Yankees pushed a run across in the 10th inning to edge Chicago White Sox 2-1 and California Angels blanked Detroit Tigers 4-0.

Ermer was named manager of the floundering Twins Friday afternoon after president Cal Griffith dismissed Sam Mele.

He flew in from Denver, where he had managed the Twins' Pacific Coast League team for the last 2½ years, and made it in time for Friday night's game.

He had hardly found a spot for himself in the Minnesota dugout before the Orioles bopped on Dean Chance for three unearned runs in the first inning.

Robinson doubled home a run in the fifth and then put the game out of reach with his three - run homer in the sixth. Powell's three - run shot in the eighth climaxed the Orioles' assault.

Chuck Dobson and Jim (Catfish) Hunter hung the double shutout on the Indians for Kansas City.

Dobson outdueled Steve Hargan, who allowed only two hits in the opener, Hargan had pitched all hitless innings before Ramon Webster's leadoff triple broke the spell in the seventh. Two outs later, Jim Gosger homered, accounting for both Kansas City runs.

The Athletics routed Sam McDowell with a six-run first inning in the nightcap and Hunter breezed with a six-hitter. The big blow for Kansas City was rookie Dave Duncan's three-run homer in his first major league at bat this season.

Goalby Falters, Shares Lead

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) Bob Goalby fired a one-over-par 73 Friday for a 142 total to share the hallway lead in the $100,000 Buick open golf tournament with Tommy Aaron.

Goalby led the first round with a three-underpar 69 over Warwick Hills' 7,126 yards. He was latest on building that lead as he went out in a two-underpar 34 Friday.

Then disaster struck. His short game fell to pieces.

Goalby appeared to be in the driver's seat until he tackled the seventh hole on his incoming nine after playing the back nine first.

He pushed his second shot to the back fringe of the green, came out badly and three-putted after rebuking the crowd for not standing still.

On the eighth, he chided his caddy for not staying close enough to him. On the ninth he appeared to be headed for further trap troubles. But luck smiled on him as he dropped a backdoor, fast-rising 12-foot putt to salvage a tie for the lead.

Hermit Zerley, entered from Seattle, posted a par 72 to go with his early 71 for a 143, giving him the runner-up spot with Terry Dill of Ottawa.

The rest of the field was closely bunched as it headed into the final two days of play.

MacDonald, Turner Win Best Ball

TORONTO (CP)—Wayne McDonald, Canadian junior golf champion from Fort William, teamed with Peter Turner of Toronto Friday to win the Ontario best ball championships and the Oakdale Trophy.

Playing at the Oakdale Golf and Country Club, they had a three-under-par 69 to tie with three other teams in the regular round.

McDonald sank birdie putts on the 19th hole of the competition and again on the first extra hole.

Whipper Loses To Masks

BY ROBERT SNEFJELLA

The return of wrestling to the Belleville Arena for another season was greeted by one of the largest wrestling crowds on record in this city. Over 800 avid fans turned out to watch Whipper Billy Watson, women wrestling experts, the bridgets and others do battle in the ring.

In the main event of the evening, Whipper Watson tangled with a masked duo from below the border. Yankee number 3 and Manager of number 3. The former weighed in at over 300 pounds while his playmate carried about 100 pounds less. Watson is somewhere in between.

Individually the pair were no match for the British Empire champion. However, as a twosome they managed to hold there own, and as a result won the first fall.

Watson made mincemeat out of the hamboning giant and his little cohort to win the second fall. He put the steel-

Minor Baseball

Randy Ryan's one - hit pitching paced the CNR to a 9-0 victory over Joycees in a Belleville Minor Baseball Association ladpole game.

Ryan struck out 15 batters and walked but one and lost his no-hit bid when Paul Weeks recorded a single for Joycees.

CNR combined Paul Weeks and Greg MacInnis for 11 hits but they too banded wide, striking out 16 and passing nary a batter.

The winners' hits were well divided with Glen Archives blasting a home run and single, Gary Coogan another circuit clout and Randy Hutchison a triple and single to lead the way. Bernard Tremayne had two singles, Dave Newman a triple, Ricky Keenan a double, Robert Bunton and Scott Newman a single each.

'Can't Serve Two Masters'

Lions Suspend Kapp; Lawsuit Looms

VANCOUVER (CP) — Star quarterback Joe Kapp is suspended from British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference because he cannot "serve two masters."

Kapp said he would go to court.

A Lions' announcement Friday said the suspension for the 1967 season is effective immediately.

Lions' officials said they took the action because Kapp signed a contract with Houston Oilers of the American Football League while still under contract obligation to the Lions, had accepted money from the AFL team and is still under contract to the Lions in some capacity.

Denny Veitch, Lions general manager, said the 28-year-old Californian would not receive his salary, estimated at about $20,000 a year, while he is suspended.

Allen McEachern, Lions president and acting commissioner of the Canadian Football League, said suspension procedures were taken by the club with "a great deal of regret."

"However, no player can serve two masters and the suspension was unanimously recommended by the directors."

A statement issued by Kapp read: "Under my contract with the Lions and written instruction from the club I am prevented from making any statements to the press.

"I would be in breach of contract if I attempted to defend myself to the public but I will be making my defence in court and I am proceeding immediately. My home is in Vancouver and I would like to play my option year with the B.C. Lions."

Kapp joined Calgary Stampeders in 1959. Just before the 1961 season Kapp was traded to the Lions. While with the B.C. team he has won the Jeff Nicklin Trophy as the Most Valuable Player in the Western Conference, has set the WFC record for the most total yards gained during a single season and has led the Lions to a Grey Cup victory, in 1964.

Knocked Down Twice

Patterson Draws In Bloody Brawl

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Floyd Patterson got off the floor twice in the second round and went on to fight a bloody 10-round draw with young heavyweight Jerry Quarry Friday night.

The decision drew boos from an estimated 20,000 fans, a highly partisan Quarry turnout, but it was a busy slugging match for most of the distance.

Patterson, 194, the former two - time world champion from New York, thus kept alive his comeback while Quarry, 193, from nearby Bellflower, apparently preserved his No. 10 rating among the world's heavyweights.

After a slow first round, the heavy hitting Quarry opened up in the second. His powerful left hook caught Patterson's chin and the ex-champ hit the deck. Floyd was up quickly but took the mandatory eight count.

Moments later, Quarry floored Patterson for another mandatory eight with a right-handed chop to the jaw.

As the crowd roared for a knockout, the 22 - year - old Quarry unleashed an attack with both hands and from all angles, but Patterson managed to escape further damage.

Patterson, 32, rebuilt his sluggishness in the third round and was credited with a knockdown in the seventh.

A combination caught Quarry, slightly off balance His ankle twisted and he went down.

The count reached only two when he was up, but the referee called it a knockdown, and the bell quickly ended the round:

England Nips Austria

MONTREAL (CP) — England defeated the First Vienna Club of Austria 2-1 Friday night, earning the right to meet Borussia of Dortmund, West Germany, in the championship game of the Expo 67 international soccer tournament Sunday.

John Byrne, a sharpshooting forward from Crystal Palace, scored both goals for England sending the team out of a 1-0 first-half deficit. Fritz Schmiedtaver scored for Austria.

England won its two appearances in the tournament, the other game being a 3-0 triumph over the Leon Sports Club of Mexico in the opening contest last Saturday, and reverses the only undefeated club in the tournament's class A division which also includes Australia and the Mexicans.

'Intrepid' Registers Seventh Win

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP)— Bus Mosbacher tillered intrepid, a new twin-rudder 12-metre yawl, to her next decisive victory Friday on Long Island Sound in the windup of the preliminary Americas Cup trials.

In scoring her seventh victory against one defeat in the week-long trials, Intrepid finished five minutes, 34 seconds ahead of American Eagle, skippered by Bob McCullough, in a brisk 15-knot southwester.

May Reduce Size

Won't Ban Turbocars

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)— The United States Auto Club issued a "while paper" Friday indicating turbine engines probably will not be banned from the USAC championship circuit but may be reduced in size.

Anthony Granatelli, S t u d e baker STP Division president, had said any specifications changes for the Pyrel and Whitney turbine would be impossible.

The Granatelli car, driven by Parnelli Jones, performed spectacularly in the 500-mile race here May 30 until a gear box bearing failed.

"We have long prided ourselves on progress in helping to develop new ideas," USAC President Tom Binford said in a statement. "But this progress must be made on some basis of equality."

He noted that USAC always has had limitations on power plants permitted in its various divisions, "not to deter progress, but on the contrary to encourage development."

He pointed out that speeds at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway have increased by more than 30 miles an hour since a 4.2-litre limit on piston engine sizes was established in 1956. The same jump might have been made in one year by allowing engines of 5 or 6 litres displacement "But this would not have contributed to development."

USAC had no limit on the size of turbines until last year.

"Subsequent information," the paper said, "has revealed the engine may be closer to a 3 litre reciprocating engine" or about 19-per-cent more powerful than expected.

Bikini-clad Singer Stamped 40 Times

MONTREAL (CP)—The sweltering Expo 67 site got its first look at a visitor in a bikini Friday, but the pretty blonde wearing it aimed it more than heating the heat.

Joycelyn Pascal, a 21-year-old French - Canadian singer from Montreal, spent a well - publicized day trotting around the world's fair site getting bare skin stamped with the passport stamps pavilion staff usually press on to Expo passport books.

By the end of the day she had collected about 40 stamps and was happily ensconced in the boudoirs of Quebec pavilion near the main Expo entrance holding court for bemused reporters.

"Some of the pavilion guards said they didn't have any stamps so they—wrote on her with a pen," a friend explained later. "She's got proof of where she went all over her back, midriff and higher up."

Joycelyn's apparel was the envy of many as temperatures rose in a degrees on the largely-unshaded site. The hot weather is expected to go up to today—Latvian day at the fair.

Latvian musicians, scheduled to give a concert outside the Soviet pavilion at noon today, expect to go on rain or shine.

Friday was Iranian day at Expo and officials of the Middle East country's pavilion regretted greater numbers than ever befell.

Representing the Shah of Iran, who cut his proposed visit because of the Israeli-Arab crisis, was Dr. Ali-Naqi Ali-Khani, the Iranian minister of economy, who reviewed troops in Place des Nations as his country's green, red and white flag floated over the fair.

Dr. Ali-Khani presented Iran's pavilion to Montreal after commissioner-general Pierre Dupuy described the mosaic - faced structure as "a gem of outstanding beauty."

Prince Shah - Raam Pahlavi, the Shah's nephew, told reporters at a reception in the pavilion he would like to see it turned into a museum of Persian art. He said he was happy it was being left to the Canadian people.

Medi theatre Vivid Show

MONTREAL (CP) — Meditheatre, where Expo visitors "drop like flies" while open-heart and brain operations are flashed before their eyes in all-too-vivid technicolor, has been packing them in faster than almost any other fair attraction.

On good days 2,000 visitors an hour pass into the wooden Man and his Health pavilion to reach the theatre's half-hourly shows.

And on really good days, up to 300 of them may require first aid attention during the 12 hours the pavilion is open.

"We have no objection to you using these figures," one public relations officer said Friday. "The more people hear about the paintings, the more come crowding in here to see the show."

The health-theme pavilion is built around Meditheatre—a six-sided room where live actors display the latest medical techniques while three large screens project the action with accents showing a thalidomide child's adaptation to life, modern kidney treatment and several operations.

"If for any reason you feel sick, please sit down to avoid falling," a voice announced Friday as the theatre darkened for the show to begin.

It's a warning well taken. Two weeks ago a man swooned and fell from one of two ramps where visitors stand to watch the screens—a drop of about 15 feet.

"This is the part that really gets them," a hostess whispered as the stage lights on the screens delved into a red chest cavity to operate on a pulsing heart.

The pressure comes about halfway through the show and by that time half of the audience was sitting on the floor.

St. John Ambulance volunteers who man pavilion first-aid stations equipped with smelling salts say the number requiring help because they feel dizzy or actually pass out has dropped considerably since recent improvements in the air conditioning.

"On the worst hot weekends we get about 300 a day but the last few days it's been more like 10 a show," one volunteer said.

Equity Policies Said to Rival Mutual Funds

TORONTO (CP)—Life insurance policies backed partly by common stock earnings are the newest insurance company weapon to deflect the mutual funds' charge for the investor's dollar.

Four Canadian insurance companies now are offering equity-backed policies. Most have been in effect only a few months, but the companies say already they account for about five per cent of their total life insurance sales.

The guaranteed dollar return ranges from nothing to a fixed amount of insurance plus the value of the policy - holder's share of the equity investment.

Henry Jackman, chairman of Empire Life Insurance Co. of Kingston, Ont., says equity policies are devised to give "the best protection possible against the declining purchasing power of the dollar."

But he admits a "great deal of money" is going into mutual funds, and life insurance companies want to offer investors something comparable.

Mutual funds have grown spectacularly in the last 17 years. Their assets have increased 50 times and now amount to $2,100,000,000—equal to about 16 per cent of total life insurance assets in Canada.

Although they do not promise a fixed dollar return at all to the investor, as conventional insurance does, most funds pay dividends that have been raised or increased by time. Some have doubled in value during the last five years.

J. A. Tuck, managing director of the Canadian Life Insurance Association, says equity - based insurance is "obviously a growing thing," sparked by increasing competition with all forms of savings.

Canadian companies offering equity-based policies are Empire Life, National Life Assurance Co. of Canada, Norwich Union Life Insurance Society and Seaboard Life Insurance Co.

Empire offers a return of $56 a month insurance for each $600 investment for protection to age 65. At that time the policyholder may use his equity investment for a paid-up life policy equal to about 1¼ times its market value.

If he dies before then, his beneficiary can take the insurance and equity investment in a lump sum or use the insurance to continue the equity fund, payable when he or she is 65.

National Life charges premiums equal to a fixed participation, ordinary life policy, but invests half the reserves in common stocks, rather than the mortgages and bonds which back other policies.

No fixed dollar return is guaranteed, but an annual dividend is calculated based on the increase in earnings of equity policy funds over the company's general earnings. The dividend is used to buy more life insurance.

If equity fund earnings decline the dividend is negative and the policyholder's insurance decreases for that year.

The policyholder may cash in his policy for its paid-up value at the time.

In Norwich Union's endowment plan 30 per cent of the first year's premiums and 70 per cent of subsequent years' is invested in common stocks. An investor is guaranteed a set amount of protection for each "unit" bought plus the market value of his equity investment.

Seaboard, which began its equity plan July 31, says it tells clients only that the return on their money could be 10 per cent or more. It invests 82 per cent of premiums in equities and puts the rest into a mortality fund.

Act on "Crisis" Now NDP Ontario Stand

TILBURY, Ont. (CP)— Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario New Democratic Party leader, said Friday the government should call a June the Legislature until it has brought in specific legislation dealing with the financial crisis facing the province's municipalities.

Mr. MacDonald told the annual conference of the Ontario and village councils that the government should act now rather than wait for the Smith report, a five-year study of the financial picture at the provincial and municipal level.

To help meet the immediate financial needs of municipalities, Mr. MacDonald proposed the following five-point program:

— Provincial government grants in lieu of municipal taxes on all government buildings. At present, municipalities collect no grants in lieu of taxes at all for some types of government buildings and grants to cover only general taxes, not including education taxes, on others.

—A speedup in government payments to municipalities to bring it into reborns for elderly citizens.

—A government takeover of the remaining municipal share of the costs of the administration of justice, health and welfare.

—Government takeover of a more substantial share of the education costs which would mean $50,000,000 to municipalities.

—Increased government grants to provincial - municipal shared - costs programs, including a doubling of the provincial share of the costs of local fire and police services.

In a long - term approach, he recommended a government five-year program to take over most education costs.

Stocks Recover War Losses

By DOUGLAS ADAMSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

War in the Middle East brought a sudden drop in prices on Canadian stock exchanges early in the week but by Friday prices had made a general recovery.

Oil issues plunged sharply in the first hour of trading Monday but made good gains Tuesday following news that Israel and Kuwait, two important Mid-Eastern oil-producers, had stopped sales to Britain and the U.S.

Analysts said the rise in the price of oil issues resulted from short - term speculators anticipating a larger market in the U.S. for Canadian oil if the Arab powers refused to resume trading.

Oil stocks experienced small losses Friday in what analysts characterized as profit - taking and a feeling among investors that Arab countries will resume sales to the West or face terrible economic consequences. The Arab countries depend on oil sales for most of their much needed hard currency.

Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas rose 3¼ to 35, Dome and Home A ⅛ each to 33 and 19¾, Home B and B-A ¼ each to 21¼ and 27½, Imperial Oil 1¼ to 59½, Shell 1¼ to 27¾ and Husky ⅛ to 15¾.

The western oil index reached an all-time high of 164.60 Thursday.

Uranium issues, which have made steady advances for several months, continued the trend. Denison rose 3¼ to 74¼, Roman Corp. 3¼ to 31, Rio Algom 1¼ to 34¾ and Preston 1¼ to 21¼.

On the industrial side, Clairtone lost ¼ to 15½ after the company president Peter Munk announced the price of some 1968 color television models will be reduced by up to $50.

Molson Breweries A rose ½ to 26 following a report of record sales and profits for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1967.

Among speculatives, Brunswick lost 5 cents to 6.15 after reporting a profit of 79 cents a share for 1966 compared with $1.51 for 1965.

PCE Explorations gained 23 cents to 2.05 on news that its operations in the Coppermine River area of the Northwest Territories are about to begin.

On index, industrials rose 2.84 to 168.13, golds 2.06 to 173.64, base metals 4.12 to 99.84 and western oils 8.79 to 181.70. Volume for the week was 12,940,055 shares compared with 10,941,998 traded last week.

At Montreal, industrials rose 2.59 to 164.79, utilities 1.45 to 147.87, papers 2.09 to 111.17 and banks dropped .24 to 127.15. Volume for the week was 6,621,806 shares compared with 4,772,886 traded last week.

Employment News

By REGINALD T. VOSS
Senior Manpower Counsellor

The speed and intensity of technological change and the difficulties faced by the labor force in adapting to new requirements, can no longer be ignored, and consequently a new concept has emerged for active federal manpower policy. The basic purpose of this policy is to promote the growth of the labor force and to endeavor to ensure the supply of manpower matches the jobs required to be done.

To meet this challenge, the federal government has implemented new programs which will be initiated by the over 240 Canada Manpower Centre throughout the country.

More emphasis will be placed and even greater stress will be placed on this segment of the work as time goes on.

For effective employment counseling, it is necessary to have efficient, well trained visitors, capable of assessing the needs and potential of clients and with a good knowledge of labor market requirements.

In the hands of these counselors the various programs will become a means of meeting the vocational needs of individuals whether in the form of employment, movement to employment training, upgrading, job change or referral to another agency.

Some of the programs are as follows:

Technical and vocational training programs:

In Canada, the responsibility for education lies with the Provincial Governments. However, because technical and vocational training is directly related to the economy of the country, the Federal Government has assumed financial responsibility for the vocational training of adults and, therefore, there is now what is commonly referred to as OTA, Occupational Training for Adults. Training will be given in occupations for which there is a demand, not merely in occupations for which training is easily available. Nor will training be given for the sake of training. Training to be of value must lead to an attainable, suitable occupational goal. The goal must be an occupation for which there is a demand.

Rehabilitation programs:

Special efforts will be made to bring people who are not fully competitive due to physical, social or psychological handicap into a position where they are able to compete effectively for jobs. There will be more rehabilitation programs, in the belief these people can make a worthwhile contribution to the economy and, at the same time, increase their social and psychological satisfaction from life.

Manpower mobility program:

This program was developed to ensure that no worker need be unemployed or under-employed because suitable jobs are not available in his home community. It will also enable those receiving low wages for a given job in one area to take advantage of the benefits offered availing them to relocate where they can obtain higher earnings for their skills.

Area industrial development:

Under this program, substantial grants are available to industries which move into specially designated areas of low income and high unemployment. By moving industry into an area, jobs are created, the standard of living improved and future prospects are more hopeful.

Seasonal employment stabilization program:

Because Canada has low unemployment in summer and high unemployment in winter, stabilization programs are intended to provide more effective year-round utilization of manpower resources, particularly in the construction industry. Financial incentives are provided to assist in construction projects undertaken during winter months.

These programs in the hands of skilled Canada Manpower Counsellors provide an excellent means of implementing an active Manpower Policy.

To make local Manpower Centres more efficient and effective, training schemes, for managers and counsellors, are underway with sessions being held at York University and Western University.

This year 200 university graduates have joined Canada Manpower Centres throughout Ontario. This trend is likely to continue for the next four or five years. As you can see, big changes are taking place and we, in Canada Manpower, are enthusiastic about the program changes. The outlook is a far cry from the old National Employment Service days. In other words, not only has the name been changed but also the outlook, now based on a new vigorous policy and well-trained staff to put it into effect.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

This Couple Tells You How To Live on Less and Love It

By THOMAS COLLINS

You are coming closer to retirement and to a monthly income that will be 50 to 75 per cent less than your salary of the last 10 years. Your major worry is whether or not you can manage.

If your retirement income is $200 a month, and you are a man and wife, you can manage. Many couples are still doing it fairly well on that sum. But if your income is as much as $300 a month you can spend the winters in Florida, the summers in the Allegheny Mountains, eat well, and travel all over the map.

This at least is what one U.S. couple has found. And it is a couple whose station in life has probably been about as good as yours.

Their name: The Otto Ungers.

Here is their budget:

Car (includes ins., insurance, licence)	$ 60
Food	150
Trailer space rental	80
Utilities (gas, electricity)	20
Clothes	30
Medical insurance and Medicine	10
Rent	0
House and contents	40
Dentist	5
Drugs	5
Magazines, books and news	5
Gifts	40
Life insurance	15
Food and digestives	$120
Odds and ends	20

Mrs. Unger offers some explanations —

"You notice we average $1 a day for gasoline, and have a trade-in allotment for our car, which trade every four years. The car is our entertainment. We go fishing, play shuffleboard, and go to card games, all of which require travelling. Often we drive 50 miles just to eat.

"We have our home about two miles from the Gulf in Florida. It is paid for. We pay no taxes on it (Florida has a $5,000 homestead exemption) . . ."

The Ungers have a travel trailer parked in their yard. Every summer they hitch it to the car and drive to the mountains where they rent trailer space for four months at $20 a month (that's the $12 item in the budget). Last Christmas they worked out a trip to Bermuda that cost them only $100.

They have not needed a doctor in 10 years, they say, and if anything serious comes along that Medicare won't handle, Mr. Unger is eligible to enter a Veterans Administration hospital.

Meanwhile, the Ungers have a comfortable savings nestegg on which they get 4½ per cent return. So far they have not touched the return, but have it if it's needed.

There is no point trying to tell a couple nearing retirement on a $7,000 to $10,00 salary to be thankful that life will be as bountiful on an Unger budget, of 1967. All sorts of things have to give — the clothes, garage services, maids, steaks, pick-up laundry service, cocktails, status, etc. But the point is that thousands of couples are retiring and shaping without too much pain the luxuries they have built into their lives . . . and finding a good life on little money.

You — and most other people — can manage the cut in costs that a 50 to 75 per cent drop in income means in retirement. What you can't manage very well is what your friends may think of you.

Which is why the couples who usually work things out best financially are those who bid adieu to the old town and old friends at retirement and settle among new people who didn't know them when they were so rich.

Israel Will Retain Some of Area Seized

From AP-Reuters

Israel has denied Syrian charges that its tanks invaded deeper into Syrian after a ceasefire but says it intends to keep some of the land it won from Syria, Egypt and Jordan in the six-day Middle East war.

Cheering crowds in the Israeli port of Elath Sunday night greeted the first Israeli freighter to enter the Gulf of Aqaba since Egypt's proclaimed blockade of the gulf led to the Middle East fighting.

The Jewish nation has assured reopening of the gulf by capturing Sharm el Sheikh, from which Egyptian guns overlooked the gulf entrance at the Strait of Tiran.

An Israeli army spokesman said the war against the Arabs killed 679 Israeli soldiers and wounded 2,563.

Israeli troops killed or wounded 10,000 Arab Legionnaires during last week's fighting in western Jordan.

Estimates of the number of prisoners taken by Israel mostly Egyptian, range from 13,000 to 15,000. They still are being counted.

Israeli troops now occupy Egypt's Sinai Peninsula, the biblical cities in Jordan west of the Jordan River and a 25-mile Syrian front which extends as 15 miles into Syrian territory.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban told a public meeting Sunday night that Israel would not return to the armistice lines of 1949. For the first time, he said, Israel's Galilee settlements are out of danger from Syrian guns on high ground overlooking them.

The Jerusalem Post, which often reflects foreign ministry views, says:

"The 1949 armistice agreements and their armistice demarcation lines are no longer recognized by Israel, having been invalidated by Egyptian, Syrian and Jordan aggression."

Diplomats at the United Nations said they expect the Soviet Union to step up its diplomatic drive to force Israel to pull out of Arab territory.

Somediterranean that the Soviet Union did not intervene in the war has been evident among the Arabs, but the Soviet Communist party declared Sunday that the Soviet Union had fulfilled its international duty by verbal statements in support of the Arab side.

Eight Die As Truck Hits Car

ANTRIM, Ont. (CP)— Eight persons, seven of them children, were killed Saturday night when the compact car in which they were riding was rolled up like a cigarette in a flaming collision with a 34-ton tractor-trailer.

The semi - coned transport, carrying a load that included shotgun shells and propane gas, left a trail of bodies for 1,000 feet after rolling over the car at an intersection on Highway 17 about 30 miles west of Ottawa.

Killed were seven of the 12 children of Mr. and Mrs. Omar Johnston of the nearby village of Kinburn, and their 21-year-old aunt, Florence Brown of Ottawa, driver of the car. The dead children are—Edith, 18, Eirk, 14, Carson, 13, twins Judy and Jacqueline, 12, Blair, 10 and Blake, 9.

Truck driver Johannes Bunnik, 40, of Portage la Prairie, Man., and his helper, Ray Caron, about 36, of Winnipeg, escaped without serious injury although the cab of their truck was demolished and exploding shotgun shells ripped a giant hole in the trailer.

They were on their way to Winnipeg from Montreal.

UN Unable to Decide If Truce Was Broken

UNITED NATIONS (CP)— The United Nations Security Council voted unanimously today to condemn "any and all violations of the ceasefire" worked out Saturday between Israel and Syria.

The 15-country council found itself unable to pass judgment on a Syrian claim that Israeli armor advanced east and south of the village of Rafid Sunday in a campaign to take control of all the headquarters of the Jordan river.

Israel denied that its forces had made any move beyond the ceasefire line and Secretary - General U Thant told the council that UN observers were unable to verify the facts of the matter.

Canadian Ambassador George Ignatieff said the council may have to consider strengthening the UN Truce Supervision Organization, which is trying to observe Israel's frontiers with Syria, Jordan and Lebanon with a total strength of 135 officers.

This view was endorsed by France and the United States.

The council met at 10:25 p.m. Sunday to take up the Syrian complaint and adjourned at 3:10 a.m. today.

It is scheduled to meet again at 3 p.m. today.

Martin Consulting NATO Ministers

LUXEMBOURG (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin of Canada began a round of talks with foreign ministers of the other 14 NATO countries here today on the Middle East crisis.

He told reporters on the eve of the North Atlantic council's spring foreign ministers' meeting that the occasion enables smaller powers to impress on Britain, France and the United States the need to work towards a settlement through the United Nations.

"I am sure this meeting of NATO will emphasize the problems arising out of the recent situation in the Middle East," Martin said. NATO as such has no place in any negotiations on the Middle East since the responsibility there rests in the UN.

"But we will be taking advantage of the opportunity to discuss . . . the necessity for all exertions towards a permanent settlement in the Middle East. That has to be done in the UN. We would be opposed to any settlement outside the UN."

Negroes and Police Exchange Fire in Florida and Alabama

Riots Rock Tampa Slums

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—A mob of 400 Negroes, spurred to violence when a policeman shot a Negro youth, went on a rampage in two slum areas today. They beat whites and sacked and burned an entire block of white-owned stores.

At least a dozen persons, including 10 whites, were injured. A deputy sheriff died of an apparent heart attack during the wild melee.

Armed with guns stolen from a smashed pawnshop, the Negroes exchanged shots with police, hurled bricks through autos and set fires that destroyed buildings and caused damage estimated at $100,000.

At daybreak, the shooting had ceased and the fires had been extinguished. Smoke from fire-gutted buildings curled over a dingy area of bars, liquor stores, pool halls and one-storey business houses.

Deputy Chief A. H. Wainwright said the riot erupted in the middle of a muggy night at Nebraska Ave. and Twiggs St. when a 19-year-old youth was shot and killed as he ran from a patrolman.

The officer said he shot after spotting the youth and two others running from the scene of a burglary.

But Robert Gilder, 36-year-old president of the Tampa chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said word that the youth had been shot in the back spread rapidly through a Negro district he called a "ghetto first class."

When dawn broke, two big buildings lay in charred ruins. Broken glass and merchandise looted from stores littered the shabby streets. Police armed with pistols, shotguns, tear-gas grenades and rifles with fixed bayonets patrolled the area.

Alabama Guardsmen Called

PRATTVILLE, Ala. (AP)— The arrest of Stokely Carmichael, black power advocate, touched off a gun battle Sunday between police and Negroes. National guardsmen moved in early today with orders to shoot to kill if necessary to restore order.

The guardsmen and police raided a house involved in the gunfire and removed some 30 Negroes and a double-barrelled shotgun. Several rounds of ammunition were found in a car parked outside, Sheriff Phillip Wood said.

Wood said today 10 persons were arrested at a concrete-block house and were charged with inciting a riot. He said most gave out-of-town addresses and "many said they were with the Student Nonviolent Co-ordinating Committee."

The gun battle left three policemen slightly injured. Three patrol cars were damaged by shotgun pellets.

The violence came after Carmichael was arrested Sunday and said Carmichael threatened to kill one policeman and told police he would "tear up this town."

Carmichael remained in jail overnight. The sheriff said he would be eligible for bail.

The national guard troops were ordered to Prattville after the gun battle had raged for more than three hours between the Negroes and police.

The gunfight erupted, Wood said, after Assistant Police Chief Kenneth Hill narrowly escaped injury from a bullet which tore through the window of his patrol car as he was Only one interested citizen turned out for the memorial service beginning National Veterans' Week in Picton yesterday. A wreath was placed by Legion president R. Gravelle assisted by Mrs. A. Cruickshank and H. Rawlins.

Veterans at Memorial Service

PICTON (Staff) — Leading off Veterans' Week in Picton Sunday morning, members of Branch 78 the Royal Canadian Legion, the Ladies' Auxiliary and representatives of the First Battalion Canadian Guards held a memorial service at the cenotaph where a wreath was placed. Laying the wreath were president of the local branch, R. Gravelle, Comrade Mrs. Cruickshank and Comrade H. Rawlins.

The four corners of the cenotaph were guarded by members of the First Battalion Canadian Guards and the service was conducted by Rev. Robert Black of the First Baptist Church, Picton and Pastor Padre Coleman from Camp Picton. The service although small was colorful and appropriate, unfortunately however there was only one gentleman — only one citizen — who was interested enough to turn out for this service.

The Legion, in Picton as well as all across Canada, will continue their activities throughout the week. A dinner and social evening will be held Tuesday, a decoration service Wednesday and a band concert and presentations on Friday. A static display of weapons will be shown on the lawn of the Legion Hall beginning Monday and running all week.

Rabid Coon Caught in City

A warning for children in the East Hill district to stay away from all strange dogs and cats was issued today following confirmation from the Federal Health of Animals branch that a raccoon shot in the city last week was rabid.

The raccoon was shot last Tuesday in a laneway between Ann and William Streets by city dog catcher Charles Thorne.

The animal was covered with ticks and appeared very unhealthy and was forwarded to Health of Animals laboratories at Hull where tests showed the animal was rabid.

Confirmation of the laboratory finding was received back in the city on Saturday.

Dr. J. F. McCorquodale, head of the health of animals office in Belleville, said today there was no way of knowing whether the rabid raccoon had attacked any other animals in the city.

However, he said that every precaution should be taken. He urged parents to impress on their children not to approach any strange cats or dogs.

City dogcatcher Charles Thorn said this morning that he would contact the principals of all schools in the East Hill area asking them to warn pupils to stay away from strange animals.

So far there have been no reports of children being attacked.

Dr. McCorquodale said this was the first instance of a rabid raccoon having been brought to his office. He said different species of animals react differently when suffering rabies and accordingly there was no way of knowing whether a rabid raccoon would attack.

He said efforts would be made to determine when the raccoon came from.

Also a veterinarian from Dr. McCorquodale's office would check in the East Hill district in an effort to determine whether any dogs or cats had been attacked by the rabid animal.

Veterans' Week Opened With Service Parade

The Memorial Service Parade at Trick's Island was held on Sunday. It was very warm and that must have been the excuse for why all those who did'nt attend. With all the wars and rumors of wars going on at this time it was expected that there would have been a great turnout but the same faithful were the ones who turned out. One thing is sure the ones that did parade certainly put up a brave show and with the color party with their flags fluttering in the breeze, the Pipe Band playing and bandsmen marching made it an event that Belleville can well be proud of. After prayers by Padre Bram Humphreys and an address by the Rev. A. L. Sutherland B.A., music was provided by the Sea Cadets Band, trumpeters of the RCL trumpet band and the Lament was played by Pipe Major K. McNevin of the Duke of Edinburgh pipe band. The Government wreath was laid by Lee Grills, MP, the City of Belleville wreath by Mayor J. Ellis, the combined services wreaths were laid by President K. Edgecombe, 1st vice-president R. Burns, J. Stone and J. MacDonald. The parade marched back to the parade grounds to the martial music of the RCL trumpet Band, where the parade marshall for this parade Cdr. G. Christopher, thanked all who attended with thanks to Color Sgt. G. Carberry and his color party, all bands, Cdrs. R. Kirby and J. Morgan for the speaker system and complimented the marchers on a well turned out and smart looking unit, as the Air Cadets for their help passing out programs and poppies.

The 1965 model car he was driving was a write-off. There were no other passengers in the car at the time of the accident which took place at 2.45 a.m. Provincial Police of the Picton Detachment have indicated that charges are pending. Platt was travelling toward Wellington when the accident occurred.

County Beaches Crowded

PICTON (Staff) — Although last weekend County beaches and resorts were crowded this week saw even greater attendance. As yet no figures are available, however, last weekend saw 9,540 visitors at the Outlet Park (114 campsites were occupied), 1,260 visitors were at North Beach (Consecon), and 1,783 at Sandbanks Park. This weekend (in spite of the annual spring problem of dead fish) saw many swimming and the beach was crowded with sunbathers. Bruce Martin's Cedar Park and Stelmack's Cove Beach were also crowded, a few lost children were reported and no serious accidents.

ARDA Committee Meets

A meeting of the Hastings County Advisory Committee was held in the County Court House, Belleville, on Wednesday last with a good attendance.

The purpose of this organization is to bring together representation of twenty or more organizations in the area to suggest and discuss the possibilities of agricultural, recreational, industrial, wild life and educational development, also soil and water conservation.

At the inaugural meeting held in April, committees were appointed with Graham Bell as chairman of the agricultural research committee, Bell is a vice-chairman and Carl E. Bateman, Belleville, as secretary.

Projects discussed were assistance in enlarging present farms, fence removal, building renovation, new wells and farm ponds. There is considerable interest in a community pasture in Rawdon township similar to the pasture established in Victoria County. A drainage project in Tyendinaga township was mentioned and a request for agricultural and educational assistance came from the Mohawk Board Council and Indian agency at Deseronto.

At Bancroft the hunters and anglers have a property they feel could be developed similar to the conservation development and school at the Albion Hills.

The Bancroft area, represented by Mr. Bosiac, has a great tourist attraction in the Rock Hound Jamboree each year. Bancroft has many species of rocks, which is a rock collectors' paradise and this can become an attraction which will draw numerous people to the county.

A dam on Moira River at the big bend could store water for summer use down stream and the possibility of an artificial lake on the York River in Monteagle and Hallow townships in the north would provide a large number of cottage sites.

An invitation was extended from George Fox to visit the Eldorado cheese factory at the opening progress on June 21st. This cheese factory was enlarged and remodelled in 1966. Assistance through A.R.D.A. made enlarging and remodelling this cheese factory possible. Hon. W. M. Stewart, Minister of Agriculture, H. Crowe, Mr. Herman and Mr. Hill will be present at the official opening.

Spillway Improves Oxygen Content

The beauty of the Trent waterway is only rivalled by its capability as a conveyor of contamination. However violent activity over the dam increases the oxygen content and improves the water.

Plant Pushed to Capacity

The Trenton sewage plant is operating beyond its capacity. Addition of secondary facilities have been recommended for not later than 1969. Trenton's problems are matched by other communities in the area.

Solid Example

Vials show amount of solid content the Trenton primary disposal plant must handle in treatment plant. A million gallons a day is processed.

Pollution

Area Waterways Can Be Deceptive Lures

The discovery of a revolutionary way to halt the insidious spread of pollution is claimed as one of mankind's most important projects.

The cost of an all out war against deadly contamination of fresh water sources is estimated in the billions of dollars. Economically the undertaking has been compared to the U. S. space program.

Worried about survival of the human race, experts say massive application of resources "are necessary if desired results are to be attained before it's too late.

At the present time, the forces looking for the perfect solution grapple with an ever-increasing evil which shows no signs of diminishing during the remainder of this century.

In the meantime contamination of fresh water sources—locally the Bay of Quinte and river emptying into it—causes concern in all circles.

Some of those people who express genuine concern believe nothing short of a miracle can foster improvement while municipal sewage disposal systems in the area are expected to operate at overload capacity as more people, industries and services make demands on them.

What Mark Twain said about the weather could very well apply in this matter. There are a lot of community-spirited people talking about pollution but to find an individual or group of them actually doing something about it is easier said than method.

On the government's side is the Ontario Water Resources Commission (OWRC) providing leadership. Along with growing numbers of conservationists the commission has instituted a program calling for volunteers to help them rid the waterways of deadly infection and associate impurities.

One supporter is Dr. C. R. Lenk MOH of the Hastings County Health Unit.

On the subject of pollution Dr. Lenk says communities on the waterways system can look for further worsening of the situation "unless some new method of treating sewage is invented or controls over the day-by-day violators are rigidly enforced.

"My chief interest now is to maintain swimming beaches and other places for water recreation that are not already unsafe," he said.

Prince Edward County conservation authority William Tatham said he is aware authorities have legislation to deal harshly with industrial transgressors but can understand why caution is being practised.

"Heavy fines and other penalties they could lawfully impose would result in companies closing plants and throwing workers out of jobs," he pointed out.

"Any such action could mean a general upset in a community and possible economic ruin."

He said he understood the OWRC is dealing with each case separately in a manner designed to eventually eliminate defilement of fresh water to the satisfaction of both industry and the commission.

Speaking as a waterfront property owner on the Rednerarville road, Mr. Tatham said his proposal to curb pollution is to prevent it starting in the first place. He claims Ameliasburg township council of which he is chairman of the planning board, should adopt the national building code and line up with over 70 per cent of the other communities in Canada.

This would require the county health officer to verify there was a ample clean water supply available and a satisfactory soil sytem present for absorbing septic tank run-off.

All cities where residential, commercial and industrial buildings are established would come under scrutiny by the MOH as well as the building inspector.

Mr. Tatham said it would be his intention for the same rule to apply in the case of summer cottage construction and farm operations with a particular campaign against those people allowing barnyard affluence to contaminate natural water courses to the bay.

Already marine biologists have learned pollution is no respecter of people or places. Before it is checked the dream of a former Belleville mayor and local magistrate may be destroyed.

In bygone years the late W. C. Mikel envisioned a prosperous modern metropolis evolving from the growth of the centres of Belleville and Trenton. He predicted both municipalities would be joined and finally encompass the west end of the Bay of Quinte.

He anticipated farmlands of Northumberland, Hastings and Prince Edward counties disappearing and many other major transformations in the process. He called his dream "Quinte City."

Such a merger affecting the various communities presents a giant jig-saw puzzle for all levels of government to piece together so harmony prevails. However, it is probably the best way for them to join forces for the preservation of vital water resources. As things stand now residents of Mr. Mikel's proposed Quinte Metro may have to contend with a mammoth sewage pond in the middle of their city.

While affluence from northern neighbors continues to flow into the catch basin-shaped bay the subsequent build-up year after year concerns Ameliasburg bayshore residents. They fear more little red worms and impurities to threaten the welfare of humand and wildlife.

Streams Can Be Culprits

Unsuspecting streams like this one in Albury freshen in the spring and carry infectious barnyard affluence to larger bodies of water.

ANAF News

Wednesday, is a most important day in this, Veterans' Week when the ANAF Blood for Peace project combines with the regular Red Cross travelling blood clinic. The clinic will be set up in the Duke of Edinburgh Unit clubrooms at 187 Front St., and the operating hours are 1.30 to 4.30 and 6.00 to 8.30 p.m. At this time of the year blood transfusions are in bigger demand than ever. When you consider that, in return for a few minutes of your time, your blood could be instrumental in helping save a life, you wouldn't hesitate to be a blood donor. Don't think it can't happen to you or yours because statistics have proven otherwise and that donation you gave might be just the difference between life and death for you or yours. Half a dozen volunteers from the members are asked to be at the club from 12.00 noon until 1.00 to assist in carrying the light cots up to the auditorium so anyone who can spare the time, please help.

The president and members extend their deep sympathy to the family of the late comrade J. S. Adams who passed away Friday, June 8. The following comrades are hospitalized at BGH: Ross Jamieson, Bert Herrington, Doc Vance, R. Craig, and R. Marshette. Cdr. Cec Chapman is still confined to his home. It is learned that Cdr. Hank Boyle has been returned from Kingston General to the Belleville Hospital. The sick chairman reports that all have been visited and looked after.

Remember the big sports afternoon next Saturday, with darts, shuffleboard and cribbage tournaments. The sports chairman warns again that those wishing to play must have their names on the lists on the notice board and the deadline is 4.00 p.m. Friday, June 17. There will be numerous prizes and trophies and the entrance fee is 50 cents.

What promises to be the big dance of the year will be the Legals Centennial Ball to be held Friday, June 16. Those attending are asked if possible, to wear centennial costumes. There will be prizes, entertainment, refreshments and the well known Doug Aselstine Orchestra to supply the toe tickling music for the evening. Tickets are now available from the stewards.

Middle East

The virtual cessation of hostilities between Arabs and Jews in the Middle East is a heartening development.

While the war lasted, even the Vietnam conflict was pushed into the background. In fact hostilities there slackened as the dramatic events in the desert unfolded. Since then, however, the communists have carried on mortar attacks on American and South Vietnamese units and in Quang Tin province a guerrilla company invaded a village, killing the community's school teacher, wounding eight civilians and kidnapping 13.

At the same time the Middle East confrontation, while it has created many new perplexing problems, could be a turning point in relations between east and west. For one thing, President Johnson and Soviet Premier Kosygin exchanged messages over the emergency "hot line" between Washington and Moscow.

The Russians, aware that in siding with the Arabs they had backed a loser, were anxious to see an end to the conflict. At the same time they were not averse to sending naval units to harass units of the U.S. 6th fleet in the Mediterranean. This is a new, potentially explosive cold war "game" the Soviets first introduced recently in The Gulf of Tonkin off the coast of Vietnam. On the other hand, the firm control exercised by Soviet authorities in keeping rabid students from damaging the British and U.S. embassies in Moscow is still another indication of the Kremlin's desire to avoid a major clash with the West.

All in all the Soviets and the Western powers led by the United States are reasonably tolerant of each other these days. Where areas of potential conflict are concerned the Middle East may be eliminated for a time. Other time bomb problems there now are concerned mainly with restoring a balance of power (one in which Israel will have every right to any additional security it may achieve following its successful response to Arab threats), the re-establishment of friendly relations with the Arab world in order to protect the West's vital oil interests, and making sure that the Suez canal and the Gulf of Aqaba are never again threatened by closure.

As for the world at large, war unhappily has always been a fact of life. The history of this universe has been one of violent struggles and rivalry between nations and individuals, with only relatively short periods of peace. And it likely will ever be thus. Men and nations cannot live in a vacuum, and when prestige is at stake the outcome is invariably war in one form or another.

Principle Involved

Perhaps it is time other provinces besides Alberta appointed an Ombudsman to protect the rights of citizens.

An ombudsman might be of some use just now to Dorothy Cameron who has been refused permission by the Supreme Court of Canada to appeal her conviction on a charge of exhibiting obscene pictures in her Toronto art gallery.

The Supreme Court's refusal was based on a technical point of law which has not been fully explained, but apparently was sufficient for the Court to say it had no jurisdiction to hear an appeal.

This is scarcely fair to Miss Cameron and it is clear from public reaction that others feel the same way.

She claims the pictures were not obscene. The people who said they were were two policemen and a magistrate. This is a blow for all artists and writers in Canada."

State Secretary Judy LaMarsh for one has expressed doubts about the ruling. Contacted in New Orleans by a Toronto newspaper she said: "I hate to think the situation exists that a magistrate can make a judgment on a work of art. Perhaps I'm in a position to do something about it. I certainly intend to look into it when I return to Ottawa."

Between one thing and another Miss Cameron has been having a bad time of late. She was organizer of the exhibition of Canadian sculpture outside the Toronto City Hall, only to see many of the works defaced by the city's fanatic fringe simply through lack of adequate supervision.

When one angry exhibitor — a University of Toronto lecturer — attempted to move his sculpture exhibit, one of those damaged, to a safer place, City property commissioner Harold Rogers refused him permission to do so. The exasperated exhibitor, Robert Downing, finally said he was "moving it right out of here," and called in trucks to take it away. There are enough 'don'ts' in Canadian law, so Downing's blow for individual liberty should not go unnoticed.

Toronto, for all its much-vaunted modernism and sophistication is in reality still a city of Philistines and small-town attitudes as both the city and public levels.

Children Suffer

Life in the Arctic Through the Eyes of a Teenager

In the following letter to The Montreal Gazette, MAURICE MARRINAN tells of his experiences among the Eskimos at Cambridge Bay. His story concerns an old problem among the native peoples of this continent, for which Canadians bear a heavy responsibility—namely alcoholism.

In the personal vacuum that this and the isolationism of the Arctic regions create are the children who deserve something better from His. And in the broader sense, the latter is a poignant study in human relations.

In 1960, I was employed (under contract) in the Canadian Arctic, at Dye Main, Lower Camp, Frobisher Bay, C.N.W.T., for a period of 8 months. The previous year, I had worked on the same job in the same area and, earlier still, I had been a crew member of the oil burner, the "Federal Explorer" (then much in Arctic waters). This brief explanation is merely to show that, I am not altogether unacquainted with our Arctic inhabitants, their general standards of living, housing problems, etc.

At the time of my job in 1960 in the Arctic, I noted the really terrible havoc (moral and physical) which the new-fangled (of the year 1959) "liberty" law permitting Arctic inhabitants of both sexes over the age of 21 to consume alcohol was having on the small Eskimo group in the camp. In the grim circumstances, I myself, made it a practice of showing special affection and love for the often frightened, bewildered and "pathetic (yet most lovable) little Eskimo children of the camp.

Every day, I made a practice of playing with a little group of Eskimo boys and girls — about six of them, ranging from three to nine years of age — and giving them candy. I often carried them on my back, piggy-back fashion, and romped with them to their uproarious whoops of joy! The Eskimo translation of "piggy-back" is "TAKKAK". Thus, I became known affectionately to my own little group of Eskimos as "Tak-Kak".

One member of the little group, Annie Rose Kavana, then (in 1960) aged "9 going on 10", seemingly just could not forget her uncle "Tak-Kak", and having learned to write very passable English, commenced to correspond with me about a year ago. In these circumstances, I need hardly say that I was and am more than pleased to hear from little Annie.

Nevertheless, little Annie's last letter, which I feel duty-bound to quote in full, reveals highly disturbing news with regard to the aforementioned law of 1959 introduced by the Diefenbaker government. The following is a word-for-word copy of this little girl's letter.

Cambridge Bay, C.N.W.T.

May 14, 1967.

"Dear Tak-Kak.

How are you doing? I am doing fine at home with my parents. They say hello to you very much. I don't go to have school at Cambridge Bay very much, and I don't like to stay here. Dad will be back soon. I miss you now. I have two friends, Aggie and Joan. I like them very much. I love all the peoples, but they always drink and fight in Cambridge Bay. I hope to see you soon. I have nothing more to say now.

Yours truly
Annie Kavana

P.S. Write soon to me"

I have to say right away that I personally, believe that my young Eskimo correspondent, Annie, has spotlighted a really awful situation, and delivered a far more effective blow to the anti-booze supporters of alcohol for our Arctic Inhabitants (Eskimos and Indians) than I, myself, or for that matter, any non-Eskimo or Indian, could hope to do.

Finally, I would like to ask, are our RCMP (that highly efficient police force) conscious of which we all know them to be sufficient in numbers today in the great wide open Canadian Arctic spaces to cope effectively with, say, "waves of alcoholism" which may or may not (I, personally, don't know for sure) be spreading across this area at the present time?

Political Vacuum

The Rise and Fall of Arab World's President Nasser

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gamal Abdel Nasser rose to power and world prominence on a wave of Arab bitterness at the Western world.

Now, in the ashes of Arab disillusionment, much of this power and leadership must slip away from him no matter how the Cairo crisis in leadership is resolved.

Nasser had innate qualities of leadership. He was a man of personal courage. He had been the first man of his battalion to be wounded in action—a bullet in his shoulder—in the 1948-49 war against the Jews in Palestine. He returned to the fray and fought furiously. He won high decorations from the man he hated most—King Farouk of Egypt. In Palestine, even while the war was on, he plotted with fellow officers to bring down the corrupt monarch in Cairo.

Nasser founded and led the secret Free Officers Movement. As an obscure 34-year-old military man, he planned and directed the coup of July 23, 1952, which forced Farouk to abdicate. A crude major - general named Mohammed Naguib took over as figurehead leader, but Nasser pulled the strings.

In April, 1954, he dropped the pretense, pushed Naguib aside and became premier himself. Naguib ever since has remained under house arrest in Cairo. Nasser became the one - man ruler. He proclaimed Egypt a republic and became its president. Behind the shadows, his rise was hailed as the end of colonialism in Egypt after four centuries under foreign rule: first Turkish, then French and British.

Nasser was all - Arab, unlike many Egyptians who are part African. He was born Jan. 15, 1918, at Beni Mer, in upper Egypt's Asiatic province.

After study and graduation with distinction at the military academy in Cairo, Nasser got married in 1944. He has children—three sons and two daughters —were born of the marriage.

Once Farouk was out of Egypt's new leader, the complete liberation of the country from the remaining British garrison became an obsession with him. He worked systematically to drive the British expeditionary troops out of their huge base in the Suez Canal Zone, where the British held sway for 72 years until 1955.

Nasser preached pan - Arab nationalism, Arab unity against the West and Israel, and was felt by many to have had ambitions to expand Egypt's territory and be master to much of the Moslem world in the Middle East and Africa.

At the same time he had ambitions for Egypt itself. His regime was responsible for attempts to reclaim desert to feed Egypt's ever-growing millions, and for the concept of a high dam across the Nile at Aswan, which would reclaim millions of arable acres. Rebuffed by the West in this dream, he turned to the Russians, got their help and had it near completion when his last military adventure backfired.

While Nasser sought support from the Soviets, he was not kept a wary eye on home - grown Communists, and often carried on the crusade against them. His attitude touched off a public row with Nikita Khrushchev, who referred to Nasser as "bloodheaded young man." Nasser was a constant source of battle for Arab Communist factions.

Nasser, until this week, seemed to have a charmed life. He seemed unable to lose. In 1956, he escaped from a humiliation by Israel stronger than ever. His escaped assassins' bullets in 1954, though shots had been fired at point-blank range. He rode out the ennuits of other Arab leaders.

But in 1967, his number may be up.

Canada Aids University of W. Indies

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

It is sometimes difficult to appreciate the importance of foreign aid. Government statistics, even illustrated brochures, often do not do the job as well as might be expected.

Occasionally however, the utility of such expenditures is illuminated. Such was the case last week when, during a visit to Halifax, William E. Gecking, head librarian at the University of the West Indies, discussed in a newspaper interview current plans for a new library facility on the college's Jamaica campus. One million Canadian dollars will be used for this purpose, or one-fifth of this country's proposed expenditure on behalf of the university.

One of the prime needs of the Caribbean, of course, is education, and the evidence at firsthand that Canada is continuing to play a useful role in this field is encouraging.

Canadian government aid to the Commonwealth Caribbean has increased from a annual rate of $2,000,000's in fiscal 1957-58 to $10,000,000 in 1965-66. Hopefully, this upward trend will continue.

Maritime Causeway

Montreal Star

Even when Prime Minister Pearson first announced the tunnel project to link Prince Edward Island with the mainland, the estimated cost seemed unreasonably low. Now — now that on the basis of tenders for the first limited contract the government has decided to start over again, presumably scrapping in the process much expensive planning.

One of the weaknesses of the original undertaking was its premise that there must be a direct railway crossing of the Northumberland Strait, serviced now by car ferries. The fact that the railway position in the economics of transportation is a best unchanging critical change was ignored. Under the reassessment, much closer attention probably will be devoted to the possibility that with an adequate and cheaper one - level highway causeway road carriers might operate as easily from terminals in New Brunswick as they do from present transfer points.

MPs Prepare for "Total Immersion" Course in French

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Several MPs from both sides of the House plan to spend the dog days of August in a "total immersion" French course at College Militaire Royal, St. Jean, Que.

The English - speaking legislators will board two to a room in the officer cadet school and speak nothing but French from Aug. 7 to 26, if present plans pan out.

"During the course, students will study, play, eat, drink and probably dream in French," a parliamentary official commented.

Between 15 and 30 MPs are expected to attend. They already study oral French at special two-hour classes on Parliament Hill every week during sessions.

The immersion course was originally proposed by Robert Stanbury (L — York - Scarborough), one of the regular French students.

"If senior civil servants are being encouraged to become bilingual, I feel it is equally important for MPs, he said Thursday.

Language experts agreed that intensive courses without outside distractions were the best way of learning a second language. Bills for immersion courses organized by the public service commission for senior officials had proved successful.

Mr. Stanbury said he discussed his idea a few weeks ago with Prime Minister Pearson and Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux and the administrative wheels had been set in motion.

Commons officials have set June 15 as the deadline for registrations, with the minimum number fixed at 15. Students will pay $2.66 a day for food and lodging and need not stay in St. Jean on weekends. Three weeks, provided they attend the opening of the course, Aug. 7.

Between 25 and 30 MPs take part in the weekly French classes, but their identities are closely concealed to avoid embarrassment. Many of them have tried out their French in a House and committee debates with good results.

B and B Commission Eats Taxes

Calgary Herald

Since its creation in July, 1963, the incredible Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism has gobbled $5,000,000 of the taxpayers' money, with another $1,000,000 budgeted for the fiscal year ending next March 31.

Commission members so far have collected a total of $418,000 in honoraria and another $107,000 in tax - free travel and living allowances.

Despite the money which has been lavished on commission members and their research they seem incapable of delivering the report which they were assigned to prepare. Instead, publication date for the first volume of the report — promised first for last year, then for early this yea, and then for early summer — has once more been delayed, until late November or December.

Hardships Plague Last Crew in Canoe Pageant

SQUAW RAPIDS, Sask. (CP) — A dose of adversity is making life interesting for the Nova Scotia crew in the centennial voyageur canoe pageant.

The Nova Scotians are short of money and equipment and are running last in the 3,300-mile race from Rocky Mountain House, Alta., to Expo 67 in Montreal, but their captain, John Bothwell of Bale Verte, Nfld., says they are having as much fun as any of the other crews.

"We're having lots of fun," Bothwell said in a telephone interview from Squaw Rapids, where the 18 pageant teams stopped over Sunday night.

"We're running last and we haven't a real chance of catching the leaders, so there's no pressure on us.

"I think we get to meet the people more out here. We have to scrounge a bit for equipment, but that just makes it interesting.

Bothwell's crew is the only one in the pageant not formally sponsored by its home province. The other crews are the leading Manitobans, second of the British Columbia, and teams from Alberta, Saskatchewan, Ontario, New Brunswick, Quebec, the Northwest Territories and the Yukon.

Bothwell said the Nova Scotia government turned down a request to sponsor his crew some months ago at a time when the government apparently did not know what was involved in the pageant.

By the time it became apparent the canoe pageant would be a major centennial event, Bothwell said, it apparently was too late for the Nova Scotia government to reverse its decision.

The crew then began searching for another sponsor so that they could enter the event.

"We wanted to go so badly we didn't even save if the sponsor would put up any money, just so long as we had a name to put on the entry form. That is the basis on which the Halifax Board of Trade agreed to sponsor us—they aren't putting up any money."

Bothwell said the shortage of funds—his own regular job prevented him from lining up any substantial financial support elsewhere in Nova Scotia—prevented the Nova Scotia crew from buying new equipment and hampered their training program.

"We're using some of our personal money to buy better equipment now, and we're picking up discards from other crews in the pageant — things like rain ponchos — but even so we're still using last year's paddles.

"We started out as the only team without even air mattresses or foam mattresses to put under our sleeping bags, but we've scrounged a few now."

The crew does have two good tents, and there is always lots to eat. "They're always having dinners for us at the towns we stop at. You really eat out west."

Arts Conference at Queen's Asks Increased Aid Program

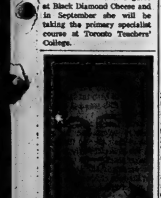
KINGSTON (CP) — The first Canadian conference of the arts and the university concluded at Queen's University Sunday after four days of discussion and passage of resolutions calling for financial aid, recognition and study.

About 300 representatives from 45 Canadian universities attended the conference, developed by the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada and supported by the centennial commission and the Canada Council.

Resolutions included requests for grants from the Canada Council and private investors to permit universities to hire professional artists "to provide students with examples of excellence."

Delegates also asked for increased travel grants to allow students and faculty to study original works of art rather than rely on slides and reproductions.

Additional grants were requested to finance an investigation into the supply and demand for professional musicians in Canada, and a resolution was passed asking that the Canadian Association of University Schools of Music study training methods of music teachers in secondary and elementary schools.



The conference decided that heavily-subsidized CBC productions should be made available to universities for educational purposes at a special rental fee.

It was decided universities should be used to serve as a training ground for professional artists and that promising artists should be developed in universities through a studio program leading to a degree. The conference agreed universities should provide graduate and undergraduate programs in the arts for students wishing to pursue professional careers in that area.

Critical consideration of radio television and film should be included in any study of the arts, delegates maintained. They also suggested that a study of the relationship of these new media and the traditional arts would be useful.

Mary Beth Follwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Follwell, Belleville, received a Bachelor of Arts degree (English and French) from Queen's University at convocation on June 3rd. Mary Beth is a graduate of BCI and VS and is now a tour guide at Black Diamond Cheese and in September she will be taking the primary specialist course at Toronto Teachers' College.

Richard H. Levine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Levine, Belleville, received a Master of Business Administration degree from University of Western Ontario, London, at convocation June 3, 1967. Richard, a graduate of B.C.I.V.S., had previously obtained a Bachelor of Commerce degree from McGill University, Montreal.

Oxen, Old Time Thresher Features of Hungerford Parade

A street parade featuring a puke of oxen and old time threshing engine and separator; an antique display and banquet and dance with Miss Canada as the guest of honor were the highlights of the Hungerford Township Centennial day on Saturday.

Sponsors of the day's program are terming it a "tremendous success" with attendance far exceeding expectations.

Approximately 1,000 persons were on the agricultural ground to see the parade and afternoon activities while for the evening banquet there was a crowd of over 500.

The day's entertainment got underway with a morning bus tour of the township, taking in the many century farms. The party of about 75 enjoyed noon lunch at Thomasburg with the ladies of the Thomasburg Rebekah Lodge catering.

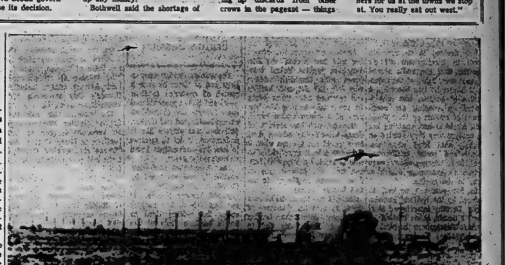
In the afternoon the township's new $45,000 garage at Stoco was officially opened by Clarke T. Rollins, MPP for Hastings East. The addition of Hungerford's township hall in Tweed was opened by Lee Grills MP.

There were approximately 50 entries in the afternoon parade. Featured were an honest to goodness team of oxen from Stenebergs, the old steam traction engine owned by David Thompson, community floats, bands and majorettes.

Mr. Thompson's old threshing engine even put on a demonstration at the Fairgrounds and in the process showered spectators with a man-made dust storm.

The antique display in the agricultural hall showed a wealth of items of historical interest — and all from Hungerford township. One of the displays was a $4,000 coin collection.

Even the ever-flowing spring at the village of Thomasburg did not forgotten in the day's activities. The Thomasburg Pi-C group donated a plaque which will be erected to commemorate the spring.



The evening banquet guests were welcomed by Hungerford Reeve R. C. Graham. Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen introduced Miss Marjorie Schofield, of Burlington, the current Miss Canada.

The banquet guest book showed that visitors were present from Manitoba and Saskatchewan with the province of Quebec, and even from as far south as Florida.

Banquet speakers were two former township residents, now holding important positions with the province of Ontario.

They were Frank Kialin, brother of Jim Kialin, township clerk, now superintendent of curriculum, and George Varty, brother of former reeve Harold Varty, who is now chief inspector for public schools for all of Toronto.

Any proceeds from the day's activities are earmarked for a fund which is to help pay off the debt on the Tweed-Hungerford Community Centre.

TORONTO (CP) — An eight-month strike at Canadian Coleman Co. Ltd. was settled Sunday with 90 of 228 original striking employees still members picket lines.

Harry Simon, regional director of the Canadian Labor congress, whose directly-chartered local was on strike, said the first group of workers should be called back to work today.

At one stage, the dispute led to mass picket lines and arrests.

Terms of the three - year agreement provide a 13-cent-an-hour increase, effective from the beginning of the strike in October, 1966, 13 cents July 1, and 15 cents July 1, 1968.

The settlement also provides for $50 in back pay doing from the beginning of the strike.

Telescopic Instrument Monitors Air Pollution

TORONTO (CP)—A telescopic instrument, designed to identify and measure sulphur dioxide one-quarter mile away, will be exhibited next week at a conference of the Air Pollution Control Association in Cleveland, Ohio.

The research firm, Barringer Research Ltd. of Toronto, says three men could monitor the air - contaminating sulphur dioxide level over Metropolitan Toronto every day with the 100-pound instrument.

The developing firm pictures the instrument as a breakthrough in the fight to police industrial pollution. The instrument uses a spectrometer to analyze light in a path between it and a pollution source.

Anthony R. Barringer, president of the company, says similar instruments can be developed to measure other pollutant gases.

Sulphur dioxide was singled out as the first target because health authorities have pinpointed it as one of the most harmful of the pollutant gases in urban areas, he explains.

He says a helicopter, carrying a pilot, two technicians and the instrument, could patrol a metropolitan area daily.

Then graphical information gathered on sulphur dioxide concentration would be analyzed by a computer to show where pollution was highest, indicating the location of its source.

Fitness Council Criticized

MONTREAL (CP)—A member of the National Fitness Council today criticized the council for spending $800,000 on Physiological research instead of on marketing research.

Robert D. Freese of Vancouver, a member of the council for five years, told the Canadian symposium on recreation that the key to aiding recreation is to find out what Canadians want.

"What a different impact the fitness program would be having today if that money had been spent on marketing research," said Mr. Freese, vice-president of Western Union Insurance Co.

He said other "marketing principles" that must be followed include careful recreation location and scheduling of recreational activities and advertising and promotion.

He said the problems which will result from excessive leisure time can best be solved by using modern techniques to "sell" recreation and sports.

A resume of Mr. Freese's speech was released to the press before delivery.

Zambia Copper Output Back to Normal Level

LUSAKA (Reuters)—Zambian copper production is back to normal after eight months of reduction caused by coal shortages, a spokesman for the mining companies said today.

Production has been at 90 per cent since the end of March, he said. Normal output from the seven Zambian mines is about 80,000 tons a month.

The rise in output of production at Roan Selection Trust and Anglo-American Corp. mines followed increased coal deliveries involving the jointly-owned Zambia and Rhodesia railway.

This led to a drop in coal imports needed for the refining process, from the Wankie coal field in Rhodesia, he said.

However, the mines continued to operate normally underground with the balance of unrefined ores being stockpiled.

Production was first cut in 10 per cent in October and then stepped to two-thirds by the following month. The 75 per cent level was restored at the end of last year and then raised to 90 per cent in March.

Zambia and Rhodesia have agreed to operate separate railway systems beginning July 1.

Many Drug Addicts Have High IQ Researcher Finds

LONDON (CP) — After four months' research among British drug addicts, a cynical Canadian named Dorothy Ceetin is compiling a report that will build up a detailed picture of the kind of person who falls victim to this growing social menace.

Dorothy, 30, a native of Powell River, B.C., became fascinated in problems of drug addiction when she worked at Vancouver's Oakalla prison after graduating in sociology and criminology from the University of British Columbia.

She decided to do research work in Birmingham after reading that England's second biggest city, heart of the industrial Midlands, was becoming a centre of addicts. She concentrated on winning the confidence of addicts as they would talk freely to her, enabling her to analyze why they started on drugs, what kind of educational and social background they had, why so many were driven to encourage others to take to the needle.

In her research project, financed by the Nuffield Foundation, Dorothy interviewed 6 of the 80 heroin cases treated by a big Birmingham hospital in the previous 18 months. She found a "tremendous variety of person" among them, with many addicts having a high IQ and prosperous social background. The number of colored addicts was negligible, she found, and most addicts were men.

She was surprised how freely the British junkies talked.

"I'll not been asking the same type of questions at home in Canada, the addicts would have been much more secretive and on the defensive," Dorothy told a Birmingham reporter, explaining that Canadian addicts have to protect their sources of supply since there is no legal way of getting drugs.

Another difference that struck her was how normal the Birmingham junkies looked compared with Canadian addicts who left jail fat and healthy and returned after three weeks on the needle looking like victims of a concentration camp.

Dorothy, who has never tried drugs herself — "to take a drug once would not tell me what it is like to take a drug dosed" — is writing a report in London that will give British its first detailed look at its native heroin addicts.

She will use the material as a thesis to gain her doctorate of philosophy from the London School of Economics and in her classroom, Canada to take up a post teaching sociology at Trent University, Peterborough, Ont.

After Children Have Grown-up Some Women Busier Than Ever

VANCOUVER (CP)—What do energetic, talented women do when their children are grown up and gone? Some sit back, relax and retire.

Others, such as Christie Harris, are busier than ever.

Mrs. Harris, of nearby Ocean Park, was in the midst of two celebrations recently. One was the publication of her sixth book since 1957 and the second was marking her 40th year of professional writing.

She started with children's stories, CBC talks, school broadcasts and articles in her early days of writing—in between taking care of a household of five children.

Books on British Columbia history and for the 12-to-15 year-old group were added to the list of publications, and her sixth book is a family affair. Confessions of a Toe-Hanger is about the childhood of one of Mrs. Harris' daughters, Mrs. Jack Simpson of Charlottetown, and is illustrated by another daughter, Mrs. Harris said.

Mrs. Johnston was featured in another of the books, You Have to Draw the Line Somewhere.

In the books, the names are changed, but they are still the same people.

Delving into the memories of a child and remembering were easy and lectures of children took months of talking, taping and editing by mother and daughter.

This was the second book that Moira and her mother did together and they have another planned — a juvenile book on fashion history and clothes.

This is right in Mrs. John Ston's line, because for four years she was children's fashion artist for Bergdorf Goodman in New York.

Mrs. Ross Saider reported on the county convention in Wellington.

Duplicate Bridge Session

The various bridge conventions can at times be such a source of confusion to their users and their opponents that some experts tend to avoid all except Blackwood and Gerber. Still duplicate players like to understand, if not themselves to use, the conventions listed on opponents' cards.

The Drury Two Club Convention is one employed by Canadian experts, Eric Murray and Sammy Kehela. If one has passed, and partner opens the bidding third or fourth hand, a reply of two indicates No Ace; 5 diamonds means one Ace in a suit not held by either partner; 5 hearts says one Ace in a suit bid by either; 5 spades—2 aces; 5 No trump means 2 aces and the Clubs 4 Aces. If the bidding has not gone too high, Kings may be pin-pointed in the same fashion.

The next Duplicate Bridge Session will be on Tuesday, June 13, at 7.30 at the Golf Club. This will be the first of the season at the Golf Club where duplicate players, will meet on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month until the end of September. Everyone is welcome, and new players wanting to try the game are urged to come out during the summer months.

Women Will Present Number of Resolutions

MONTREAL (CP)— A group of 30 women representing delegates to last week's International Conference of Women in Montreal plan to meet in Ottawa today with a representative of External Affairs Minister Martin.

They will present him with resolutions passed by the 300-delegate conference on topics ranging from what should be done with the site of Expo 67 after Expo concludes, to a condemnation of the recent military coup in Greece. The women also plan to visit the United States embassy in Ottawa.

On the Greek situation, the Montreal meeting, organized by the Voice of Women, urged that "the release of all prisoners held without trial," including Greece's only woman MP, Marcia Kare Georgiea.

The women also ask that Prime Minister Pearson urge an unconditional end to U.S. bombing in North Vietnam and "cease shipments of Canadian arms and war materials to the U.S."

The three - day conference, which ended Saturday, also asked a negotiated settlement of Middle East tensions, with "some concessions by all parties involved" and a ban on shipment of arms to the area. The women want a United Na-

ROSLIN — A successful Centennial tea was held last Wednesday evening at the Bethel-Zion Community Hall which was decorated for the event with spring blooms, colored maple leaves and bright Canadian and Centennial flags. Decor was in charge of Mrs. Ross Bonter, Mrs. Ted Ray and Mrs. Ken Cranston.

As the guests entered the hall they were welcomed by Mrs. Laurison Ketcheson, unit leader and Mrs. Earle Mitchell. Taking tickets at the door were Mrs. Delbert Rowe and Mrs. Percy Ray.

The tea room was encircled with a white picket fence with the corner posts holding potted ferns. The tea table was most attractive with white damask cloth centred with a large ruby colored glass bowl filled with red roses and pink carnations. Silver tea services graced each end of the table. Small guest tables were covered with green and white checked cloths centred with a potted miniature rose.

Pouring tea were Mrs. Clayton Hall, Mrs. Frank Rodgers, Mrs. John Fargey and Mrs. George Southall, while other members of the group assisted in serving and replenishing refreshments.

At the one end of the hall was the country store with Mrs. R. Sills, Mrs. Don Harrig and Mrs. Allan Marvin in charge, where homebaking, candy, jams and many other items were sold. On display here also were many of the items grandma would have found in a store many years ago. One of the eye-catching items was a signature quilt with names of persons of the Zion community embroidered onto it about 45 years ago.

Many who attended were dressed in colorful centennial dresses, some were genuine heirlooms from another era, while others were made for this occasion.

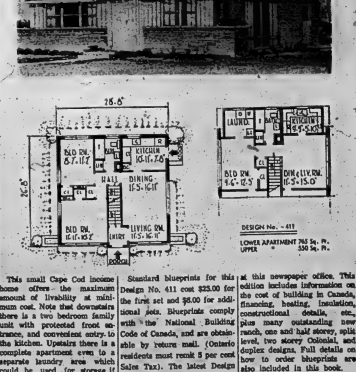
This week is Lawn Bowling Week in Belleville and the public are invited to visit the new clubhouse. Here president William Wright gives instruction to prospective member, Shirley Wood.

Be a Lawn Bowler

By C.D.T

Be a Bowler.

This is a sticker that is being displayed prominently on many motor cars this week in preparation for "Bowling Week" instituted and sponsored by the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club on Yeomans Street. Next week is the time designated and Art Bradden, director of the club, is in charge of the activities and to the present time has created considerable interest among the non bowlers in the city.



The week is being promoted to interest more people in the splendid game of lawn bowling. This is a game of skill but easily learned and it provides wholesome recreation for both old and young. It is not a strenuous game but it does require physical dexterity in that one must be able to stand on their feet for lengthy periods of time. The game is played on grass, kept in perfect condition and with bowls that are easy to handle. The object of the game is to come as close as possible to a white ball, called a "kitty" and which is moveable if struck by a bowling bowl. A certain number of ends are played and the side scoring the most shots are declared the winners. The most delightful part about lawn bowling is the sociability engendered and the happy times spent in the clubhouse after the games have been completed.

Since the formation of the club the clubhouse has been completely renovated and even the older members of the club were surprised when they saw the changes that had been made. Financially the club was not able to undertake this work through contract, but several of the members volunteered to give some of their time to this work and the club will never be able to repay them for the work that was accomplished. At the present time the clubhouse is one of the nicest and best equipped in the district and the facilities are all free to those aspiring to become members.

During the next week there will be instructors on hand every night to explain the rudiments of the game. As has been said before it is an easy game to learn and the more one plays the more fascinating the game becomes. The dues are certainly not exorbitant and it would be hard to find a recreation period that is less costly and at the same time give the participant a considerable amount of pleasure.

So come on out next week and become a lawn bowler.

Devilled Sea Food Is Tasty Dish

BY MARY MOORE

The gourmet lunches and dinners served at Glenhurst Annual Antique Show and Sale in Brentford are worthy of resounding praise.

The committee members graciously gave me their recipes and I had a hard time deciding which one to make first as on to you. Finally I voted on Devilled Seafood because it is different and because you will have no difficulty buying the ingredients locally. It may be assembled in the morning and refrigerated, ready to put in the oven before dinnertime. Serve it to your gourmet guests.

DEVILLED SEAFOOD
(serves 6)

1 lb. cooked or haddock fillets
¼ cup hot water
one 8-oz. can lobster
¼ cup butter
2 tbsps. flour
1 tbsp. cornstarch
½ cup 10% cream
milk (see amount below)
1 tbsp. fresh lemon juice
1 tbsp. catsup
½ tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
½ tsp. horseradish
½ clove garlic finely chopped
½ tsp. prepared mustard
¼ tsp. soy sauce
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. accent
2 tbsps. parsley
2 tbsps. sherry (optional)
½ cup fine breadcrumbs
(2 slices quartered, to buzzed in blender)
2 tbsps butter

In a large frying pan gently poach the sole or haddock in ½ cup hot water for 5 minutes covered. Do not overcook—fillets should just be opaque. Drain and reserve liquid — see below.

Now reach down from the shelves all of the "devilling" ingredients and line them up in a row and measure and add to hot sauce: lemon juice, celery, Worcestershire sauce, horseradish, chopped garlic, mustard, soy sauce, salt, accent, parsley and sherry if used. Stir well.

In a shallow baking dish arrange poached fillets, broken into large pieces. Over them arrange a layer of lobster from which you have removed the flat cartilage boxes. Pour sauce over all. Cover completely with breadcrumbs and dot with butter. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 20 minutes, browning crumbs to a rich gold under top burner if necessary.

Devilled Seafood is flavorful and rich and should be served with fresh crusty French bread.

DORIS CLARE

Dear Doris: Id like your material on the perceptually handicapped child. The 15 cents and stamped envelope are enclosed.

I have a nine-year-old girl who fails within the very low two percent of the group of visually handicapped young sters. I am thankful that at least it has been recognized and we are receiving help at school, which wasn't offered in the first two years of her schooling.

My dear one is without a father, and being a working mother (Reg. Nurse) I feel I need all the help I can get in helping her adjust to life in so many ways.

Also — is it right to encourage the playing of a musical instrument, at this age and stage? She is very musical (vocally) but I dont want to start her at something she will feel is just another failure, just when she is growing enough confidence to try to sound words and print a few on her own. — Working Mother

Dear Mother: The lengthy leaflet "Children With Learning Disabilities" is reported of much help to other mothers and teachers. It is on its way to you.

If your little girl is musical might get a tremendous lift out of being introduced to the playing of a musical instrument. It could give her confidence, handled right.

No pussing, some help and interest in her practice. Praise all along the line.

Dear Doris: "One hours of so many men in their forties and fifties who suddenly, after many years as devoted husbands and fathers leave home and start chasing some young thing of 18 or 20.

Do they realize the heartbreak and devastation they leave behind them? How can they expect the teen-agers of today to sort out their futures when they don't have a stable man for a father to hand out advice?

Whatever they may give for an excuse for leaving home, it all adds up to the same thing — they went to prove the old boy still has some zing in him. Doris, what advice can you offer to the family left behind? — Stella

Dear Stella: True. Usually the philanderer of 39-odd fears he has lost his grip and is experimenting with one last fling. I don't condone it.

But here is my advice for you: It wont help anything to be bitter, will it? Question whether you, too, have chances. Have you switched, your attention from him to your young people?

Anonymous letters are bad manners and may be ignored. When writing in, give Doris your right name and address. It will be kept confidential.

The good old-fashioned virtues of love and understanding would lick him below the belt. Try them, and be honestly forgiving.

Dear Doris: I have an unmarried sister who had a child out of wedlock, and the girl is married now. Would this child inherit the mothers property, or money, if any? — Little Known.

Dear Little Known: In general, she may inherit. Unless for instance:

(1) Her mother has executed her from her will.

(2) She has been legally adopted by another set of parents.

Estates can become pretty involved; your best resource about any individual case is a lawyer, who will interpret for you the provincial regulations concerning inheritance.

Throw Rugs Prevent High Heel Shoe Marks

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read recently in your column that you did not think it was in good taste for a person to hang notes on new furniture asking guests to keep their feet off the upholstery and their wet glasses off the wood tables.

What would you do about a 200-pound sister-in-law with stiletto heels who comes to visit and punches holes in your brand new hardwood floors? This happened to us during Christmas and I was sick about it. We had the floors sanded in January and refinished in February. You guessed it — Two Tea Tassle cards for Easter and our floors are ruined again.

ANN LANDERS

I know hardwood grows on trees, but money doesn't. I would like your opinion on how to deal with this problem. — ONE MAD RELATIVE.

DEAR MAD: If your 200-pound sister-in-law ruined your floors because she was doing Spanish dances you'd be justified in asking her to cut it out. But floors are for walking and if all she does is walk on them you can't ask her to stop. Put down throw rugs when Tessie comes to visit and tell her about the problem. If she's a good egg, she'll offer to remove her shoes.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 11-year-old daughter Dee saw an ad offering a $25 reward for the return of a pet cat. Dee telephoned her friend Ruthie who had also seen the ad.

They decided to look for the cat together. Dee went to Ruthie's house. They got a rope and a piece of meat and off they went.

After some hunting they spotted the cat in the hedges near the woman's home. When the cat ran under the porch they notified the woman that her pet had been cornered. The woman was very happy and retrieved her cat with no trouble. She handed Ruthie the reward money — $25.

When they arrived at Ruthie's house her mother said, "Let's give Dee $5. After all it was Ruthie's rope and meat that caught the cat so she should have most of the money."

Dee felt this was unfair and left empty-handed. She did not say anything, she just started to cry and came home and told me the story. A few minutes later Ruthie's mother called and asked me to send Dee back for the $5. I replied, "Let's just forget it."

My husband says, I should have insisted on a fair deal — a 50-50 split. He claims that children should learn early in life not to let people take advantage of them. What do you say? — ONE WHO HATES FIGHTS.

DEAR ONE: The girls should have shared equally in the reward money. Ruthie's mother ought to be told that it's too late for the split now, but, in the interest of fairness, she should write a cheque to your state organization for retarded children and present it in your daughter's name.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our next door neighbor has been divorced for five years. She has two children. I had heard a rumor that she is pregnant but I refused to believe it. I saw her today and she is indeed very pregnant.

What shall I say to our 14-year-old daughter when she notices? She is sure to get how this can be. I need your help. — SPEECHLESS.

DEAR SPEECHLESS: If your 14-year-old daughter does not know how this "can be," it's high time you explained it to her.

Steer clear of moral judgments for the sake of the woman's children. This is your opportunity to demonstrate true compassion.

Put anything from a shiny spoon to a cooky or a toy just outside the playpen where Johnny will have to stretch and work to reach it.

The effort of reaching for something may fascinate a small child so much, that mother can drift away to her housework without being noticed.

Thomson Ordered to Sell Part of Scottish TV

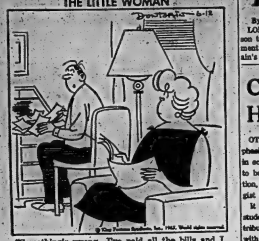
BY HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP)—Lord Thomson today expressed disappointment with the decision of Britain's Independent Television Authority ordering him to sell off a big chunk of his ownership in Scottish television.

The authority, announcing new six - year television contracts to become effective from July, 1968, decided that the Canadian-born publisher should cut his control in Scottish television to 25 per cent from the current 55 per cent.

Thomson, who once described his control over commercial TV in Scotland as a licence to print money, said he is not "too worried" over losing ownership though he would have preferred to have retained a greater percentage than 25.

"This is not terribly serious," he said in an interview. "our net profits from Scottish television were only £250,000 ($1,050,000) last year.



"This does not have a major impact on our over-all operations."

The requirement resulted from the authority's decision that no publisher should have a majority control over commercial television.

"I would have preferred to be able to retain, say, 45 per cent of the shares instead of just 25, per cent but I accept the authority's decision," Thomson said. "There will be a major reorganization of the Scottish television company.

"Some say that a company can be controlled with just 25 per cent of the shares but there seems no doubt that we shall be losing control."

Competition Emphasis Harms School's Status

OTTAWA (CP) — Over - emphasis on competition for grades in schools is causing teen-agers to become indifferent to education, a York University sociologist said Saturday.

It is generally believed that students' grades should be distributed from A to failing marks with most of the class in between.

Prof. Clifford Paynter told the Canadian Association of Sociologists and Anthropologists, meeting at Carleton University that this system encourages an intense individualistic struggle for grades.

When one student achieves a high standing, it means it has been at the expense of his fellow students, leading to subsequent unpopularity and "a decreasing interest in and alienation from school."

Most teachers and parents are products of the system, he said, and they suspect that scholarship and intellectuality are not the "ideal of red-blooded youth."

Prof. Paynter recommended group competition, standard grading systems and an attempt to instill academic interest in students.

Group competition—a mathematics league smaller to a football league — would encourage students to co - operate with members of their own class.

Standard grading systems would not mean that one student's success meant another student's failure, but would be an objective test of ability.

Apostolic Delegate Named

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Pope Paul today appointed Archbishop Emanuele Cabrino, apostolic nuncio to the Dominican Republic, as apostolic delegate to Canada.

He succeeds Archbishop Sergio Pignedoli, returning to Rome as the new secretary for the Congregation of the Propagation of the Faith.

Archbishop Clarizio, 56, was a close collaborator of the Pope when the pontiff worked in the Vatican secretariat of state. In 1965, Archbishop Clarizio acted as mediator during civil strife in the Dominican Republic.

French-language TV Station In Toronto Is Believed Likely

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) —A three-year-old organization founded to work for establishment of French-language television in southern Ontario is confident that the CBC will establish such a station in the Toronto area by early 1969.

Marc Yurin Giroux of Welland, president of Association de la Radio - Television Francaise du Sud de l'Ontario, said in an interview Saturday the station's programs might be relayed to most of southern Ontario, where there are more than 220,000 French-speaking persons.

He said French-language television in southern Ontario would be a tremendous boost for national unity and would help to maintain French culture in the area.

"Without it, French culture in southern Ontario would probably disappear."

The ARTF, a consumer organization, submitted a brief to the CBC in 1963 asking for a French radio network outlet in Toronto. CBC converted CJBC to a French-language station in 1964.

Charles - Scheller - Kelly of Windsor, an association director, said during the weekend that he has received assurances that a French - language radio station will be opened in the Windsor area in 1968, CJBC cannot be heard in Windsor.

Canadian Ace In Aviation's Hall of Fame

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (CP-AP) — The late Air Marshal W. A. (Billy) Bishop, Canadian ace who shot down more German planes than any other Allied pilot in the First World War, was named to the International Aerospace Hall of Fame at its third annual awards dinner Saturday night.

Bishop, a native of Owen Sound, earned the nickname "Hell's handmaiden" from the Germans as he destroyed 72 of their craft during two brief tours of duty. He was awarded the Victoria Cross for shooting down three German planes single-handedly.

The portrait of Bishop, who died at the age of 62 in Palm Beach, Fla., in 1956, was unveiled by his son Arthur, a Spitfire pilot in the Second World War.

Four others prominent in aviation history also were named to the Hall of Fame at the dinner.

The others were French aviator Louis Blériot, first man to fly across the English Channel; American aviatrix Amelia Earhart, first woman to fly the Atlantic alone and lost on an attempted round-the-world flight five years later in 1937; Albert Santos Dumont, a Brazilian who pioneered development of lighter-than-air craft near Paris at the turn of the century and Sir Frank Whittle, a pioneer who patented a type of jet engine as early as 1921.

Whittle, 80, is the only one of the five still alive.

Fire-fighting Conscripts Killed

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., (CP)—Two men killed in a helicopter crash 60 miles north of here Friday were identified Sunday as John Germosk, 46, and Edwin Ho, 21, both of Aubrey Falls, Ont.

The two men were Ontario Hydro workers conscripted by the department of lands and forests to fight a 2,000-acre fire at Mashagama Lake.

The pilot of the craft, Douglas Green, 29, received only scratches.

The helicopter went down in a remote lake near Mashagama. Provincial police divers recovered the first body Friday. The second body was recovered Saturday.

Cardinal Dies

PALERMO, Sicily (AP)—Ernesto Cardinal Ruffini, 79, one of the staunchest conservative prelates of the Roman-Catholic Church, died of a heart attack Sunday.

Cardinal Ruffini, the archbishop of Palermo, was the second cardinal to die in two days. Joseph Cardinal Ritter of St. Louis, a progressive, died Saturday. Their deaths reduced the present membership of the College of Cardinals to 91.

SPORTS SLICE

By Geo. H. Carver

AN OPEN LETTER TO SOME DADS OF THE CITY

DEAR POPS:

There is a huge group of men and some women in this city who are sports-minded and youngster-conscious and who are doing their best to teach your sons to be good athletes and instil in them the true spirit of sportsmanship.

These men and women give their time-effort and oftimes money free of charge to assist Junior Joe and Jack along the early trails of soccer, baseball, softball and hockey.

They are the coaches and managers and administrative officials who form the backbone of organized minor sports with their only reward the success of their efforts.

They make personal sacrifices of time off from their daily toil to give your sons, to the best of their ability, the fundamentals and subsequent training in the sport they like.

None of us in this weekly and sometimes weird world of sport is perfect. That goes for players, coaches, managers, sportswriters, sponsors and player association executives.

What a weird world it would be if they were perfect.

Coaching a team of athletes, regardless of what sport they engage in, is a thankless job at the most. Patience, tolerance, the ability to teach, to win the confidence of those under his care are the prime requisites of a good coach.

In minor sport there are absolutely no-no's. Youngsters do not only have to be taught the fundamentals of the sport, but also teamwork, how to keep their individual ability, to respect leadership, and how to take defeat as gracefully as they take pride in victory.

Most dads realize and accept the fact that the training of their athletic sons should be left entirely in the hands of his coach.

But there are some who do not see it that way. These usually are the type that go to see Junior play about once a year — and like not what they see.

This department has had complaints about parental interference with coaches not only via telephone but in personal contact at games while being played. Certain statistitians have been contacted and bitterly criticized because a son had not been credited with a hit, a run — or is hockey a goal or an assist.

Some fathers resent the idea that because they none make only occasional appearances at the local rink, the youngsters are being slighted by the coach.

One recently contacted a coach at a minor baseball game and "bawled him out" because the son had only played one or two innings.

Surely, with 18 players allotted to a baseball or softball team, you dads cannot expect your boys to play the full game of seven innings. After all there are only nine players on a team.

Nor are the coaches, some of them at least, entirely blameless in this respect. It is only human nature to want to win. But to win regardless of cost is another matter. In hockey it has been proven that some coaches especially in playoffs or championship series, have used the best players and let the rest sit on the bench. Happily this situation is fast disappearing, in most cases.

Some of the youngsters, too have been known to exaggerate team conditions especially their own cases.

Every youngster cannot expect to be a Bobby Hull, a Mickey Mantle or a Sandy Koufax. Their potential players early and the good coach sees that it is developed. I believe those men are too interested in youngsters and sport to make any discrimination of players under his charge.

A well-meaning dad will help the coach in the development of his son's athletic abilities by encouraging him, in giving him the benefit of his sports knowledge, if he has any, and if he hasn't, draw the attention of the youngster to do as his coach instructs him.

Parental interference with coaches and club officials, statistitians will have its reflection in the youngsters themselves. No red-blooded moppet wants to say he made the team because his dad told the coach to put him there. That wouldn't be the case anyway.

So dads, give the coach and your sons the chance by refraining from personal interference. Some boys learn more quickly than others. The others will come into their own later on.

As was noted, coaches like dads, are not perfect. But you can help by letting the coach run his own show by his own methods and I believe without favor to "special" players.

Phillips Had Field Day

Cub Blasts 4 Homers In Twin Wins

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Adolfo Phillips still takes his share of lumps, but Chicago Cubs' outfielder has stopped running for his life and started hitting back.

Phillips smashed four homers Sunday, driving in eight runs and leading the Cubs to a 5-3, 18-10 doubleheader sweep over New York Mets.

Phillips, who set Cub records of 32 stolen bases and 135 strikeouts, and was plunked 12 times by pitchers for another club mark last season, went down for the count when he tried to steal home in the eighth inning of the opener.

But he bounced back in the nightcap, walloping three homers to vault into the National League's top five in both homers, 11, and RBI, 38.

While Phillips was handing Sunday punches against the Mets, Atlanta slugger Henk Aaron was on the run against San Francisco Giants. Aaron collected four hits, including a pair of infield singles, and stole three bases before scoring the winning run from second on an infielder error as the Braves edged the Giants 4-3 in 10 innings.

Cincinnati's league leaders dropped the first game of their doubleheader to Houston Astros 7-4, then rebounded on Dan Pavletich's grand-slam homer for an 8-4 nightcap victory. St. Louis Cardinals trimmed Los Angeles Dodgers twice, 8-7 and 7-5, and Philadelphia Phillies buried Pittsburgh Pirates 14-1 in a single game.

In Saturday's games, Cincinnati trimmed Houston 8-4, St. Louis defeated Los Angeles 5-1, Pittsburgh edged Philadelphia 4-3, San Francisco beat Atlanta 7-2, The New York - Chicago game was postponed because of rain.

Phillips, who started his power spree with a bases-empty homer in the second inning of the opener, tried to duplicate Ted Savage's steal of home in the eighth but was tagged—on the chin—by Mets catcher Bob Taylor. Adolfo lay on the ground for several minutes while the Cubs' trainer waved smelling salts under his nose.

Not long afterward, however, Phillips was back in the swing. His successive homers in the third, fifth and sixth innings accounted for seven runs.

Randy Hundley hit two homers, Ron Santo and Ernie Banks one each for the Cubs, while Don Sembosky, Tommy Davis, Jerry Grote and Bob Johnson connected for the Mets as the clubs tied the major league record of 11 circuits in one game.

The Braves snapped a 3-3 tie in the 10th when Aaron singled, stole second and flashed home as first baseman Jack Hiatt dropped the throw from third baseman Jim Hart on Dennis Menke's roller.

Aaron's hustle enabled left-hander Denny Lemaster, who went the distance, to gain his seventh victory in eight decisions in a duel with loser Juan Marichal 3-5.

Pavletich's grand slam capped a five-run uprising in the ninth that lifted the Reds past Houston in the other nightcap. Singles by Doreen Johnson, Jim Colker and Tommy Helms filled the bases and a walk to Leo Cardenas forced in the tying run before Pavletich connected against Dan Schneider.

Milt Pappas picked up the victory in relief after joining the box in the opener as Bob Aspromonte paced the Astros' attack with a homer and double.

Bay of Quinte Yacht Club

Sail-Past; Sheer Nautical Beauty!

It was a yachtsman's day and the Bay of Quinte put on her prettiest dress for the big party.

The weathermen beamed his approval and tempered a brilliant June sun with a breeze that ruffled the water into a six-inch ripple.

All-in-all it was an ideal setting for the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club's annual sail-past Saturday Afternoon.

The Quinte yachtsmen found favor in the eyes of the sailing gods over the weekend Sunday, which saw the first racing event of the season was also given ideal weather and sailing conditions.

The sail-past inaugurates the official racing season at the club. Sunday's first competitive event was trophy races for Division One and Two.

The nautical pageantry of the sail-past was a picture of white-winged beauty, augmented by the sleek lines of handsome power craft of the Bay of Quinte Power Squadron and visiting craft.

Heeling slightly to the breeze the yachts passed the saluting flagship in line followed by the power craft with a number of non-member small craft bringing up the rear or viewing the panorama from the sidelines.

Yacht Club Commodore Ernie Colebourne took the salute aboard his boat "Tedrick II" anchored a short distance off Victoria Park.

Vice Commodore Jack McFarlane in "Windigo" led the larger craft past the official flagship with Freeman Burrows in "Puffin" heading the O'Day Day Sailers and Northern sloops in order.

Many handsome sailing craft from other clubs added to the general color.

The Quinte Power Squadron out in full force moved slowly past the saluting base led by Bill Bonnell in "Kelson IV".

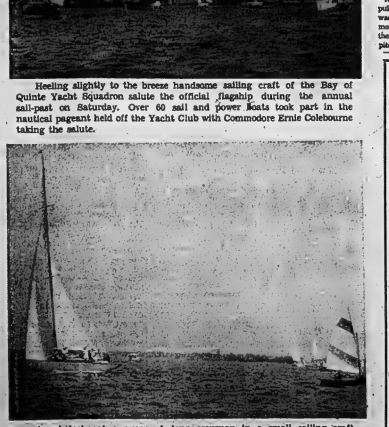
Many craft from the Picton and Trenton Yacht Clubs and power squadrons were in evidence. High ranking officials of the clubs viewed the sail-past from various craft.

As the sailing craft passed the base jibs were hafted and personnel stood at attention. Power boats dipped ensigns with crews also at attention.

The bbats flew the ensign only during the sail-past with all "dressing ship" after the saluting formalities.

The social atmosphere in the clubhouse following the sail-past left little to be desired. Members and guests enjoyed a smorgasbord followed by dancing.

In the first race of the season Dr. Ken Douglas won the Division One keelboat event with his Alberg 30 "Serendipity" taking the Grand Trunk Trophy.



Jack Sills in his cornvetes sloop "Windrift" was the first to cross the line following a scant two seconds later by Bob Lanning in his sumeter "Jungo."

Douglas was declared the winner on corrected time using the handicap rating for the Alberg 30 Class.

Freeman Burrows sailed his Day Sailer to victory in Division Two centerboard class and was awarded the British American Trophy.

Heeling slightly to the breese handsome sailing craft of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Squadron salute the official flagship during the annual sail-past on Saturday. Over 60 sail and power boats took part in the nautical pageant held off the Yacht Club with Commodore Ernie Colebourne taking the salute.

A cat looks at a queen. A lone crewman in a small sailing craft admires the beauty of a heeling "big sister" during the annual sail-past of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club. Many small craft enjoyed the nautical spectacle from the sidelines as member craft and power boats paraded in Nearly 700 braved a downpour of rain, the heat and humidity and pushed $12,246 through the pari-mutuel windows.

The prices were good, Single De Best paying the top for the night in the ninth race returning $48.30 to his backers. The best "price" money $1030 went to the backers of Butch in the fourth with best "show" money being $4.80 by Double Star in the ninth.

Dudley Herbert driven by Clarke Newton took the first race's in 2.17 paying $3.70. Dara Tooting took the special trot event in the second race in 2.15 paying $4.80 and turning back the bids of Mr. Spodsky and Forjet.

West Spawns 2 Senior Hockey Loops

CALGARY (CP) — The Western Canada Senior Hockey League disbanded Saturday and two new leagues were born—each of which named itself the Western Canada Senior Hockey League.

One included Calgary Spurs, Edmonton Nuggets and Saskatoon Quakers of the old WCSHL, the Canadian national team and, on a partial basis, the U.S. national team and an unnamed European club.

The other league's members were all Canadian: Regina Caps, Red Deer Rustlers and Yorkton Terriers of the old WCSHL and Drumheller, Alta., Miners, Alan Cup champions in 1966.

The new international league will play under international rules and the Canadian league under Canadian rules.

Both said they will leave it to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to settle the question of league membership, which members of the new international league describe as "academic."

Ron Butlin, owner of Calgary Spurs, said an international schedule, probably of 32 games, will be worked out within 19 days. Play was scheduled to start Nov. 1.

The Canadian league said it plans a 36-game schedule to start in the first week of November. It planned a further meeting at Regina June 24 to discuss details.

The U.S. Nationals and the European club, probably from Finland, would play one game against each Canadian member in the international league.

Neither would be eligible for Allan Cup competition but points would count in league standings to "make it competitive." This also would apply to the Canadian Nationals.

Vic Stasiuk of Moose Jaw said none of the clubs in the all-Canadian league had been interested in joining the international circuit. Said one league member: "It would be too expensive."

Butlin, who has been prospecting the international league since May of 1966, said in an interview:

"It appears the Canadian National Team is going to play on a full schedule."

Details were still being worked out.

Formation of the new league had been approved by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and its Alberta and Saskatchewan branches. Butlin said approval of the international Ice Hockey Federation was not necessary since the European team would be in effect playing only exhibition games as it toured Canada.

The Canadian national team would send four players to each of the Canadian clubs. Butlin said they would be on scholarships offered by business and industry in the three university centres.

In turn, the Canadian national team would be able to pick up any player from the three clubs for international tournament play. It would not be limited to picking up solely from the players it sent to each club.

Batting — Adolfo Phillips, Cubs, smashed four homers—three in the second game—and drove in eight runs with six hits as Chicago swept a doubleheader from New York Mets 5-3 and 18-10.

Pitching — Louis Tiant, Indians, scattered seven hits and struck out 11 in a 12-1 victory over Kansas City that twirled Cleveland's doubleheader sweep.

Boros: Wins Buick And $20,000

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Julius Boros, winner of the Buick Open, faces the same problem many other golfers have — the little woman thinks he is playing too much golf.

"I made an agreement with her that I would play in only 15 tournaments this year and I have played in 10 already, so I guess I will have to cut down some," he said.

Boros won the $20,000 first prize in the $100,000 Buick Open, which he considers a stepping stone for next week's U.S. Open.

The 47-year-old Mid Pines, N.C., swinger became the first pro on the PGA tour to win three tournaments this year. He previously captured championships in the Citrus Open and Phoenix Open.

He posted a 69 Sunday—three under par—for a 283 total that left him with a three-stroke margin over three players.

2 TIE FOR SECOND

Bert Yancey of Tallahassee, Fla., Bob Goalby of Palm Springs, Calif., and R. H. Sikes of Cleveland tailed Boros at 286 and settled for $8,166 each.

At Balding of Toronto, the only Canadian entered, received $1,250 for tying several others at 292. Balding was first reported out of the tournament after missing the 36-hole cutoff at 150, but he qualified after the soggy conditions forced an adjournment of the cutoff figure to 151.

Boros boosted his total PGA career earnings to $538,000. He is one of four in the elite half-million dollar class. The others are Arnold Palmer, Bill Casper and Jack Nicklaus.

Cleaners Stop Cementmen

A five-run burst in the eighth inning assisted Trenton Curtis Cleaners of a 9-3 Trent Valley Softball League win over Point Anne, in Trenton, Saturday night.

Elsewhere, Madoc defeated RCAF Flyers 8-5 and their game tonight is postponed because of exams.

The victory was a big one for Charlie Drake's Cleaners' squad, sweeping the Cementmen's undefeated mark at four games and tightening the loop race considerably.

Lone runs in the third and fourth gave Carm's a slim 2-1 lead going into the seventh. Point Anne netted a pair in the top of the inning on Glen Manley's two-run triple for a 3-2 edge. Trenton came right back for a pair, then exploded in the eighth, sparked by Clare's pinch-hit single, two errors and hits by Barker and Lewis, to put the decision in range.

Bob Lott allowed nine hits in a route-going effort on the Trenton pitching mound, hurling his way out of trouble in the third and fourth frames. He struck out five and walked two.

Ron Marcetz gave up eight hits in suffering the setback, all of the safeties coming in three of the winners' four scoring frames. He fanned seven and handed out six free passes.

Leadoff man Dale Lewis was tops at bat for Trenton with a double and two singles. Onebagger went to Don Cole. Sonny Fosbay, Art Barker, Jim Whyte and Roger Drake.

Ron Marcetz had a triple and single and Rick Rossbush two singles on Carm's offensive behalf. Vern Whalen doubled with other safeties for Denny Maher, Ron Marcetz, Jim Hopwood and Gerry Maher.

The same clubs clash again at the Point tonight, at 6:45.

Chisox Drub Yankees Twice; Grab Lead

Jim Perry provided Minnesota Twins with relief in more ways than one and then went loose in an effort to get some for himself.

Perry, suffering from a sore throat and fever, entered the second game of a doubleheader Sunday in the third inning. He left after the sixth inning and went home.

In between his arrival and departure, the veteran right-hander was tough on Baltimore batters, hit a two-run homer and singled in another run as the Twins won 10-7 after losing the opener to the Orioles 2-1.

While the Twins and Orioles were splitting, Chicago White Sox moved into first place in the American League by a game over Detroit Tigers. The White Sox swept 2-1 and 3-2 victories over New York Yankees, and Detroit lost 6-4 to California Angels.

Cleveland Indians beat Kansas City Athletics 12-1 and 3-2 and Boston Red Sox split with Washington Senators, winning 4-3 before losing 8-7 in other AL games.

In Saturday's action, Chicago walloped New York 9-0, California shut out Detroit 2-0, Kansas City trounced Cleveland 10-1, Washington trimmed Boston 7-3 and Minnesota whipped Baltimore 5-1 in the second game of a doubleheader. The first game was postponed because of rain.

Perry, now 2-4, relieved Jim (Mudcat) Grant in the third inning with two runs in and a man on third. He gave up a run-scoring single and then got the next two men to end the inning.

Minnesota tied the game at 4-4 in the fifth when Ted Uhlaender singled and Perry hit his first homer, and won the game in the sixth with four runs.

The six - hit pitching of Bill Dillman and Curt Blefary's two-run homer in the fifth inning, which broke a 2-2 tie, gave Baltimore its first-game victory.

Wayne Causey's RBI single in the fourth inning broke a 1-1 tie in the first game and Gerry McNertney hit a three-run homer in the fourth of the nightcap for Tiant's sweep.

Bruce Howard held the Yankees hitless in the second game until Joe Pepitone singled in the sixth. Howard needed no relief help in the ninth when Ru-

Eastern Canada Track

Records Go At Meet!

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — A 15-year-old high jumper and a former Maritimer turned in the top performances of the Eastern Canada track and field championships during the weekend.

Bob Sandilean, a Toronto high school student, established a Canadian record of 6-foot-10 inches to win the midget high jump. The former record was six feet.

Pat McManamaan, 23, who moved to Oshawa from Amherst, N.S., about two years ago, tossed the hammer 168 feet, 4½ inches to better the standard Canadian native record of 160 feet, 10 inches. His effort was below the pending native record of 171 feet, 10 inches set by Dave Leitch of London, Ont., earlier this month.

Leitch also competed here but finished second with a throw of 166-6.

Susan Nigh of Toronto approached a Canadian standard in the women's high jump. Miss Nigh, 19, cleared five feet, five feet, seven inches — two inches below the Canadian mark of 5-9, set by Diane Gerson of Trail, B.C.

Her attempts to equal the record came during a cloudburst and Miss Nigh did not blame the elements.

The meet marked the return of Nancy McCredie of Brampton, absent from competition for almost a year.

Miss McCredie won the shot put with a toss of 46 feet, seven inches, well below her Canadian mark of 52-1½.

Frank Mariotti of Oakville, Ont., a student at the University of Oregon on an athletic scholarship, ran the 100 yards in 9.7 seconds, equalling the Canadian record and world record. Mariotti's time was good under assisting conditions.

Miss Macklin became a double winner by capturing the women's long jump and 80-metre hurdles. B.E. Greenough of Edmonton won the long jump and triple jump and Roberto Picco of Toronto in the women's mile and half-mile.

Hair Specialist Here Wednesday

Will Show Men and Women How to Save Hair and Prevent Baldness

OTTAWA, Ont. New home treatment methods for saving hair and improving its growth will be demonstrated in Belleville, Wednesday, June 14th, 1967 at the Hotel Quinte.

Specialist J. Alberti will be in charge conducting the dynamic Roberts Hair & Scalp Specialists organization. He will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1.00 to 8.00 p.m.

This new treatment is neither "mail order" nor "cure-all". It is adapted to the individual after a personal examination and progress is checked at regular intervals by a Roberts Specialist.

Who Can Be Helped?

Will the new Roberts' treatment cause baldness? "Not" For years it has been men and women who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But if you still have fuzz and your scalp is still creating hair, you can at least save and thicken what you have. Some conditions call it "spot baldness" usually have complete coverage if caught in time!

Other conditions that usually bring on excessive hair-loss — dandruff, itching, over-dryness or dryness, follicles clogged with sebum or seborrhea — can be corrected by the Roberts home treatment if caught in time.

"DON'T WAIT UNTIL IT'S TOO LATE."

Baldness won't wait for doubters to be convinced, you're going to keep right on losing hair 'til you're bald unless you get your scalp in healthy, hair-growing condition again.

Examine You Free

We want to make it clear that you incur absolutely no charge or obligation by coming in for an examination.

Your only obligation is to yourself. We do not accept cases that will not respond.

Guarantee Satisfaction

The Roberts' Specialists will give you a written guarantee that you must be satisfied within 30 days or it will cost you nothing.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk for Mr. J. Alberti's room number. He will be glad to see you personally, so come in at your convenience.

Examinations are given in private.

Parsons Bow To Kingston

The slump-ridden Parsons' Cleaners of Belleville discovered last night that even outplaying the opposition does not necessarily bring victory.

Parsons suffered their fourth Kingston and District Soccer League setback against one win by bowing 3-1 to Kingston General Sport Club, at Zwick's Island.

Parsons' next action will be in their Centennial Tournament coming up here next Saturday and Sunday.

Belleville outplayed the Sport Club throughout most of the game Sunday evening but the forwards proved weak in front of the goal and failed to take advantage of good scoring opportunities.

Kosar pushed home a rebound to shove Kingston in front 1-0 after being pinned in their own end for the opening twenty minutes.

Sollen broke through the middle of the defense to make it 2-0 before the half ended.

A series of hard attacks finally paid off for Parsons' when Bob Rutherford slammed home a close-in shot.

Belleville continued to press without success — until the final minute when Tomashenko slid scored again for Kingston to end it 3-1.

Expo Soccer

England Wins Tourney

MONTREAL (CP) — England, sparked by Francis Lee of Nottingham Forest, defeated Borussia of Dortmund, West Germany, 3-2 Sunday to win the Expo 67 international soccer tournament championship before the largest crowd ever to see a soccer game in Montreal.

Wignall, a 27-year-old forward, scored a pair of goals in the second half to give the English eleven a come-from-behind victory before 27,467 spectators. He tied the score 2-2 at the 57-minute mark of the second half and added the winning goal 10 minutes later.

Norman Hunter scored the other goal for England. Reinhold Woosh and Lother Emmerich scored for West Germany.

Pierre Duroy, commissioner-general of the world's fair, presented the Expo soccer tournament trophy to the English squad after the fast, rough game.

In the consolation game Saturday afternoon, Russia defeated Austria 3-1.

Minor Softball

Two of last week's raised out game in the Belleville Minor Softball Association's Senior East Hill division were played on the weekend.

Campbellford Plaza edged Stephen Licence 15-13 while Browns skinned the Seals 11-2.

South Hastings Baseball

2-Hitters Feature Games

It was a great night for pitchers in the South Hastings Baseball League Saturday evening.

Latta zipped Read 1-0 in a battle of two-hitters while Shannonville topped Canniffon Flaws's 8-1 with the winning pitcher in that game also firing two-hit ball.

Leafs Take Pair From Jax Suns

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pitcher Dave Morehead of Toronto Maple Leafs apparently has solved two of his major problems.

He was criticized early this season for failing to finish what he started and was hampered because his team-mates in the International League did not provide enough runs.

Morehead, who pitched a no-hitter for Boston Red Sox of the American League, restricted Jacksonville Suns to three hits Sunday and stayed around until Toronto erupted in the 10th inning for a 6-0 victory.

Bob Montgomery cracked a three-run homer and John Ryan contributed a two-run shot off rookie Dan Frisella, who held the Leafs to five hits during his regulation time at Jacksonville.

The triumph which followed a split in a Saturday doubleheader with the Suns left Toronto in second place, four games behind Rochester Red Wings.

Howard Meeks hurled the victory for Latta, striking out 11 and walking one. He also squeezed home the game's only run in the third inning after Bob Casselman led off with a double and reached third on Richard Hall's single.

They were the only two hits allowed by losing moundsman Frank Parrell, who struck out one and did not walk a batter.

The game was played at Canniffon when rain washed it out at the Latta diamond.

Read's two singles went to W. Pearce and C. Farrell.

In Shannonville, Dave Lewis followed up his brother Larry's no-hitter of a week ago with the two-hit win over Canniffon. Dave struck out four and walked a pair.

Thompson hurled for Canniffon. He gave up just five hits and struck out 10 while walking two. Three runs in the first inning cost him the decision.

The win was Shannonville's second in succession after the club had only a tie in its first seven starts.

Doug Dafoe attended to Shannonville's first four runs. He slammed a three-run homer in the first inning and added a solo blast in the third. Larry Lewis, Jerry St. Denis and Bob Boyle contributed singles.

Both Plaue's hits came in the fifth frame, singles by Hugh Petrie and Larry Adams.

Carmel Whips Frankford 13-2

Carmel's South Hastings All-Stars whipped Frankford 13-2 in an EOBA peewee division game on the weekend. The Carmel club has two home games on tap this week, playing host to Welmont Tuesday and to Belleville Lions Club on Friday. Both games are at 6:30.

Frankford used five pitchers in an effort to stop the hitchungry winners while Dale Bamber hurled the victory.

Bamber, McCoffery and Robert Allison clouted three hits each in the 16-hit attack. John Masterson and Morris added pairs, DeMille a double and Rochlad a triple.

For Frankford, Kyle Conley had three safeties, Bruce Hogle, Al Bread, L. Bastede, Bill Hoyle and Ken Rose one each.

MONTREAL (CP)—Col. Jack Davies, general manager of the Commonwealth team that will take on the United States in a match at Los Angeles July 5-6, Sunday announced the addition to the team of Carol Martin of Toronto in the women's discus event.

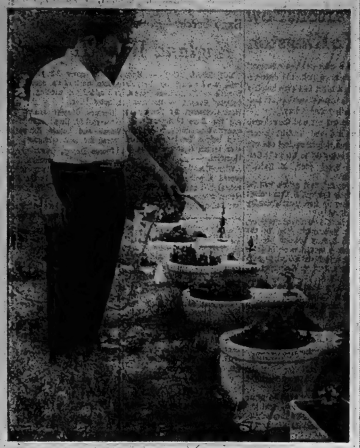
Russia, Spain In Final



EASTBOURNE, England (AP)—Manuel Santana carried Spain into the European Zone A finals of the Davis Cup Sunday, defeating Great Britain's Roger Taylor 6-4, 6-3, 7-5.

Santana's victory gave Spain a 3-1 lead and nullified Mike Sangster's 6-4, 9-11, 4-3 triumph over Spain's Luis Arilla later in the day.

Opposing Spain in the Zone A finals will be Russia, which defeated Chile in Moscow. The European Zone B final will pit Israel against South Africa, which stopped a 5-0 sweep of France Sunday.

Does he take better care of your kids than you do?

He may.
He was concerned enough about the kids he drives to install a set of new Goodyear polyesters on his car.
And they're not even his kid.
This doesn't mean school pickup operators are rich. This man only paid about $30 a tire for his Goodyear polyesters. Yet they're among the safest tires you can buy at any price.
This is a new kind of tire. It's considered the most significant improvement in 20 years. The difference is in the cord; new polyester cord. This is an incredibly strong synthetic cord that has all the advantages of nylon and rayon combined, with none of the disadvantages.
It's another first from Goodyear.
The major car manufacturers have selected Goodyear polyesters as original equipment on their new cars. And safety isn't the only reason.
These polyesters are also longer wearing.
They've practically eliminated the problem of cuts and tapost breaks.
They're smoother riding, and they're quieter running too.
They won't "flat spot" overnight. So, no morning thumps.
They'll even improve your gas mileage.
Like all Goodyear tires, the new polyesters are fully covered by Goodyear's lifetime quality and road hazard guarantees.
Talk to your Goodyear man soon about polyester tires by Goodyear.
And next time you take your kids for a drive, take a look at your tires. If you think maybe the kids would be better off in the school pickup, you know what to do.
The new polyester* tire by Goodyear. It could save you more than money.

*Polyester is registered as Yylcord by Goodyear and is available in Goodyear Double Eagle, Custom Power Cushion and Power Cushion tires.

Canadian Medical Association Plans For Negotiations Concerning Medicare

QUEBEC (CP) — Organized medicine has no intention of being out-negotiated by governments in forthcoming rounds of talks on provincial medical care insurance programs.

General counsel of the Canadian Medical Association Saturday took two steps to improve the doctors' ability to negotiate with governments, one to be implemented at the national level and the other at the provincial level.

A special department of collective negotiation will be established at CMA national headquarters to collect information and provide advisory services to provincial medical groups negotiating with governments.

At the provincial level, the council urged that the CMA's provincial divisions each set up a special committee with the continuing job of studying the needs and techniques involved in collective negotiation.

With provincial governments working to set up programs that will qualify by July 1, 1968, for federal payments, the aim is to give the doctors expertise in negotiations of initial and subsequent medical care insurance agreements.

Several efforts were made which would have delayed implementation of the recommendations for another 12 months, especially by Ontario doctors.

They complained that the committee's proposals fail to recognize the Ontario Medical Association's position that its members intend to deal only with their patients and not the provincial government.

In marathon 14-hour sessions Saturday, the general council also voted 111 to 55 to move the CMA's headquarters to Ottawa from Toronto and build a central building.

Dr. Arthur Peart, CMA general secretary, said the move to Ottawa might spur bilingualism and biculturalism in the association.

With medical care insurance problems to the fore, the doctors will hear Health Minister MacEachen today in his first major address to the CMA since passage of the federal care insurance act last December.

In election of officers, general council named Dr. H. E. Dalgleish of Saskatoon as president-elect. He takes full office in June, 1968.

Covenanters' Service Is Held By Presbyterians at Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—A 17th century covenanters' service was re-enacted in Vincent Massey Park Sunday by those attending the Presbyterian General Assembly here.

The open-air service honored the memory of Scots covenanters who resisted the efforts of Charles I and Charles II to make them adopt an episcopal form of worship.

The covenanters worshipped secretly in the glens of Scotland, posting guards to warn of the approach of the king's men.

Rev. John Logan - Vance, moderator of the 93rd general assembly, conducted the services and Prof. A. L. Farris of Knox College, Toronto, was the preacher.

Earlier, Governor - General Michener read the lesson in a service at Knox Presbyterian Church.

Unification of the armed forces is not a national disaster, the Protestant chaplain - general told the general assembly Saturday.

Air Commodore E. S. Light said:

"We shall realize in the months ahead that the forces of our country are in good hands."

Memorial Service Held For Canada's War Dead

OTTAWA (CP)—A memorial service for Canada's 112,331 war dead was held Sunday on Parliament Hill to highlight the opening here of National Veterans Week.

More than 1,000 spectators turned out for a ceremony similar to others held all over the country.

Governor - General Michener, Prime Minister Pearson, Defence Minister Hellyer, Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet and Gen. Jean V. Allard, the chief of defence staff, were present.

Fifty-man army, navy and air force contingents marched with veterans to the Hill for the drumhead service. The piled drums were those of the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa pipe band.

During the week, there will be special war displays at the National Gallery and National Museum, nightly retreat ceremonies at the National Cenotaph, and the showing of historic war movies at the National Museum.

There will be a dinner Friday night at Government House for holders of the Victoria or George Cross, open house through the week by Royal Canadian Legion branches, a band concert and fireworks Saturday night to end the week.

Baptists Hear Theologian

Church Coming of Age 'Crisis' Really Growth

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A leading United Church theologian told an assembly of Baptists Sunday he gets tired of hearing people say the church is in a period of crisis.

Dr. Zsolt S. Lautenschlager, professor of Emmanuel College, Toronto, told the annual meeting of the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec that he looks upon the so-called period of crisis as a continuing translation.

Dr. Lautenschlager described the church today as "developing or coming of age to meet the capacity and needs of people coming of age."

"The church once condemned under all circumstances, lending money at interest, divorce, abortion, mercy killing and suicide. The Christian ethic on these points has developed and I take it we all, in principle, accept the developments. As such we do not oppose the new morality."

"What we do oppose is new morality which is not progression in Christian love and sensitivity and which constitutes retrogression into lookiginess and licentiousness."

During the assembly dinner Saturday night, six Baptist missionaries and ministers were honored for having completed 40 years of service. They were Rev. George Downing, Rev. H. B. Hardy and Rev. Robert A. Price, all of Toronto; Rev. Harry W. Hill, Mount Forest, Ont.; Rev. Leslie Wilton, Georgetown, Ont., and Mrs. Oliver Hunter, Sudbury.

In an address to the dinner, Dr. John E. Thomas of the McMaster University philosophy department criticized advocates of the new morality who think that to make Christian ethics relevant, some rules must be abandoned in certain circumstances.

"The answer to making the Christian ethic relevant is not to dilute it so that it becomes easier to obtain, but rather, to strengthen human beings to believe in extraordinary and sometimes superhuman ways."

A. T. Paddon, treasurer of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec, reported a budget deficit of $60,153 for 1966.

Delton Krupf, chairman of the stewardship and finance committee, said the deficit was largely due to a reduction in member contributions.

Sixth of British Immigrants To Canada Back in Homeland

OTTAWA (CP) — Of 195,383 immigrants to Canada from Britain between 1956 and 1966, more than 36,500 returned to Britain.

The returned migrants are said to be taking the "thousand-dollar cure."

The cure, so named because of the cost of moving between countries, has two definitions, depending on whether the viewpoint is Canadian or British.

The Canadian says the "re-immigrant" is disillusioned by Canada and returns to his homeland—where he will find things weren't as good as he thought—and will return to Canada.

The Briton says the re-immigrant was fed up at home, came to Canada where he became disillusioned, and returned home.

Anthony Richmond, a York University sociologist, says the whole idea is a myth created by undue British publicity given the small minority of permanent repatriates who were dissatisfied with Canadian life and, in Canada, by the small number of re-immigrants who eventually return to Canada.

He told the Canadian Association of Sociologists and Anthropologists meeting Saturday at Carleton University that most people who return to Britain and then come back to Canada are young with few family responsibilities and easily transferable skills who don't feel they want to settle in any community or country at this stage.

A study of return immigrants between July, 1962, and June, 1963, showed they fell into three categories: those who had only planned to spend a couple of years in Canada; those who had planned to settle but were somehow dissatisfied; those who weren't ready to settle anywhere.

In the 1962-63 survey, 31 per cent of the re-immigrants had intentions of returning to Canada. They stated their standard of living in Canada had been much higher than in Britain

Three Businessmen Drowned In Plane Crash in Manitoba

GOD'S LAKE NARROWS, Man. (CP)—James R. Shore, 41-year-old president of Office Overload, died with two of his firm's executives Friday when his plane crashed on landing.

Mr. Shore, an experienced pilot was piloting his single-engine Widgeon Amphibian when it crashed in water Friday evening at Weasetwasa, 11 miles west of this fishing settlement 360 miles north of Winnipeg.

The only way to get into the isolated area is by air and word of the crash did not become public knowledge until Sunday.

Other crash victims were Gordon David Hamilton, 34, manager of Marketing Overload, an Office Overload subsidiary, and Mr. Shore's friend, George Barnard. Both were from Toronto.

Mr. Hamilton's body was recovered but RCMP suspended late Sunday. The search was to resume today.

The three men were on a pleasure trip of a party of six, all attached to Office Overload, who had gone to the area for some relaxation and fishing.

In another aircraft, the other three arrived first and set up camp at the mouth of the Weseboven River.

One of them, who asked his name not be used, said Mr. Shore's plane was observed momentarily by trees when it came in for what appeared to be a normal landing.

"Then we heard the engine quit all of a sudden and when we went to see, the plane was in the water and over on its side."

He said the three made it out of the plane and started swimming to shore about a quarter of a mile away. None of them made it.

An avid outdoorsman and big game hunter, Mr. Shore was a joiner and, civic booster who had taken on the responsibility for promotion of the forthcoming Pan-American Games at Winnipeg.

He started Office Overload at Winnipeg in 1949 with a $500 loan from his wife and it has grown into a giant which dominates the field of finding the right help at the right time for businesses needing temporary secretarial help.

Expo's Sky Ride Halted by High Winds

MONTREAL (CP)—Expo 67's Sky Ride cable car system was halted late Sunday as a safety measure after winds gusting to 36 miles an hour began whipping across the site.

An Expo spokesman said the ride was halted after some passengers complained that the fibreglass cars were swaying.

At some points the four-passenger gondolas soar to 120 feet above ground and water.

The $900,000 system lifts visitors high over Expo's La Ronde amusement area, across Dolphin Lake and down to Leo Ullaze, a re-creation of early French Canada.

The ride lasts 3½ minutes and 80 cars can handle 2,400 persons an hour each way.

Sunday's varying overcast eventually gave way to a solid downpour, sending late evening crowds scurrying for home. However, by midnight 288,491 had gone through the turnstiles, topping Expo's expected 202,500 for the day and building up the total-to-date to 11,399,611.

The band of the Royal Norwegian Guard gave a concert Sunday in an unusual bandstand —a ship anchored for 1½ hours in Regatta Lake on Notre Dame Island. Afterwards they gave a military tattoo performance in Place des Nations on St. Helen's Island.

Expo visitors riding the Expo minirail got an unpaid thrill early Sunday when the mass transit system came to a halt because of one burned-out motor.

For an hour passengers sat chatting and smoking in the balmy night air while technicians struggled to replace the dud part.

Expo security men brought up ladders to take people down but most preferred to stay put. At some points the minirail rises 40 to 50 feet above the ground.

It was a weekend of shipping movements on the site.

Saturday saw the arrival of the 72-foot Chinese junk Chang Feng, which was completing a 214-year voyage from Hong Kong.

Expo Commissioner - General Pierre Dupuy grabbed a rope and helped pull into the mooring area the unguidy vessel whose name, said an Expo official, stands for Strong Wind.

Sunday, the Swedish destroyer Halsland, the Finnish frigate Matti Kurki and the Danish frigate Ingolf left for Halifax after a six-day stay at Expo.

A few hours after the roar of 21-gun salutes was heard as the burg and Schleswig Holstein arrived to start week-long visits.

Coin Exhibit at Expo Proves Instant Success

MONTREAL (CP) — Expo 67 got itself a glittering pile of silver dollars Saturday for $1,000,000 during the weekend, but for the moment at least it is dealing in fakes coin.

Billed as Million Dollar Mountain, the tempting exhibit sparkles in the gloom of a room tucked inside a 60-foot-high cement mountain covered with artificial plants and real mountain goats in the La Ronde amusement section.

Saturday, when the mountain finally opened after weeks of trouble and several fake starts, it proved an instant success—attracting more than 1,000 people at 25 cents a head within the first 12 hours.

The trouble is that the visitors were not really paying to see $1,000,000 in silver coins but were looking at a good facsimile of what that much loot would look like if it did not have a hollow centre.

"We're not trying to fool anybody," Gordon McKnight, a partner in Van Horne Sales, the Montreal coin exchange which runs the display, said Sunday.

"We had it all lined up to buy the 1,000,000 silver dollars from the Canadian mint and then the deal fell through. We cleaned out every bank in the city to collect as many silver coins as we do have here."

Mr. McKnight was reluctant to say just how many silver dollars are in the glass case which holds the glittering mass of money.

His terms it "considerably less" than $1,000,000 worth but says the false centre of the six-foot-high display will be filled with more real coins as soon as he can buy them.

A spokesman for the La Ronde administration centre said Sunday his office had not been aware the display did not contain 1,000,000 coins and, once informed, had ordered officials at Million Dollar Mountain to replace the signs.

"The stock exchange's troubles began when bankers refused to loan coins to buy the silver dollars on the ground they would be difficult to dispose of once the fair is over.

Then when the money was finally raised, the price of silver rose on the international market and the Canadian mint was no longer willing to sell its silver coins.

"We went around from bank to bank and from coin dealer to coin dealer before we finally raised enough to make the display," Mr. McKnight said.

He had already insured the exhibit for $1,000,000 and was left paying policies to cover a lesser sum.

Stratford Festival Opens Season Tonight

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP)—The 15th season of the Shakespearean Festival tonight begins a summer program that includes five plays, two operas and 15 concerts.

Three first nights in the big, circular Festival Theatre open the festival season: Shakespeare's Richard III, June 12; Nikolai Gogol's The Government Inspector, June 13; and Shakespeare's The Merry Wives of Windsor, June 14.

Oct. 14 the company goes to Expo for two weeks. The full period of 20 weeks—not counting a pre-season tour which began in February in Calgary—is the Stratford Festival's longest run.

Alan Bates, English stage and movie star, takes the title role in Richard III, directed by John Hirsch, a co-founder of the Manitoba Theatre Centre who now is one of three associate artistic directors of the festival.

Tuesday's Gogol play was adapted for Stratford by Peter Raby. It is directed by Michael Langham, retiring chief of the festival, and stars William Hutt.

Tony van Bridge acts the role of Falstaff Wednesday in Merry Wives of Windsor directed by David William.

Other plays in the festival are Shakespeare's Antony and Cleopatra, starring Christopher Plummer and Zoe Caldwell, and Colors in the Dark, a new work commissioned by Stratford from James Reaney, poet and English professor of London, Ont., which opens July 25.

Mr. Plummer was to have taken the part of Richard III as well as Antony, but movie commitments prevented this.

Antony and Cleopatra is the last play being directed by Mr. Langham as the festival's artistic director. He was chosen by Sir Tyrone Guthrie, Stratford's first director, to succeed him in 1956. His duties are being taken over jointly by Jean Gascon and Mr. Hirsch.

'History of the Horror Film' Thought-provoking Treatise

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Only in recent times have the intellectual critics of film's discovered the horror movie, and it's a pity.

As a longtime fan of movies, I am always alarmed when the lighthouse examiners enter a segment of film history. I enjoyed Chaplin immensely until thinkers raised questions of the profundity of his comedy. Likewise I was an enthusiast for the gaudy musicals of the 1930s until I learned from the priests and priestesses of current taste that such films were crass, an expression that seems out of date after a year or two of currency. And so it was with trepidation that I approached a new book by Carlos Clarens called An Illustrated History of the Horror Film.

The volume turned out to be not as illustrated as it is billed only three inserted sections of photographs. And there are the cerstiones of ever-intellectualizing for what was intended to be popular entertainment.

Example: An attempt to prove the "erotic content" of King Kong.

Clarens writes: "The makers of King Kong went so far they carried the Beauty - and - the-Beast premise to absurdity—the acute disparity of size between Ann (played by Fay Wray) and Kong puts any erotic rapport completely out of the question. And so the films purpose to a substitute gratification in some spectacular sadism and sheer mayhem: Kong vents his frustration by razing the native villags and, when really put out, he turns Manhattan into a shambles."

Except for such over-analysis An Illustrated History of the Horror Film is an amazingly thorough and thought-provoking treatise.

Barbara Bain Is 'Overnight' Discovery After 10 Long Years

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Barbara Bain, winner, here in Hollywood, is having too much to do," says Barbara Bain.

"I swear an hour went by in mind I filled in 'Show-acrick'" nominated Again for The Big Valley.

"And then he said 'Bain'—and I said, 'hey, that's me!' And Martin (Landau, her husband and co-star), also nominated) lifted me up. I went up those steps and my knees turned to liquid."

Barbara, 33, is one of those "overnight" discoveries who has been acting for 10 years in theatre and television.

Drama studies fitted her for Desire Under the Elms and other New York plays, Studio One and other television performances.

She met Landau in that first acting class:

"He dismissed me as a dumb, shallow, blonde model. I thought he was arrogant, crude and rude. A week later, at a party, we got to talking, solved all the world's problems and discovered each other wasn't like that at all."

Shirley J. Chisholm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald F. Chisholm, Roslin, received a Bachelor of Arts degree in French and history from Queen's University at convocation June 3, 1967. Miss Chisholm is a graduate of Moira Secondary School, Belleville.

Accepts Job As Teacher

George Allen Dever, a native of Belleville, has accepted a teaching assistantship for graduate standing with the State University of New York in Buffalo.

He recently received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the university and takes up his new position in September.

During the summer months Mr. Dever is teaching histology at the university.

While on the faculty Mr. Dever will work on his thesis degree. He has also been offered an assistant coaching position at the university.

To Your Good Health

Childhood-type TB Not Contagious

Dear Dr. Molner: One of my children was exposed to tuberculosis and was hospitalized for six months with what was called "childhood-type of T.B." Friends and neighbors say he will be handicapped for the rest of his life. Please tell me the truth. — J. F.

I am shocked that you were told such a thing. It is not true.

"Childhood-type of T.B." is involvement of the glands which are situated in and around the trachea and bronchi — roughly speaking, the windpipe and passages leading to the lungs proper.

In this type of T.B., the germs have affected these glands but not the lungs themselves. And — especially important — the germs have not succeeded in establishing what we call an open-type of T.B., or areas in which the germs are flourishing and reproducing.

The "open - type" is, of course, the most dangerous type. Not only will the infected area spread unless checked, but the system shows a positive test for the germs. That is to say, the patient, with every cough and sneeze is scattering the germs in the air and endangering anyone close enough to breathe them.

With the "childhood-type," while the glands are affected by the germs, the body is still succeeding in combatting them, has prevented open infection from starting in the lungs proper, and is not producing germs which will be breathed into the air and passed on to others. In short, in that form it is not contagious.

If the body's defences are sufficiently strong, the "childhood-type" will be fought off successfully. This often happens. If the body's defences begin to lose, however, then there is every likelihood of the disease advancing to the lungs and becoming the full-blown, "open" case of tuberculosis.

Thus it was fortunate that your son's case was detected and he was treated before serious damage was done. With such treatment, people (including your son) can live an entirely normal life, no restrictions of any kind. It is inconceivable to me that anyone with any factual knowledge would have made such a bald and unfounded remark to you about the boy being "handicapped."

As a matter of fact, people of my age often have scars to show that we had the childhood type of T.B., because it was very prevalent in our youth. Most of us — except those who developed open T.B. — never knew until later that we had had the childhood-type. The only worry it could be detected were a positive tuberculin test, showing that we had been exposed to the germs, or X-rays showing calcified (scarred) nodes of the glands.

Dear Dr. Molner: Our physician's daughter got off the subject and talked about blue babies. He said that no matter what the cause of lack of oxygen at birth, these people never live past their 30th birthday. This doesn't sound correct. — A.R.

It isn't correct. Perhaps the teacher said that many of them do not live full lives, but a great many blue babies become healthy and strong and long-lived by means of heart surgery.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there some kind of shot or medicine for relief of jaundice?—Mrs. L. B.

Jaundice isn't a disease. It is a symptom. Hepatitis and other liver diseases and sometimes diseases of the gall bladder tract are the principal causes of the yellowness which is jaundice.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible to have a first baby at the age of 45 and is there any risk? — E. D.

It's possible. It has happened, and will happen many past their 30th birthday. This doesn't sound correct. — A.R.

Population 32,785

The population in Belleville jumped by more than 2,100 over the past five years according to Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures released today. This is a seven per cent increase.

The city population is now 32,785 and 30,655 at the last census.

Two Scouts Rewarded For Courage

Acts of pillantry on the part of two local Boy Scouts were officially recognized last week in the Belleville city council chambers. John Steven Wilson and Brian Muir were presented certificates of gallantry signed by Governor - General Roland Michener and by Mayor Jack Ellis.

Steve Wilson will be officially presented with the gilt cross in Ottawa by the Governor General, the chief Scout in Canada.

Last July at Martin's Camp at the Outlet Beach, Picton, the two Scouts noticed a young girl go under the water. Steve, although not a strong swimmer, plunged in to rescue her, only to be pulled under. While others watched, Brian assisted the two from the water, which is reported to be 20 feet deep.

Taking part in last evening's ceremony were J. H. Bateman, Belleville Boy Scout District Commissioner and Low Andrews, president of the District Council, with Scouter Kirby and the boys of the 5th Belleville Troop.

Steve is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald M. Wilson, 10 Harris Crescent. Brian is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Muir 324 North Front St. Both boys were 12 years old at the time of the incident.

Scouts honored last week were Brian Muir and Steven Wilson, standing behind their sons are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Muir and Mr. and Mrs. Donald M. Wilson.

Tel Aviv Crowds Beaches

Between Sundays, History Made

By DAVE McINTOSH

TEL AVIV, Israel (CP)— Last Sunday, the beaches and sidewalk cafes along Dizngoff Road were crowded. This Sunday, they were again.

In between Sundays, Israel destroyed the air forces of four Arab countries, penibled the armies of three of them and occupied a territory more than four times the size of Israel itself.

The political consequences of the week likely will endure for a generation.

Some Arabs may dream of eventual revenge on the Israelis. They probably will be unable to do anything except nurse their wounds for decades.

Granted that Arab nations are no models of military proficiency, the Israeli successes were nevertheless stunningly swift.

As one Canadian said, "perhaps all military colleges should be moved to Tel Aviv."

REVISITS AREA

More than four years ago I flew over vast stretches of the Sinai Desert in an RCAF Otter plane serving the now-extinct United Nations Emergency Force.

By then, the carnage of the 1956 Sinai campaign had been hauled away or buried by the drifting sand. Only a few Bedouin tents abetted by tainted their crude wind - and - sand - breaks could be seen in the wadis and on the hills, and perhaps a camel train en route to Rafah to get water from the Canadian troops.

From the air this weekend, the impediments of war could be seen littering all the main tracks across the northern Sinai.

There were blasted or intact Soviet-built tanks, trucks and howitzers all over the desolate landscape.

But perhaps the most chilling sight of all was that of thousands of stragglers from the shattered Egyptian Army making their way on foot to them would obviously never make it.

Some ran or cringed or threw themselves into the sand as our small plane went over, thinking of the punishment already inflicted on them by Israeli strafers.

Others didn't even bother to look up but plodded on, heads bent.

Some had already given up. They lay prostrate in sand from heat or thirst, or both.

Egyptians keep poor records, if any, of the numbers of casualties or missing. In thousands of Egyptian homes, no official word will ever ariive of the fate of these men or others lost in the swirling tank battles of Monday and Tuesday.

A few vultures—if the Sinai, even picking for the vultures are less—hovered over the struggling mass of returning men.

The Sinai sandstorms will do the rest in a short time for those who do not make it.

The Sinai will continue to be dangerous for decades because of thousands of buried landmines.

Several Canadian members of UNEF were killed by mines left over from the 1956 campaign.

The Israelis fought this campaign differently than the one in 1956.

Eleven years ago, they bypassed the Gaza Strip and ran their tank columns between Egyptian positions in force, enveloping as they went a much weaker Arab army. This time, they fainted in the south and made two frontal assaults on heavily-fortified positions farther north.

By Tuesday, the second day of the war, they were already starting to mop up.

On the central front against Jordan, they operated two pincer movements to take the west bank of the River Jordan in two days, capturing the Old City of Jerusalem almost without damage to Jewish, Christian and Moslem holy places.

Even before the firing stopped, the Jews were worshipping at their most sacred shrine, the Wailing Wall.

Some Jews were killed by snipers on their way to the wall, where they had not been allowed to worship since 1948. Israeli soldiers had to root out snipers and grenade-throwers from the garrets and cellars of the seedy Arab quarter of the Old City.

Meanwhile, Syria had been shelling Israeli villages along the northern border from a vantage point on a ridge of hills north of the Sea of Galilee where they had been preparing deep positions for four years.

Not even Israeli planes could drive the Syrians out of their bunkers, similar to those the Chinese Communists used in the Korean War.

Israeli infantry, many of them switched from the Sinai and Jordan fronts in a brilliant feat of logistics, had to scale the hills and dig out the Syrians with rifles, grenades and bayonets.

By Saturday night, they had taken the ridge and were 20 miles inside Syria when the United Nations ceasefire was arranged.

Israel suffered its heaviest casualties in this battle although exact figures have not yet been released.

By contrast, one of the easiest operations for the Israelis was the taking of Sharm el Sheikh at the bottom of the Sinai Desert.

When the Egyptians occupied Sharm el Sheikh, they blockaded Israeli shipping into the Gulf of Aqaba.

The Israelis sailed down the gulf from their port of Elath and took Sharm el Sheikh with infantry moved in from landing craft.

The Israeli Army was able to conduct three simultaneous campaigns because their air force virtually destroyed Jordanian, Syrian, Egyptian and Iraqi air power in the first three hours of the war Monday.

Seven Egyptian divisions were left without any air protection whatsoever after the Israeli Air Force hammered 25 enemy airfields so far nearly 20 years.

Not even Egypt, catching nearly all the planes on the ground.

Even Israeli pilots say they are at a loss to explain how the Arabs allowed their air power to be so easily knocked out when it was known for two weeks that war might be only minutes away.

One Israeli pilot bought his Canadian money here last week to take his family to Expo 67 in Montreal. He was killed Monday.

U.S. Law Enforcement Probe Told Drunkenness Not Crime

WASHINGTON (AP)—A consultant to the U.S. president's crime commission suggested today even moderate drinkers might turn to potent drugs if sources of alcoholic beverages were shut off.

Richard A. Blum explained that most persons will not stop drinking, since it "gives more pleasure than pain and ordinarily does not lead to trouble."

And problem drinkers "without anything else but alcohol as a focus of life are sources of pleasure or tranquillization, may well ask us what we have that is better than their spiritual familiar."

Blum, a research director at Stanford University's Institute for the Study of Human Problems in California, made the comments in a report to the president's commission on law enforcement and administration of justice.

In a telephone interview, he added that because nearly all human cultures use drugs—and he considers alcohol a drug—"there's a reasonable guess that if we went back to prohibition we would, of course, try to find other drugs that were acceptable and use them."

"We're so heavily committed to drug use that it would be inconceivable that we could reduce the use of drugs," Blum said.

Blum's report was one of nine on drunkenness prepared by consultants to the crime commission. The papers made public today comprised the sixth of the commission's nine special-

Accident Toll 74, Third by Drowning

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A total of 43 persons died in traffic mishaps and 21 persons drowned during the weekend as Canada's accidental death toll reached at least 74.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday until midnight Sunday, local time, also included 10 deaths in miscellaneous accidents. Quebec reported 16 deaths on its highroads, four drownings and one death from asphyxiation.

Among Ontario's 19 dead were five drownings, a man killed by a train while he was walking along the tracks and a woman electrocuted when a radio fell into a bath tub while she was bathing.

Eight of the 12 traffic deaths in Ontario were recorded Saturday when a family ranging in age from nine to 74 years was killed in a car-truck crash near Ottawa.

The only province to report no deaths was Prince Edward Island.

Strictly Personal

World Too Small Today For Rival Nationalisms

By SIDNEY HARRIS

I refuse to discuss the Israel-Arab war, in print or in person, because there is nothing to say that makes any sense. We could argue forever, and in circles, about "aggressors" and "pacts" and "rights."

The plain fact is that it is too late for nations. The world is too small, too packed, and too dangerous for the flerce, rival nationalisms we have today.

If there were no Israel, the Arab countries would be at each other's throats over some other pretext. If Israel "wins" this war, there will still be no hope for any equilibrium in the Middle East.

Trying to figure out who was the "aggressor" is like trying to determine who "started" a fight among five little children in a playpen. Actually, there is no single aggressor in such situations.

The atmosphere is explosive, any slight jar can set off the first blow. But the first blow is never the "cause" of any war. The cause is the rule of anarchy and the absence of law in the world.

People always want to start with "the personal": They think this make them "realist." But it just makes them hopeless meddlers of past, present, and future.

There is no solution in the present, except conflict, victory and subjugation — followed, in a few years, by conflict, victory and subjugation. And so on, ad infinitum.

The only solution is the establishment of world law, under the jurisdiction of some kind of world government that people will respect and give allegiance to along with their own governments. We cannot achieve this, that system of loyalties, it doesn't much matter who "wins" or "loses" the current conflict, or the next.

It is as absurd to have all those countries in the Middle East as it would be to have a dozen different countries in the Eastern part of the United States. It makes no sense politically, economically, or socially. But it makes great sense for the rulers of those nations.

The Arabs call it a "holy war" — but all wars are unholy and bring nothing but evil. The Israeli call it "a war of survival" — but no country can survive among hostility, resentment and envy.

The larger nations "deplore" the war and utter sanctimonious statements in favor of peace. But they have provided the little nations with their arms, have sold them airplanes and cannons and tanks which they could not make themselves. The "patients" outside the playpen are just as guilty as the children inside for "starting" the fight.

Israel's Next Move: To Make Atom Bomb

NICOSIA, Cyprus (CP) — Israel's next major military move will be to make the atom bomb, authoritative sources in Tel Aviv say.

When a Canadian Press reporter tried to report this from Tel Aviv the entire dispatch was killed by the censor.

Israel censors all press dispatches in peacetime as well as wartime. The censor, an Israeli army officer, said he could not pass the dispatch because he did now know whether it was true.

Asked whether he knew it wasn't true, he went away and made a telephone call and returned to say he could not allow the dispatch to be filed.

Sources in Tel Aviv say it is likely that the Israeli government will make a formal decision to join the nuclear club as soon as a Middle East peace agreement is worked out.

Israel is said to feel it can no longer accept any guarantees for its security from any of the major powers and therefore must build the bomb as protection mainly against the Arab states in the East.

Israel is known to have the technical knowhow to build the bomb though a source of uranium might present a problem. It is taken for granted that Canada won't be the source of any Israeli uranium.

Israel has a nuclear research station in the northern Negev Desert and it is a source of amazement among the Israeli military that Egypt made no attempt to bomb it during the six-day Middle East war.

Israel has expressed strong reservations about the proposed treaty to ban the spread of nuclear weapons and the Israeli decision to build the bomb could throw the Middle East situation into worse confusion if that is possible.

PM Refuses To Indicate Canada's Stand

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson declined Monday to state Canada's position on Israel's refusal to pull back to the borders it held prior to last week's defeat of the Arab states.

He told the Commons it would be premature to answer for Canada's stand on the question at the United Nations because it will depend on "many circumstances."

Cincinnati Negro Gangs Set Fires, Loot Stores

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Roving gangs of Negroes rioted Monday night, setting fires by hurling Molotov cocktails at buildings, looting stores and fighting.

At least six persons were hurt, police said, and several persons arrested.

None of the fires that broke out during the violence Monday night was serious.

The looting took place after bricks and rocks had been thrown through store windows, police said.

The outbreak came in the city's predominantly Negro Avondale section but quickly spread to Walnut Hills and Eden Park sections nearby.

Police did not say definitely the immediate cause of the outbreak but there were reports it was anger by the Negroes over the arrest Sunday of a man who was picketing in behalf of Posteal Lesbry, a Negro under a death sentence.

Lesbry was convicted and sentenced several weeks ago to die in the slaying of a white woman secretary. He has an appeal pending.

Tampa Slums Again Burned and Looted

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Rioting Negroes burned and looted Tampa's sprawling slums Monday for the second straight night, battling with more than 2,000 heavily-armed police and national guardsmen.

Roving bands tossed Molotov cocktails into buildings and at passing cars, snipers harassed police cruisers and chanting mobs sang: "Get Whitey. Get Whitey."

The outbreaks, as opposed to Sunday's trouble, were confined mainly to the Central Village area, a huge, festering ghetto only blocks from the heart of the city.

Governor Claude Kirk supervised 500 national guardsmen, 350 police and 150 armed deputies who sealed off the main slum area.

Firemen extinguished at least 12 fires. For the second consecutive night they were shot at by the rioters as they fought the blazes. One Negro was stabbed in the hands by a guardsman and another was shot in the wrist. A third, reported to be a boy of about 13, caught a buckshot blast from a policeman's riot gun.

In all, five Negroes were admitted to hospital and many other persons, mostly Negroes, were treated and released for various minor injuries.

Police repeatedly were pinned down by snipers throughout the night and early morning hours.

The governor later met with about 200 Negroes. Among those present was Mrs. Janie B. Chambers, mother of 18-year-old Martin Chambers who was killed Sunday afternoon while fleeing police.

His death touched off wholesale looting several hours later. White motorists were dragged from their cars and beaten before the area was sealed off.

Legion Refuses To Take Stand On Draft Dodgers

WINNIPEG (CP)— A resolution that the Royal Canadian Legion oppose granting American draft dodgers an opportunity to become Canadian citizens was defeated Monday by delegates attending the Manitoba and Northwestern Ontario command's annual convention.

The governing committee of the command urged total noninvolvement in the issue.

Arabs Boycott Oil Plan

DAMASCUS, Syria (Reuters) — The Arab League central boycott office is considering sweeping measures to ban British and U.S. goods and firms from Arab countries and withhold oil from any country helping Israel, it was announced here today.

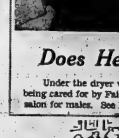
The Egyptian news agency said that . . . Arab countries already have offered to take part in oil production in Saudi Arabia and Kuwait.

Ten Sunken Ships Block Suez Canal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Suez Canal remained closed to shipping today, the economies of Arab nations beaten in war by Israel were tottering and the Soviet Union was seeking a special session of the United Nations General Assembly to try to force Israel from the territory it gained by conquest.

Diplomats in Cairo said the canal, a vital international waterway and a mainstay of Egypt's economy, is blocked by about 15 ships. Shipping experts estimated it would take two to six months to clear them.



Egypt had said Saturday that ships sunk by Israeli planes were blocking the Suez canal passage between the Mediterranean and Asia. But diplomats and shipping sources in Cairo said it was virtually impossible for at least some of the sinkings to have resulted from the attack.

Egypt had hoped to obtain $250,000,000 in badly needed foreign exchange from canal tolls this year. For a country already deep in debt, loss of even a part of this revenue could be a strong push toward bankruptcy.

Egypt owes money to every nation it traded with before the war began. With a $456,000,000 foreign trade deficit, it has been forced to dip into its gold reserves to meet international obligations.

Much of its indebtedness is with the Communist world for weapons and military equipment now lying wrecked or useless in the Sinai Desert. It also owes the United States $170,000,000.

The outlook is bleaker for Jordan. Its major source of income was from tourists to the Holy Land. With the Israelis now in possession of the Old City of Jerusalem and Bethlehem, Jordanian revenue from tourism will largely evaporate.

"Speaking of Landrieville, how's she market?"

Greene Will Meet Farmers

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Greene is willing to meet leaders of Quebec and Ontario farm organizations but he is too busy to set a date in the next two weeks, a spokesman said Monday.

Officials who organized last month's protest march on Ottawa by more than 10,000 farmers have wanted a new meeting with Mr. Greene by June 23.

Rebuilt Power Plant Bombed

SAIGON (Reuters) — U.S. planes Monday bombed an important North Vietnamese power-plant rebuilt after a series of raids more than two years ago, a U.S. spokesman announced today.

The spokesman said fighter-bombers dropped 1,000 and 2,000-pound bombs on the Thanh Hoa thermal power plant which supplies electricity to an area 90 miles south of Hanoi.

Pilots reported the bombs hit the plant's generator section but said gasoline and oil fires prevented any further assessment of damage.

The Thanh Hoa plant was one of the first of 11 North Vietnamese power stations to be bombed by U.S. planes.

In other raids over the North Monday, U.S. aircraft struck at Hoa'i rail links with China 31 miles northwest and 28 miles northeast of the capital.

Israel Now Wrestling With Peace's Problems

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — Israel now faces the problems of peace after the upheaval caused by six days of war.

Its sweeping military victory over the Arab states has left it with four times more territory to control and 1,000,000 more mouths to feed.

Big administration headaches confront the thousands of troops remaining in occupied territories of Egypt, Jordan and Syria, as business moves back to normal in the cities and border villagers emerge from their shelters.

Israel now finds it holds trump cards in any peace dealings with its Arab neighbors and that the nation's life never will be the same again.

Prime Minister Levi Eshkol told the Knesset (parliament) Monday that Israel wants peace but will not tolerate further belligerence from the Arab states.

He said Israel "will not agree to revert to the situation which existed until a week ago."

Egypt Is on Brink of Starvation

ATHENS (AP) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser has fought and lost what he called his "battle of destiny" and brought his country to the brink of starvation and civil war.

Already in debt to every country with which it traded before the outbreak of war June 5, Egypt now is close to bankruptcy. It doesn't have the solace of revenue from the Suez Canal, which is blocked by sunken ships.

Without assistance from the outside, the population of Egypt's principal cities will starve by September. That is how long experts believe the country's current supplies of wheat will last, and the masses in Egyptian cities exist on bread.

Garven Hudgins, chief of The Associated Press bureau in Cairo, was expelled from Egypt last week. He arrived in Athens Monday and writes about the outlook for Egypt.

In its blitz Sinai campaign, Israel captured wells which supplied half of Egypt's oil production. Egypt had hoped to become an oil exporter within two years but now will need to import oil for the foreseeable future.

The impact of Nasser's debacle in Sinai has not yet struck the Egyptian population. But when the grim fall of Egyptian troops in the six-day war becomes apparent, public discontent is certain to mount. It is highly doubtful that Nasser's cover up excuse that American-British intervention defeated him will be able to withstand the shock wave.

Reliable reports indicate Egypt suffered up to 40,000 casualties in Sinai as Israeli jets blasted exposed columns in the desert.

For the moment, Nasser's appeal still is effective and he clearly has the support of the masses. But they are not yet starving.

Nasser's best hope lies in such wealthier Arab neighbors as Kuwait, Libya and Bahrain, which may be willing to come through with loans in the name of Arab solidarity.

Nasser has effectively played the United States off against the Soviet Union for many years. But now he has ruptured ties with the United States, and there is dissatisfaction in Egypt because Russia did nothing practical to aid Egyptian forces in the war.

Late last week, Nasser held two meetings with the Chinese Communist ambassador in Cairo. Peking seems eager to step into the vacuum. That would give Nasser a chance to play China against Russia. Peking already has given wheat and a $10,000,000 loan to Nasser.

MONTREAL (CP) — The federal government will add new parks to the national parks system as fast as provincial make the land available, Northern Development Minister Laing said today.

Wednesday Afternoon

2,500 Expected to Participate In Trenton Parade

TRENTON — Plans have been finalized for the opening of Centennial Park tomorrow afternoon and officials claim more than 2,500 people will participate in activities.

The round of events will get under way at 1:15 when the parade forms up for the march through town to Centennial Park.

Included in the parade are 2,500 youngsters in grades four to eight who will be representing the student population of the area. Three bands will be on hand to provide music for the marchers — the Trenton Citizens' Band; Quinte Highland Pipe Band; and the RCAF Band from Canadian Forces Base Trenton.

Interspersed throughout the parade will be 12 floats provided by local, merchants and organizations. The Centennial Committee has promised prizes for the top three entries in the parade.

The drivers of antique automobiles are also participating in the event and it is expected at least 12 of the old time cars will be on hand. A number of clowns will provide color along the parade route.

James Auld, Ontario Minister of Tourism and Information will represent the province during activities. He will review the parade and later officially open the Centennial Park.

Centennial Committee officials say Mr. Auld will declare the park open by raising a special flag in front of a cairn in the centre of the park area.

Also included in the activities are two dances — an outdoor affair for teenagers and an adult dance at Community gardens. Local orchestras will provide music for both dances.

In the event of rain the children will not participate in the parade and possibly activities will be held in the community gardens.

One of the few complaints the Centennial committee have received in connection with the parade is from the Trenton Legion. They are not participating in activities. They feel many members would not be able to attend since the event is on a week day afternoon.

Branch president, William Lawson, says an unauthorized article in the Legion bulletin is creating an unfavorable impression. The article implies members will not participate because of a conflict with national veterans' week activities.

He says one of the reasons for the lack of participation was the late notification by the Centennial committee who are responsible for parade preparations.

Mr. Lawson said the branch was not notified until last month although the event has been scheduled for as long as eight months. The decision not to participate was made by the Legion executive at a recent meeting.

Barry Box, chairman of the park opening committee, said today, "The Legion was notified by letter well in advance."

Town Centennial Chairman, Robert Carleton, says the June 14 opening date has been public knowledge since last November.

The date has been published in the press and we have yet to receive a complaint."

Beauty Salon for Men Opens

The Owl, Bridge St. East, Belleville's first beauty salon made strictly for males, opened its doors to the city's eager young men, Wednesday last.

Still, The Owl is more than a salon where hair-dos are created and styled. It could be described as a home away from home, providing an ideal atmosphere for modern young adults.

Faith Dufour, the initiate of the establishment, got the idea in Greenwich Village in New York. Appropriately the salon looks the part.

The walls are painted black and the floor is purple and in the middle of the room are two shadeless light bulbs dangling from the ceiling.

Besides the actual hair-styling equipment the room is filled with Bohemian - like chairs and couches. Situated on shelves are odds and ends like cider jugs and other antiques and smiling or frowning down from the walls are pictures of the Monkees, Bob Dylan and other recording artists.

A phonograph plays continously the music of those artists. In the recesses of the salon an owl is perched and it is from this that the name of the salon was derived.

I picked up some of the articles in the room in Greenwich Village says Faith Dufour.

The salon offers coffee, music, relaxation and anything that can be done to hair.

"We can style male hair just like the girls". Still the boys don't seem to mind. Business is picking up already.

Getting A Trim

William Pickell, one of the Owl's new customers, relaxes in the salon's Bohemian atmosphere while Pia Santoro artistically creates a hair style for him.

CAMPBELLFORD — Unless dogs are not to leash or quit in the dilemma facing town council after a delegation of citizens appeared before last week's meeting to criticize a dog control bylaw.

The delegation at last week's meeting petitioned council to ease the regulation. They want permission for dogs to run free during the winter months.

Mayor Tanner says he doesn't believe council will change the law. "We're going to control the dogs in Campbellford one way or another. We've had some instances of rabies and

Woman's Penchant for Stone Houses Led to Purchase of Lonsdale Mill

Different people have different interest but few carry their enthusiasm as far as Mrs. Harold Crowe of Belleville.

Mrs. Crowe is the proud owner of a 147-year-old water powered flour and grist mill at the hamlet of Lonsdale — and all because she happens to have a liking for old stone buildings.

The old mill, last operated about three years ago, is still in good working order but the Belleville owner has no interest in operating a grist mill.

"My interest is in old stone buildings and I think it a shame that more of them are not preserved", she says.

But the Lonsdale Mill, built back in 1820, is a landmark in Trenthaven township and down through the years has been a big attraction for district artists and painters.

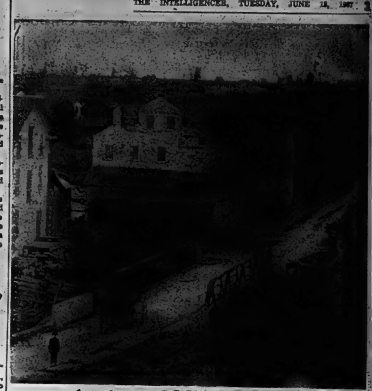
Manly Macdonald, well known Quinte area painter, has done several canvases on the old mill and many amateur painters in the district have done likewise.

Allan Cameron, who with his wife Donnah last week held an exhibition of paintings at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, showed a canvas of the century and a half old mill.

The mill was constructed by the Lester family and was part of a mill complex which was to operate for many years. An adjacent woollen mill was burned in 1904, two years before the accompanying picture was taken.

The original home of the Lester family still stands as does a later brick home built about 1880.

The grist mill was last operated by Joseph McGinnis who ran it for about 40 years. Mr. McGinnis died about three years ago following which the building and the island on which it stands in the Salmon River was acquired by Mrs. Crowe.



All the mill machinery is still intact and until it was shut down in 1954 was one of the few mills in the Quinte district still operated by water power.

Since the mill was acquired by Mr. and Mrs. Crowe, a mammoth housecleaning job has been done. The mill dust of nearly 150 years was swept and scrubbed from all three floors.

Also hydro has been installed "as a convenience" to help a pot of tea or coffee when the Crowe's go to their Lonsdale retreat for a weekend. Windows have been restored and the roof repaired.

During the time of the Tyendinaga Mohawk festival visitors were shown through the old mill by its owners.

With the old McGinnis mill Mrs. Crowe has achieved her desire of owning a stone building. But another lifetime desire — that of living in a stone house — is still in the future.

Ancient Mill Preserved

Historic three-storey stone flour and grist mill at Lonsdale (extreme left) closed in 1954 on the death of the owner, is being preserved by Mrs. Harold Crowe of Belleville as item of personal interest. Above picture was taken in 1906.

20,000-book Library for College Seen

Ontario's new community colleges will aim at true involvement of area citizens in the services and education they provide, according to John E. Bradford, president of Loyalist campus of the Sir Sandford Fleming Loyalist College of Applied Arts and Technology.

Technical works in the Loyalist library for instance will be available to members of the public. A library of some 20,000 books is envisaged.

The public will also be able to take advantage of the college's counselling services, and talks by visiting lecturers will be community occasions too.

Mr. Bradford told Belleville Rotarians yesterday the community colleges aimed at producing individuals— people who can live as well as work.

"We have to strike a balance between the purely practical side and at the same time turn out people who will be challenged further to learn about life and their environment".

Bob Lanning, chairman of the recent Science Fair Hobby Show told members the event had realized a profit of $1,026 which would go toward the club's community work.

Another Landmark Disappears

Vacant for the past several years, the old stone house at 129 Dundas Street, East, is being torn down. Known as the Boland house, the stone structure is believed to have been built about 1820. Beams are hand hewn and the floor joists flattened cedar logs. House is now owned by a Toronto woman.

P. E. County Welfare Unit May Join CAS of Belleville

PICTON (Staff) — County council last night approved the submission of a proposal to the Provincial Department of Social Services for it's approval and consideration concerning the joining of the Prince Edward County Welfare Unit with the Children's Aid Society.

Chairman of the committee appointed to look into the amalgamation of the two units, Bernard Stephens, said that recently a meeting had been held to discuss details of the plan. The plan has been on council's agenda since early this year. The special committee of County council met with representatives of the Children's Aid and with the welfare unit and two department representatives. During that meeting the Government representatives suggested Prince Edward County draft such a proposal.

Miss Violet Anglin, representatives of the Children's Aid Society, and Grant Harvery of the Welfare Unit in the County were requested to set up the amalgamation to decide the feasibility of the plan. It is understood that help from the department of family services will be sought, and providing the CAS board agrees to the plan, the interim plan will go ahead as scheduled. The chairman said the department representatives who attended the meeting seemed enthusiastic about the scheme, the main idea of which, is to investigate the difficulties which may be encountered through the joining of the two groups.

Mr. Hepburn indicated that there would be no personnel investigations at this point and he could also not give an estimate of the cost of such an amalgamation. He did feel, however, that though service might improve, costs might not necessarily decrease.

In recent weeks there has been pressure on the local Children's Aid Society to join with unit in Belleville.

Defence Minister To Speak in Picton

PICTON (Staff) — The recently formed Prince Edward-Hastings Liberal Association at their first meeting later this month will have the Minister of Defence, Paul Hellyer, in attendance. UN's Influence Wanes

The Arab-Israeli conflict has contributed still further to the constantly waning power of the United Nations.

First, UN Secretary-General U Thant authorized the withdrawal of United Nations troops from the Gaza Strip. The Canadians and other UN soldiers had been there since the last major outbreak in the Middle East in 1956, and their presence had ensured peace of a kind over the past decade. However, when the recent conflict broke out the United Nations talked, or rather 'fiddled,' while the Middle East burned.

Israel all this while was eliminating one by one its Arab opponents and overrunning territory from which the Arabs for years past had been shelling and otherwise harassing Israeli farm settlements. Alone Israel made more history and settled more arguments in a week than the United Nations have done in more than 20 years of deliberations.

Israeli skepticism is apparent. For instance, an Israeli officer showed a Toronto correspondent the UN observation post which supposedly had guarded Israelis from armed attack from Syria.

"Syrian shelling has been the thing, day in and day out for several months," the major said. "Each time they started two or three nice UN gentlemen came out, mounted their little white jeep and drove along the border road, but the fire never stopped. Then they reported to General Bull (UN truce supervisor) that they couldn't tell who was firing on whom."

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban meanwhile has told the Security Council that his country's attitude to UN peacekeeping functions has been "traumatically affected" by the UN's failure to respond to the Arab blockade of the Strait of Tiran at the mouth of the Gulf of Aqaba."

People in our country, and in many other countries ask, 'What is the use of a UN presence if it is in effect an umbrella which is taken away as soon as it begins to rain?' "

The question is a perplexing one. The UN has been staggering from one crisis to another and with each one its effectiveness deteriorates a step farther. At best its deliberations give an anxious world a measure of breathing space as well as a forum through which the big powers may exercise some influence at least in bringing hostilities to an end. At worst, the opposing viewpoints and partisanship of those same big powers tend to undermine the overall influence of the UN as a body that seeks to preserve law and order in the world.

Weekend Traffic

Traffic on 401 at the weekend was heavy, assuming almost holiday weekend proportions as people making the most of the warm weather headed for beaches or joined the trek to Expo.

Inevitably there were accidents. One at Antrim, 30 miles west of Ottawa, proved a tragic day for an Ottawa family, while at the same time indicating to highway authorities that safety measures leave very much to be desired.

Eight young persons — a 21-year-old woman, Florence Brown, and her seven nieces and nephews aged between 9 and 18 died when their car was in collision with a transport truck on Highway 17, at the junction of the old and new highways at Antrim.

Provincial Police in the area said a stop sign at the junction at the junction is poorly placed and easy to miss. The white centre line on the old highway runs into that on the new one. Trees and houses make the intersection difficult to see from the east. "There should be a flashing red light there," an OPP constable said.

We are reminded of the old axiom concerning "an ounce of prevention." The driver of the truck said the car was going "straight across the road" when his vehicle hit it broadside about 11 p.m. Saturday. Weather conditions and visibility at the time were good.

There must be other intersections throughout Ontario which would be less potentially hazardous if signs were more easily observed.

While on the subject of accidents there are others of a kind that should never occur, if only individuals would exercise that selfsame ounce of prevention the highway authorities are prone to overlook. Consider, for instance, the fatal combination of electricity and water. This resulted in the death of a 19-year-old Scarboro housewife on Sunday. She was taking a bath when a small radio she had apparently placed on the edge of the tub fell into the water.

Radios should never be plugged into bathroom outlets because of the risk of electrocution.

Will 'Dief the Chief' Ensure a Liberal Victory?

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — A bunch of the Liberal "swingers" were laughing it up the other afternoon in the main corridor just outside the Government lobby, savoring in delicious prospect the next Federal General Election.

They are confident, save for sheer utter and completely unexpected black political disaster, that they have got it made.

And for what, when first you hear it, might sound the strangest of reasons. . . .Diet the Chief.

But the way they are sizing it up, it just might figure.

These are the practitioners of what Prime Minister Pearson has called "the new politics," the activists of his vaunted "wave of youth," who supposedly are thinking up fresh approaches to old problems.

They were gathered there, as they often are, just outside the doors of the Government lobby, comparing ideas off each other's brains while idly watching External Affairs Minister Martin talking into the television news cameras just across the main corridor, and waiting for the PM to come out of the Commons and trot up the stairs to his office.

This is as good a spot as any to lie in wait to ambush the PM for a quick word or two — if you can't get to him in the lobby where the competition with other MPs for his ear is even fiercer.

So while standing there waiting and waiting, they killed time gossiping about who might make it as the new Conservative leader at September's convention, and how impossible it would be for "the poor guy," in the next Federal Election.

Impossible, they umbrced in satisfaction, no matter who he might turn out to be — Donald Fleming, Alvin Hamilton, George Hees, Davie Fulton, Senator McCutcheon, Mike Starr, Dalton Camp) any of the three eligible provincial premiers, Ontario's Robarts, Manitoba's Roblin, Nova Scotia's Stanfield, or some so-far dark horse.

Impossible, also, they grinned no matter when the election came, next year or even '69.

Impossible, they laughed, because the new leader and every one of his candidates would find themselves not only campaigning against the Liberals, New Democrats, Socreds, Creditistes and the rest, but against, of all people, Diet.

Not against him personally, to be sure.

But against the image the party has given itself by what it has been doing to the Old Warrior.

And they are right, too, when you think of it.

Can't you just see it?

There is the Conservative candidate for West Kats tucker land South, up on the platform shaking away at the spendthrift, Republican, bilingualized, highest Grits, and maybe making some good political yarbage.

Then some loudmouth at the back of the hall interrupts him, in a hog-caller's holler, shouts: What did you do to Diet?"

It is a question that can't be ignored — for no self-respecting Liberal will let it be brushed off — and the answer not only isn't going to be easy, but impossible of satisfying everybody, especially the splintered Tories.

How is any Conservative candidate going to answer it?

Answer it in such a way as to who believe in their bones that The Chief was done in by political assassins?

Answer it so as to satisfy all those other Conservatives who have been saying that it's a man," as they call him, almost spitting it out, should have got the boot long ago?

Answer it and mollify still other Conservatives who, while welcoming a new leader and not caring all that much about Diet, still don't like and won't accept the crude way the dissidents went about disposing of him.

There are other complications within these complications, all involving more emotion than reason.

And no matter what the Old Chief might do between now and then to keep howling out with what dignity may be salvaged amid great bellow empty cheers from the dissidents who did him in—the basic difficulty, if not almost impossible situation for the torn Tories won't really change much.

What is worse for the Conservatives is that those same factors, the identical emotionevoking questions will be raised in the minds of the great and growing mass of neutrals, the floating voters, the fed-up the multitudes of disenchanted taxpayers who, seeing the two major parties at the head of a bad high-tax choice — the New Democrats being a worse and even higher-tax alternative — drift, undecided and ripe for the plucking by either Liberals or Conservatives.

What, as a Conservative, do you say in many hour of decision the bitterly-divided ranks when you are asked, as you will be by every enterprising Liberal: 'What did you do to Diet?"

Probe Crash Of Charter Aircraft

Brockville Recorder and Times

Two British charter plane crashes within 12 hours with a total death toll of 180 persons, involved aircraft which were propeller-driven veterans chartered specifically for cheap-pack aged vacation trips to other parts of Europe.

Mr. Maurice Orbach, Labor Member of Parliament for Stockport, England, also of one of the two crashes, has promised an investigation of all other planes being brought into special summer service. And well he might. A cheap charter is no bargain if potential death is one of the co-pilots.

Comeback at Israel?
Nasser's 'Resignation' Viewed as a Political Gamble

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—Western diplomats suspect Gamal Abdel Nasser's on-again-off-again resignation as Egyptian president was a carefully stage-managed act of a veteran political gambler.

They believe Nasser quit as a martyr, knowing he would return as a hero by popular demand.

Officials who have studied Egyptian affairs said they found clear signs suggesting Nasser at no time during the crisis loosened his grip on real power.

They also noted he has yielded none, if any, political ground to colleagues or allies who, in the light of Israel's victory, might criticize him.

SEE DANGER AHEAD

They see new danger for the West and for Israel during years ahead on three of Nasser's central hopes:

—That the task of true Arabs despite setbacks remains to wipe out the last vestiges of "imperialism."

—That Egyptians must lead Arabs in rebuilding for yet another confrontation with Israel.

—The claim that Egypt and her allies owed their setback to American and British intervention.

Informants feel the farewell declaration was timed to follow immediately the outcome of the last armored battle in the Sinai Desert.

Nasser had just accepted the United Nations ceasefire order. His defeated troops were limping home. Humiliation and frustration blanketed the Arab world.

Before the feelings could be transformed into rage against him, Nasser acted to extricate himself. He knew that if his resignation was accepted he would walk in his cottage without having to be marked by accepting humiliating peace terms. He could live to fight another day.

Nasser told Egyptians what they seemed to be awaiting to hear—that American - British carrier, not Israeli strength, beat the Arabs.

What the experts saw as the big giveaway was that Nasser chose Zakaria Mohieddin to be president. They said normally this would not have been within the rights or powers of a national leader forced by adversity to yield office.

Within minutes of his resignation announcement, June 9 in Cairo streets demanding he stay. Within six hours the hand-picked Parliament began how to carry on. Within 18 hours he pledged he would.

CHANGES MUST COME

Yet the consensus among Western and even some Asian diplomats seems that even Nasser must know things in the Middle East can never be the same after the events of the last week.

The Egyptian economy is in a disastrous state. Nasser's ideal for Egypt is the efficiency of the modern Socialist nation, but Israel is the only Middle East country where he can see that working.

The informants believe that for Nasser's leadership and his dream of radical socialism to survive, he must swiftly reappraise his policies - and priorities.

Toronto's Philistines

Globe and Mail

The blossom-laden trees by Osgoode Hall are nodding gently in the warm breeze, the fountains in Nathan Phillips Square are sparkling in the sunshine, and the towers of the new City Hall, soaring into a clear blue sky, never looked better. It's a good place for a leisurely stroll —all the more so since the Centennial Arts Exhibits were assembled in the square.

It may be that Toronto is undeserving of the sculptural treasures that Dorothy Cameron has gone to the trouble of scattering before its citizens. This, at any rate, is the impression conveyed by Miss Cameron, who can spot a Philistine a mile off.

She is upset that some other Centennial celebrations will take place on the square between now and September and she thinks more policemen should be guarding the exhibits. (Whoever thought Dorothy Cameron would demand policemen at an art show?)

Miss Cameron thinks we are pretty lucky to get this show "without having to pay a cent" (although administration costs alone run to $90,000). The Canada Council and the National Gallery bravely shouldered the costs — but we had the notion that these were largely public institutions to which Toronto taxpayers are generous contributors.

Still, there were some compensations to be had. Miss Cameron records her delight at seeing "people who had never been in an art gallery" enjoying the sculptures. How did she know they had never been in an art gallery? What gave them away — the crease in their trousers, the clean-shaven chin, or the look of humility?

JFK Book Gets Poor Response

Vancouver Sun

Those concerned with publishing the book The Death of a President, who are now complaining of poor sales, can expect little sympathy.

For the dollar facts show they charged what they thought the traffic would bear — and apparently grossly overestimated it.

As a starter they allowed the cream of the book to be skimmed by magazine publication — for 20,000 - word extracts at the record price of $250,000.

Then the hard-cover edition hit the market at what most people already glutted with assassination memories, considered a high price.

Canadians especially were asked to pay through the nose.

The publisher's price in the U.S. was $10; in Canada $12.50 — even considering exchange rates, more than a 15 per cent increase.

Compared to some U.S. discount house prices — at which presumably a reasonable profit is made — the increase was nearer 150 per cent. For hundreds of dollars more offered the book at $7.50 and some as low as $5.

With such discount houses here, Canadians could well consider themselves fleeced.

How thousands of the 400,000 copies of the book's initial printing are being returned by dealers and a major Chicago retailer says bluntly: "Despite its building it simply won't sell."

If the price had not been bullish in direct ratio with the publicity it might have sold.

The only regret is that the major loser is likely to be the Kennedy Library, to which profits beyond the first printing are to go. On the current evidence, there won't be any.

Penmanship A Lost Art

Windsor Star

We're in the age of high speed stenography and any facile it may have could be in the fact there isn't enough of it. Most communications are legible to an advanced degree. They can be deciphered with little or no strain. Some are not.

After all these centuries handwriting still has limitations. In one we sometimes pore, and in some instances pencils, that actually roll on paper. But their users too often produce more squiggles and misshapen letters than legible cases.

Asked why she could type so well and use pencil or pen and not so hacky, one stenographer explained: "Well, often when I'm home or in a hurry I just put the writing tablet on my knee." In her haste, indeed, the results bore that out. The fact that it created complications didn't worry her.

Commonwealth Co-operation

Globe and Mail

Co-operation between Canada and Australia could give the two nations an influence in international policy-making far greater than either enjoys alone. So said in the view of Sir Harold Holt, the Australian Prime Minister.

Canadian and Australian togetherness in foreign affairs has not been conspicuously evident since the end of the Second World War, and Sir Harold would like to see this rectified. Australia has a powerful influence in Southeast Asia and the Pacific, and Canada's roles has not been confined to the United Nations and among the emerging nations of the African continent.

The diverse views of member nations have made it increasingly difficult to bring Commonwealth views to bear on international policy-making. It is not impossible, however, for groups of Commonwealth members to act in concert where common objectives are at stake. Goals, of course, are not always the same. (For instance, Canada and Australia hardly agree on conduct of the Vietnam war.) But there is room for progress in other areas such as trade.

The balance of trade between the two nations is substantially in Canada's favor. Last year Canada sold Australia goods valued at $137,358,000, while the value of Australian imports into Canada for the same period was roughly $90,000,000. Australia, finally in search of trade losses if Britain enters the Common Market, simply needs to better in North America.

Sir Harold's plea for bilateral co-operation is said to have received a sympathetic hearing from Prime Minister Lester Pearson and his ministers.

Premier Stanfield Flies to Ottawa To Discuss Cape Breton Steel Layoffs

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—Layoff notices for between 300 and 400 men at the Dominion Steel and Coal Corp's. steel plant here are being drawn up today. The notices, which will affect men with less than 25 years service, are to be posted Thursday morning.

After a day of talks with a Cape Breton delegation, Premier Stanfield flew to Ottawa Monday to meet with federal government officials in an attempt to get more contracts for the plant.

Shortly after the meeting Dosco announced further reductions in operations at the plant would mean several hundred men being laid off that week.

Officials said both blast furnaces and open hearth departments at the plant would become single-furnace operations. In the last two weeks 322 men have been laid off, bringing the total since last November to more than 800.

Martin Merner, president of Local 1064 of the United Steelworkers of America, said Monday the final total of men out of work would probably be more than 1,300.

"There is an atmosphere of misery and great mental strain in Sydney," he said. "Everyone else is celebrating centennial year and the steelmen of Sydney have this cloud hanging over their heads."

Mr. Merner said the union local was waiting to hear the outcome of Premier Stanfield's discussions in Ottawa before deciding what further action to take.

Donald Steele, the local's financial secretary, said it was the worst crisis in the Sydney steel industry since the depression of the 1930s.

He said many of the men laid off earlier were already on relief.

He said lay-off notices were being worked out on a seniority basis and men with as much as 24 years service would be out of work by the weekend.

"The only hope is for the federal government to give the plant orders," Mr. Steele said. "Something must be done immediately already the area's economy has been hit."

FRANKFORD — The sacrifice of early pioneers were linked with those of wartime citizen soldiers as this community concluded observing National Veterans Week Sunday.

Themes of most speakers at a memorial service of local Canadian Legion members emphasized benefits of modern life, which began with the settlers and were assured by Canada's volunteer armies.

William Chesher, president of the Legion's Frankford branch 387 said the example of Canada could be an inspiration to other nations.

Local clergymen participated in the services which also saw presentation of the community's Centennial interchurch choir.

Brands, Not Position Guide Sales

TORONTO (CP)— The Retail Council of Canada got a lesson and a lecture Monday as two academic marketing experts spoke to the Council's annual conference at the University of Western Ontario.

A traditional retailing concept — that of advantageous location of products on a store's shelves — was exploded by C. B. Johnston, professor of marketing at the University of Western Ontario.

Joseph Fry, of Western's school of business administration told the council that a survey paid many earned out by the university showed that brand loyalty was a much larger factor in sales than whether the particular product was displayed in what was considered a prime position to attract the consumer's eye.

Mr. Fry rapped the retailing industry for not interesting business graduates.

Speaker's Happy Thought Loses to Sad Ending

MONTREAL (CP) — The speaker of Czechoslovakia's national assembly took Canada's House of Commons speaker on a visit to the Czechoslovakian Kinoautomat Monday and the pair turned out to have conflicting views about how an Expo film should end.

Canada's Leaden Lamoureux flew in with his wife from Ottawa to be entertained by his opposite number Bohuslav Lastovicka and Mrs. Lastovicka during a tour of Czechoslovakia's popular pavilion, a show in the Kinoautomat and dinner in the pavilion restaurant.

The two speakers are old friends, having met last year in Ottawa when Mr. Lastovicka headed a delegation there and was the guest of Mr. Lamoureux.

Neither man had been in the Kinoautomat before and they set laughing and joking throughout the computer-run film which stops at different points to allow watchers to press red or green buttons on their seats to choose which way the action will go next.

Whatever the majority of the audience votes for, they get.

When it came to selecting a happy or sad ending to the movie, Mr. Lamoureux pushed his green button for a happy conclusion.

But Mr. Lastovicka was in love with the majesty and opsted red.

Mr. Lamoureux took his defeat gracefully and announced the whole show "marvelous."

The grey - haired Czech speaker, a journalist before he joined the Communist party in 1931, has been in Canada since Thursday and returns to head for home June 18.

He went to Ottawa for a private visit with Mr. Lamoureux and then came to Montreal Sunday.

Both he and Mrs. Lastovicka have already toured several pavilions, including those of Canada, Ontario, Quebec, Russia and Mexico, and so far say they like the world's fair "very much."

Monday also brought the fair a new namesake with the birth of a half-ounce baby kangaroo, immediately named Expo by the proud staff of the Australian pavilion.

Today is Tunisia's national day at Expo with Beovir Ecnigui, undersecretary of state, commerce and industry, expected to participate at flag-raising ceremonies for the North African state.

Tunisian dancers and musicians are scheduled to herald the day, with a show in Place des Nations that will feature a parade of wedding dresses from different areas of their country.

Polar Film a Ticket To Chilling Thrills

MONTREAL (CP) — Expo's land and a colorful Laplander rein Polar Theatre revolves gasping deer race to make up the $250,audiences on a circular ride past some of the coldest spots and coldest peoples of the world.

But on a typical sweltering day on the unshaded fair site, that chilling 18-minute ride can seem like heaven.

Monday the audience was left groaning and giggling with delight as the theatre's Canadian-made film zoomed them toward a sea full of ice floes and then took off on a dizzying polar bear hunt across the snow.

The film, put together for the Expo corporation by Graeme Ferguson, cameraman and director, born-in Galt, Ont., is shown every half-hour in the chilly underground Man and the Polar Regions theme pavilion on St. Helen's Island.

Up to 450 people can sit in the carousel theatre as they slowly revolve past two or three at a time of 11 screens.

Mr. Ferguson spent two years in the Arctic, Antarctic and Northern Norway filming an Eskimo funeral in Akiavik, putting penguins in the Antarctic

Improvised narration in English and French by television personalities Patrick Watson and Lise Payette is kept to a minimum to let the camera tell their own story.

"We have a message there all the same," Mr. Ferguson explains.

"We want to show the excitement we felt and let people see the Arctic is today a place where ordinary people can live."

Women's Institutes Convene

GUELPH (CP) — Some 3,700 delegates of Federated Women's Institutes of Canada gathered at the University of Guelph Monday for the opening events of their week-long national conference.

After the opening addresses, the delegates celebrated the FWIC's 70th anniversary with a cake and candles and reminiscences.

Wednesday they will travel to Stoney Creek, Ont., where Mrs. Adelaide Hoodless of Hamilton formed the first WI in 1897.

Mrs. Arnet Dott of Calcutta, president of the 6,500,000-member Association of Countrywomen of the World, urged the delegates to work with people, not for them.

"There is so much poverty, hunger and illiteracy in the world and many women in many lands are eager to stretch their helping hand to their less fortunate sisters, but do not know how to do it."

Mrs. Dott said that charity alone has never solved a problem.

"Teaching self-help and training more local leaders is the best way to have a lasting result.

The ACWW works for improved living conditions for rural women in developing countries.

William Stewart, Ontario agriculture minister, told the conference that the women's institutes provide a rural common sense which the world badly needs.

Trophy winners announced Monday included the WI of Dugald, Man., with Mrs. Jean Warren WI of Winnipeg, handicrafts, and the Maple Leaf WI of Travellers' Rest, P.E.I. citizenship.

The convention continues today with committee meetings and the presentation of a pageant on the provinces of Canada.

ACCRA (CP) — Canadian housewives in Ghana often find themselves playing the role of 36-armed Shiva.

In some cases Ghana provides housing for Canadians but a three-bedroom home, albeit spacious and on a large, landscaped lot, can cost $200 a month.

Maintaining a household staff costs the Bonds almost $3,000 annually. "But it's much more entertaining than most" says Mrs. Bond. She has a full-time cook, steward and watchman. She also employs a gardener part - time and a woman to help with the cleaning.

"You must be careful," says Brown, "or you can find yourself with a lot of unexpected problems. They are great ones for bringing the family home."

Canadian Women Taking To Air In Big Way

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian women are taking to the air in a big way.

Among the increasing number of private pilots—and the skyways are still safer than the highways for un-travel-are housewives, career girls, artists and nurses.

Carol Golder, a 25-year-old CBC designer, says she took flying lessons because she didn't like big aircraft: "I thought it would be better if I tested safety one myself."

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Dorey operate a charter flying as commercial passengers to the Bahamas. Last year they obtained their licences and built themselves a south.

"We were down for three weeks and visited five islands," Mrs. Dorey said. "It cost just $100 more than the trip before and we saw ever so much more."

Flying doesn't bother the five children of Mrs. Harry Lichtman. In fact they often fall asleep in the air, she says.

She gave her husband an ultimatum before starting lessons: "Either stop racing or flying." He figured flying was the safer of the two so I got my licence."

Now her son wants an aircraft instead of a car when he reaches 16.

It took Sharon McClure, a 25-year-old secretary, a year to qualify for her licence, flying only at weekends. "I took it up as a sport and feel I have accomplished something. It's a pleasant way to spend a day, flying around Ontario."

At least two 17-year-old Toronto pilots, Peggy Anderson and Susan Copeland, prefer flying to driving because they find it safer.

"We have never been in any trouble. It's a wonderful feeling up there in the air," says Mrs. Donald Gross, who has often piloted herself to Montreal, Ottawa and Washington in the family plane.

It's not all just sport flying either. Peggy Anderson, whose husband owns a youngster commercially - licensed pilot, when she reaches 21, wants to become an instructor. Sally Wagner, licensed to fly in 1941, was the first woman ferry pilot piloting a modern jet airliner.

Miss Wagner, a color consultant with a Montreal textiles firm and a qualified flying instructor, is to perform aerobatics in her Chipmunk aircraft at the Abbotsford air show near Vancouver in August.

She bought the aircraft from Crown Assets Disposal three years ago and spent four months and $1,000 getting it airworthy. Now she's as free as a bird.

Father Wants to Prepare Daughters for Future

Dear Doris: Two years ago my wife passed away leaving me to raise two girls now 17 and 15, and two boys now nine and ten. I feel very anxious for the future happiness of my girls. I feel I want to prepare them for what I know is in front of them.

I can talk to them on fairly easy terms, but I don't feel I will be able to explain properly.

Dear Dad: I say leave the impression that they should be cold and aloof to any slight advances. That I don't want. I only want them to realize that sex and love are not one and the same, and that to experience sex is not to experience love. My idea is that sex is an expression and fulfillment of love, rather than love itself. And that they should be sure of love before they consent to sex.

BORIS CLARK

I'm also concerned because I know that many boys grow up with the idea that it is OK for boys to pursue unrelentingly, and that it is all up to the girl to be responsible. This I don't like in the most unfair set of moral standards that could be thought up; especially since when it comes time to pick a bride they want someone who is not the shopworn, regardless of the fact that they have done all they could to deplete the stock.

It is high time society began to teach boys that they too have responsibilities. They should be taught to respect a girl's desire to keep her virginity and to be able to take a gracious "No" graciously.

While I'm no prude, I don't think that moral standards should go out with the advent of the pill. The pill has its place in a world threatened with over-population, but its place is in married love and not in teen-age fun. — Widower Father.

Dear Widower: Girls and boys, and parents, too, will be helped by your letter.

My reading list is on its way. The writings recommended will help you find the right words about love, and sex, and all the facts—if you need them, which I doubt.

Dear Doris: When is it proper for the parents of the bride and groom to congratulate them: when they come out of the church or at the reception? And which parents are first to do it? — Bride's Mother.

Dear Bride's: At the earliest possible moment — probably on emerging from church. As bride's parents, you lead all guests on the way out, so would likely reach your girl first. Kiss her then; and your new son-in-law.

But don't make an issue of this. If Mr. Mom and Dad are so eager they work their way to the happy couple first, let them have their fun. This is your day for being extra gracious.

Dear Doris: I was casually introduced to a man and a few days later I was on a bus with my husband. This man got on the bus and on seeing me came and sat close to me.

I introduced my husband, but instead of talking to my husband he made remarks about my looks. Is this proper for a man to do?—In Doubt.

Dear In Doubt: Was he flirting? Any gallant gentleman likes to pay a compliment about a lady's looks.

But if he laid on the agony and obviously excluded your husband from the conversation I'd say he was some kind of a nut.

Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, is a graduate of McGill, Toronto and McMaster Universities, and has broad experience in social work. If you would like help with your problems, write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Welsh Longbread Is Different

By MARY MOORE

A Canadian all of your life, you have heard of, tasted and probably made Scotch Shortbread, but how are you with Welsh Longbread? Not too familiar? Not familiar at all —, like me?

My sister-in-law Jeanie, who lives in Montreal, has a friend Rosabelle who makes Welsh Longbread and Jeanie was so taken, first with the name, then with the product that she wanted me to try it. I have — twice — once in Esquimalt where Marianne's children gobbled it up like crazy and once at home where our adult crowd did likewise.

ROSABELLE'S
WELSH LONGBREAD

½ lb. butter (room temperature—do not substitute)
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. baking powder
½ cup light brown sugar (Rosabelle uses raw sugar when she can get it)
1½ cups stirred but not sifted fresh whole wheat flour
½ cup fresh wheat germ

Measure all ingredients into large mixing bowl, wash your hands, take off your rings and mix by hand until perfectly blended but still crumbly—not sticky. Pat into unbuttered 9" x 9" pan until smooth on top. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. about 45 to 50 min. at dead centre of oven. Test it at centre with your fingernail to see if it is crisp before removing from oven. Gently mark into 1" or 1½" squares and let cool. Then you can cut through to bottom of pan with sharper, knife and remove squares. I kept ours in the refrigerator because I did not want the butter and whole wheat flour in them stored at room temperature, but I need not have bothered because they disappeared so fast I will never know if they need refrigeration.

We served ours with

ROSY STEWED RHUBARB
(double boiler)

4 cups pink rhubarb cut into ¼" pieces
2-3 cup sugar

Stir rhubarb and sugar together in double boiler. Cover and cook until rhubarb is tender (about 20 to 25 min.) However while rhubarb is still crisp, give it one more stir, then leave it alone. This way it is sweetened but retains its shape and color.

Ann Landers

Young Man Haunted By Memory of Date

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have often stated that the girl is responsible for whatever happens to her on a date. I am sure you know what you are talking about most of the time, but there are exceptions to every rule. Please read my letter as an example of an exception.

ANN LANDERS

Sixteen years ago I was a lusty young swinger. (In those days we called them "hotshots.") I had a yen for a girl who was just barely 15, three years my junior. She was an innocent, fresh-faced, luscious creature, and I knew it — and stacked, I asked her for a date and she was thrilled. After the movie we parked on a lonely road and I made a ridiculous fool about how I had fallen for her months before and had been dreaming of her ever since. In almost no time at all I had my way. I realized promptly that it was her first sex experience and she didn't know what in the world it was all about.

Her only question when I saw her to the door was, "Does this mean we are going steady?" I replied, "No, it doesn't." She broke down and wept and slammed the door with me on the outside.

I never asked her for a date after that because I was too guilt-ridden. When we met in the halls at school I couldn't look at her. Dozens of times I wanted to go to her and say, "I'm sorry," but I couldn't bring myself to do it.

Sixteen years have passed and I still can't erase the memory of that girl's frightened, tear-stained face. I am writing in the hope that this letter will prove that it isn't always the girl who decided. Sometimes a smooth-talking, older fellow can take advantage of an innocent young thing. — ONE WHO DID.

* * *

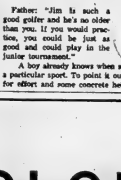
DEAR ONE WHO DID: Thank you for your letter, but my statement still stands. You didn't chloroform the girl. She should have had the sense to say no. I feel sorry for the poor thing but she was stupid and weak and she paid a big price.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My brother and his wife have two adorable daughters, five and seven years of age. I love my little nieces as if they were my own children. They love me, too.

Last year my brother and his wife were divorced. He is resentful and has been trying to get even with his wife by not paying her the support money she desperately needs. Because of this she will not let me see my nieces. Her reasoning is that if I get lonesome enough I will give her the support money myself or put pressure on my brother so he will come through with it.

I have told my sister-in-law this is unfair. She says she has to try everything she can think of because she needs the money to live on and "anything goes." Your opinion is wanted. — ALMA.



DEAR ALMA: The poor woman's thinking is frightfully kinky. If she wants to have her ex husband put in jail for failing to support his children she can do it. But she should not penalize you. I hope she will see this and reconsider. Not only is your sister-in-law being unfair to you, but to her children as well.

Confidential to WHAT DO I SAY NOW?: How about "Good-bye"? I think it is taking you for all you're worth, and so far you've been hurt about 20 grand, sucker.

Points for Parents

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

MANY WEARERS of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plate. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Don't risk "plate breath." Get FASTEETH at drug counters everywhere.

Sharp States Saskatchewan 'Have' Province

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs offered Finance Minister Sharp plenty of advice in the House Monday about what his department should be doing.

Mr. Sharp, however, defended policies that are expected to bring departmental expenditures of $2,104,234,700 in the 1967-68 fiscal year.

Conservative Leader Diefenbaker accused the government of "getting the provinces down financially." He particularly noted a $6,500,000 cut in the federal equalization payment to Saskatchewan, where his riding is located.

He wondered whether the cut was related to vote patterns, a dig at the fact that the Liberals did not win a Saskatchewan seat in the last election.

Mr. Sharp rejected this.

Economic conditions had improved greatly in Saskatchewan since the days when Mr. Diefenbaker was prime minister. He could not say whether credit was due the federal government in Regina or the one in Ottawa but Saskatchewan is now one of the "have" provinces."

Mr. Diefenbaker pointed to the $742,000,000 deficit incurred by Mr. Sharp in his record budget. The minister could boast about the general decline in peacetime history, the highest taxes and interest rates and the highest cost of living.

"And the highest employment and the highest standard of living," Mr. Sharp shot back.

Mr. Sharp said Mr. Diefenbaker had a "singularly short" memory about the financial crisis Canada went through under his Conservative government in 1963. It was "probably the most unnecessary" foreign exchange crisis in history.

Conservatives had been fairly to attack the government for high spending but at the same time they advocated programs that would make even heavier demands on the public.

The Canada Development Corp., to channel Canadian savings into the country's industry, also came in for comment.

Marcel Lambert (PC — Edmonton West) said it showed in the latest throne speech for the fifth time, each without action, and the government should shelve it for good.

The Canada Pension Plan now was siphoning off $800,000,000 a year that might have been available for such a plan and this was too much competition for the dwindling amount available to taxpayers and investors.

Mr. Sharp said the bill to establish the corporation will be ready for presentation after the summer recess.

Colin Cameron (NDP — Nanaimo - Cowichan - The Islands) said the plan will follow "the path of imbecility" if it tries to buy back foreign-owned industry. He said the minister should have invited the provinces to place provincially-chartered financial houses under federal control right after recent financial colleapses. There had been loud complaints by persons who had lost their savings and provincial governments had "shaking in their boots."

But Mr. Sharp had feared adverse reaction from one province—a reference to Quebec objections to federal actions in fields of provincial jurisdiction.

The government would have to overcome constitutional difficulties—provinces if it is to develop a real Canadian nation, Mr. Cameron added.

Boy Injured In Freak Accident

DESERONTO — An accident which might have been much more serious than it was, occurred at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Marsole of R. R. 1 Deseronto, a few days ago. They were burning an old mattress and other rubbish, when a shell from a 22 rifle exploded and the bullet hit their three-year-old son Alvin Jr., who was watching the fire. He was taken to the L. and A. County General Hospital for emergency treatment and the bullet was removed a few days later. It had lodged in the fleshy part of his arm.

Assoc. for Retarded Concludes Campaign

NAPANEE — At the close of last week's meeting of the local Association for the Mentally Retarded, canvassers for the Flowers of Hope campaign were guests at a turkey dinner.

Receipts are still coming in from the campaign, but it is estimated that about $3,500 will be realized. This will be added to the approximately $2,800 realizing from last year's campaign, which netted $3,800. Part of this amount was used for improvements to the old Slash Road School, leased from the Richmond area school authority. In use for retarded children since January, it is known as the Happy Day School. It is hoped that a school will cost at least $40,000 of which the Department of Education will pay half. The present school, while filling a great need, is not large enough to accommodate all the mentally retarded children of the county.

Two letters of importance were included in the correspondence. The first was from Peter Conery, district consultant and pointed out that financial assistance is now available from the government for "retarded" adults. This is in the nature of a pension.

Thomas Royal, provincial organizer of the Flowers of Hope campaign, was to inform the local association that he would attend one of their meetings this fall to give them details about management of such a campaign.

In opening the meeting, President Harold Todd expressed his appreciation of assistance given by canvassers.

Mr. Todd also gave a report of a regional meeting which he and Mrs. Karen Walker had attended in Trenton May 28. They had found it most helpful, and both were much impressed by the facilities in Trenton for teaching the mentally retarded, both children and adults.

The speaker for the meeting was Grant Sexsmith who touched on some aspects of his work as a probation officer, and in the family court.

SHIP FREE OF SHOAL

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — The Panamanian freighter Thorsa, which ran aground Tuesday on a shoal in Lake Superior about 15 miles east of here, has been taken off the shoal. Part of the 730-foot vessel's 800,000 thousand bushels of grain was removed Saturday night and placed aboard two other grain carriers. The Frankcliffe Head pulled off the rocks under its own power and returned to Port Arthur.

English Difficult Language

A Cuban refugee living in Miami writes to say that, although he has studied both German and French, he finds English much harder than either "because so many words in English have four or five meanings."

This is appreciately true of our language. It is strong supple, and melodious — but it is not clear and unambiguous. Unlike French, English is a language in which it is often difficult to say exactly what one means.

One reason for this is our super-abundance of idioms. Any tongue that is rich in idioms gains in color and variety, but loses in precision. As L. P. Smith points out in his book, "Words and Idioms," the phrase to "go on" can mean to "proceed," to "continue" to "behave badly," or even to "talk volubly."

And even more so, the phrase to "put on" can mean "to mount," "to hurry," "to prosper," "to grow old," or "to be on good terms" with someone. Even in the foreign-learning English to recognize which of these meanings is being expressed in conversational form? Our word "take" alone means not only "to get," but also "to receive," "give" or "go" or even "make."

The large Oxford Dictionary cites 32 meanings of "take up," and 57 meanings of "set up." And even the small Concise Oxford on my desk gives 20 different uses of the word "make" — such as construct, compose, prepare, cause, result in, establish, get together, conclude, feed, discern, amount to, become, gain, proceed, secure, and many more.

Our little particles of language enable us to say much with little, to engage in a sort of verbal shorthand that can be baffling to foreigners. In describing a great variety of human actions and relations, Smith points out:

"We can take to people, take them up, take them down, take them off, or take them in; keep in with them, keep them down, or off or under; get at them, or round them, or get on with them; do for them, do with them or without them, and do them in: make up to them, make up with them, make off with them: set them up or down, or bet them on!"

In English, a house "turns up" when it "burns down"; and we "beat up" a person when we "beat him down." We also "take" a haircut and "take" a bath, but where do we take them to? Our language is an idiom's delight, but a student's nightmare.

Liquor Control Board Workers Under Pressure

TORONTO (CP)—Ken Bryden (NDP—Toronto Woodbine) told joining an ordinary trade union. the legislature Monday night that employees of two government liquor agencies are being forced to join a "company union" by methods illegal under the Labor Relations Act.

He told the house that a letter was sent to all liquor store managers listing employees who were not members of the LCBO —LLBO Employees' Association and requesting that they get and . forms ' authorizing dues checkoffs.

Mr. Bryden said the employees are restrained under an order-in-council from being represented by the Civil Service Association and prevented by the Crown Agencies Act from

In other developments:

—The legislature gave third and final reading to 30 bills leaving only one on the order paper. The lone bill appears likely to get final approval. Eighteen of the bills received third reading.

—An amendment by William Davis, Education Minister, to a private bill giving the University of Western Ontario a new charter was attacked by Opposition Leader Robert Nixon as contrary to the university's board of governors.

—Horace Racine (L—Ottawa East) urged the province to give grants to parents adopting foster children. He said that Quebec's adoption rate climbed by 60 per cent after a program of incentives was introduced last year.

—Municipal Affairs Minister Spooner said the welfare costs of municipalities will be reduced by up to 25 per cent this year as a result of the province's new Family Benefits Act.

—Stephen Lewis (NDP—Scarborough West) said regulations under the Family Benefits Act defeat a basic intent of the act. He said a client getting a limit of $2,300 on the combined income of a husband and wife is contrary to the act which stipulates that allowances should be based solely on the basis of need.

—Mr. Spooner said a committee including members of the departments of agriculture, economics and development, education, university affairs, health, labor and social services, plus three from outside the government, will be formed to co-ordinate government programs for elderly residents in Ontario.

—Health Minister Matthew Dymond said five men and two women have been appointed to a committee which will award accreditation to centres for disturbed children. Accredited centres may receive provincial government awards.

—Mr. Dymond said a task force studying ambulance services in the province will probably recommend their consolidation.

UCW Units Plan Two Bake Sales

DESERONTO — The afternoon unit of the Deseronto UCW decided at its June meeting to hold at least two bake sales during the summer, when they will not be holding regular meetings. A joint meeting of some form will open the work in September, both units decided.

Mrs. John Piercey, Mrs. A. J. Rendell, Mrs. Charles Lufman and Mrs. Rockwell Hawley were members of the committee in charge, with Mrs. Hawley as both hostess and chairman.

Mrs. James A. Dawson was in charge of the devotional period, choosing "everyday religion a living" as the theme.

Sixteen answered the roll call and reported 22 visitations. The minutes and the financial report were read by Mrs. Thomas Jackson and Mrs. George Stewart respectively. A letter of appreciation was read from Mrs. William Cochrane, thanking the group for catering at the family dinner which marked their 50th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Jackson, who is also the superintendent of the Sun day school gave an interesting "report on the work she had spent at Five Oaks while taking a course in Christian education. Accomplishments for the first six months of the year were reviewed, and there was a discussion regarding work for the rest of the year.

Supreme Court Upsets Mixed Marriage Ban

WASHINGTON (AP)—A New York law that permitted electric "trapping" and a Virginia ban on racially - mixed marriages were swept off the books by the U.S. Supreme Court Monday.

Closing down until October, the court also broadened press freedom and gave suspects in police lineups the right to a lawyer's help.

Justice Tom C. Clark, stepping down after 18 years on the bench, announced the 5-to-4 decision that the New York eavesdropping law "is without adequate judicial supervision or protective procedures."

Clark's ruling left in doubt the fate of eavesdropping laws in five other states — Georgia, Maryland, Massachusetts, Nevada and Oregon. There, as in New York, police can eavesdrop when given a judge's permission.

Chief Justice Earl Warren's unanimous decision in the Virginia case — miscegenation left no such doubt. It struck the death knell of laws, where in the U.S. that means racial intermarriage, a crime.

"Under our constitution," Warren said, "the freedom to marry, or not to marry, a person of another race resides with the individual and cannot be infringed by the state."

Honor Pastor On Departure

DESERONTO — Deseronto United Church bade farewell to its minister, the Rev. Russell Finley, at the morning service Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Finley have been in Deseronto three years, and when they return from holidays, will be taking up new duties at Campbellville in the Guelph area.

Mr. Finley has been interested in the choir and its work while here, and in appreciation of his interest and assistance, the members presented him with cuff links engraved with the Centennial symbol. They were also presented with a purse of money on behalf of the congregation. The words of appreciation and farewell were spoken by Donald Pingland.

Mr. and Mrs. Finley are leaving this week for a holiday in Europe, and Mr. Finley noted that they will be worshipping in a little church in Vienna. "We will not understand the language, but we will understand the spirit of the service, and the music," he said. They expect to spend about 10 days in Vienna and then enjoy the art treasures of Rome and Florence before taking the famous trip up the Rhine. Visits to Denmark and Norway will precede the return to London and return flight to Canada late in July.

Mr. Finley is an artist of considerable talent and has long looked forward to studying the old masters of Europe.

President Envisages Loyalist as Academic Community Centre

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Loyalist Campus is now a fact.

Soon, it may also be one of the more significant facts of community life.

The Quinte-district campus of the new area Ontario Colleges of Applied Arts and Technology, will begin practising its core curriculum in temporary quarters this September.

Soon, it will be housed on its own site, providing the district with more than a vigorous new look in education trends and developments.

It may also furnish forceful currents gradually stimulating the environment of the community at large.

If such impulses are registered, the leads may, in the main, be traced back to the quiet enthusiasm of Loyalist's first — and recently-appointed — president, J. Kenneth Bradford.

"The patterns which eventually will frame its curriculum and inspire its future traditions, are still being given shape.

But, on one basic, philosophic point, Mr. Bradford is emphatic:

"This is a community college — and I'm using 'community' in the broadest sense of the word."

As projected at present, its identity with its surrounding social environment will be as total as possible within its terms of reference as a new concept in education.

The campus will not only be a college, but, conceivably, consisting of an academic community centre.

Besides its nighttime and extension courses, where the citizen-student may expand his talents, there will be other more evident projects involving broad community participation.

Foremost of these will be the campus reference library and its roster of special speakers.

The library will be an almost-total treasure house of reference to be used by the community at large.

Its first unit now is being assembled — some 3,500 volumes. But there are more — and more — to come.

"I don't want the library to stop growing until it has reached 20,000. And that's the minimum," says the president.

"It will be available outside of student use. It's your community, your library."

The college also will have its regular programs of speakers.

Here, again, the community at large will be able to participate on campus, with the programs thrown open for all to attend.

"The possibilities are tremendous," says the president.

Neither need the expert on any given topic be necessarily from outside the community.

"It can easily be somebody from our own area," he says.

The two - way involvement between campus and community also has a more basic relationship.

Since social environment is the basis of the new concept represented by the campus, its philosophies must be influenced by impulses from the community and how it responds to them.

In formation, is a resource advisory committee.

Comprised of local "representative" citizens it will provide a direct ground wire to the community at large.

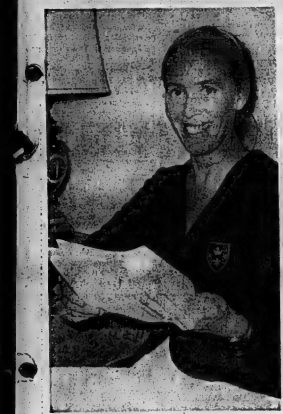
Meantime, its first contact with the community already is bringing in the first student applications to temporary campus quarters in Centennial Secondary School.

First-year registration has been estimated anywhere between 150 and 250.

And the future?

Mr. Bradford's original estimate predicted Loyalist Campus one day would involve a students' community of up to 5,000.

"I've just revised that to 7,000," he says. "But then we are looking quite a few years ahead."



First President

Community is the key word in the founding spirit of Loyalist Campus, as explained by its first president Kenneth Bradford.

Time-consuming

Lone Woman Enjoys Role as College Governor

Only Woman

Mrs. Joy Wonnacott, lone woman on 12-member board of governors, finds task of aiding location of Quinte area campus is challenging.

The operational reality of Loyalist Campus will be founded on the decisions represented by a unique combination of numbers — 11 men and one woman.

But Joy Wonnacott of Belleville is no mere addition to the 12-member board of governors of the new area College of Applied Arts and Technology.

Neither does the fact she is the only woman on the board — and one of the few to hold such a position in the founding complex of the new college movement in Ontario — make her an outsider.

The board, she emphasizes, operates as a close-knit team casting its decisions after its individual members voice their opinions.

"On the board there is generally a good compatibility. Consequently, I've no reticence in voicing any disagreement — if it exists," she reveals.

Mrs. Wonnacott is one of eight governors appointed to the board by the provincial government. The whole four are municipal appointees.

Neither is she any newcomer to public affairs.

She served seven years as a board member of the Children's Aid Society in Belleville and four years on the city Board of Health—two of them as chairman.

Her interest in education goes back to home and school activities.

Continued awareness of education also is based on a closer personal involvement: Wife of a city optometrist, she has two children in high school, another graduating from public school.

Despite the disparity in numbers she feels her appointment to the board serves a need.

"I feel women have a place sometimes on these projects and that a woman's place is very important. A lot of the courses, after all, are going to involve women."

Keeping pace with developments as the college's Quinte-area Loyalist Campus now enters a crucial stage — its first course curriculum will be introduced in September — can be demanding, she admits.

"It's time-consuming, but then I knew this when I accepted the appointment. I practically had to eliminate every other activity except those things that affect my family. But that's something everyone on the board has to contend with.

"But I don't begrudge the time," Mrs. Wonnacott adds. "It's exciting and rewarding — it's like watching a tree grow."

Consultants Ready Brief

Site Decision Possible Within Next Two Months

The site of Loyalist Campus — Quinte-area centre of the Ontario College of Applied Arts and Technology — may be known within the next two months.

Selection of a permanent site which one day may house more than 5,000 students, now is a full-time preoccupation of the college board of governors.

However, a decision may shortly be in the offing, says D. R. Fraser, Trenton's representative on the board and chairman of a sub-committee charged with investigating all proposals for location of the college.

Mr. Fraser said "a terrific amount of research and legwork" already was afoot as consultants probe the feasibility of various sites, scattered mostly around the southern municipalities of the Quinte district.

"Sooner or later we must make a hard-and-fast decision," said Mr. Fraser. "Within six weeks we should be in a position to make some definite decision."

He estimated about 18 locations had been suggested "in one form or another" in an area loosely ranging from Murray township to East of Belleville and north to Batawa.

"The board is being very impartial and fair. They've been very open-minded on the selection," he added.

"There's been a certain amount of gentle lobbying," admitted the chairman, "but this is to be expected! It's certainly not uncalled for."

However, the governors have some general terms of reference to aid them in their final selection:

The provincial government suggests that any selection be based on an area of 125 acres — to allow for future expansion.

Also, says Mr. Fraser, "it would seem logical" that the college should be located closer to the larger population centres.

"But beyond that I'm not willing to commit myself."

However, he cautioned, the governors have endeavored to stay away from identifying the site with any one community.

"We will choose the best site and the most desirable site," he said.

It must be chosen with an eye to its capability for "growing and changing with the times."

How soon after the site is approved will construction start?

"We're very optimistic about it," said Mr. Fraser. "We feel by the fall semester of 1969 we hope to have a permanent institution for our students — that we really can have something physical you can look at."

This fall, when the college opens its doors on Monday, Sept. 10 in Centennial High School, students will be handled separately from local secondary school students.

The college will use 18 rooms in the school by the students will have both privileges and responsibilities applicable only to them.

Separate space will be provided as a smoking area; separate entrances will be used by the college students and a separate parking area will be provided for college students' cars.

Although college students will use the high school cafeteria facilities, the mid-day lunch break will come after the high school periods.

Senior Staff Personnel Already at Work As Sense of Urgency Pervades 'Campus'

The quarters may be temporary but there's a confident bustle already imparting the air of permanency. Loyalist Campus — Quinte-area centre of brand new Ontario College of Applied Arts and Technology — is in operation.

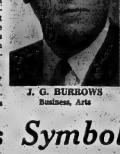
It's being organized to meet a September deadline, when its first courses will be launched in rented quarters at Centennial Secondary School.

Key men in that organization — its founding staff members — are already being appointed.

So far, three appointments, announced by campus president John K. Bradford, are:

Ernst Kneisel, Administrator: First staff appointment after that of president, Mr. Kneisel resigned as Belleville's industrial commissioner to accept the post. He was loaned to the campus in its founding stages by city council, to assist with basic, vital details of initial organization.

J. G. Burrows, Chairman, Business, Applied Arts: Superintendent of schools for Timmins public school board, has been an inspector and vice-principal. From 1956-63 was an English master at Teachers' College. Active in community affairs, has special experience in preparation and production of TV public information programs.



Paul H. King, Chairman Technology: A former airforce staff officer, stationed at Trenton, is principal of adult education. Minnicof formerly science department head; presently completing Master's degree at Toronto University in physical chemistry.

William R. Ellis, Registrar: Now vice-principal Trenton High School. University of Toronto graduate, he is a specialist in agriculture and will also act as consultant in this area at Loyalist.

A. H. McFarlane, Guidance Director: Now chief staff employment officer for Canadian Industries Limited; formerly student counsellor, Sir George Williams University. Psychology honors degree from McGill University and is currently active in community services executives. Appointments include Canadian Chamber of Commerce representative to Federal Committee on Technical and Professional Manpower.

Loyalist Roots Symbolized by Stump

As the physical manifestation of a new departure in education in the Quinte district Loyalist Campus of the new area Ontario College of Applied Arts and Technology, is sinking its roots in virgin soil.

However, that isn't the inspiration behind its college emblem.

Symbol of the campus will be a fresh-hewn tree stump, a reminder of the source from which it draws its name — the United Empire Loyalists who first settled the Quinte district.

"We decided — subject to some refinements that the campus logogram should indicate the coming of the Loyalists to the area," said Hastings County Judge J. C. Anderson, one of the college's governors. "Among their first practical acts in founding their settlements was the need to fell trees to make the clearings."

The emblem was chosen from a series of designs presented the governors by young Belleville artist Gerald H. Putman, a graduate of Belleville Collegiate. He returned to Belleville as a advertising designer to open DP Design Studio after graduating from the Ontario College of Art and working elsewhere in the province.

The emblem was selected from four designs he offered the governors.

Birth of A Symbol

SPORTS SLICES

"Weeks" may come and "Weeks" may go but in the eyes of the moguls of the Belleville Minor Softball Association the June 17-24th seven day period is their's — and their's alone.

The Belleville Amateur Softball Association has designated the week as "Minor Softball Week" for its far-flung operational centres and mayors, rovers and whatnot will officially proclaim it as such.

It is the softball youngsters week to howl and as far as the Belleville Minor Softball Association is concerned they're going to dress it up in grand style.

Association officials have arranged a tournament for June 17th and outstanding teams from the farraway places will take part.

Hardworking association officials, managers and coaches are going all out to make the week a big one for their young proteges.

And the big brothers of the upper leagues are ready and willing to lend a helping hand.

A strong supporter of the softball youngsters and others for that matter — Garry Alexander has organized an exhibition game between the Black Diamond Cheese squad, one of the top teams in the Commercial League, and a covey of all-stars from the Departmental Softball League.

Mr. Alexander met with an instant response when queuing for assistance for his plan. The teams readily acquiesced by offering their services gratis for the big game.

The game will be staged at the Alemite Park on Monday June 19th under the floodlights.

Everything pertaining to the game has been decided so that ALL proceeds can be turned over to the Belleville Minor Softball Association.

The Alemite Park is included in the free list with several city sportsmen footing the bill for the lights. Members of the Centennial Umpires Association have offered their services free. The cost of the tickets for the game has been donated by this newspaper. Everything is at no cost.

The tickets will go on sale in a day or so at twenty-five cents each or five for a dollar. No one gets in free. Even press passes are suspended. So if a little guy asks you for a ticket don't turn your back on him. Surprise him by giving him a buck and getting yourself not only an outstanding softball game but five chances at winning handsome prizes.

Any one wanting information regarding the game or tickets should contact Garry at this office (2-3171 sports department) any morning up to twelve o'clock noon.

And don't think the game itself will be a walkover for the Cheesemen even if they boast a 4-1 record. The Departmental gang will field a strong club that should give any squad in the Commercial circuit a run for their money.

The Departmental Selects will be chosen from the five teams of the loop and interlocking will be given the chance to play. This will be no ham-and-cheese softball sandwich, you can take that for granted.

From the Firemen will come Bob Davenport, Ernest Price, Brian Smith, Bob Lloyd and Rogers Davis. The Combines will send Gary Reid, Gordie Green, Graydon Rogers, Bob Dafoe, Bill Ferguson and Bill Merrien.

The Intelligencer will send Don Wood, "Moe" Switzer, Ron Culleden, Al. Lee, Merv Thompson and Terry Hiddleston. The Police Department's young pitcher Scotty Reid and others will be on hand as will Electric Motors' Rick Rosebush and certain pals.

It looks like one of the top softball attractions of the season.

So let's make Softball Week here a big one for the young fellows. Let's be Big Brothers to the youngsters. They're trying to become good citizens by developing themselves in the world of sport and readying themselves for the sterner game of life.

The youngster of today is far better off dodging body checks in hockey than policemen on the street. They are doing a much better job stealing bases, not purses.

So dip into the penis pocket or cookie jar, yell out a quarter — or better a dollar — and show you're interested in the future of the young guys who may some day be leaders in the community.

Stanky Suits Chisox!

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ed- clothes to the guy who beat the die Stanky, old master of intangibles, is working on a new plan — the incentive system— that may send him to the poor house.

If Stanky's Chicago White Sox keep on winning baseball games in the American League, Stanky will have bought enough new attire to become part owner in a clothing store.

New suits, shoes, jackets, slacks, ties and cash are part of the system Stanky uses to spur on the White Sox. It's something like the commission system he'd use for their travelling salesmen.

"I want to make it clear this comes from my own head," said the scrappy little manager. "The club has nothing to do with it."

Stanky's funds come from fines to players for such violations as reporting to the park late or other infractions of the rules.

"I started this fund last year when we had trouble beating Minnesota," said Stanky. "If Delta State College last said it would give a suit of year.

Twins. Tommy John did it and got the suit. Then I told Don Buford I'd give him a pair of shoes if he stole 25 bases. I made it a sports coat for 40. He finally wound up with 51 and a whole new outfit.

"This spring I told Bruce Howard I'd buy him a suit if he won 15 (he's now 2-4). Then we made it a suit for winning four in a row. Joe Horlen and Gary Peters both have won suits so far. . . .

"The coaches wanted in on it so I promised them alligator shoes if we won a double-header from the Angels. We won two and they got the shoes."

Longest Night Game On Record

Senators Nip Chisox In 22 Innings

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

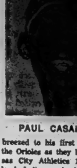
Washington Senators are making sure Mike Epstein gets a chance to play . . . and play . . . and play.

Epstein, in fact, might still be playing Monday night's game against Chicago today if teammate Paul Casanova, who caught Washington pitchers for 22 innings, hadn't caught up with a White Sox pitcher the second time around.

Casanova ripped a bases-loaded single in the 22nd inning, lifting the weary Senators to a 6-5 victory over the exhausted American League leaders in the longest night game ever played in the majors.

The Washington catcher, who worked all 19 innings in a 7-5 marathon loss to Baltimore just eight days ago, also homered in an inning - ending double play in the 20th before turning the tables on Chicago right-hander John Buharch in the 22nd.

Epstein, who earned his first full shot in the majors when the Orioles dealt him to Washington two weeks ago, also went the distance, drawing intentional walks in both the 20th and 22nd innings as the White Sox chose to gamble against Casanova.



AND RICHERT WINS

Left - hander Pete Richert, sent from Washington to Baltimore in the Epstein trade, and confident after shooting a 71 over the 7,022-yard par-70 layout where the open will be played Thursday through Sunday.

"I've been off for three weeks," he said.

"It may take a little work to get back the edge, going that long without any competitive golf. But I shall have it by Thursday."

breezed to his first victory for the Orioles as they buried Kansas City Athletics 10-2. Cleveland Indians edged California Angels 7-5 in 11 innings; Minnesota Twins thumped Detroit Tigers 11-5 and Boston Red Sox downed New York Yankees 3-1 in other AL games.

Casanova broke up the six-hour, 29 - minute struggle at Washington after going hitless in eight previous at bats against Buharch and five other Chicago hurlers.

The endurance exercise was the longest game ever under the lights in both elapsed time and innings. Two previous night games—the last between Los Angeles and Philadelphia in 1964—had gone 3 hours and 13 minutes. Five others had lasted 19 innings.

The longest games on record — day or night—are a 26-inning 1-1 standoff between Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Braves in 1920 and a 7:23 clock-topper between San Francisco Giants and New York Mets three years ago—the Giants winning 8-6 in 23 innings.

Thirty - nine players, in all, got into the game, with Bob Humphreys, the sixth Washington pitcher, receiving credit for the victory.

Richert sustained seven hits and striking out eight, in the Orioles' runaway over the Athletics. Luis Aparicio led the 13-hit Baltimore attack with two triples, driving in three runs.

Joe Azcue, who had homered earlier, delivered two unearned runs with a base-loaded single in the sixth, tying the Indians past the Angels. An error by Paul Schaal opened the gates and Chuck Hinton doubled before an intentional walk set the stage for Azcue.

Rich Reese's ground - ruler homer capped an eight-run Minnesota uprising in the third inning against the Tigers, who have lost five in a row.

Harmon Killebrew knocked in three runs with a single and his 15th homer while left-hander Jim Merritt breezed to his fourth victory without a loss.

Gary Bell won his second straight since coming to Boston in a record trade with Cleveland and catcher Russ Gibson hit a two-run homer—his first in the majors—as the Red Sox handed the Yankees their fourth straight setback.

Cementmen Bow To Cleaners 9-1

Carm's Cleaners whipped Point Anne for the second time in succession at the Point last night to tighten the club's grip on first place in the Trent Valley Softball League.

The score was 9-1. And the two clubs go back at each other Wednesday, in Trenton, while RCAF Flyers visit Point Anne Thursday.

It was Trenton all the way last night as they built a 9-0 lead with trios in the fourth, seventh and ninth.

Clair Leahy spun strong ball on the victors' hilltop and had a three-hit shutout going into the bottom of the ninth. He gave up five hits in all, received errorless support, struck out seven and walked three.

Mike Cook was racked for 11 hits in pitching the defeat. He fanned four and passed five while Point Anne errors also hurt his cause.

A walk, error and hits by Barker and Leahy broke the scoreless tie in the fourth while Theriault's three-run circuit clout sewed up the win in the seventh.

Leahy spearheaded his own attack by lacing three singles. Don Cole and Jim Whyte had two safeties each and Joe Therault banged the key home run. Art Barker, Dale Lewis and Ron Chambers split the others.

Jim Horwood collected two of the Cementmen's four hauls with knocks with Claude Carr, Mike Cook and Glen Maracle adding the others.

The losers put together a headoff walk and singles by Carr and Cook to spoil Leahy's shutout bid in the ninth.

The reference was to the 1966 Open at San Francisco when Arnold blew a seven stroke lead with nine holes to play and eventually lost a playoff to Billy Casper.

Four of the last five national opens have finished in playoffs and Palmer was beaten in three of them.

But Palmer appeared relaxed

Pirates Shade Cards 7-5

Wills' Single; A Three-Run Homer!

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Maury Wills, who could smother a finch on the extra effort it takes to steal bases, has surprised everyone with a chapter on how to succeed in home run hitting without even trying.

Monday night he tried to punch a run - scoring single and wound up hitting a three-run homer, capping a five-run sixth inning that carried Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7-5 victory over St. Louis Cardinals.

The homer was only his second of the season, giving him two more than the Pirates probably acquired him for when they acquired him from Los Angeles Dodgers last winter.

The shock was not as great as Shannon when Jim Wynn, home run regular, slammed his 11th with two on to climax a four - run eighth inning that gave the Astros a 5-2 victory over San Francisco Giants.

Dick Farrell, a pleasant surprise for Philadelphia, hurled 7 1-3 innings of scoreless relief, preserving the Phillies' 7-4 decision over Atlanta Braves.

HEFTY SURPRISE

Wills' homer Monday night put the Pirates and pioneer Dan Ribent ahead 7-1 and offset later homers by Tim McCarver, Julian Javier and Bob Tolan for the Cardinals.

Willie Stargell connected earlier for Pittsburgh with one on.

Farrell, winning his fifth game against one loss since coming to the Phillies from Houston, equaled his entire 1966 victory total by blanking the Braves on three hits and no walks while striking out eight.

He came longrin two on and two out in the second inning and the Phillies trailing 4-0 and relieved Hank Aaron, who hit a three-run homer in the first inning. Farrell retired 17 more hitters before Gary Geiger and Aaron singled with one out in the eighth. But, he got Joe Torre and Clete Boyer and then set down the side in the ninth.

Meanwhile, Gene Oliver, recently acquired from Atlanta, ignited a four-run Philadelphia second with a single and drove in the leading run in the fourth with a hit.

Clay Request Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday denied a request by heavyweight boxer Cassius Clay that it block the government from prosecuting him on draft defiance charges until his challenge to the selective service system is settled.

Also known as Mohammad Ali, Clay is scheduled to go on trial June 19 on a charge of refusing to be inducted into the army.

Clay says he has received unfair treatment by draft boards that have handled his case and contends he should have been exempted from the draft because he is a Black Muslim minister.

Football Coach

Wins $460,000 Suit!

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)— Wally Butts, former Georgia football coach accused in a Saturday Evening Post article of giving away team secrets to rival Paul (Bear) Bryant of Alabama, Monday won a $460,000 libel judgment against the magazine's owners.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled 5 to 4 in favor of Butts, who originally sued the Curtis Publishing Co., owners of The Post, for $10,000,000.

In an article published March 23, 1963, The Post said that before the 1962 Georgia-Alabama College football game, Butts outlined Georgia's plays to Bryant in a telephone conversation.

The Bloomsburg story was based on notes an Atlanta insurance salesman, George F. Burnett, said he wrote while listening to a Butts-Bryant conversation.

Four Clouts In 11-5 Victory

Mavety Sparks Seniors Win

Larry Mavety continues to terrorize both baseball and softball pitchers with a red-hot bat.

Mavety slammed out four more hits in Kingston last night as Belleville Elks Seniors defeated Prince George Eagles 11-5 in a Quinte-KASA Softball League tilt.

The stocky catcher has set a blistering pace for both Elks and the senior baseball Lombards to date this season.

A five-run blast in the fourth inning broke open a 3-3 game and kept Belleville undefeated in Kingston last night. The clobbering included three of runs in the second and Belleville netted one in the third before Lynch's single, an error by Gardiner, another miscue, a hit batter and Moon's single also upped the score to 9-3. It all happened after two were out.

The explosion allowed Bob Ethier to coast to the pitching victory. He scattered nine Prince George safeties struck out 13 and survived two walks and two hit batters.

Ronnie Brown was tagged for a dozen hits on the Regals' rubber. He got five on strikes, walked but one but suffered through sloppy support afield.

Mavety scored four times to go with his four singles while Bobby Moon, slammed his home run and a double. Barry LeSage hammered out a triple and single and Lynch singled twice. Jim Middleton's double and Don Gardiner's single completed the hit total.

Hartwick paced Kingston with a triple and single, Hayward Ferguson batting a solo home run and Mitch Monette's two singles. Bobs VanScoover, Gardiner, Bobby Senior and Clyde divided the others.

The victory left Belleville atop the five-team grouping with four wins and a tie in five outings. The Seniors play host to Kingston Lake Bus Service at the Alemite Thursday, at 8:30.

S. Hastings Pitching Hits Peak

Solihedoy in the South Hastings Baseball League will be asking for a salvo for both the Shannonville pitchers if they continue at their current pace.

Press Shoots 322 Round, 251 Over Par

OTTAWA (CP) — Worried about your golf score lately?

Well things could get worse —would you believe a 251-over - par round of 322 recorded in the annual press, radio and television tournament at Glenlea Country Club at neighboring Hull Monday.

But the person who shot the 322 over the par-71 course was in good company. The foursome — all women employees of the CBC — finished with an aggregate score of 1,179, with rounds of 311, 273 and 267 to go with the 322.

"That must be some kind of record," a tournament official said about the unusual scores.

But the 322 was more than 100 strokes off the record for the Ottawa area. One woman shot a 426 in a 54-hole tournament four years ago.

Didn't Like Squeeze Play

Umps Was Too Chesty!

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (CP)—When the student umpires launched behind the plate for the first time Monday, the big problem was squeezing into the chest protector. Especially with the fans watching.

"I'm having a little problem," Bernice Gera admitted to Jim Finley who trains umpires for organized baseball.

"This chest protector just isn't made for my shape,"

Finley said. He added that he'd be willing to try carrying on conversations with the players but we broke that by giving her pantyhose.

The first rule of an umpire is not to chat with the players, Finley explained, prescribing two pushups for the first offence.

"I think the women has good talent," he said. "I don't think they will be able to deny her a job because of her sex. I'm certainly going to see she gets to do some form of training."

Finley can be certain of that. He's president of the Umpires' National Baseball Congress.

Tiki Upsets Lightfoots, Stinsons Up

Tiki Club earned their first win on the field of the Community Softball League season last night by upsetting Lightfoot Construction 4-1.

Elsewhere, the two "they-shoe clubs" dangled at Ameliasburg with Stinson's blasting the winless Brant's-Mountain View crew 7-0.

Tiki's only other win to date was recorded with a protest after Stewart Werner used an ineligible player.

But they needed no such help last night as Billy Wickens let Lightfoots down on three hits. He struck out five and walked three, coasting along 4-0 until Lightfoots scored in the sixth.

John Fralick gave up 10 hits on the losers' rubber, fanning two and walking five, but only hitting support he received came on a triple and single by Frank "Skeeter" Mooney and a single by L. Johnston.

Doug Olsen sparked Tiki with his three hits while Jim Parks had two, Steve White a triple and Cliff Scott a double.

Bobby Boyle received four hits to earn his shutout for Stinson's while Ron Bell fanned four and walked one while Grant Coulette on the Brant's mound issued two free walks, fanned four and walked one.

Stinson's jumped ahead 3-0 in the first and doubled their total in the third as they bunched their hits to good advantage.

Paul Stinson and Lyle Thompson sparked the Stinson attack. Each contributed a double and single while Jack Thompson's whiffing slugged twice. Dick Flindall, Frank Donovan and Ken Genereaux added a safety each.

For Mountain View, Bill Genereaux doubled and singled while Ron Bell, Dave Cameron, Bill Dick and A. Colden.

Applicants should be energetic, have junior matriculation, several years successful business experience, be prepared to study insurance and obtain an agent's licence, and be interested in meeting people.

To Your Good Health

Acidosis Is Complicated Phenomenon

Dear Dr. Molner: In a recent column you mentioned "acidosis" in connection with illness.

Both my children have acetone breath when ill and I've never been able to elicit an explanation from my doctor. He seems to think I have a good-sized hole in my head. Would you explain? — Mrs. C. A.

Have a heart. People are always accusing their doctors of not explaining things. The answer is simple. The average doctor is so busy that if he explained everything, he wouldn't get through work until after it was time to get up again the next day.

So I feel that I'm performing some sort of public service, both for patients and physicians, by doing some of explaining. In the newspapers, I can say it once and a lot of people can read it, but when any doctor, including me, tries to explain something to each individual—well, there just isn't enough time.

The acetone — or "fruity" — odor is more commonly associated with diabetic acidosis, but can be present in children, without diabetes — I assume yours do not have diabetes.

Anyway, acidosis is a complicated phenomenon in which certain acids are increased in the blood. It may be severe enough to cause the acetone odor when a youngster has quite a fever and is dehydrated.

In brief, it occurs because the increased rate of metabolism associated with the fever depletes the starch (glycogen) supply stored in the liver, and the body then begins drawing on fat in the tissues for energy. Thus the chemistry of the body is alerted for a time. (This often occurs when youngsters are droopy.)

Acidosis should be corrected as quickly as possible, but fortunately this usually can be accomplished readily, the treatment being water and sugar. This can be a little candy and water to drink, or fruit juice which provides both sugar and fluid.

Unless children are extremely ill, they usually perk up remarkably fast and the fruity odor disappears.

Dear Dr. Molner: For several years I have had a desire to donate or bequeath my body to medical science after death, but have not located the proper institution for this.

I would also like to know that my body will be respectfully treated, and know what the procedure would be for disposing of it. Would a priest officiate? I would prefer that the institution be Catholic. — H. J. G.

Respect for the human body after death as well as before, as an integral aspect of medical training, is not need have no qualms on that score.

Legal papers, which should be drawn up in advance, may vary somewhat from state to state, but the medical school nearest you can give you all the details. Use of bodies is an essential for medical training, and most schools welcome inquiries like yours.

In your case, I should inquire at the nearest Catholic university which has a medical school.

Dear Dr. Molner: How could a man who has never had sexual intercourse become infected with trichomonas vaginalis? — E. M. M.

The trichomonas organism is a prevalent one and obviously is spread by many accidental means, not just through intercourse. It might be inadvertently encountered in a bathroom, on a towel . . . trying to trace it exactly is as difficult as trying to figure out from whom you caught a cold.

Trenton Will Join Health Unit in July

The Town of Trenton will join the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties health unit in July.

According to C. R. Lenk, medical health officer, an estimated 110,000 people will be served by the expanded unit. The health unit provides a check against communicable diseases as well as provides institutional inspections throughout the area.

Dr. Lenk says the 31 staff members are kept busy serving more than 170 schools in the area. Chores are made for such diseases as polio, diphtheria, tetanus and smallpox.

While the student is processed through the school system a great many pre-schoolers are serviced through immunization clinics. Parental classes, home visits and various consultations are also part of the health unit's coverage.

Public health inspectors are working daily in the field of sanitation, control of water, inspections of restaurants, hotels, barber shops and septic tank installations.

The local unit has only been in operation for nine months and Dr. Lenk feels the results are encouraging. "Routine programs have been firmly established and are running smoothly."

In January the public health service will be brought under new provincial legislation providing 75 per cent of the net expenditure in the area.

At the present time the health unit employs one medical officer, 18 full-time nurses, three part-time nurses, five public health inspectors and four office employees.

Bates Wins Acclaim At Stratford Opener

By Robert Tanner

STRATFORD (Special) — As the Stratford Festival's 15th season opened last night with Richard III, it was almost impossible to put out of one's mind the tragic moment in July, 1953, when Alec Guinness first stepped out onto the balcony of that strange stage within a tent.

The famous words "Now is the winter of our discontent made glorious summer by the sun of York" launched an improbable festival which, many said could not possibly endure.

Fourteen years later, it is not only still with us, "its permanent theatre and ever-heightening success sign the titles of two performing arts from coast to coast.

But let us forget the past and concentrate on the present. Last night's presentation directed by John Hirsch, was cast in a low key, with subdued colors predominating in Desmond Heeley's design.

In spite of this, it was an exciting performance, paced by the young British actor Alan Bates in the title role. His Richard was a smooth, supercilious villain, slipping imperceptibly from the firm self-confidence of the opening scene to tragic guilty despair as the weight of his ill-gotten crown took its toll.

The other outstanding performance was that of Eric Coldwell in the all-too-short role of Lady Anne, whom Richard woos across the dead body of her father-in-law whom he himself has slain.

Miss Coldwell again showed her tremendous range and versatility, and we look forward to seeing her as Cleopatra later in the season.

Frances Hyland as Queen Margaret, and Barbara Bryne as Richard's mother were both excellent in their roles, but Ann Firbank as Edward IV's Queen Elizabeth was not as successful, seeming to lack conviction.

Among the men, Leo Ciceri as Buckingham proved a splendid foil to Richard's villainy, helping and advising him, then going to the citizens of London to accept him as their king, and then after his master turned on him, going to his death with dignity and the realization that he had no one to blame but himself.

William Hutt's Clarence was too short a role to do the fine actor justice, and as usual the supporting cast lived up to Stratford's high standard. One notable exception was Leon Pownall as Christopher Newton, who played Catesby; his attractive voice and presence may well take him far.

All in all, though, this was a director's production. Using his lighting more effectively and imaginatively than is usual at Stratford, Mr. Hirsch was also successful in evoking the varying moods of the production. He was assisted to a considerable extent by the unusual set designed by Stevenson, a quaint blend of live and electronic, which in spite of the apparent anachronism, blended with and enhanced the action to a marked extent.

This was particularly true during the battle scenes which were reduced almost to a formal ballet, and the very exciting fight between Richard and Henry, Duke of Richmond.

In brief, this year's festival has opened much more auspiciously than last year's, and it is to be hoped that the other productions will follow suit. Festival Governor Inspector opens tomorrow night, to be followed on Wednesday by the Merry Wives of Windsor.

At the end of July, Anthony and Cleopatra opens with Christopher Plummer in the lead, a Canadian play, Coloro in the Dark, and two operas, Coal Fast and Bluebeard's Castle. Herring complete the major offerings of the festival.

THREE DIE IN FLOODS

BRISBANE, Australia (Reuters)—Boats paddled through the streets of Brisbane Sunday rescuing people stranded in cars and buses by the city's worst flood in 10 years. More than eight inches of rain fell in 24 hours and accumulated to depths up to 15 feet in some suburbs. In northern New South Wales, three persons died in flood-swollen rivers.

TV-Radio Column

Fictional Agonies of Series Now Rivalled by Real Woes

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Peyton Place entered a fourth year of production last week. Its fictional agonies rivalled by real woes:

—George Macready, who plays crusty old Martin Peyton, was in hospital with lung congestion. Wilfred Hyde-White replaces him temporarily.

—Sonomy Sharkey Parkins spent Peyton's eight-week production shutdown filming a feature film, Valley of the Dolls. Thought ready to collapse from exhaustion, she bravely carried on.

—Then there is the perpetual hand-balding needed by some actors swept from obscurity to series stardom.

"The first year they can't do enough for you," says producer Everett Chambers. "You'll never do names. "Then suddenly they're a star, and you can't do enough for them.

"We have to cajole, lie, feed their psychological needs with love. But Lee Bradley and Joe Monnsit is executive producer—"don't have enough love to go around."

Peyton Place has dealt with incest, illegitimacy, murder, fraud, frustrated love and bitter marital sex. Chambers says it has nothing to do with the late Grace Metalious' novel — "we took the title and three characters."

Past real-life difficulties have included a benign lung tumor that kept Ed Nelson out a month for surgery last fall, and blood clots that nearly killed Dorothy Malone in late 1965. Lola Albright took her place for eight weeks.

Movie Column

Producer-director Stirs Film Colony with Mode of Shooting

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It seems like old innovation in movie production, yet it harks back to Hollywood's earlier years.

Producer - director Blake Edwards has stirred the film community with his mode of shooting The Party. The script consists of 65 pages, about half the usual length for a major production. Most of the movie will be made on a single set at Goldyn studios.

"I'll bring the picture in on schedule of 48 days," promises Edwards. "The normal time for a film of this scope would be 70 to 80 days."

Most action takes place during a single evening at a movie mogul's dinner party, to which Sellers, a bumbling East Indian actor, is mistakenly invited.

Edwards saves by borrowing a device from Jerry Lewis: a television monitor mounted over the movie camera.

"... with a TV monitor you can have an instant replay. You wouldn't use it for a drama, but it is perfect for comedy. You see immediately whether the gags work."

Edwards' system sounds like the way directors like George Stevens and Leo McCarey made films with Laurel and Hardy. They began with a skeleton script, then improvised as flights of comic fancy struck them.

Baptists Want Easier Divorce

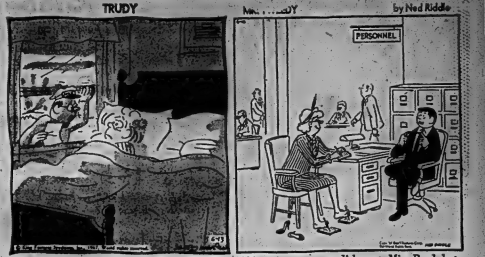
PETERBOROUGH (CP)— The 750 delegates to the annual assembly of the Ontario and Quebec conference of the Baptist Church of Canada Monday passed a resolution calling for a broadening of grounds for divorce in Canada.

The resolution, while "reaffirming the church's adherence to Christian ideals in marriage," asked that six conditions be considered grounds for divorce:

—Insanity, after expert treatment over a suitable period of time, has failed to produce a cure;

—Chronic alcoholism or drug addiction;

—Repeated acts of cruelty endangering health;



—Repeated prison terms evidencing habitual criminal behavior and the person's inability to assume the role of spouse or parent;

—Desertion for three years or such time as may be laid down by statute;

—Adultery.

FAKED INJURY

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z. (Reuter)—A prosecutor said Monday a miner who claimed he lost his finger in a mining accident cut it off himself to get some extra Christmas spending money. The judge reserved decision.

Rubber-stamp Court Procedure Invalid

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal Monday ruled invalid the rubber stamping of signatures of justices of the peace on sworn statements made by police on minor traffic charges.

The ruling by three judges of the court means the justices of the peace must personally sign such informations.

Metropolitan Toronto and other cities in the province have been using rubber-stamp signatures in summary conviction cases under the Highway Traffic Act. The offences involved include illegal parking, failing to obey traffic signs and speeding.

The rubber - stamp system, operating in Toronto since the 1950s, was challenged last year by Malcolm Robb, a Toronto lawyer.

He took to the Supreme Court of Ontario the case of Jillian Wakeford, 19, charged after a minor collision Dec. 17, 1965, with failing to yield the right of way.

Mr. Robb argued that the magistrate before whom the case was heard had no jurisdiction because the signature of the justice of the peace was applied with a rubber stamp.

Mr. Justice C. D. Stewart of the Supreme Court ruled last Nov. 1 that the rubber stamp invalidated the whole process. His ruling was opposed by the Ontario attorney-general's department last December.

The appeal court decision, written by Mr. Justice George A. McGillivray, said: "In police court proceedings in Toronto, in highway traffic cases alone, a great number of informations must be taken every day.

"A rubber stamp can be fixed by anyone in the police court office, and not necessarily by the justice of the peace who purports to swear the information.

"A signature has characteristics which identify it in such a way that it could hardly be applied by the person signing that it is his," the ruling said. "This is not the case with a rubber stamp.

"The circumstances which enabled the courts in various cases to authorize a stamped signature do not apply to the wholly different situation where an officer of the court confirms that an oath has been properly administered."

The appeal dealt only with the clause of an official document attesting that an affidavit or deposition was duly sworn to at a stated time before a competent authority."

Ontario Presents New Plan For Gas Pipeline in North

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ontario government proposed a new plan Monday in its efforts at a national energy board hearing to get a west-to-east natural gas pipeline along the north shore of Lake Superior.

R. A. Copeland, the provincial government's lawyer, suggested Trans-Canada Pipe Lines build a 36-inch line from Winnipeg to Nipigon, Ont., roughly parallel to Trans - Canada's existing route.

Mr. Copeland suggested additional compression facilities beyond Nipigon be added on the route of the existing line archlong (north via Cochrane, Ont., and south through North Bay. He said this would increase deliveries to Ontario and Quebec markets to meet expected gas shortages next winter. Both steps would be carried out this year.

Later, a 36-inch line would be built from Nipigon along the north shore of Lake Superior linking up with the existing route south of North Bay. That would be completed in 1968.

The Trans-Canada application being heard by the board seeks only partially to twin its existing line, bypassing the new ground north shore route that would open up new markets.

Ottawa Won't Play Mediator In Medicare

QUEBEC (CP)—Health Minister MacEachen said Monday the federal government does not propose to act as adjudicator between doctors and provincial governments to assess the doctor of "reasonable compensation" under medical care insurance programs.

He made the statement at a news conference after reminding the annual meeting of the Canadian Medical Association that the federal Medical Care Insurance Act provides that the doctors be given "reasonable compensation" for their services.

However, he made it plain that the federal government can step in and withhold federal money to a provincial plan if the fee levels were so high as to deter a substantial part of the public from participating in medical care insurance.

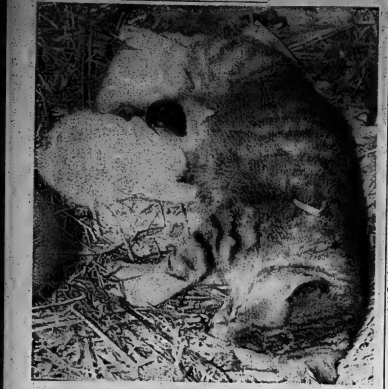
Chicago Can Continue To Divert Lake Water

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court ruled Monday that Chicago and neighboring areas may continue to divert water from Lake Michigan but added they may not take it at a greater rate than they do now.

The ruling ended a 45-year legal fight over the right of Illinois to divert waters from the lake.

Six states had said that the Chicago area diversion lowered levels in the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River.

Acting on the suggestion of all parties to the dispute, the court approved a decree adopting the recommendations of a special master, Judge Albert B. Maris of Philadelphia.



Chicago and neighboring areas will be allowed to continue to divert from the lake 3,200 cubic feet of water a second but they will be barred from diverting water at a rate greater than that.

Pharmacists Will Pass Along Sales Tax Saving

VINELAND, Ont. (CP) — A resolution to pass on to the public full benefits of the elimination of the 12-per-cent sales tax on drugs will be adopted Wednesday at the Ontario Pharmacists' Association convention, the group's president predicted Monday.

Clare E. Heimer of St. Catharines said the resolution was agreed upon by the convention's executive council.

FOR RESIDENTS OF FOSTER WARD

AT

Wharf Street Debating Club

ON

THURSDAY, JUNE 15, 1967

AT 8 P.M.

TO DISCUSS WITH THE MAYOR, MEMBERS OF COUNCIL AND SENIOR OFFICIALS OF THE CITY, URBAN REDEVELOPMENT, SANITARY SEWERS AND OTHER MATTERS CONCERNING FOSTER WARD.

These portraits of the Fathers of Confederation form a unique collection of miniature paintings on ivory. They were commissioned by The House of Seagram, and are now touring Canada under the auspices of the Centennial Commission. In 1968 they will have their permanent home in the Parliament Buildings, Ottawa.

On this Centennial Father's Day we at Seagram's join all Canadians in a salute to the Fathers of Confederation. It is a fitting time to honour them because of the wisdom and foresight with which they laid the foundations of our country. For it was as fathers that they worked and planned, with devotion and concern for the well-being of their children, for the welfare of the generations to come.

We salute their statesmanship, and the great beginnings they achieved. As fathers, we accept the trust they handed on. The challenge will be met: to build for today's sons and daughters, and for their children's children, an even greater Canada.

Downtown Mall Advocated

'Magic Circle' Plan Drafted

By ROY PEACOCK
(Staff Reporter)

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce proposal for an urban redevelopment scheme which would turn the city's downtown area into a shopping mall is both practical and essential.

See First Page, Fourth Section, for Details

At least that is the thinking of 1966 Chamber president Fred Deacon and his urban renewal committee, which last night unveiled its Belleville City Centre Project.

The outstanding feature of the redevelopment plan is a "magic circle" encompassing the city's downtown area.

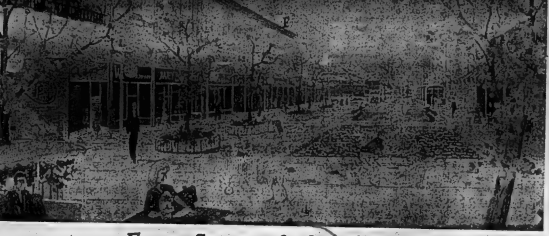
In welcoming guests to last night's presentation, Mr. Deacon said that Belleville was a commercial-residential city catering to the needs of a population of about 120,000 within a 25-mile radius of the city. Commercial assessment in the city is 27.8 per cent as compared with industrial assessment of only 11 per cent.

But despite the business potential, because of traffic-choked streets and fire hazard with buildings not replaced, commercial assessment in the city is dropping and, according to Mr. Deacon, will continue to drop.

"The time has come for us to face the realities of our city," he said. "It is time that we paid at least as much attention to maintaining and developing its commercial assessment as is paid to attracting new industry."

FRED DEACON

By way of illustrating his point, the former chamber president said that the assessment loss on Front Street resulting from the West Robertson block fire represented a tax loss to the city equal to the taxes to be gained from the new Superior Electric industry.



"When we have a loss of assessment and taxes we don't replace our spending; we just spread the burden among the remaining taxpayers," he said.

Mr. Deacon said there were

Front Street of the Future

This is what Belleville's Front Street could look like in future, if the downtown redevelopment proposals of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce are carried out. The Front Street mall concept is one of the main features of a "Magic Circle" urban renewal scheme unveiled last night.

Russia Faces Defeat

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The Soviet Union pressed to day for an emergency session of the United Nations General Assembly to take action against Israel amid speculation that Premier Alexei N. Kosygin might attend.

The Security Council was scheduled to meet today on a Soviet resolution calling for Israel to withdraw immediately from the territory it seized in its blitz war against Egypt, Jordan and Syria. Council delegates believed the resolution would get only four of the nine votes needed for adoption, clearing the way for action on the Soviet request for the assembly to meet.

Secretary - General U Thant would poll the 122 UN members by telegram, and the necessary majority of 23 countries was expected to agree to the emergency session. Thant then was likely to call the session of 24 hours' notice.

Speculation that the Soviet premier would attend stemmed from a letter from Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to Thant Tuesday saying "leading statesmen of the Soviet Union" would attend.

France Agrees

PARIS (Reuters)—France agreed to a call by the Soviet Union for the United Nations General Assembly to convene in emergency session to discuss the Middle East crisis, it was announced today.

Camp, Roblin Play 'After You' Game

OTTAWA (CP)—Dalton Camp and Duff Roblin seem to be engaged in an Alphonse-and-Gaston "after you" contest of politeness as the Conservative leadership race warms up.

Mr. Camp flew here Tuesday night to discuss the race with several of his friends in the caucus of Conservative MPs. He planned more talks today.

The party president stressed in an interview that he was not pushing his candidacy and that he would welcome a decision by Premier Roblin of Manitoba to enter the contest. Seven declared candidates already crowd the field.

The bilingual premier has been a doubtful starter for several months and reports persist here that he would offer at least indirect support to Mr. Camp.

Mr. Camp and his old friend, Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia, both stayed at the Nelson Laurier Tuesday night and they had a private chat.

Mr. Stanfield reaffirmed his intention to remain in provincial politics, but many Conservative MPs believe he would throw his support to Mr. Camp at the Sept. 69 convention in Toronto.

Three MPs who backed Mr. Camp's bitter struggle last year to bring about the leadership trot were seen entering his hotel suite. They were Jean Weddy (Grenville - Dundas), Gordon Aiken (Parry Sound - Muskoka) and Heath Macquarrie (Queens).

L. R. (Bud) Sherman (Winnipeg South) said in an interview he also was anxious to see Mr. Camp.

He had discussed the leadership question recently with Mr. Roblin and the premier had not ruled himself out of the picture — yet. He hoped for a statement shortly, with the race entering the final 90 days.

Mr. Macquarrie said in a separate interview he wished to ask Mr. Camp about his plans. He praised the New Brunswick-born advertising executive as "a brilliant man, a very forward-looking member of our party."

Other MPs considered favorable to Mr. Camp include Gerald W. Baldwin (Peace River), Gordon Fairweather (Royal), David Macdonald (Prince) and J. Patrick Nowlan (Digby-Annapolis-Kings).

Child Found Trapped In Cooler

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A London mother Tuesday found her five-year-old daughter bent like a doll in a tiny cooler too late to save her life.

Catherine Marie Baker died shortly after her mother, Mrs. Ernest Baker, found her in the cooler the family had borrowed from a neighbor the night before to take on their vacation.

The cooler, 15½ inches high and 23 inches long on the outside, lay on a chesterfield in the house.

Yemeni War May Be Ended

BEIRUT, Lebanon-(AP) — One byproduct of Israel's blitz victory over the Egyptians may be an end to the civil war in Yemen—either through a quick and bloody royalist victory or by a peace agreement.

The destruction of much of Egypt's air force and army raises the question of whether President Gamal Abdel Nasser, with his economy teetering on the edge of ruin, can afford the men, money and material which are the mainstay of the Yemeni republican regime.

Arabs Plan Future Policies

By ASSEM HASSAN

CAIRO (Reuters) — Urgent diplomatic contacts were under way today between Egypt and Algeria following the return of Algerian Premier Houari Boumedienne from a trip to Moscow to gauge Soviet support for the Arabs.

Cairo was also the centre of other activities concerning possible Arab summit session on future political and military plans.

A tighter boycott of the United States and Britain and other countries alleged to have helped Israel in last week's war is also being considered by the Arab states.

They previously shut the tap on oil supplies and severed diplomatic relations with the U.S. and Britain.

Negroes Defy Guns Continuing Looting

CINCINNATI (AP)—Two big fires, causing an estimated $800,000 damage, erupted in Cincinnati Negro neighborhoods early Sunday.

Firemen responded to about 100 fires during the night, and at most of them the firefighters were pelted with stones.

National guardsmen, bayonets and machine-guns ready, reinforced police as "thugs bands of marauders" scattered racial violence, fire, looting and vandalism in areas as much as six miles apart.

Police said more than 30 persons had been arrested, 22 injured — including three policemen and four firemen—and untold damage done during the second night of rioting in predominantly Negro neighborhoods.

Israelis Await Harvest From Religious Pilgrims

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israelis are jostling with open arms to welcome religious pilgrims with guidebook in hand and foreign money in their pockets.

The Israelis took almost all of the Christian holy sites from Jordan in the war last week. The Old City of Jerusalem and Bethlehem were their biggest prizes. Israeli officials expect tourist revenue to increase at least $20,000,000 a year as a result.

"Jerusalem should be like Rome," said one banker. "We have Christian, Moslem and Jewish sites."

Pinchas E. Lapide, a Jerusalem city official, says:

"We'll use the holy sites to attract visitors in all religious groups, and that most emphatically means even. Moslems if they'll come."

Christians outnumbered Jewish tourists to Israel last year for the first time since independence.

This is expected to be a bumper year for Jewish tourists visiting relatives celebrating victory and praying at the wall of Solomon's Second Temple—which Christians know as the Wailing Wall — Judaism's holiest shrine which the Jordanians had denied the Israelis since 1948.

In the long run, the number of Jewish tourists is expected to decline since many have been older Jews who came for a single visit to see Eretz Yisrael—the land of Israel. The Israelis know they must concentrate on attracting Christians.

Indians Beaten In Peking

PEKING (Reuters) — Red Guards beat and kicked two Indian diplomats in wild scenes at Peking Airport today before they left by air for Hong Kong after being expelled from China as alleged spies.

Second Secretary Krishnan Raghunath and Third Secretary P. Venkat were thrown and pushed, held by the neck and arms, among a crowd of several hundred Red Guards.

The two Indian diplomats were ordered to leave China overnight after a public row before some 15,000 persons in a sports stadium found them guilty of distributing leaflets criticizing from New Delhi, Raghunath and Venkat did not attend the rally.

Embassy staff who tried to aid the two expelled diplomats were manhandled and kept away.

The cars of the Indian diplomats and embassy staff were smothered with paint and posters.

Ram Sathe, Indian charge d'affaires, later made a strong protest to the Chinese foreign ministry about the treatment at the airport.

An Indian spokesman said the protest alleged "inhuman treatment" of Raghunath, whose glasses were smashed and nose bloodied by Red Guards' blows.

Chinese officials, the Indian spokesman said, said the incident had "provoked the masses" by refusing to hand Raghunath over to security authorities at the airport before leaving for Hong Kong.

Viet Cong Hits Hamlet

SAIGON (AP) — Communist guerrillas swarmed through a small Mekong Delta hamlet before dawn today, killing or wounding about 30 Vietnamese civilians and militiamen.

The attack came after a series of several during the night deep in the delta near the Cambodian border in an area where the Viet Cong control vast areas of the countryside by night.

Israelis Start Rule

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel began administering its conquered territory of the West River Jordan Tuesday as virtually a separate entity with its own currency.

A tight military cordon cuts off the Old City of Jerusalem and the west bank of the Jordan from Israel. Reliable sources said overstaffed a network of customs and frontier posts will cut off the Arabs in the conquered area of Jordan until a final settlement is made."

Driver Unhurt

Truck Slides Down Embankment

A 60-year-old truck driver today narrowly escaped injury when his transport-trailer slid-off Highway 37 down a 30-foot embankment near the Moira River.

Police said Hugh Crothers, of Imlerville with a record of 19 years accident-free driving, could easily have been seriously hurt when the vehicle trundled nearly 300 feet through heavy undergrowth at O'Brien's Bridge south of Plainfield.

The highway was rain-stitched at the scene, which has a record for serious accidents.

Crothers, say police, was freed from the wreckage of his cab by soldiers who spotted the mishap from a passing army vehicle.

He was taken to Belleville General Hospital with multiple cuts and a possible arm fracture.

Near Escape

Driver was pinned in cab late this morning when transport trailer crashed off Highway 37 near O'Brien's Bridge. Freed by passing soldiers he escaped with cuts and a possible fractured arm.

Territorial Commander Welcomed

A warm welcome from the Salvation Army Corps in Belleville was extended to the new Territorial Commander of Canada and Bermuda, Clarence Wiseman.

Commander Wiseman was formerly the principal of the Salvation Army International Training College in London, England. He has also been the Chief Secretary of Canada and has done work among the emerging nations in East Africa.

Mr. Wiseman was welcomed by Divisional Commander Lt.-Col. W. Hawkes, who is in charge of the Central Ontario Corps extending from Port Hope to Gananoque. The welcome included dinner.

Commander Wiseman arrived in Canada last week; Etyrnete was his first stop and he is now on a tour of his command. When asked of his plans for the Salvation Army in Canada, he replied, "that it will continue to do the work for which God raised the movement, which is to preach the Gospel and help all who need help."

Memorial Service in Madoc

MADOC — Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary paraded from the Legion Hall to attend Branch 363, the Royal Canadian Legion, Madoc, along with a special memorial service held in St. John the Baptist Anglican Church.

In spite of the heat a large contingent turned out with the Madoc band playing followed by the color party. The church was packed to observe this memorial service. Chaplain Rev. James H. Thompson preached the sermon, "Serving a Cause." The choir sang an appropriate anthem, with Miss Jone Bowman at the organ.

Following the service, the veterans paraded to the Cenotaph where the government wreath was laid by two veterans of World Wars one and two, Comrade's Ted Nayler and Tom Burnside. Last Post and the Reveille were played by Roy Rescoe.

A happy event will take place on Friday, June 23 in the Legion Hall with the burning of the mortgage. Provincial Commander along with the Zone Commander will be in attendance with Comrade Mel Plane as M.C.

He will now transfer to the Royal Military College in Kingston, where he will obtain a degree and a commission in the airforce.

Sixth Graders Enjoy Day In Country Surroundings

Grade six pupils from the Harry J. Clarke Public School took a day off from regular classes yesterday for a trip to the country.

It was all part of a conservation school program which approximately 800 public school children from Belleville and area are taking part in cooperation with the Moira River Conservation Authority.

The program, consisting of one-day trips to the Cataraqui Vandorwater Conservation Area at Thomasburg has been going on since early in the month and will continue until June 20 —or until June 23 if rain happens to wash out a regularly scheduled day.

At the Vandorwater Park the children are met by Field Officer Murray Gault who tells the children all about soil profiles, farm ponds and the dangers of soil erosion.

Department of Lands and Forests officer Floyd Inwood gives a brief demonstration on the tools for fighting forest fires and takes them on a nature trail jaunt describing the various trees and vegetation along the way.

A visit is also made to the Authority tree planting area where reforestation pines are providing forest cover for hitherto marginal farm land.

At the same time other groups are doing a study of deciduous trees, weeds and flowers in another part of the conservation area.

The children are not restricted to a listening role only but are invited to ask all the questions they wish — and from a lively group of sixth graders there are usually plenty.

This year there is a ready-made demonstration of soil erosion at the Authority Conservation area.

During the spring, groundhogs or muskrats burrowed into the retaining wall at the pond with result that the water pressure soon washed out a section of the earthen dam.

Until the damage can be permanently repaired the hole in the dam has been filled with sandbags.

Date Set for Inquest Into Trenton Air Crash

A coroner's inquest will be held June 21 to investigate the crash of an airforce Hercules transport that killed six crew members near Bayside, April 27.

Date of the inquest was announced yesterday by coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott who said the inquest would begin at 4.30 p.m. and probably would conclude the same night.

Asked why the inquest was necessary after an airforce board of inquiry already had held an investigation, the coroner said the six victims did not "come to their deaths by natural causes. Therefore it's necessary that I hold an inquest under the Coroner's Act."

Dr. Scott said at least 14 key witnesses would be called—to testify and summonses are now being served by provincial police.

East Hastings MPP Clarke Rollins announced the contract award yesterday following information received from Highways Minister Hon. George E.

Among the witnesses will be a representative of the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, Georgia, manufacturers of the Hercules transport aircraft.

No Change Until '68

Amalgamated School Area Reality

Prince Edward County Council has joined with the City of Belleville and Hastings County in approving a by-law to amalgamate Hastings-Rawdon High School District and Centre Hastings High School District with the Bay of Quinte High School Area. Arrangements are already under way for setting up the joint administration in January 1968.

Hastings County Council approved the bylaw at its spring session; Belleville City Council gave its approval two weeks ago after originally turning down the move. Ameliasburg township, the only township in Prince Edward to be involved, voted last week to join the Bay of Quinte area.

County council endorsed the move on an unanimous vote.

Bay of Quinte District High School Board secretary Roy Dulmage said today that the board has already written to the department of education asking for guidance in the new amalgamation setup.

He said it was expected that administration details of the joint board would be completed for Jan. 1, but that the operation of the schools at Stirling and Madoc would not be changed until September 1968.

After Jan. 1, the academic details of the amalgamation would be worked out, including the setting up of bus transportation for those students from Stirling or Madoc, who would attend classes in Belleville.

The proposal is for the Stirling-Rawdon high school to eventually be closed with students attending classes at Madoc and Belleville.

'Costume' Meeting Is Proposed to Council

PICTON (Staff) — A "council in costume" was proposed by Reeve Gordon Lloyd of the Hillier at this week's meeting of county council. The suggestion came about following a discussion in a new book being printed on Prince Edward County History. The book is being written for the county by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lo.in. It was disclosed that the county council members and county clerk-treasurer, Thomas Walker, would receive complimentary copies, at the July session.

Reeve Gordon Lloyd that that with the book being printed at the July session it would be a good time for council to hold a centennial costume meeting and perhaps have the annual official council photo taken at this time. Picton Reeve Bernard Hepburn reported that at the first printing their will be 5,000 of the books printed and they are valued at over $5.00 each. "We want to keep close control over them so we don't lose money," he said, "so we have requisitioned a cell in the county jail where they will be kept under lock and key."

"Pedalling Thirst"

Rich Dudley and Steve Davies of Toronto stop to cook supper on the Moira River in Belleville. The two 15-year-old cyclists are enroute from Toronto to Expo.

Take Trip to Expo on Bikes

Who says that the younger generation is lazy? It took two 15-year-old students from Toronto to discover the economical way to see Expo '67.

Richard Dudley of 41 Eggarn Drive, Toronto, and his calssmate Steve Davies of 84 McGillivray Ave., loaded up their bicycles at 6:30 Monday morning in Toronto and started for Montreal.

Each carrying a 30-lb. pack filled with everything from gas stoves to blankets the boys cycled down No. 2 highway and arrived in Belleville Tuesday evening. They had slept in a barn Monday night and planned to stay over in the same fashion Tuesday evening before continuing their journey of 350 miles.

They begin cycling at 8:00 in the morning and continue until 8:00 p.m., although they confess they often get side-tracked into going swimming or sightseeing.

After cooking their supper on the Moira River the cyclists left Belleville to hunt for a good "sleeping barn." They plan to stay in Montreal for a week before beginning their trip home.

Trenton Project Lowered On to Pedestal

Golden Hawk Sabre Comes to Trenton Park

TRENTON — The Golden Hawk Sabre Jet for the Trenton Centennial Park site was grounded yesterday when a flaw was found in the mounting gear designed to hold the aircraft atop a 15-foot stand.

Donated by the Local Delta Alpha Sorority Chapter, the gleaming jet started unknowing mohawk yesterday afternoon as it was towed along No. 2 highway from CFB Trenton hangar. Technicians from the repair Depot were in charge of transportation and installing the jet in front of Trenton's Community Gardens.

A heavy crane raised the plane over the stand and lowered it onto a steel shaft embedded in the 15 foot high concrete pillar. However, upon inspection it was discovered that the mounting apparatus in the aircraft's interior was undergoing improper stress. Repairs would have to be made.

CFB technicians decided the plane would have to come down to avoid the possibility of falling. Disappointed Centennial planners had hoped the aircraft would be in place for today's opening ceremonies at the Centennial Park.

After difficulty in prying the jet off its stand, with the help of an extra crane the "Hawk" was lowered to the ground beside the pilon where it will remain until repairs can be effected later this week.

Rural-Urban Planning

U.S. Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman has painted a disturbing picture of a rural-urban imbalance in society which Canadian planners would do well to heed.

Addressing a University of Maryland symposium of farmer-co-operatives he blamed rural-housing ghetto on "too many people for too little space."

Mr. Freeman believes the solution to the imbalance is to keep more people down on the farm.

"If present trends continue unchecked," he said, "four of every five Americans will be living in metropolitan areas, and most of them will be crammed into just five super strip-cities."

He envisages such a possibility by the year 2000 unless the trend is halted.

"For some time now, another three million Americans have poured into our cities each year. Each month sees a million more acres of fields, woods and hills near the urban centres are buried under highways, shopping centres, airports, and housing developments."

He said the main reason for the exodus from the countryside was the lack of opportunity for family farming and the lack of demand for farm-related business.

On the other hand, improved rural opportunities would not only stem the tide of migration to the crowded cities, but would attract city people back to the countryside.

This is an interesting prospect, but one which may be difficult to achieve. Urban sprawl continues virtually unchecked in all the major cities of this continent. In Canada there is still a vast expanse of open and undeveloped land. However, the question is, how long before the problems the United States is now facing to a much greater degree catch up with this country?

Much has been written of the need to build upwards, as in the construction of high-rise apartment dwellings. And there is no doubt Canada and other Countries must emphasize this trend more and more if they are not to encounter the problems Agriculture Secretary Freeman fears may arise in the United States.

The Funny Side

Summer is vacationtime and cartoonists are taking advantage of the world situation to inject some topical humour into their work.

"Psst . . .!" Want to vacation in a country not in ferment?" says a black market operator to a couple entering a travel agency advertising tours to Asia and the Middle East.

This is a variation of a cartoon that appeared in Punch some years ago during trouble in Cyprus and border incidents in Ireland. With background posters depicting these trouble areas, a travel agent tells a customer: "Now, for a really exciting holiday . . .!"

So, there is humor in every situation, even amid the horrors of war. Like the cartoons of Jak, professional name of a British cartoonist. "Cricket . . . cricket, can't you talk about anything else?" says an American sergeant wading through a Vietnam swamp as an Australian patrol guards the bank. And in the Middle East: "Which one of you is Omar Sharif?" The question is being addressed by a shapely Israeli army girl to a couple of Arab machinegunners she surprises in the desert.

But speaking of travel there is realism splashed across the magazine section of the cartoonist fraternity. A little more realism in fact than some would like. For instance, a London report says some passengers in North American ocean liners are making themselves ill by taking too many pills to prevent seasickness.

Dr. Hugh Jones, medical superintendent of Canadian Pacific Steamships Ltd. told the annual meeting of the Association of Sea and Air Sea Health Authorities that anti-emetic pills can prevent three-quarters of the cases of seasickness.

"But on cruise ships sailing out of North America there is an added problem where passengers are in fact being sick from over-dosage of anti-emetics".

In other words North Americans are so tranquillizer-orientated they cannot even enjoy a cruise without taking something to counter the ocean swell.

Still want to go to sea? Well here is a pleasant and relatively short and inexpensive trip advertised by Canadian Pacific — from Vancouver to Vancouver. "Sail Away" to Sea For the Day," says the ad, for only $3.50 return. Easterners of course must first journey to Vancouver!

Or do you want to go farther afield? Then take advantage of an Arctic Tidewater Adventure Vacation, an intriguing jaunt by rail to Cochrane and Moosonee and thence by the MV Notre Dame de L'Esperance to Moose Factory Island.

And that is about as away from-it-all to satisfy anyone. Who needs tranquillizers or anti-emetics in regions like that?

Provincial Variations

Pitfalls Envisaged in the Introduction of Medicare

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer
First of a Series

A good deal of legislative and administrative work remains to be done before the provinces have medical care insurance plans in force that qualify for payments under federal law.

Health Minister MacEachen has predicted without reservation that all 10 provinces will be in the federal plan when it comes into force by July 1, 1968.

Nevertheless, a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows, only half of them, from Ontario west, have taken major legislative steps in anticipation of collecting from Ottawa their share of the money.

The federal funds are to be paid at the rate of half the national average per capita cost of provincial plans. Current guess is that this will be between $37 and $38 per capita for an estimated total federal outlay of $360,000,000. But it could go higher.

Only Saskatchewan has a plan in operation that appears to meet the conditions attached to receiving the federal money although minor modifications are expected to be made even in the Saskatchewan plan.

With a variety of political jurisdictions involved, the next 13 months could reveal unseen pitfalls.

Essential elements of the federal act are four conditions attached to payments to the provinces. No difficulty attaches to two — that insurance should be available from province to province and that benefits cover virtually all regular medical and hospital services given by family doctors and specialists.

The battleground has been confined to the two remaining conditions, closely inter-related.

One says that at the start a provincial plan must cover 90 per cent of the province's population, rising to 95 per cent in three years. And coverage must include at these levels or the provincial plan will be disqualified from receiving federal money.

Finally, and here is the chief difficulty, there is the ban on extra billing or user charges. Ottawa has said that insurance carriers and even non-profit doctor-sponsored plans would be reduced to the status of post offices.

Mr. MacEachen's position is that only a publicly-controlled and audited body should disburse public funds.

The way provincial legislation and regulations deal with this matter will be a key consideration in the federal government's decision whether a provincial plan qualifies for federal funds.

The federal act assumes that all provinces will recover payments, unless the federal cabinet specifically rules otherwise. Such a ruling, with the exception be, must be communicated to a disqualified province after the July 1, 1968, starting date of the federal program.

All four Atlantic provinces have yet to introduce medical care insurance bills although the laws are not expected to be introduced for they meet the conditions attached to the federal payments.

Pension Issue
Justice Landreville Resigns

Ottawa Journal

The Judges Act states:

"The Governor in Council may grant to a judge of a superior court who has continued in office as such for at least 15 years or is afflicted with some permanent disability disabling him from the due execution of his office, if he resigns his office, an annuity not exceeding two-thirds of the salary annexed to the office."

This section is being read carefully in Ottawa following the resignation of Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Supreme Court of Ontario. It supports the statement of Justice Minister Trudeau that only for health reasons will the judge be able to qualify for the two-thirds pension, which would pay him $18,-866 yearly for life.

The "Governor in Council" of course means cabinet and the point which will strike ministers who may consider a pension for Mr. Justice Landreville is that he has not been a judge for 15 years; he was elevated to the bench in 1956.

If he has some permanent disability, and no evidence has been put before the ministers, there can be consideration of his case on humanitarian grounds. His letter of resignation he said his "health and wealth are impaired" after appearing in seven hearings.

Inquiries by Ivan Rand, a former judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, and by a parliamentary committee concluded that Mr. Justice Landreville had given himself unfit for the proper exercise of his duties. The committee declared, after hearing Mr. Justice Landreville and considering the Rand report, that the judge "has proven himself unfit for the proper exercise of his judicial functions."

The committee added that, with great regret, it recommended there be an address to the Governor-General asking for his removal from the bench.

The case is unique in Canada in that the Government had started parliamentary proceedings to dismiss Mr. Justice Landreville when his resignation was received. It is possible for the Cabinet to consider him in exactly the same light for a lifelong service as a judge in ill health whose actions had never been questioned? The Government better be careful of setting precedents. If pensions are too easily granted the public interest is not being safeguarded.

Robichaud's Warning
The Rich And the Poor in Canada

Toronto Star

Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick has drawn attention to a division among Canadians which is the most to be more menacing than that between French and English-Canada: the gap between what he calls the "haves" and the "seldom haves."

The separatist movement in Quebec, he predicted in a speech at New Westminster, B.C., would end in blood, but "severe and persisting disparities in levels of services and in the range of opportunities can do far more to fragment Canada than differences of culture and language."

Mr. Robichaud may be underestimating the explosive force of Quebec nationalism (He belongs to the Acadian French, who have traditionally been less aggressive than the French of the St. Lawrence valley.) But his main thrust is undoubtedly correct. The division of this country into rich and poor areas has been the great destructive force in Canada ever since Confederation.

The boundary between the haves and have-nots is not as clearly defined as that between French and English speaking Canadians. Ontario and British Columbia are clearly "have" provinces while the Maritimes, Quebec and Manitoba are classified as "have not." Alberta and Saskatchewan oscillate among the poorest provinces in the 1930s, have moved into the "have" column since 1945 — though rather precariously.

But in fact the poverty, lies does not coincide with provincial boundaries. Southern Ontario is prosperous, but in the eastern and northern parts of the province one finds plenty of stagnant towns and impoverished farming areas. Conversely, Quebec as a whole is poor, but it has a great centre of wealth in metropolitan Montreal.

Such regional poverty means high unemployment, lower living standards for individuals and families. It also affects public services. People living in the poverty-stricken areas have fewer schools, fewer opportunities for higher education or technical training, and less access to medical care, than those who live in the more prosperous regions. This tends to perpetuate poverty and to widen the gap between different parts of Canada.

The effect of all this on national unity has been disastrous. There can be little doubt that the poverty of rural Quebec has been one of the main factors in the growth of the separatist movement.

Elsewhere the reaction may not be as spectacular but it is equally serious. The alienation of Canadians in the Maritimes and the prairies have come to the point where they are living under a sort of colonial system in which their home provinces are exploited for the benefit of Toronto and Montreal.

The inevitable result has been the growth of a narrow "provincial rights" spirit and a sullen distrust of the political system as a whole. This is regarded almost as a foreign power.

Canadian statesmen have been conscious of these tendencies since Confederation. Until recently, however, their only answer has been extensive and unnecessary federal public works projects like the notorious Prince Edward Island causeway or subsidies designed to preserve dying industries like the Nova Scotia coal mines.

In recent years, with the establishment of bodies like the Atlantic Development Board, there has been a more rational approach. But we are still far from a real policy of "sharing the wealth" on a national basis. What is needed is an effort to reverse the present unhealthy concentration of industry in a few favoured areas and to encourage industrial development on a permanent basis in other regions. This is the only way, under modern conditions, to secure a greater equality of living standards and opportunities.

Without this the "fragmentation" of Canada, against which Mr. Robichaud warned, is bound to continue and grow worse.

The Tax On Drugs

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

For some time past there have been increasing complaints about the high cost of drugs and medicines. Drug manufacturers have been attacked, as well as drug stores and others engaged in the industry.

Perhaps some of this criticism will disappear when the bill to be imposed, many critics said it was a levy on sickness and, as such, was not justifiable even if it did enrich governments, revenue suffers by more than $6,-000,000 a year.

Drugs are employed for a wide range of illnesses, but their chief aim is the relief of pain and other distress. The government showed little consideration for ill people when it imposed the obnoxious and unnecessary 12 per cent sales tax. One newspaper termed the levy as a "new dilemma form of taxation, pulling an additional burden on people already ill and drugs revealed they were having trouble enough already."

Middle East War May Influence US Policy in Vietnam

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. is making carefully separate official hopes that "hot-line" co-operation with Moscow last week in avoiding major war in the Middle East might lead to a Vietnam solution.

New approaches by the U.S. to that stubborn Asian conflict are being proposed, however.

State Secretary Dean Rusk Saturday discounted prospects that Washington and Moscow now can work together fruitfully on Vietnam because "there are different parties concerned, different issues, different parts of the world."

"Our problem in Vietnam is Hanoi," Rusk said.

He was stressing the U.S. official line that North Vietnam is the culprit in that war and is too independent to be substantially influenced by Russia even if Moscow should be disposed to have another crack at promoting negotiations.

Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Senate majority leader, was one of the figures last week urging that the Middle East experience might mean hope for Vietnam.

"We are veering in the direction of two power concert," said Mansfield. "We might see a new approach to Vietnam."

Skeptics say the Soviet Union has some genuine grounds to lick first. Its Middle East ambitions have collapsed. It invited Arab anger by limiting its support to verbal encouragement.

In the past Moscow has signalled fundamental reappraisals of policy with periods of caution and silence. That seems the case now.

Others, however, see the Middle East crisis as having at least somewhat cleared the climate here, shaking up the prospect and gloomy preoccupation with Vietnam.

Columnist Joseph Kraft says President Johnson has secured a "striking political success" domestically by avoiding strikes' military entanglement. Thus the president "has far more room for manoeuvre on Vietnam."

Marquis Childs of the New York Times says the U.S., startled by the dangers of war in Asia and the Middle East, "now is in a mood to think beyond Vietnam and the final Decent to a general settlement of all the problems of the area." Only the long-range period and the question it is exploring now very quietly is whether the Soviet Union also is of the same mind."

"The evidence so far is not very favorable," Reston adds.

Another Times commentator, C. L. Sulzberger, whose support for the American role in Vietnam has been much stronger than that of The Times editorial policy, says "the time has come for decisive efforts to end the Vietnam war."

He proposes a seven-point formula that would announce a threat that President Johnson in two weeks will be going to Geneva to meet with the Soviet premier to discuss with "any or all other powers or movements concerned with producing a Vietnam settlement."

Some observers claim to detect signs that the U.S. bombing of the North may be eased or even halted if only because it hasn't succeeded in soften up the North and worth-while targets have been used up.

Earnings Improve

Finance Companies Emerging From Atlantic Crisis Backlash

TORONTO (CP)—Nearly two years after the far-reaching crumble of Atlantic Acceptance Corp., other finance companies are slowly recovering from the shock.

Atlantic's failure, which left about $100,000,000 owing to senior noteholders, shook the North American financial community.

"Before Atlantic everyone had confidence in pretty well everyone," recalls Gerald Forman, vice-president and treasurer of Canadian Acceptance Corp., which is owned by CIT of the United States.

"Afterwards everyone had doubts about everyone. What had been white was black."

R. M. Wilkinson, president of the Traders Group Ltd. of Toronto, describes the nine months following Atlantic's collapse in July, 1965, as "the most miserable in my working years."

Nearly all finance company earnings were down substantially in 1966. An exception was the giant Industrial Acceptance Corp. of Montreal, the country's largest finance company, whose net profit has risen steadily since 1963.

Many companies sold a substantial amount of their portfolios to big U.S. finance companies because the drying up of their short-term credit, affected by lack of faith in finance companies, made repaying their own borrowings precarious.

But most have emerged with improved first - quarter earnings.

Traders, for instance, reduced its assets by about $50,000,000 to meet its standby bank credit limits, which it had extended in 1965 to cover 100 per cent of its short-term paper.

Its business dropped about 30 per cent in 1966 and net profit fell to about $4,000,000 from $6,000,000 in 1965. For the first three months of 1967, net profit from operations was $838,905, only $9,000 less than for a similar period last year, although the company reduced dividends.

Laurentide Financial Corp. Ltd. of Vancouver reported three-month earnings of $300,000 this year, compared with a net loss of more than $7,000,000 for the previous six months.

Laurentide's troubles also started in mid-1965. As a result it tightened its credit standards and accounting methods, and wrote off about $10,000,000 in receivables. Later it exhausted its top management, suspended dividends and, early this year, sold its loan-ridden California subsidiary.

Union Acceptance, with assets of $60,000,000 in 1964, sold $11,000,000 to CAC and Crescent Finance, closed several branches and limited its business.

Net profit dropped by $150,000 to $625,000 in 1966 but first-quarter earnings this year are up from 1966 — $150,000 compared with $110,000.

"Now all we need is new money so we can go ahead with our business," says Norman Sipot, secretary of Union Acceptance.

And Atlantic's sales finance business new is "doing pretty well," says W. R. Strothman, vice-president of General Acceptance Corp. of Allentown, Pa.

GAC took over Atlantic's offices early last year under an agreement with the receiver, Montreal Trust. Mr. Strothman says it has bought $50,000,000 worth of Atlantic's personal loan and sales finance receivables and collected about $25,000,000 more for the receiver.

The offices get periodic internal audits and field supervision from GAC.

"But basically our philosophy isn't greatly different from theirs," says Mr. Strothman. "Their real troubles weren't in the consumer finance business."

Since Atlantic, many Canadian finance companies are publishing more detailed information about their loans, receivables and long-term debt.

Like Traders and Union, some have enlarged bank credit to cover all short-term paper. Some have overhauled management, taken on diversified interests, and subjected books to closer scrutiny by outside auditors.

Miss Elizabeth Corke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Corke, Reidsville, was graduated from McMaster University, Hamilton, with a Bachelor of Arts degree. Miss Corke is a graduate of Moira Secondary School, majored in French.

Open Rooms Proposed For School Addition

PICTON (Staff) — The Public School Board at their last regular meeting have approved plans to the point where they have submitted a selection of plans for the construction of open classrooms. Queen Elizabeth Public School, soon to be enlarged, will include "teaching areas." They differ from the traditional classroom in that partitions are movable devices that can be varied to provide space for 15 or 11 pupils to space for up to 50 or more. The plan includes library, gymnasium and specialized rooms for science, shops, and home economics. This type of space is still built in traditional style while space for the equivalent of 16 standard classrooms would be done on the "open plan" on the second floor of the proposed new addition.

The board is still battling to have big school costs, including furnishings and equipment, under the $600,000 line set by town council. Any amount over that would require re-approval.

Mr. Carl Reid, supervising principal of Picton Public Schools said that by adopting a more modern design, it could possibly be that the grant structure from the department would be higher, thus actually saving costs on the local portion even though the total might be higher. In an effort to cut costs, one of the board's moves was to reduce the square footage about 2,000 square feet. The board spent most of the meeting reviewing these costs and discussing the decision. The board also discussed a routine maintenance program for the present school system and alloted up to $2,000 for painting, new drapes and repairs to various rooms in Queen Elizabeth School. The board also approved the purchase of an Imm loop disc projector and screen at a cost of $500. The projector type loops can be projected on a closed glass screen in daylight and stored like books in a library.

two things which could be done: 1. We can do nothing and end up with everyone paying more and more taxes as we continue to close playgrounds, basement, or 2. The city can undertake urban redevelopment.

Mr. Deacon said the city for too long had paid only lip service to urban renewal, that the official city plan had been put off somewhere in the hazy future.

The cost of the city centre project would be considerably less than might be thought.

In the first instance, Mr. Deacon said, urban redevelopment projects were subject to up to 75 per cent grants from the provincial and federal governments.

Other centres such as Trenton were in the midst of urban renewal.

"Isn't it about time we in Belleville got back some of our own money for development in our city?" Mr. Deacon asked.

Of primary importance for the chamber's redevelopment proposal is the fact that much of the "loop road" around the city's central core is already in existence, with the Dundas Street bridge and Riverside Drive already part of the planned expenditures of the city.

Urban renewal grants would put the balance of the costs well within the capabilities of the city," said Mr. Deacon.

Mr. Deacon asked those at the meeting to sign copies of the following resolutions:

(a) That council take immediate steps to speed up application for an urban renewal study of the central commercial area;

(b) That council insure the city centre concept be incorporated into the urban renewal study and official plan;

(c) That the Chamber of Commerce be represented in all deliberations on the matter.

Israelis Struck First--and Struck Hard But Blocking Aqaba Was Real 'First Shot'

By DAVE McINTOSH

NICOSIA, Cyprus (CP) — Once President Nasser of Egypt blockaded the Gulf of Aqaba to Israeli shipping, Israel took dead aim at Egypt.

To Israel, the blockade was an act of war.

Defence Minister Moshe Dayan told newspaper men that the first shot of the war, figuratively was fired at Aqaba.

It is, therefore, difficult to understand why Israel pretends it did not open the Sinai Desert campaign and why the government censor's office in Tel Aviv deletes all references or even suggestions to this effect in stories originating in Israel.

Officially, Israel says Egypt started hostilities. An official statement issued as late as Saturday begins, "A short while after the beginning of hostilities by Egypt on the morning of June 5 . . ."

Privately, Israeli military officers and officials admit freely that forces struck first and hard. An Israeli army major told me that on the Sunday evening hours before the shooting war started, Dayan met in Tel Aviv with senior military commanders, who then dispersed rapidly to the field.

By chance, I was among the first to reach the government press office, the only official source of news, about 11 minutes after the first air raid alert signalled the start of war for the Israeli population.

The first officer I met said Egyptian forces had advanced across the Israeli frontier and, Israel was counter-attacking vigorously.

A few minutes later the briefing officer altered this story. He said the Israeli Army had detected a movement of Egyptian troops "toward" the Israeli frontier and Israel was taking counteraction.

A few days later, Israel said the Egyptians were dug into deep fortifications which had to be taken by a frontal assault and that the Egyptians did not move from the fortifications except to flee.

The strangest part of the original briefing was the announcement that Egyptian bombers had been detected heading for Tel Aviv from the Mediterranean. Israeli "interceptors" had taken off to meet them.

"What happened?" a briefing officer was asked.

"We don't know," he replied blandly.

What actually had occurred, it later was learned, was that Israeli fighter - bombers had swept west across the Mediterranean to a point west of Alexandria, turned south, then east and caught from behind most of the Egyptian air force lined up row on row on airfields.

Israel won the war in the first three hours. The dawn air force attack was timed perfectly with the army assault.

There is strong suspicion that the air raid alerts in Tel Aviv and elsewhere were sounded as the easiest way to notify the population that war was on rather than as a warning of an imminent Egyptian air attack.

Israel was prepared to sacrifice almost its entire air force to protect its tank army in Sinai and no one was more surprised than the Israelis when they trapped most sleeping Egyptian squadrons on their bases.

Several hours after the original briefing for correspondents, Foreign Minister Abba Eban held a press conference. He said the war started when Egyptian batteries in the Gaza Strip began shelling Israeli villages.

This was the third version in Tel Aviv of how the war started and was a clear indication that the Israelis did not bother to co-ordinate any version in advance.

Eban also said Egypt started the war by ejecting the United Nations Emergency Force from the Gaza Strip and re-occupying Sharm el Sheik at the entrance to the Gulf of Aqaba.

There is evidence Israel meant to retaliate for the Aqaba seizure a week earlier but decided to wait until the Sinai heat began to demoralize Egyptian forces.

There is no evidence to suggest that Israel had any territorial ambitions in mind before the six-day war broke out. In fact, the evidence is all to the contrary.

There had been a series of raids by Syria into northern Galilee going back to last summer. But on April 7, the Israelis shot down six Syrian Russian-built MiG planes and gave the Syrian heights, overlooking Galilee, a thorough strafing.

Israel was buoyed by this success, appeared to have the guerrilla raids from Syria well in hand and was content to leave it at that.

But Nasser's move on Aqaba was the breaking point.

TORONTO (CP) — Continued prosperity in North America at the present level without dramatic ups and downs was predicted Tuesday by a Canadian and American economics experts.

George V. Haythorne, deputy minister of the Canadian department of labor, told the North American conference on labor statistics "the current problem is mainly that of keeping the economy on an even keel."

Arthur M. Ross, commissioner of the bureau of labor standards in the U.S., said the consumer price index will probably rise 2½ to three per cent this year and 1968.

The U.S. public generally accepts an increase of two to 2½ per cent over a year as "tolerable," he said.

The conference, with more than 300 delegates from eight provinces and 38 states, will hear forecasts of economic and social progress for the next 10 years from a number of speakers.

Prof. Vincent Bladen, one of the founders of the Canada-U.S. auto trade pact, suggested that more generous unemployment insurance benefits be substituted for the special assistance available to persons laid off because of tariff reductions.

SIU Wants Ship Firms Keep Pact

MONTREAL (CP)— Leonard McLaughlin, president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada, said Tuesday the only thing his seamen will accept "is an agreement that the shipping companies respect the law."

Mr. McLaughlin was commenting in a statement on a government reply to SIU charges that Canada Steamship Lines is endangering crew members by reducing the number of men on watch when its vessels are under way.

He said he received a telegram from Richard D. Hayes, acting minister of labor, informing that Mr. W. P. Kelly, a government conciliator has been "in touch" with Canada Steamship Lines about the problem.

PC Member Campaigns Against Pension For 'Miscreant Judge' Leo Landreville

OTTAWA (CP) — Branding Leo Landreville the "miscreant judge," a Conservative MP told the Commons Tuesday he will continue grilling the government until he receives absolute assurance that there will be no pension for him.

Robert McCleave (PC — Halifax) said the Sudbury Justice, who resigned from the Ontario Supreme Court minutes before a motion seeking his impeachment was due to come up in the Senate, was guilty of a "cesspool of sins."

He had resigned in the "twilight of dishonor" when he saw that the guillotine was about to fall, Mr. McCleave said.

The MP asked for assurance from Justice Minister Trudeau that there were no deals with Mr. Landreville and that the former justice would not get a pension "under any circumstances."

Mr. Trudeau did not go that far as he replied in the adjournment debate.

He said the government had made no deal on a pension. The government also was not "firmly bent" on providing him with one.

There was a law governing the payment of pensions to judges. MPs could read it and see why he had not agreed to consult Parliament if the question of a Landreville pension came up, Mr. Trudeau added.

"I have no indication that this is a case where the government would give such a pension."

The motion to impeach the justice was drafted after a royal commission inquiry into his acceptance of stock of Northern Ontario Natural Gas Co. while he was mayor of Sudbury. He paid no money for stock in the company, which was building a pipeline in the area, and later sold it for a profit of $117,000.

Dairy Farmers to Get Rebate

OTTAWA (CP)—Dairy farmers will receive a rebate of 2.7 cents a hundredweight from the 3 cents a hundredweight export assistance holdback retained by the Agricultural Stabilization Board, the agriculture department announced Tuesday.

During the 1966-67 dairy year, which ended March 31, the federal government paid a subsidy of .35 cents for every 100 pounds of manufacturing milk. Ten cents of this was held back to assist in exporting surplus dairy products.

Cost of export assistance in 1966-67 has been determined at 7.3 cents a hundredweight of milk on which subsidy was paid. This left the rebate announced on Tuesday, which amounts to about $2,874,000.

Centralia Taken Over As An Industrial Park

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Development Corp. has taken over the former Canadian forces base Centralia near London as the site of an industrial park and education facility.

An ODC statement Tuesday said work will start immediately on renovation of three of the seven hangars as industrial sites.

Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said in a statement prospects for "fairly rapid development" of the site are excellent. The provincial government has already approved funds for operation and adaptation on the base in addition to the purchase price of $600,000.

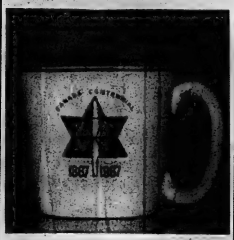
It is government statement said a staff of 25 under manager William Sheffield will operate the base.

The main industrial area includes 29 buildings of various sizes. Each of the three hangars being prepared for use has more than 40,000 square feet, which have expressed interest ODC managing director A. E. Ritchen is writing to 30-odd firms in the base as industrial sites.

Pastors' Pay Based On Service

OTTAWA (CP)—Led by laymen, the 83rd Presbyterian General Assembly introduced salary increments for years of service for all ministers on the minimum stipend Tuesday.

As funds became available, ministers will receive $100 a year for every year of service up to five years. The effective date is to be worked out.



This proposal will cost about $113,000 a year, the comptroller, Rev. R. E. Howell, of Toronto said. It will raise the assembly's deficit for 1968 to over $350,000.

Secret Hearings Proposed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Perrault Casgrain, of Rimouski, Que., president of the Canadian Bar Association, called Tuesday for secret preliminary hearings which he said would protect both witnesses and the accused in criminal cases.

In Quebec, some gangsters aware of witness identities use undesirable tactics to frighten and intimidate them, Mr. Casgrain said in an interview.

"In fact in some places they not only intimidate, they kill."

Mr. Casgrain also suggested criminal confessions be obtained by courts of inquiry headed by magistrates rather than police.

"Magistrates should be given the right to question accused persons not under oath at such proceedings," he said. "Though the accused would not be represented when witnesses were being questioned, he would be represented at inquiries by his lawyer."

Russian or Syrian?

Israeli Army spokesmen have denied that any Russian prisoners were captured by their forces in Syria. London Express Photographer Stanley Meagher was two miles inside the Syrian border near the outpost of Banies when he took this picture of a prisoner, his face fully covered, being led by Israeli soldiers. Later, Meagher said, he was told by several Israeli soldiers that the prisoner was a Russian officer. (AP Photo)

Some Druggists Raising Prices

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Some Ontario pharmaceutical manufacturers and distributors are increasing the price of their drugs in an effort to beat the removal of the 13-per-cent sales tax, says the Ontario Pharmaceutical Association.

A resolution adopted Tuesday by the association's annual convention said some manufacturers and distributors are taking advantage of the period before Sept. 1 to increase the price of their products.

September is the deadline for the removal of the sales tax on drugs.

"Such increases could result in the public paying as much—or more — after tax removal rebefore," said S. G. Turners, executive director of the OPA.

The resolution proposed a six-month voluntary restraint on price increases by manufacturers and distributors.

It also called for public condemnation in the "strongest possible terms" of any company taking advantage of the three-month waiting period as set out in the budget by Finance Minister Sharp.

Hees Wants Organizers

TORONTO (CP) — George Hees, Conservative leadership candidate, urged the party Tuesday night to launch accountability drives and to hire professional organizers, researchers and publicists.

"Our party must be organized from top to bottom" to attract the growing number of undecided voters, he told a joint meeting of several Toronto Conservative riding associations.

Communications and organization were as important in party politics as ideas and policies.

The Past Is Relived

Dressed in costumes of the past and being given transportation in keeping with that era are Mrs. D. G. Williams, president of Bridge Street United Church Women and vice-president Mrs. J. S. Loynes. Driver of the 1923 Ford Tudor is Mr. Hubert Turley.

Moodie Property Is Setting For UCW Strawberry Social

Members and guests of the United Church Women of Bridge Street Church gathered on Tuesday afternoon for a strawberry social on the grounds of Moodie Cottage, 114 Bridge Street. They were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Cody the owners, and Miss Phyllis May whose home occupies a part of the original Moodie property.

Sunshine and blue skies contributed to the enjoyment of the two lovely gardens where iris and other spring flowers bloomed in profusion. The fish pond in the rockery attracted much attention.

Many of the members were in the costume of by-gone days with hoops and crinolines. In imagination one might picture them coming to visit Susanna Moodie many years ago. Adding further authenticity to the event was the mode of transportation from the church in care of by-gone years, driven by Mr. H. Turley and Mr. P. C. McGuire.

During the afternoon Mrs. Cody conducted groups through the gracious old home where most of the furnishings are of a former day. The care with which they have been refinished and restored is proof of the deep interest Mr. and Mrs. Cody feel in the objects their forefathers used.

The event was called a "Matilda Female Society Strawberry Social" — so named in honor of the first women's church organization in Upper Canada, organized in 1823 at Matilda, later known as Iroquois.

Strawberries, cake and ice-cream were served along with a cup of tea by members of Afternoon Unit 2 under the leadership of Mrs. E. Fairman.

Mrs. D. G. Williams extended a warm welcome to members and guests and introduced Mrs. H. Harrison, president of East Hastings Regional U.C.W.

A recitation "Memories' by Miss Helen Sulman was much enjoyed.

Mr. Cody gave a short history of the Moodie cottage thought to have been built in the 1830's. In 1842 Dunbar Moodie bought the house. A reference to the home was read from "Life in the Clearing" by Susannah Moodie.

Mrs. Harrison entertained with a humorous recitation and led in a sing-song of old fashioned selections.

At the close the president presented small gifts as mementos of a happy occasion to Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Cody and Miss May.

WEDDING

Bonter — Wallace

The Cathedral Church of St. George in Kingston was the scene of the marriage recently between Bronwen Judith Anne Wallace, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Wallace, 11 Robert Wallace Drive, Kingston and George Peter Dyson-Bonter, of Trenton, the son of Mrs. Michael Gosling, Aylmer, Ont.

The service was performed by the Very Rev. R. G. Fleming, assisted by Rev. Burn Purdon of Thurso, P.Q. The celebrant for the Holy Eucharist which followed the service was the Rev. J. G. Steele, O.G.S. Wedding music was played by Dr. George N. Maybee, organist and the choral accompaniment for the service was sung by the male choir of the Cathedral Church of St. George.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a portrait gown of white organza over taffeta, appliqued with lace daisies, with long sleeves ending in a frill at the wrist, with Empire waistline and a chapel train, appliqued with daisies. Her waist-length veil of tulle was caught to a folded tulle headband and she carried a cascade bouquet of white mums and ivy.

The bride's attendants, Miss Margot Greer of Trenton and Miss Katherine Wallace, cousin of the bride, was dressed in identical portrait gowns of pink peau de soie, with a short gathered train, organza sleeves and picture hats of pink peau de soie. They carried cascade bouquets of white mums and ivy.

Attending the groom was James Beall of Ottawa and the ushers were Cameron Wallace, brother of the bride, and Douglas White.

For the reception at the home of the bride's parents, the mother of the bride chose a pale blue crystallized silk dress with matching jacket and hat, and bone accessories. Assisting was the mother of the bridegroom, who wore a green linen coat over a flowered white silk sheath, with cocoa hat and white accessories.

For a wedding trip around Lake Ontario, Montreal and Expo, the bride chose a blue tweed-effect linen coat and dress ensemble with black accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Dyson-Bonter will reside in Kingston.

U.S. Baby Boom Bursts, New Market Being Found

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States' baby boom has burst.

So businesses catering to little ones have turned to a new market: doting grandparents.

The U.S. baby crop dropped to 3,629,000 last year, the smallest since 1950. That still means a big pile of diapers, but it is 25 per cent less than the number of births 16 years ago.

Some businesses dealing with babies are in trouble. Others which have discovered grandmothers, report soaring sales.

Hot cereal sales are down and so is milk consumption.

Two major producers of baby food, Gerber and Beech-Nut, report earnings have slid. Alger B. Chapman, Beech-Nut chairman, blames the decline on declining birth rates, lower prices and increased competition.

A company in the pre school toy field, Fisher-Price, is reaching out now for school-age children, increasing its market.

Hallmark, the card maker, has paved its line of birth announcements 15 per cent.

FEWER ANNOUNCEMENTS

"Not only are there fewer babies, but parents are sending fewer announcements when they have a new arrival," Hallmark reports. "With big families out of fashion, the new mother and dad are less inclined to boast about the birth."

Lord and Taylor, the New York department store, set up a grandmothers' boutique about four years ago.

"Grandmothers are a significant share of the baby market," said Melvin E. Dawley, Lord and Taylor president. Dawley is something of an expert: He once worked in the baby department and now is a grandfather himself.

"You are susceptible to all suggestions for your grandchildren, more so than if you are a parent," he said. "You are a little more affluent, and want very fine but practical food. You are apt to say 'yes' where the mother will say something else will suffice.

"Grandmother and mother apparently are buying more per child than they did before, too. There is an economic factor there. If you have two children instead of three, you can afford to spend more."

Blue-ribbon Bride Chosen In England

LONDON (AP)—What is the biggest mistake a wife can make in marriage?

"To murder her husband," replied one entrant in a British competition to find a "blue-ribbon bride."

Other entries:

"To press a husband's pants with the creases down the side."

"To forget that it is easier to get your man than to keep your man."

"To nag."

"Failure to keep open all reasonable lines of communication."

The Good Housekeeping Institute ran the competition for brides - to - be and those married less than two years.

Apart from correctly answering a 30-part questionnaire, finalists were also quizzed on how they had spent a $5 allotment and were timed on such things as making a double bed, putting a muddled-up newspaper in order, identifying three perfumes and tying a man's bow tie.

The contest winner was Jill Ben Buckingham, 25, married 22 months. She said the biggest mistake a wife could make was to be intolerant.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Tommy can stay afloat and swim a little, but he's afraid of getting his face down in the water."

Let Tommy try ducking his face in the bathtub, where he knows he can "come up for air" whenever he wants to.

It is easier to learn to hold your breath under water if it's in the safety of a small amount of water where you know you won't drown.

What Should "Kids" Expect of Parents?

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I've a word for those parents who ask, "What do kids expect of us?"

We expect trust from our parents most of all. They should let us make most of our own decision, but if they think we are doing the wrong thing, parents should just tell us. Learning the hard way is the best way.

When we find out that our parents were right, we respect them just a little bit more. If this one mistake they know we are making is going to hurt us a lot, they should explain gently to us and ask that we trust them.

Also it is a good idea if they treat teen-agers older than they act. My parents insist upon treating me like a child. And they wonder why I don't act as mature as they'd like! At school we are given mature treatment and I behave much better in school.

Lastly, parents shouldn't order us to do too much. To ask us politely sounds better to us and probably to them too. — Deb.

Dear Deb: Some good sound thinking. But tell me, Carol, what do you think? Especially about that idea of letting your treasures learn things the hard way?

Dear Doris: Janey is 10 with a 14-year-old sister and a five-year-old brother. She never smiles. She does well at school. In Brownies she has never earned a badge because she can't explain herself to an adult.

She seems to like working on any project but speaks in a whisper and can't seem to enjoy herself anywhere.

Janey is happy around the house and really makes herself heard when she wants to, but I can't get her to greet anyone with even a nice "hello." She is a pretty child with a good complexion and nice big eyes. She is tall for her age.

I don't want to make a big issue about it but I can see where it will lead and would like to help her now. — Janey's Mother.

Dear Mother: Has she got "dead-middle-itis"? With a four-year-older sister and a boisterous young brother, she may be missing the spotlight a good deal.

I'd need to know more about her, such as: What was she like before the baby brother arrived? Does she speak in a whisper at school? Is that big sister overbearing and bossy?

And these are the things a child guidance counselor will want to know, among others. I agree she needs help now, if she is ever to find life a joyful experience. Use the professional help your community has to offer her. Her teacher or might be a good person to start with.

Dear Doris: Thank you very much for all the information. I find it a great help in planning our Golden Wedding Open House. There is no need for me to feel ill at ease any longer. — Fifty Years Married.

Dear Fifty: You are welcome. A person doesn't celebrate a half-century of wedded bliss every day in the week.

As I recall it, one of your questions was whether you should introduce guests to one another. My thought was that if two guests approach you at once, it would avoid embarrassment if you were to make them acquainted with each other.

Also, that persons who are receiving ought to keep an eye open for folk who are standing around, lonesome-like, for want of an introduction to someone nearby.

P.S. Many Golden Wedding Couples have found my leaflet on this important anniversary a good guide.

Few Lines Helpful To One With Cancer

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband insisted that I write and reply to that woman who signed herself "Lady From Ohio" — the one who had cancer surgery three years ago and lives in constant fear.

I had cancer surgery, too — nine yes five years ago, and I had those same feelings. But a dear friend gave me a few lines that have been enormously helpful and I would like to pass them on to "Lady From Ohio."

"Fear knocked at my door."
"Faith opened that door."
"And no one was there."

ANN LANDERS

LADY FROM INDIANA.

DEAR LADY: Thank you, on behalf of the Lady From Ohio, and all the others who may find strength in those lines. It's amazing how a few words can get a person through some dark days. I appreciate your taking the time to share yours.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A neighbor passed away recently, he was only 55 and an alcoholic. His sisters carried on at the funeral something awful. They wanted to give the impression that they loved their brother dearly and were deeply grieved. Everyone in the family knew how he suffered from emphysema. The doctors had warned him repeatedly to stay away from liquor. Yet his sisters served him cocktails when he came to their homes and counted him as if he were normal.

Please tell people the time to help their relatives is when they are alive. It doesn't do any good to weep and wail over a casket. — IT'D UP WITH PICKLES.

DEAR FED: Who appointed you judge and jury? How do you know to what extent the sisters attempted to help their brother? Nothing is so futile (or frustrating) as trying to force help on an alcoholic who refuses to accept it.

No one ever helped a problem drinker by locking up the liquor or pretending there wasn't any around — or by refusing to serve him a cocktail when others in the room are drinking. Such action make an alcoholic more determined than ever to have his own way.

So please don't be critical of the sisters. What you don't know about this family situation could probably fill a library.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Seven years ago our marriage would have been voted as the one most likely to succeed. Last week I filed for divorce. My mind is made up, so please don't think I am writing to ask how to save the situation. It isn't worth saving. I didn't say much when he ran around with every chippie in town but when he started to bring them home I decided I'd had enough.

Now my question: What should a wife say when her husband announces, "You can have the children but I want the dogs."

Thank you for your help. — NO CLASS CLARA (his name for me.)

DEAR CLARA: Why say anything? Give him the dogs and consider yourself fortunate that he didn't put up a fight for the children. Some husbands do — not because they want the children, but because they want to be punitive. Don't be surprised if you end up with the dogs too. The guy doesn't sound as if he has the maturity to accept any responsibility — not even for the dogs.

Bringing Up Baby.

Hints Collected by Mrs. Don Gerber, Mother of Five

THE A-B-C's OF APPETITE Be-Sure it's exasperating when your baby balks at eating. But babies' appetites have their ups and downs. And the reasons for the downs are understandable if you know what to look for. These are the times when your baby's appetite may wane a bit: (A) When he (or she) starts on solids. (B) During early teething stages. (C) At the year-end mark, when growth rate slows down.

If you take these basic causes into consideration . . . avoid forcing or fussing . . . serve favourite foods . . . chances are your little one's appetite will soon improve.

Attitude study. It pays to remember that hurry and worry take the pleasure out of baby's meals. If you hurry the feeding, he'll miss some of the fun of enjoying each flavour. If you worry about how much he eats, your frowns will show, and he'll probably react instinctively that you're forcing him, even though unconsciously.

Teething Tale. Your baby's appetite may lag a bit at-troublesome teething times. Favourite foods are in order then. Extra cuddling and comforting help in the soothing division. Frequent sips of cooling Gerber Fruit Juices are most welcome . . . Gerber Teething Biscuits, extra-hard, waffle - surfaced, will give baby the biting satisfaction he wants and needs. You'll be surprised at how much they help. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Appetite delight. Good news for a reluctant eater, happy change of taste for a willing one. Gerber Mixed Cereal with Banana is new and unique in baby cereals. Each tiny flake has the distinctive, delicate flavour of ripe banana. And how quickly this cereal stirs to creamy smoothness, stays smooth throughout the serving. Added enjoyment for baby!

Raisin Muffins in a Hurry

By MARY MOORE

The steps may be short but they are steady toward church union.

Two members of the Evangelical United Church were billeted with me for their 102rd Annual Conference and I heard from them that it may be their final one prior to joining the United Church of Canada.

Florence Hessenauer and her grandniece Kathy Baker were my guests for 2 nights and 2 breakfasts and I warned them they were to be guinea-pigs for at least one experimental batch of muffins which I made for breakfast.

The general idea, for the benefit of our readers, was to produce a hot bread as if by magic for your overnight guests who stop with you this summer on their trip to Expo.

Mrs. Hessenauer and Kathy thought these were fine.

RAISIN MINUM MUFFINS (12)

Note: 1) In the early morning as soon as you walk into the kitchen, turn the oven on at 375 deg. Fahr.

2) These muffins do not call for any butter or shortening.

1 1-3 cups biscuit mix
¼ cup sugar
1 large egg
2 tsps. poppy seeds or 2 tbsps. sesame seeds (optional)
¾ cup dairy sour cream
1 tsp. vanilla
¾ cup seedless raisins plumped — see below.

Measure raisins in one-cup measuring cup. Pour boiling water over, let stand 3 min. Drain. Pat dry on paper toweling.

Into mixing bowl measure biscuit mix and sugar (and seeds if used.) Mix. Add egg, sour cream, vanilla and raisins and stir to barely mix.

Turn into greased 2½" muffin pans (preferably Teflon for non-stick removal). Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 25 min. Serve hot from the oven in napkin-lined muffin basket.

Note: If you have time and inclination the muffins may be dipped while hot into melted butter, then coated with granulated sugar.

Display Ontario Art At Public Library

The exhibition, Paintings of a Province, which is showing at the Belleville Public Library until June 19, has been organized by the Art Institute of Ontario as part of the Centennial Commission Visual Arts Grants Program.

The exhibition consists of 30 paintings representing a physical aspect or expressing a feeling about an area of the Province of Ontario. The paintings are done in representational, romantic, formalized, abstracted, imaginary, or literal manners. These styles are the languages of the individual artist who must select and organize to bring a scene witnessed and felt into an artistic unified statement of a creative painting.

The artists, although not all Canadian born, have studied in Canada and have made it their home and are, as one artist puts it, "in love with the subject matter." Their paintings have carried the message of the beauty, awe, and vastness of the land through exhibitions to North and South America, England, and Continental Europe. Among the distinguished group is one of Canada's own, Norval Morrisseu, an Ojibway Indian.

The Art Institute has prepared an excellent catalogue with informative and thought - provoking descriptions of the paintings by the artists. There is also a short concise history of each artist. To many of the Belleville group of painters it brings back memories of when they painted under the guidance of many local here or shared this tuition with others.

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naral Concentrate. Pour the mixture into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naral Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. Gibbard Chief Worried Over Tariffs

TORONTO (CP)—Southwestern Ontario furniture manufacturers are worried about imports from lower-wage areas in North Carolina, the vice-president of the Canadian Council of Furniture Manufacturers said Monday.

Bruce McPherson, president of Gibbard Furniture Shops Ltd. of Napanee, Ont., said small communities in southern Ontario could be hit hard by U.S. imports if Canada's anti-dumping legislation is not "even partially."

He said Canada will not know until the end of June what tariff changes have been negotiated following the Kennedy round talks in Geneva.

Concern about tariffs dominated annual meetings of the council and the Canadian Furniture Manufacturers Association.

Manufacturers in Western Canada said they wanted tariffs as low as possible to allow them to serve U.S. markets.

Allen Segal of Vancouver said British Columbia manufacturers were free trade but added B.C. was "wholeheartedly behind the national policy on tariffs whatever it might be."

Mr. McPherson said if furniture makers are going to be asked to permit lower duties against foreign furniture, they should be allowed to bring in upholstery fabrics at a lower rate.

Mr. McPherson said Canadian furniture manufacturers pay 30 per cent higher wages than U.S. firms, but get 25 per cent less productivity from workers.

John W. Sharp of Montreal, council president, said in an interview later that the reluctance of furniture manufacturers to bend together is a handicap in trying to project a strong national voice because the industry is convicted of small companies, many located in small communities.

Ontario Wants Full Exchange of Views on Carter Report

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government called Tuesday for a full exchange of views between federal and provincial representatives before Ottawa commits itself publicly on implementation of the Carter commission report on taxation.

Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton told a meeting of the federal-provincial tax structure committee Ontario's position is complicated by the fact the Ontario committee on taxation has not yet reported on its study of provincial and municipal financing.

Mr. MacNaughton said that since the terms of reference limited the Carter commission study to the federal government tax structure, the report "provides only partial answers to our problems."

"For this reason we believe that in our case the Carter report and the Smith report must be considered as a package."

Mr. MacNaughton said that before the Carter report is implemented there should be federal-provincial talks on at least 14 problem areas:

1. The danger of higher taxes produced by increased government services hindering growth of the economy.

2. The need for a "proper matching of revenue sources and expenditure responsibilities" of the three levels of government.

3. The need for greater co-ordination of fiscal policies by the three government levels.

4. The impact of the total burden of federal, provincial and municipal taxation on the individual taxpayer.

5. The need to adjust equalization arrangements to ensure that the demonstrated needs of the wealthier provinces are met.

6. The question of the extent to which lost revenue access under some Carter recommendations would be offset for each level of government by other recommended tax changes.

7. The effects of averaging wide fluctuations in income for tax purposes, as recommended by the Carter report, on the ability of fiscal policy to reduce fluctuations in the business cycle.

8. The need for co-ordination of corporation tax arrangements among the provinces.

9. Examination of economic means of integrating personal and corporation taxes in provinces which choose to continue to occupy part of the corporation tax field.

10. A study of the long-term effects of such Carter commission recommendations as tax deferments, averaging provisions and the use of an income adjustment account.

11. Consideration of the effect of one or more provinces deciding to remain in the succession duties field.

12. A study of whether a Carter proposal on taxing disposition of property "could well be the effective confiscation of family - owned business."

13. Careful assessment of the probable impact on new investment in industries such as mining operations most affected by the Carter recommendations.

14. A study of the effects of the Carter proposals on future rates."

A&P say Dad... ever wonder how Mom got the money

Come Sunday morning, will you be one of the thousands of fathers who are forever amazed?

Will you look at your new fishing reel or power tool or camera... and wonder:
"How did Mom get the money?"

You'll know she didn't rob a bank... and she didn't sell the car

Maybe, just maybe, we can give you a hint.

Is Mom an A&P shopper?
Could it be that the savings she makes each week of the year add up to so much?

Why not ask her?

Before you do though, better take a quick look in the garage to make sure the car's still there.

Council For Arts Urged

TORONTO (CP)—Creation of an Ontario Institute for the arts has been urged by the Ontario Council for the Arts as the only feasible answer to a "deficiency of library and inspired arts teachers and a discernible dearth of critical artistic sustenance."

Executive Director Hilton Carman made the appeal in the council's report for 1966-67 which was tabled in the legislature Tuesday by Education Minister Davis.

"We mobilize and direct vast volumes of physical and human resources into research and experimentation in industry, government, sciences, education a technology," Mr. Carman said.

"And yet we expect our to produce masterpieces that instantly appeal and immediately satisfy."

OFFERS HELP

It said the institute would help development of new arts curriculums and methods, coordinate artistic plans and programs for schools and communities, disseminate cultural information and test "artistic experimentation."

Council Chairman J. Keller MacKay said the loss of two professional theatre groups in Toronto last year was a "setback of major significance to the established dramatic tradition of our province."

The Crest Theatre and Canadian Players Foundation sank a combined operations last year both encountered large debts.

FULFILS WISH

OTTAWA (CP)—A request of the late Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton was fulfilled Tuesday when Mrs. McNaughton presented his trophies and decorations to the National Research Council. Gen. McNaughton, NRC president from 1935 to 1944, had asked in his last will that his awards be passed on to NRC within two years after his wife's death. Mrs. McNaughton decided differently and forced over the historic items Tuesday.

Likeness of a Statesman

David Ben - Gurion, the elderly Israeli statesman, took time out during a recent visit to Montreal to sign his name on the side of a sculpture of himself as sculpture Paul Lanc, who waited 20 years for the brief sitting, continues to work furiously. The completed work can be seen at the Israeli pavilion at Expo 67.

U.S. Competitor Opposes Trans-Canada 'Twinning'

OTTAWA (CP) — Trans-Canada Pipe Lines weathered a late verbal storm Tuesday as it ended its case at a national energy board hearing to partially twin its Northern Ontario line this year.

On the last day of the hearing, Northern Natural Gas, a U.S.competitor, blamed Trans-Canada for a potential gas shortage in Ontario and Quebec next winter.

Allen Findley, the Northern lawyer, said Trans-Canada rejected too late to arrange for U.S. imports. He said the evidence does not support the $145,-000,000 Trans-Canada bid for 426 miles of new pipe along the existing route.

Northern, of Omaha, has a plan of its own to feed Eastern Canada markets, and opposed Trans-Canada's bid before the U.S. Federal Power Commission to build a new line through the U.S. to feed eastern markets with western gas.

N. J. McNeill, Trans-Canada's senior vice-president, rejected the Findley charges, claiming the intervention "was a last-ditch effort by Northern to keep its foot in the door with the FPC."

The FPC is expected to rule soon on Trans-Canada's controversial application for the U.S. line. If it is favorable, Trans-Canada will go south rather than proceed with the Canadian line.

The energy board reserved decision Tuesday on the twinning application. Trans - Canada wants an answer by June 25. It must get started on one of the two projects soon if it is to provide additional gas by next fall.

Summing up, Mr. McNeill said the Trans - Canada contingent plan is the only reasonable one to meet what otherwise could be a market deficit of 31 billion cubic feet in Ontario and Quebec in the year beginning Nov. 1.

He said an Ontario proposal to put a new ground line along the north shore of Lake Superior was too vague.

At the same time, Mr. McNeill noted that major eastern distributors, who depend on Trans - Canada's western gas, had withdrawn their opposition to the twinning project that will add new sections to the line between Winnipeg and Southern Ontario.

The north shore proposal would permit twinning between Winnipeg and Nipigon, Ont., from where the existing line arches north via Timmins and Cochrane, instead of following that route, the line would go southerly from Nipigon opening up new markets before it rejoined the existing line to the North Bay region.

The Trans-Canada application for 1967 is the first stage of a $230,000,000 plan to completely twin its Northern Ontario leg, with the remaining work to be done in 1968.

Day Nursery Plan Supported

TORONTO, (CP) — Stephen Lewis (NDP — Scarborough West) said Tuesday the department of social and family services should accede to the wishes of the labor department and encourage the formation of more day nurseries in Ontario.

Mr. Lewis quoted in the legislature passages of the labor department publication Tark that said "existing day care facilities are inadequate, . . . almost beyond recall."

Ten children are clamoring for every chair now available in nurseries, the article said; Ontario needs twice as many nurseries. Mr. Lewis said this amounts to 300 more nurseries in the next few years.

Municipal Affairs Minister Wilfred Spooner, acting for Alling John Yaremko, minister of social and family services, said 12 nurseries now are in the planning stage.

Elmer Sopha (L — Sudbury) suggested the family service department reduce the number of nurseries in an effort to keep women at home.

He also said he is "dismayed" that the birth rate in Ontario dropped by 17 per cent last year. Steps should be taken to increase the birth rate, he said.

In other business:

—Horace Racine (L—Ottawa East) suggested the government consider "special incentives to families who adopt children with special problems," but was told by Municipal Affairs Minister Spooner that the government did not intend to provide any such grants.

—Rene Brunelle, minister of lands and forests, said he could give no assurance that recent field studies would lead to the public being given access to Great Lakes beaches that have been considered privately-owned.

—Provincial Secretary Robert Welch reported that an Ontario Appeal Court decision that rubber-stamp signatures by justices of the peace on traffic charges are illegal will be appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

—The house completed its consideration of government spending estimates for the the expenditure of $3,084,115,-000.

Germs Are Best Fitted To Survive Nuclear War

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Of all living things on earth, which is the one most resistant to nuclear war? No, not the peasant or the whale. Or the cockroach or the gnats. It's the disease germ. What does this tell us about the evolutionary process "culminating" in man? While we finally see fit to blow up the earth — in a temper tantrum over who gets the most toys — the best chance for survival lies with the disease germs.

This is not my jaundiced opinion, nor the whining of some sentimental pacifist. It comes out of a computer programmed by the Rand Corporation, that cold-eyed, logistical, unemotional research company that is financed mainly by the U.S. Air Force.

In its last of 22 reports on the biological and environmental consequences of nuclear war, Rand also projected that four families out of five would lose at least one member; that an attack in which 54 per cent of the general population would die would also kill 74 per cent of all children and 87 per cent of all persons over 65. Along with us would go virtually all animal life, fish, birds, invertebrates, and you name it. Only the little bacilli which transmit diseases to living creatures stand a good chance of shrugging off such exposure to nuclear radiation.

When the dove of peace lies dead on the ground, a wilted olive branch dangling from his beak, the germs shall inherit the earth. At least, according to the latest mathematical formula calculating expectation of loss of life in proportion to exposure to radiation. And those who live by the Rand shall surely die by the Rand.

Then we shall have — for the first time on earth — true survival of the fittest. For the fittest, in the ultimate nuclear showdown, is neither man nor beast, American, Russian, Chinese, or Eskimo — but a tiny creature we cannot see with the naked eye, a thing scarcely to be called a living organism, a silent invader who has been waiting patiently for millions of years to assert its dominance over this little patch of dirt whirling in space.

And if, eventually, the evolutionary process should be started up again, millions of years hence, when the protozoic slime is again fit for living — what a new Bible could then be written! It would make the Book of Genesis as prosaic as a railroad timetable. For who then, in the new epoch, would believe that Man himself — expressly forbidden to kill — had killed himself and every other living creature but the disease germ?

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Soccer, a game that is making a determined bid for one of the high places in spectator sports in Canada and the United States, makes its tournament debut in the city on Saturday, June 17th, through Sunday, June 18th.

Peter Cowie, one of the moving forces of the city's Parsons' Cleaners' Soccer Club, and the team now behind the tournament move in an effort to promote interest in the sport in Belleville.

Mr. Cowie points out that the four-teams tournament will open a broad new soccer field at Zwick's Island which, it is believed, will be second to none in Eastern Ontario.

Two matches between four outstanding clubs will be played on both days of the tournament. On Saturday Parsons will meet the Kingston Trophy House club with the kick-off scheduled for 1:30 p.m. The losers' later Camp Borden All-Stars and Toronto East York will take the field in the second clash of the day.

On Sunday the losing teams will meet starting 2 p.m. with the winners of the previous day's game clashing at 3 p.m. for tournament honors. Trophies will be presented to all the clubs by His Worship Mayor Jack Ellis.

Other municipal and political dignitaries have signified their intention of attending the tournament.

Soccer has never enjoyed any great popularity, spectatorwise in the city and full credit goes to Parsons' Cleaners, Bruce Parsons, Cowie and the team members for keeping the sport's banner flying here.

Now with the game as a mere or less popular sparetyme, the Cleaners deserve the support of not only soccer-minded people of the city but sportsmen in general.

It is an action-packed exhilarating game that demands the attention of spectators throughout a match.

The weekend tournament is known as the "Belleville Centennial Soccer Tournament," and thanks to the generosity of city businessmen the participating teams will receive a permanent memento of Centennial Year.

There will be other entertainment on the field on Sunday with a band and a troupe of majorettes in attendance.

A double-decker bus "fresh from the streets of old London Town" will be available to the clubs for changing purposes. This, thanks to the courtesy of the Black Diamond Cheese Company and Alderman Joss.

The Sun Valley Motor Inn is providing a special reception for team managers, officials, sponsors, etc., on Saturday night starting 7 o'clock. A banquet will follow at 7:30.

A special guest at the banquet and masking will be one of England's greatest soccer stars.

He is Nigel Sims who first started professional soccer at 17 with the famous Wolverhampton Wanderers. Mr. Sims is an England-capped goalkeeper.

While he was 18, he was selected to England's national "B" team and named as the country's outstanding goalkeeper "under 23" national team. At 22 he was transferred to Aston Villa of the First Division and the team won the Football Cup the following year.

In 1958 Mr. Sims was named to England's national team and helped the Villa win the English League championship for two years in a row. He was with Villa in 1961 to help win the League Cup. He was named Villa captain in 1962 and led them to yet another League Cup.

He remained captain for another year and in 1964 came to Canada and joined Toronto City of the ECPSL as playing coach and won both league title and the President's Cup. He was transferred to the Toronto Falcons in 1966.

Now a teacher at Upper Canada College, Mr. Sims recalls his most exciting soccer experience was winning the English Cup in 1957. He had a brief tenure in U.S. soccer playing part of the season last year with a Hartford, Conn., club. In his spare time he makes model aircraft.

The Centennial Tournament should bring to the city some of the finest soccer seen here in years and it is hoped that, weather permitting, will attract a large crowd to the sport's new home on Zwick's Island.

One Hour, 15 Runs, 10 Singles

The Weirdest Inning In Baseball!

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Making a little go a long way is nothing to be ashamed of, but Detroit Tigers and Minnesota Twins were stretching the point Tuesday night.

"I eat right there and saw 2, and I don't believe it," said Detroit manager Mayo Smith after the Tigers snapped a five-game losing streak by chopping and slicing their way to a 15-10 verdict over the Twins.

Fifteen runs were scored—10 by Detroit—in an hour-long sixth inning marked by the absence of an extra-base hit.

"It was one of the worst games I've ever played in," the Tigers' Al Kaline said after what started as a pitching duel between Dennis McLain and Dean Chance turned into a Punch-and-Judy fiasco.

In other American League games, Kansas City Athletics nipped Baltimore Orioles 1-0, Chicago White Sox blanked Washington Senators 4-0, New York Yankees topped Boston Red Sox 5-3 and California Angels swept a tri-night doubleheader from Cleveland Indians, 3-2 and 5-3.

AL KALINE

The Tigers fell behind 5-1 before raising Chance and three successors for 10 runs on eight singles in the sixth. Detroit paraded 14 men to the plate, with the first 11 reaching base. Kaline and Willie Horton each had two hits in the losing while pinch hitter Jim Price and Don Wert drove in two runs apiece.

The Twins then batted around in their half of the sixth, scoring five runs—the last three when centre fielder Mickey Stanley dropped Bob Allison's two-out fly ball with the bases loaded.

In all, there were 10 singles, five walks, one hit batsman, three errors, two wild pitches and a passed ball in the full inning.

Detroit then pulled away with three runs in the seventh as Dick McAuliffe homered, Wert tripled, Kaline doubled and Horton singled.

DEAN CHANCE

Jim (Catfish) Hunter hurled a four-hitter for his second successive shot as the Athletics shaded the Orioles and hard-luck left-hander Steve Barber.

Two walks and Bert Campaneris' double in the second inning produced the game's only run.

The White Sox blanked Washington behind Tommy John's three-hit pitching and a three-run homer by Ron Hansen.

Tom Tresh clapped two singles and a double, driving in two runs to help the Yankees top Boston and snap a four-game losing streak. Steve Whitaker also had three hits for New York.

Don Mincher drove in three runs with a double and single, Jimmie Hall hit a two - run homer and pinch-hitter Bobby Morton stroked a two-run single in California's twilight victory over the Indians.

The Angels won the nightcap behind rookie Rick Clark with relief help from Bill Kelso. Four Cleveland errors contributed to the Angels' seventh victory in their last eight starts.

Mays; Grandslam Beats Astros

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie Mays, usually a starter, surprised no one by turning out to be quite a relief hitter, but relief pitcher Phil Niekro stunned everyone by proving himself no slouch as a starter.

"I'm still pinching myself," said Niekro, whose knuckleball fluttered Atlanta Braves by Philadelphia Phillies 1-0 Tuesday night in his first start after 24 relief appearances.

Mays, who entered the game in the sixth inning, took his success as a substitute more nonchalantly, as usual, after hitting a grand slam in the 10th inning to boost San Francisco Giants over Houston Astros 6-2.

"Grand slams don't make any difference to me," he said. "Winning ball games does."

Elsewhere, Cincinnati Reds and New York Mets were still pinching themselves over rookies Gary Nolan and Tom Seaver.

Nolan blanked the Mets 8-0 on six hits before Seaver halted the Reds 7-3 in a twi-night doubleheader.

Another rookie, Dick Hughes, held off Pittsburgh as St. Louis Cardinals beat the Pirates 7-4, and Ron Santo's home run shoved Chicago Cubs by Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2.

Niekro made the most of his starting chance. The only hits off the 28-year-old pitcher were a two-out double by John Callison in the fourth inning and a leadoff single by Gene Oliver in the eighth.

He struck out five, walked three and got the run he needed to even his record at 2-2 when Hank Aaron singled in a run off Rick Wise in the sixth inning.

Mays, who was scheduled to sit out his second straight game because of fatigue and a stiff back, hoped to be back in the Giant lineup tonight, despite his success as a reserve.

He had entered the game in the sixth inning as a pinch hitter, but grounded into a double play with the bases loaded with Houston leading 2-1. He got another chance in the 10th after Jim Hart tied the game with a solo shot in the eighth.

The homer was Mays' eighth of the season, No. 550 of his career and the seventh grand slam of his career.

Camancho Fined

NEW YORK (AP)—Manuel Camacho, 32-year-old Mexican goalkeeper playing for Chicago Spurs, was fined $100 and given a three-game suspension Tuesday by P. K. Macher, commissioner of the National Professional Soccer League. The action was taken after Camancho had knocked over referee Ken Stokes during an argument in a game against Atlanta Chiefs June 4.

Aaron Joins Select Group

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Hank Aaron joined the select club of players to reach 2,000 hits but neither he nor Atlanta Braves discovered the fact until 24 hours after the slugging outfielder reached the coveted plateau.

The 6-foot, 180-pound Aaron collected a home run and single Monday night against Philadelphia Phillies to join the 2,500-hit "select circle," occupied by only 41 other batters.

"We didn't realize it until we did a recheck," explained a Braves' spokesman. "He started the season with 2,494, and has 68 so far this season. That's 2,500, even in the new math."

The spokesman explained the club statistician forgot to record an official scoring change that gave Aaron a hit and took away an error charged to Philadelphia's Rich Allen in the second game of an April 30 doubleheader at Atlanta.

Some Like Hogan

Palmer 6-1 To Capture US Open

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP)—The 67th United States Open golf championship Saturday with commuting Arnold Palmer the favorite and—for the first time in a decade — Ben Hogan something more than a sentimental choice.

The possibility of a future players' strike was the only disturbing note as the field of 150 of the world's best golfers —125 pros and 15 amateurs put the finishing touches on their preparations today.

Palmer, golf's all-time leading money winner was a 6-to-1 choice to win the plush, 7,022 yard Baltusrol golf club course that carries a demanding par 70.

"The only thing I really need work on is my short game," Palmer said, then grinned. "You know, the short irons and chipping. And my driving isn't too good. And my putting needs help! Other than that I'm in good shape."

He said that the course "is as good, so fair, that any one of a number of players could win it. Maybe 30. Maybe even 50."

The odds - makers, however, listed defending champion Billy Casper and two-time former champion Julius Boros the second most likely to succeed at 8 to 1.

Grouped at 10 to 1 were Jack Nicklaus, who is trying to work his way out of a slump; Gary Player, the little South African who won in 1965; and Frank Beard, a young pro who has won two tournaments this year and is one of the hottest players on the tour.

Hogan, the 54-year-old marvel of another golfing age who has won four U.S. Opens, is listed at 12 to 1 with Masters champion Gay Brewer and Doug Sanders.

Casper, the one-time fat man who has trimmed down to 175 pounds, has been away from the tour for two weeks.

"It's just like it was last year," Casper said. "I took two weeks off then, too. Now I'm just trying to play my game into shape. I'm playing about as well as I did at this stage last year."

BILLY CASPER

Boros, 47, is having one of his best years ever. He has won three tournaments this season, including last week's Buick Open. He is second to Palmer in the money standings with $53,720.

He said he doesn't have a chance—but he'd like it, with a smile.

"I'm, too, old," said Boros, who already has disproved it once. He was the second oldest man to win it when he turned the trick in 1963.

The field will be cut to the low 60 and ties after Friday's second round. The final two rounds are scheduled for Saturday and Sunday.

Should a playoff be necessary, it will be over 18 holes Monday.

Fight Tuesday At Garden

Frazier Favored Over Chuvalo

NEW YORK (AP)—Unbeaten Joe Frazier was made an early time 8-to-5 favorite over George Chuvalo today for their 12-round heavyweight fight at Madison Square Garden July 19.

The matchup of the heavyweight contenders figures to be a war as long as it lasts. It pits a young moocher in the 23-year-old Frazier against an iron-jawed, body banger in the 29-year-old Canadian champion from Toronto.

"This fight is going to be so hard, I'd like to sit back and watch it myself," said Chuvalo at a press luncheon when the fight was announced Tuesday.

Frazier, the 1964 Olympic champion from Philadelphia, has a 14-0 record as a pro, including 14 knockouts. Chuvalo, never stopped or floored, has a 46 - 13 - 2 record, including 30 knockouts.

The durable Canadian has won 11 straight by knockout over mediocre opponents since he lost a 12-round decision to Argentina's Oscar Bonavena a year ago. On March 29, 1966, he lost a 12-round decision to heavyweight champion Cassius Clay at Toronto.

Frazier has demonstrated he can punch and can fight back after being tagged. Bonavena floored him twice in the second round last Sept. 21 but the Philadelphian rallied to win a split decision.

The winner will be in a key position for any possible elimination tournament although the Garden's officials have said "we've carefully avoided labeling this as part of a tournament. We hope to match the winner against another outstanding heavyweight."

Frazier is ranked second by the World Boxing Association and fourth by Ring magazine. Chuvalo is ranked 10th now by the WBA after being rated fifth a month ago. Ring rates him 5th.

The Gardens has guaranteed both Frazier and Chuvalo a minimum of $50,000 and will charge $20 for ringside seats.

Diamond Cuts Win String

Hotelmen Cheesed Off

A single run in the bottom of the seventh brought City Hotel's Commercial Softball League win streak to an end last night and booster Black Diamond Cheese into a tie for first place.

The Cheesemen nipped City 3-2 in a tight battle of hurler-hitters.

In another game, Lightfoots also scored once in the bottom of the eighth frame to outlast Stinson's 12-11 in an error-riddled affair.

Black Diamond and the Hotelmen now own identical 5-1 records. The winners broke a scoreless tie with two runs in the fourth but City nested losers in the next two frames to tie it. Then came the final tally.

Don Holowny hurled six-hit ball on the Cheesemen's rubber, striking out eight, passing one and receiving solid support. M. Sheridan started and gave way to R. Paquette after four frames in defeat. They gave up only four hits and fanned eight but got in trouble by handing out ten free tickets to first. Four errors also hurt.

Ron Empey and Stan Ahrens hit doubles for Black Diamond with Pug Kellar and D. Rathwell adding singles. Bob Brooks starred in defeat.

Ellis Midgets Stop Cobourg

Belleville's Ellis midgets defeated Cobourg 4-1 in a Lakeshore Midget Softball League game played at Cobourg last night.

A three-run homer by Wayne Storms in the seventh inning won the game for Belleville. The club's next start is against undefeated Oshawa at Alemite Park Friday night.

Jamie Hunter pitched the distance for Belleville despite allowing 11 hits. He second only one base-on-balls. Fenton gave up eight hits on the Cobourg mound while walking five and hitting another. Two of the walks came just before Storms' homer.

Names of hitters and strikeouts for the pitchers were omitted from the information turned in here.

Junior Lacrosse

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Huntsville Hawks and Brampton recorded victories Tuesday night in Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A action.

Huntsville, led by Terry Watson's five goals, downed Toronto St Marlo rs 15-10 while Brampton, paced by four goals each from Dave and Brian Wilfong, took Mimico Mounties 13-8.

Departmental Softball

The league-leading Fire Department took advantage of a shaky Ptn. hurler, scoring 10 runs, in whip Electric Motor Sales 17-8 at Prince Charles School last night.

Electric Motors bounced back and cut the big lead to 10-7 at one point but fielding woes proved too big a deficit to overcome.

The Intelligencer and Combines clash tonight with second place up for grabs.

Don Davenport pitched the Firemen's fifth win in six starts while Terry Belanger was the victim of the 10-run explosion before Rick Rosebush took over to record pitching in the second.

Stan Fapig was credited with a triple and two doubles among 12 winners' safeties. Merle Parks and Bob Ann also singling twice, Craig Rump, Eugene McGrath and Gerry Smith contributing four-baggers.

Rick Rosebush, in his initial league game, slammed two home runs and a double in three trips for the Electric Motors. Glen Reynolds also homered and added two singles.

Minor Baseball

Parkdale scored six runs in the second inning and held Head-Johnson at bay for a narrow 7-6 win in BMBA bantam play last night.

In a pair of Tadpole contests, Bob's Auto Shop nipped Watkin's Texaco 5-4 and Goldie Mile downed Bells Food Service 7-2.

Randy Burke hit a pair of doubles, Glen Carleton a double and single, Rick Meagher two singles and Ed Christopher one two-bagger to lead Parkdale's victory march. Carl Yates and Merle Parks added hits. Glen Carleton pitched seven-bit ball for the win, whiffing seven and walking five.

For Mead's, Paul Hall and Larry Lupenette had two hits each and single each with Brian Gerard also tripling, Richard Griffith and Wayne Hall adding singles. Stephen McDowell and Mike Goegan gave up nine hits, struck out nine and passed two. The club threatened scoring a trio in the fifth, but could not plate the goal-line.

Paul Weeks, Peter Barriage and Greg Macinnis shared a four-hit pitching win for Auto Shop, fanning 13 and walking six. Loser Andy Lupenette gave up five hits, struck out 14 and walked six.

Pat Mulvihill hit a home run and single, Greg Macinnis a triple, Peter Barriage a double and Roy Garvin a single for the winners. Andy Lupenette had a double and single. Steve Loudon a two-bagger and Billy Gow the other hit in defeat.

Gordon Mills nipped Peter Hall and Bobby Cunningham who combined for a four-hitter, fanning 11 and walking 3, passed four while loser Clyde Routley allowed eight hits, whiffed seven and walked the same number.

Reg Christopher sparked the Mills hitters with a double and single. Mike Grch, Bob Cunningham, Jim Wiebe, Mike Lamirande and Tracy Christopher shared the other hits. Clyde Routley had a homer and double for Belle's with Richard McMurray and Don McLeod also hitting safely.

BILL LATCHFORD

Lombanks, Kingston Here Tonight

Bill Latchford will likely draw the starting assignment for Belleville Lombanks here tonight when they face Kingston's Lakeview Indians in an EOBA Senior baseball battle at the Fairgrounds.

Game time is 8 p.m. and the Lombanks are hoping for some much-needed support at the gate.

Crowds have been poor in three home games to date despite the Lombanks' record of four wins and two losses, good for top spot in the seven-team grouping.

"We are doing our best to give the fans good baseball and our two home wins have been by a single run each," team spokesman Moe Hunter pointed out yesterday.

The Lombanks will have their hands full tonight. The Indians defeated the Lombanks on their only previous visit here and have a good mixture of youth and experience on their roster.

Included in the Belleville lineup are slugging Larry Mavety, off to a great start this season, Pat Asselstine, pitching ace Bill Latchford, Doc Forsythe, Moe Hunter and numerous others who add up to a winning club.

Tonight's game should be a good one.

Shoots For New World Record

Clarke Faces Tough Competition

By STERLING TAYLOR

TORONTO (CP)—Ron Clarke of Australia has a simple system for setting a world three-mile record tonight.

"All I really have to do is run the quarter-mile in 84 seconds 12 times," the lanky world record holder said in an interview Tuesday.

Clarke, who holds five world records, including the three-mile event, will compete against two other world record holders — Gaston Roelants of Belgium and Tracy Smith of the U.S.—in the Oriental Centennial International Track Meet tonight.

Roelants holds the 20,000-metre record of 58 minutes, 6.2 seconds Smith claims the indoor three-mile record of 13:18.2.

Clark's three - mile record is 13:16.4 and his theoretical 12 laps at 84 seconds each would give him a record of 13:47.

RISKS WEATHER

Clarke is ready to explain that there are a number of factors that determine records, however. He says the wind and the heat are two of the main weather hazards.

"Tropical heat is killing," he said. "We don't have to worry about that here Wednesday. I visited the track we're supposed to run on and it seems excellent, but there seems to be a fair amount of wind down there."

The meet will be held at the Canadian National Exhibition, which has a rubberized all-weather track.

Clarke also holds world records of 12:15.6 for the 3,000 metres, 26:17.8 for the six-mile race, 27:39.4 for 10,000 metres and 47:12.8 for 10 miles.

NHL Expansion Teams Inherit Fifty Years Of Hockey History

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

When the six National Hockey League expansion teams put up $2,000,000 each, they got more than a flock of players from the old clubs. They automatically inherited 50 years of hockey history.

A lot of it has been entered in the record books proudly, but undoubtedly the biggest headlines have been reserved for the sort of incident the NHL hopes won't soon happen again.

There was the startling resignation of referee Red Storey in the midst of the 1939 Stanley Cup playoffs.

There was the near tragedy in 1955 when Ace Bailey of Toronto Maple Leafs, felled by Eddie Shore of Boston Bruins, hovered between life and death.

There was the betting scandal uncovered in 1946.

And there was the record $2,000 fine assessed on coach Toe Blake of Montreal Canadiens in the 1961 playoffs for striking referee Dalton McArthur.

But none approached the Montreal Forum riot of March 17, 1955, which grew out of the suspension of Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal Canadiens.

The Rocket had gone berserk four nights earlier in Boston when he was cut, intentionally or accidentally, by defenceman Hal Laycoe's stick. In a rage Richard swung his fists on linesman Cliff Thompson who had stepped in to subdue him.

NHL President Clarence Campbell suspended Richard for the remaining three games of the regular schedule and all of the playoffs. Many Montreal fans were outraged and there were threats on Campbell's life, although there were also words of approval for his ruling.

The day of the riot there were demonstrations outside the Forum by crowds carrying placards in French and English attacking Campbell.

The president arrived at the game after it had started and took his seat near rinkside. The atmosphere was tense and there were rumblings among the crowd of 16,000.

Canadiens, with no heart for the game, fell behind Detroit Red Wings 4-1 in the first period. Emotions boiled over and Campbell was pelted with a variety of missiles and personally attacked by a fan who got through a police cordon by appearing to offer to shake the president's hand.

A tear gas missile exploded and there was a crush as many in the crowd headed for the exits. The fire commissioner ordered the building evacuated and the game was forfeited to Detroit. Campbell was escorted to an inner office and, near midnight, was hustled from a rear door into a waiting car.

Outside in the streets the crowd bombarded the Forum with rocks, chunks of ice and bottles. They then began screaming along a 15 - block area of St. Catherine Street, the city's main thoroughfare, smashing windows and looting stores.

Special police detachments finally broke up the riot and restored quiet at 3 a.m., almost seven hours after it began.

Another wild demonstration was in Chicago Stadium Saturday, April 4, 1959, but unlike the Montreal eruption this one was confined to the arena.

Fans who thought referee Storey had missed a penalty call reacted by tossing everything they could find on to the ice. Among the debris was a seat that had been ripped from its moorings. Two irate fans scrambled over the boards and tried to attack Storey. The game was held up for 25 minutes.

Storey went on to Boston for the Stanley Cup playoffs between Bruins and Canadiens. There he read a wire service report based on Bill Westwick's story in Monday's Ottawa Journal. It quoted Campbell as saying that Storey "froze" on the call that set off the demonstration.

Storey quit in a towering rage. On his return home to Montreal he described Campbell's action in criticizing him in a newspaper interview as "vicious and unwarranted."

It was the unwilling and unintended victim of a breach of confidence," Campbell said. "I've never denied the substance of the story. Ours was a general conversation and not intended for print."

The most tragedy of the Shore-Bailey affair came Dec. 12, 1933, in Boston. The burly defenceman crashed into Bailey and the Toronto forward struck his head as he crashed to the ice.

He was taken to hospital where it was touch and go whether he would survive. Two delicate operations were performed but it wasn't until Dec. 22 that he was pronounced out of danger.

Bailey never played again although he remained in the game, acting as a minor official at Toronto games. Shore went on to become owner of Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League, a club he recently sold to Jack Kent Cooke of the new Los Angeles NHL entry after repeated disputes with his players.

Holy Rosary Wallops Bowmanville

Belleville Holy Rosary pounded out a 13-4 SOBA peewee victory over Bowmanville on the losers' home diamond last night.

John Mulvihill starred for Belleville. He pitched a four-hitter and struck out 14 batters, walking four, while leading his own team at bat.

Mulvihill slammed a triple and two singles while Danny Fitzpatrick had one of each. Wayne Andrews contributed a brace of doubles, Brian Counihan two singles and David Smith and Dean Long one each as the club collected 11 hits.

Bowmanville's four hits went to Worenkiej, Preston, Spicer and Cornell. The losing pitchers fanned two and passed 11.

Pollock Favors Blair

MONTREAL (CP)—Sam Pollock, Montreal Canadiens general manager, announced Tuesday night a deal with Minnesota North Stars whereby the new entry in the National Hockey League will receive the pro rights to centre Denny O'Shea, a member of Canada's national team last season.

At least four other clubs had approached Pollock for the professional rights to O'Shea's services.

O'Shea was a member of the Oshawa Generals of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series along with Bobby Orr, now with Boston Bruins, during the 1965-66 season. That club, then managed by Blair, lost in the Memorial Cup final to Edmonton Oil Kings.

US Body

Will Study Open Tennis

NEW YORK (CP) — The United States edged closer Tuesday to open tennis tournaments where professionals and amateurs would compete together as they do in golf.

Until now the ruling body of American tennis, the United States Lawn Tennis Association, had opposed open tennis although England and Australia have shown willingness to experiment with it.

Now, however, the USLTA has decided to send a unionstructed delegation to the International Federation meeting in Luxembourg July 13 headed by Robert J. Kelleher, USLTA president.

England has asked the International Federation for permission to stage one open tournament as a trial and Australia asked that each country be permitted to state one.

"It is important to realize that the action of Tuesday's meeting is sending our delegates as instructed is not in itself an endorsement of open tennis," said Kelleher. "It really says that the USLTA wants to be able to discuss and consider open tennis proposals at this ILTF meeting and to decide on merit any suggestions or proposals that come up."

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Jockey Hugo Dittfach rode two winners at Woodbine Tuesday, bringing his lifetime total to 1,999 since he started riding in 1956.

He came home first in the first race with Coureur de Bois and in the fifth with Henry's Queen.

The daily double victories gave Dittfach 21 in 25 days of racing here and moved him into a tie with Jim Fitzsimmons for second place for jockey wins. Apprentice Richard Grubb leads with 26 victories.

The daily double of Coureur de Bois and Amberine paid $54.60. The exacta of Pyrochlore and Solometeor in the fourth paid $20.80 and the exacta of Peter Comet and Dark Scope in the seventh was $32.40.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We are taking holidays in June this year and wondered if Virginia Beach, Va., is warm enough for swimming this time of year. Also please give us a fast route down and a scenic route back.

ANSWER: This is the first big resort, heading south along the Atlantic Coast where you reach summer in spring. Daily June temperatures are in the upper seventies. It is 686 miles from Belleville, making it a drive of approximately two days.

Virginia Beach is one of the most famous and largest resorts along the Atlantic ocean, with a coastline of 28 miles of concrete boardwalk. Surf swimming is probably the favorite sport, while sunbathing, water skiing and boating are very popular.

Facilities for golf, tennis, riding and bowling are available. There is excellent fishing in the ocean, Chesapeake Bay and inland waters. The whole region is noted for its seafood.

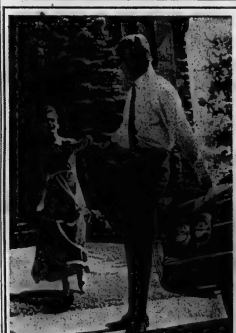
Fast route down: No. 81 from Ivy Lea to Scranton, Pa., N.E. Turnpike to Pa., Turnpike, No. 202 to Wilmington, Delaware, No. 301 and No. 13 and the Chesapeake tunnel to Virginia Beach.

Scenic route back: No. 64 to Richmond, Virginia, to 1a 4 9 5, by-pass Washington, 240 to Frederick, Md., 15 to Williamsport, Pa., 14 to Alton, N.Y., 104 to 81 to Ivy Lea Bridge.

QUESTION: Where do I write to make reservations for campsites in July in Ontario.

ANSWER: You cannot reahead of time. It works on a first-come, first-served basis except for private camps, where you write the owners.

QUESTION: My husband and I are planning a fairly long trip and would like to know the approximate total cost per day for a couple travelling by car.



Automobile Association figures it costs $36 a day for a couple, taking in attractions en route, eating in fairly average fashion and spending the night in a motel.

So a two week trip for two would cost $504. It is broken down this way: $13 for meals and snacks, $12 for lodgings, $8 for gasoline and oil, on the basis of doing 300 miles a day, $3 for miscellaneous expenses such as admission to tourist attractions en route.

With a family of five, most can't really afford to spend as much as the average travelling couple. By using the basic formula and adding $5 a head for each child to eat and $3 a night more for extra accommodation costs, a family of five would end up paying $56 a day on the road.

If this is too steep there is another alternative that half the travel public has discovered, and that is camping. When you camp along the way, your accommodation costs dip from $12 to $1.50 to $3 and it doesn't cost any more for five than it does for two.

Camping also cuts food costs. A large family can eat for less than what it costs a couple stopping at restaurants.

Capacity to Survive Nuclear War Increasing
Drury's Answer to EMO Criticism

OTTAWA (CP)—The current international situation does not warrant keeping the public virtually aware of the problem of surviving a nuclear war, Defence Production Minister Drury said Tuesday night.

Speaking during Commons consideration of spending estimates for defence production, Mr. Drury, who also holds the industry portfolio, said the country's capacity to survive such an attack is increasing.

He described the Emergency Measures Organization as "very useful"—despite claims by former Conservative defence minister, Douglas Harkness, that EMO activities are not receiving much energy or drive.

"I do not believe that it is necessary, or even desirable, in the present state of international tension to keep vivid in the minds of the public the importance of survival preparations."

Mr. Harkness had criticized the government for the lack of national EMO exercises.

"As long as the threat of nuclear attack exists — I think everyone will admit that the threat does still exist—I think it is essential for the protection of the population of Canada that an efficient Emergency Measures Organization is kept in operation."

Mr. Drury said the government could spend substantial sums in the general field of emergency planning. But he believed that in the long run relatively modest amounts could produce the desired level of preparedness.

The estimates approved before Tuesday's adjournment provide $10,859,300 for EMO, about $600,000 less than last year's appropriation. Over all estimates for the defence production department in the 1967-68 fiscal year are $25,860,000.

In the Senate Tuesday, Allister Grosart (PC—Ontario) said postponing a federal-provincial conference on the constitution could harden present attitudes and postures.

The former national director of the Progressive Conservative party said Canada could be bicultural or multicultural, but it must remain one nationality "if we are to achieve our full destiny on this continent and in the world."

Senator C. W. Carter (Liberal—Newfoundland) said in a maiden speech the Senate must take action to reform itself "or it may not survive as part of Canada's parliamentary system."

The former Liberal MP recommended the Senate establish its own committee to study and modernize rules of procedure, and called for improved facilities for senators.

Expo Says Enjoy Yourself on $5 A Day

MONTREAL (CP) — Complaints about expense are as common as summer flies on Expo 67's crowded fair site and may multiply now that school is out and children are streaming in.

Perhaps that is why the world's fair has put out a timely list of advice on everything from where to see a good free movie to how to find a giant sausage roll for 80 cents.

"All it takes is careful planning and a little ingenuity," says the circular in promising a fun time for $5 a day a person—excluding the $2.50 entrance fee.

Finding cheap entertainment is not the main money difficulty once the hurdle of the gate price is passed. All pavilions are free and so are dozens of top-notch movies around the site.

The Man and His Health theme pavilion has been packing in 3,000 visitors an hour to enjoy its free double bonus—a technicolor film showing live operations and a chance of being one of several dozen who faint at the sight every day.

Then there are free fashion shows—including one that features Russian folk songs in the U.S.S.R. pavilion—the Expo art gallery, bandshell concerts, speeches, water displays and the booming midnight firework shows.

The La Ronde amusement section does charge for rides and shows but the budget-conscious may well find smaller rides at 25 or 35 cents as exciting as well-advertised thrills like the Gyrotron and Sky Ride at between 75 cents and $1.

The real expenses of Expo are likely to be food, transportation to the site and overnight lodging.

Today's Expo advice circular suggests families pass up plush pavilion restaurants where prices are high.

Recommended instead are three new, low-budget restaurants on Notre Dame Island which offer everything from a half a barbecued chicken for $1.25 to wedges of quiche lorrain—onion and bacon pie—for 50 cents.

Built to handle restaurant crowding problems, the three new concessions can seat a total of 2,500 and are expected to be joined by other new inexpensive eating places shortly.

Central Park in Belleville?

A possible central park in downtown Belleville together with a new Belleville civic centre opposite the present city hall, was one of the proposals presented last night by the Chamber of Commerce. Viewpoint is south from the four corners.

Parking Garage for Downtown

This view shows development which could occur for the area between McAnanny and Bridge streets west of The Intelligencer building. View is looking north from the market square.

This view looking toward Front Street from the footbridge gives an idea of development which could be achieved in the footbridge area. Riverside Drive section of the proposed "loop" would pass on lower level for pedestrian safety.

Shopper Designed to Replace Auto As King of Downtown Core

By ROY PEACOCK
(Staff Reporter)

Belleville's downtown merchants last night saw a vision.

It was a vision of what the city's central core could look like say in another 10 or 15 years — if action is taken on a Chamber of Commerce proposal for an urban renewal program.

Instead of traffic choked main thoroughfares, drab buildings, decreasing business and more and more vacant stores, the vision was one of Belleville's downtown area transformed.

It was a vision of the city's downtown area transformed into a pedestrian haven where the shopper was king instead of the family auto.

The Chamber presentation was made before approximately 150 of the city's downtown merchants and city officials in the Pinnacle Room at the Hotel Quinte. It showed traffic choked, Front street turned into a pleasant mall.

And if reactions are what they seem, Belleville's merchants in the main are enthusiastic about the whole idea.

Hopes now are that the proposal can go before city council for decision on whether application should be made to the provincial government for approval as an urban renewal scheme.

A special committee of Chamber officials, headed by last year's chairman Fred Deacon, has been working on the proposal for the past six months, but unless the idea is adopted as an urban renewal scheme the whole thing could die before it is born.

Provincial approval as an urban redevelopment scheme would mean sizable grants to get the scheme off the ground.

Filling key roles in the proposal planning are local architect Paul Wargand and William Watson, whose staff has spent countless hours in preparing sketches and drawings. Jack Laid, CN industrial development official at Belleville, heads up a special subcommittee charged with the technical aspects of the proposal's presentation.

For last night's presentation upwards of 50 sketches, drawings and color photographs were put on color slides. During the showing running commentary by CJBQ announcer Phil Flagler, explained the various slides.

First off, Belleville's "city centre" project is patterned on the mall concept which has proven so successful in many American cities and which has met with enthusiasm in Canada's national capital city at Ottawa.

The view taken — and rightfully so — is that the family auto is strangling the downtown area and the only possible hope for survival is banning cars from the central core.

And in Belleville's case this proposal could be remarkably simple.

It means only for a couple of missing sections in the city's long tailed of riverside drive be filled in and with the use of Pinnacle Street and a small section of Station street there would be a "loop" route around the city's core.

So called "through" traffic could be accommodated by the utilization of Coleman Street, the projected, Dundas Street Bridge, Church Street, and the already proposed new bridge over the Moira River at the north end of Church Street.

The "loop" around the city's core would be a one-way artery with traffic travelling in a counter clockwise direction.

Buses and autos from the outlying areas would feed into the core by way of Bridge Street, Campbell, Victoria Ave., Station Street, Upper and Lower bridges and Dundas Street.

Autos would be accommodated on parking lots or parking garages, but there would be no cars allowed on Front Street.

It is suggested that the Front Street mall area be divided into three centres or focal points.

In the centre the proposal is for a "Footbridge Square," in the general area of the present footbridge arcade and extending to Front Street between Campbell and Victoria.

Another focal point would be a proposed "Civic Park" area south of Bridge Street along the river to about opposite the city hall. The feeling is that this area should be opened up to allow a view of the river, the bay and the new Dundas Street bridge.

This would become Belleville's central park providing a lovely setting for the present city hall which is felt should be preserved for its architectural interest.

Eventually a new civic centre or administration building will be required and the proposed site for this is at the south end of the central park immediately opposite the present city hall.

The civic park itself would feature fountains, park furniture, reflecting pools, trees, shrubbery and sculpture. Again this concept would be continued up through the Front Street mall.

The third focal point in the urban renewal scheme would be at the north end of Front Street which is now termed "Nondescript."

Here it is felt that there is no existing feature which could be built around so the plan suggested a complete redevelopment. This would be undertaken by private interests which would have little hesitancy in initiating the development as the potential of the area was realized.

Envisioned is a multi-store office building, a shopping centre and hotel complex.

Also the committee envisions redevelopment of the area south of Bridge Street between Front Street and The Intelligencer building.

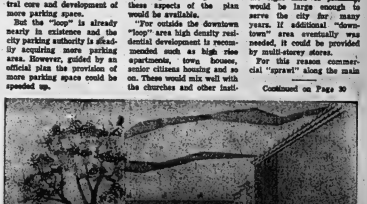
The corner area southeast of the Bridge and Front Street intersection is felt would lend itself to a large department store. North of the market square could be a shopping arcade and multi-storey parking garage.

At the foot of Front Street, but still inside the "loop" area could be a new hotel complex.

It is felt this area would be an ideal location for a hotel which would be readily accessible from the central core area and also from the No. 2 highway (Dundas Street) route.

One of the first requirements for the mall concept of downtown redevelopment would be completion of the "loop" road around the central core and development of more parking space.

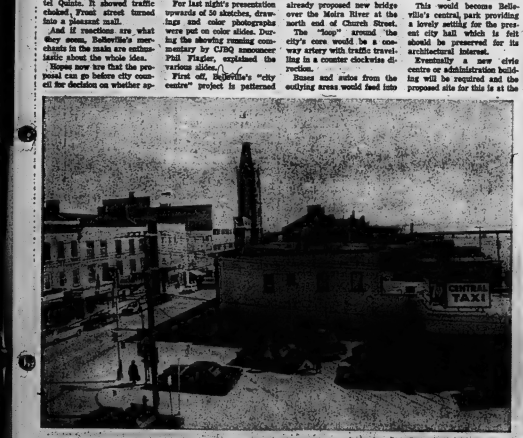
But the "loop" is already nearly in existence and the city parking authority is steadily acquiring more parking area. However, guided by an official plan the provision of more parking space could be speeded up.



The city would have to acquire the property for completion of the "loop" road and for park areas but under an approval urban renewal scheme government grants for these aspects of the plan would be available.

"For outside the downtown "loop" area high density residential development is recommended such as high rise apartments, town houses, senior citizens housing and so on. These would mix well with the churches and other institutional buildings already in the area.

Such high density residential development would provide the people to feed the central core business district, which with the right kind of planning, would be large enough to serve the city for many years. If additional "downtown" area eventually was needed, it could be provided by multi-storey stores.



For this reason commercial "sprawl" along the main

Six Men Weigh Nominations for Order of Canada Awards

OTTAWA (CP)—Six men are gathered around a conference table at Government House today weighing one of the most sensitive issues of Centennial Year: Who should be selected for the first Order of Canada awards?

Although their deliberations are secret, it has been common talk in the capital for weeks that they have been deluged with nominations for the honors system announced April 17 by Prime Minister Pearson.

It is expected that the selections will be announced July 1—the 100th anniversary of Confederation—by Queen Elizabeth who is to become head of the new order. She is scheduled to address a joint session of Parliament that day on the Parliament Hill lawns.

Most of the advance speculation centres on the choices for Companions of the Order of Canada, the major level in the three - tier system. These are limited to 50 this year, 25 in any future year and a maximum of 150 living members at any one time.

Next in line is the Medal of Courage, for acts of conspicuous courage in the face of danger. There is no limit on these. They are being handled by a separate decorations committee.

Third are Medals of Service, for outstanding contributions to Canada or humanity at large. There can be up to 100 of these this year and 50 in any future year.

The task of making the nominations to Governor - General Michener, who is chancellor of the order, has been assigned to an advisory council comprising Chief Justice Robert Taschereau; Gérôme Robertson, clerk of the cabinet; Ernest Steele, undersecretary of state; Jean Marchand, chairman of the Canada Council; Gerhard Herzberg, president of the Royal Society of Canada, and Rt. Rev. Louis-Albert Vachon, president of the Association of Universities and colleges of Canada.

Spokesman for the council have declined to reveal the number of nominations received.

Among the dozens of persons being talked about as leading candidates for companion awards; some of the more prominent include:

Mme. Georges Vanier, widow of the late governor-general; Dr. Wilder Penfield, the widely-honored Montreal neurosurgeon; former governor-general Vincent Massey; Dr. Hans Selye of Montreal; artist A. Y. Jackson; photographer Yousuf Karsh;

Dr. Claude T. Bissell, president off the University of Toronto; Col. Edward Churchill, builder of Expo 67; Tom Patterson, founder of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival; playwright Gratien Gelinas; labor leader Claude Jodoin; former prime minister Louis St. Laurent;

Hockey players Maurice Richard and Gordie Howe; symphony conductor Sir Ernest MacMillan; former CNR president Donald Gordon; pianist Glenn Gould; comedians John Wayne and Frank Shuster.

Psychiatric Nurses Request Recognition

TORONTO (CP)—A brief submitted to the Ontario government's committee on the healing arts Tuesday says lack of professional recognition causes psychiatric nurses to leave either the province or the profession.

The brief, submitted by the Psychiatric Nurses Association of Ontario, urged that a training school be established and graduates be registered as psychiatric nurses on a professional parity with registered nurses.

Treatment in Ontario Mental Hospitals Varies From Best to Obsolete Says Briton

TORONTO (CP) — Methods of treatment in Ontario mental hospitals vary from the best and most advanced to the obsolete, a British psychiatrist nurse Tuesday told the provincial committee on the healing arts.

R. R. Brown of the Clarke Institute of Psychiatry in Toronto said he had read in history books about "packing" being used to quell disturbed patients, but had never seen it in seven years of practice in England.

Packing involves binding a patient's body with wet sheets while he is held down by attendants.

Brown who came to Canada 18 months ago, said he was employed as a ward aide at one Ontario Hospital in Toronto until his accreditation papers from England came through last year. Then he worked as a psychiatric nurse there before going to the Clarke Institute.

Of the packing treatment, Brown said: "There are more humane ways of calming a patient that are less hurtful to him.

"But if you have a ward run by people overly concerned about rigid rules being kept, you will have patients who will rebel wildly."

In more modern hospitals a patient is calmed down partly by drugs and partly by therapy before he becomes so upset that physical restraint may be required, he said.

Brown said he witnessed shock treatment being administered in Ontario mental hospitals without a general anesthetic being given.

"I never saw such treatment being given without an anesthetic until I came to Ontario," he said, "and certainly we always give it at the Clarke Institute."

The Clarke Institute, unlike most Ontario mental hospitals, is not operated by the provincial Department of Health. It is affiliated with the University of Toronto.

Canadian Help Is Not Enough

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is not giving enough to the world's starving countries, delegates to the Canadian Dietetic Association annual meeting were told Tuesday.

Margaret Herrington, a former official with United Nations food advisory services, said Canada was among the top four contributors per capita to UN aid programs.

arterial roads should be discouraged.

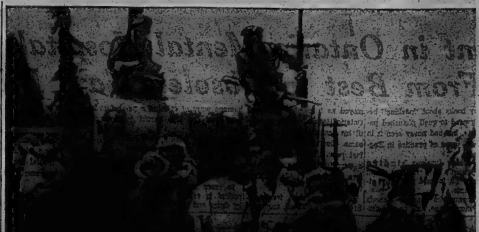
Construction of new commercial buildings and revamping of present structures would be a private responsibility but under an urban renewal scheme the city would be allowed to acquire property, raze the buildings and sell the land back to private developers.

The cost of properties necessary for roadway and park development as well as financial losses on properties resold for private development, would be subsidized by the government.

Committee chairman, Fred Deacon, notes that with the success of the proposed "loop" route already in existence and with both the Dundas Street and the Church street bridges already proposed in traffic study reports, there is very little in the central city core idea not already included in city council thinking.

The current urban redevelopment proposal started out last summer with the Chamber of Commerce members thinking in terms of a Norwich "clean up paint up" campaign.

Soon however it was realized that far more than a Norwich plan was needed to end the downtown area blight.



Chamber officials are making no bones about the fact that a complete downtown redevelopment scheme is necessary in Belleville.

They point to the endless traffic jams which are driving the shoppers to the suburban plazas, to the vacant stores, and the reluctance on the part of owners to rebuild and tenants to renew leases.

All this, they say, results in loss of assessment — and loss of assessment means higher taxes for everyone.

The shopping mall concept has proven immensely successful in Fresno, California, in Kalamazoo, Michigan, where downtown areas have actually been reborn.

They feel certain it could do the same in Belleville.

Mariner V Races Russian Venus IV

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) The Mariner V spacecraft raced a heavier Russian craft toward Venus today to penetrate with electronic fingers the planet's mysterious Veil of Clouds and help scientists see if Venus is a fit place to live.

The 540-pound Mariner V, less than one-quarter the weight of Russia's Venus IV craft launched two days ago, rocketed from Cape Kennedy at 2:01 a.m. EDT today on the first U.S. venture to Venus since 1962 and the first planetary probe by the U.S. in more than five years.

Mariner's Atlas - Agena booster rocket threaded an imaginary needle as it sped toward Venus and the windmill-shaped spacecraft toward its distant target 212,000,000 miles away.

"We are going precisely where we expected to go," project officials reported after tracking the spacecraft for several hours.

"Spacecraft performance also appears to be very good," said Allen E. Wells, Mariner V system manager for the jet propulsion laboratory at Pasadena, Calif., which oversees the Mariner V project.

Wells said communications ability remains in exceptionally good shape and were turned on as the craft's four power-producing solar panels deployed. Guidance sensors aboard the $26,000,000 Mariner V locked onto the sun for orientation as planned.

During a lofty 35-minute, one-meter Oct. 19, Mariner V is to pass within 2,000 miles of Venus.

Mariner scientists said they did not know whether the U.S. craft or Russia's 2,436 - pound Venus IV would arrive at the planet first. The Soviets have announced only that Venus IV's trip will take about four months.

Hospital Week Events Are Concluded

NAPANEE — The L. and A. County General Hospital has every reason to congratulate itself on the part it played last week in marking Canada's Centennial. Proceedings came to a climax Saturday with several projects in the Prince Charles School, and each one a success. Public response was excellent. Despite the oppressive heat, the attendance both afternoon and evening was more than had been expected, in view of the fact that so many Centennial events are crowding the month.

The afternoon featured a centennial bake sale, arranged by Mrs. Helen Loucks and committee, an afternoon tea, and a display of antiques which was there for the evening guests to enjoy also. The proposed parade of antique costumes did not materialize, as there seemed to be no time for it, but during the evening the prize was awarded to Mrs. Bert Thompson.

The doors opened again at 7:30 and the crowd had an hour to relish to view the collections of antiques of various classes. A variety program in which talent of the hospital staff members predominated was much enjoyed.

Mrs. Flora Barr and helpers made the arrangements for the tea, and Mrs. Linda Quevillon and assistants got together the talent for the program.

Members of the hospital staff achieved their ambition to show their gratitude to the County for all it has done for the L. and A. County General Hospital. They not only provided entertainment and free admission to the past, but also will be able to contribute a tidy sum to the County Centennial committee. Returns are not final yet, but they expect to clear close to $200 through their efforts.

As far as possible the staff members carried out the project themselves, but they are comparatively few in number, and could not have achieved such success without the volunteered public assistance.

Contributions to the baked goods table came in unsolicited, many from ex-patients or their friends as a gesture of gratitude. Many more were from well-wishers.

Throughout the afternoon Mrs. Grant Seramin and Mrs. Ted Wilde provided background organ music. Miss Priscilla Keys added music to the evening program with her delightful singing. Costumes and properties came from many sources outside the hospital and homes of its staff members.

Sebastian, a pet penguin, strolls along walk near Copacabana Beach in Rio de Janeiro after a cooling swim. Several hundred penguins are washed up on Brazil's beaches each year, apparently victims of ocean currents which sweep them thousands of miles from the cooler climes of southern South America, but Sebastian is one of the few to survive the change in climate for any length of time. 'I Think I'm Eccentric' Says Emmy Winner Aunt Bee

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "In other words," said Aunt Bee of the Andy Griffith Show, "I think I'm eccentric."

For example—

She planted her plump figure squarely in front of a hot rod that roared toward her recently —and smiled sweetly at the young driver.

"He had to put on his brakes and go around me. He was mad. I expressed my anger by standing there smiling at him."

Aunt Bee—which is the way CBS spells it and she signs autographs, although the character is Beatrice Taylor—is Frances Bavier.

She won an Emmy, her first, at the June 4 awards after seven years' playing the fussy-but-apple - pie - sweet housekeeper in Sheriff Andy Taylor's small-town home.

"I wasn't moved so deeply as I could have been," she says, "because I've never had an opportunity to know the people in the profession. . . It's all pleasing, anonymous."

Miss Bavier — pronounced ties of a New Yorker. I lead a Baby-yay-ie 65, a veteran of 42 years' acting, the last 17 in films and television.

She lives alone in a pink-stucco apartment with cedar and fireplace, five minutes in her car from work.

"Aunt Bee is only a face to me. I have the inherent quali- enjoy about being older."

very lovely life. I am overweight. I took off 25 pounds, but as you can see I am putting it back on."

Of being "eccentric" she said: "It's awfully nice. I'd get very angry if I were not allowed to be. It's one of the things I can

French Students Charter Airplane To Receive Diplomas at Expo Site

MONTREAL (CP) — Seventy-five business students from Fontainebleau, France, got their wish Tuesday night and graduated with full ceremonies on the Expo site.

The 75, including three Canadians, picked up their diplomas from Fontainebleau's European Institute of Business Administration at the Du Pont Auditorium on St. Helen's Island, after arriving here by chartered plane Thursday.

"It was their own idea," an institute spokesman said. "They organized everything themselves because they wanted to see Expo."

Tuesday night's proud graduates represent only half their class—the others could not make the trip and will have their diplomas mailed to their homes.

After visiting the fair at their leisure the Expo-goers will return in separate groups to their homes in 20 different countries.

Today a few of them will have a special interest in a full round of celebrations, including a performance by the Schuhplattler dancers of Bavaria that

West German President Heinrich Luebke, who arrived in Montreal from Ottawa for a civic dinner Tuesday night, will preside as his nation's black, yellow and red flag rises over Place des Nations to begin the day.

Today is also Port of Montreal Day with a party of harbor officials, businessmen and city officials expected to set out in the vessel Madelon II for a trip of the St. Lawrence River.

Tuesday saw Tunisia become the seventh country to promise its pavilion to Montreal once the fair is over, and settlement of a dispute between student employees of Expo and restaurant and boutique concessionaires.

Bechir Zanaidi, Tunisian minister of industry and commerce, said his mosaic-decorated pavilion was his government's "cultural contribution" to Montreal life.

Fair officials meanwhile announced that a letter was going out to all boutique and restaurant concessionaires on the site following complaints from student employees that some of their number were being underpaid and overworked.

The announcement followed a day - long meeting between Expo's labor relations department and members of a French-language student union which spoke for student workers.

An Expo spokesman said the letter would explain details of working contracts signed on behalf of the boutique owners and restaurateurs, and would ask them to abide by the contract terms.

The contracts stipulate that employees must be paid a minimum wage of $1.40 an hour and must not work more than 48 hours in six consecutive days.

Menopause May Make Wife Irritable

Dear Dr. Molner: My wife is going through her change of life. She is 47. Would this have anything to do with her unusual, irritable, nagging disposition? No matter how much I do for her, she always finds fault. It's beginning to make me a complete wreck. Is this to be expected? We have been married 23 years. — C. M.

Well, friend, neither you nor I can know exactly what change of life (menopause) is like, because we're men.

It is a difficult time in'ts woman's life. She knows it is the end of her chance to become a mother. She knows she is at that time of life called middle age. She encounters (in varying degrees) discomforts such as "hot flashes" and jitters. Sometimes she is taking on weight and losing her figure. She is afraid that she is "losing her femininity" — although that is not true. Still, she knows she's not the dewy-eyed charmer she was 25 years earlier.

Of course we were males got older and lose our figures, prince charming that we used realize that we aren't the prince charming that we used to be, either. But it doesn't come on with as great change in our physiology. We don't have the flashes. We rarely find our physical rhythms disrupted.

All of which led me to insert this sentence in the booklet, I wrote on menopause: "an understanding husband is a blessing!"

It is no more than fair that a husband should inform himself of what the menopause means, and maybe you will want to read the booklet. If so, send 25 cents in coin and a self-addressed, unstamped envelope to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., and ask for "Menopause Easier." Plus 5 cents for postage.

Menopause varies in its intensity from one woman to another, for a few except with very little trouble, some have a lot, most have enough discomfort to make them edgy and annoyed with the whole business.

But it doesn't cause a complete change in disposition.

After 25 years you must have a fair idea of your wife's normal reaction to things, and if she has changed from a pleasant, easy-going person into a chronic nag, you'd better look deeper than just menopause to explain it.

She needs and deserves sympathetic consideration from you, but if she is making life as miserable as you say, there probably is something deeper involved.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been under the impression that butter is not fat in the same sense that margarine, suet or other meat fat is, since butter is derived from milk and cream. Similarly, margarine is derived from various vegetable oils.

I infer from your column that both, in the finished product, are fat in their effect. — J. W. H.

There are three sources—of fat: derived from animal products, and vegetable oils.

Butter from dairy sources and margarine from vegetable oils are rated at 81 per cent fat content.

Lard is 100 per cent fat. Salt pork fat has an 85 per cent fat content.

The chemistry may vary a bit but they all are fat from the nutritional standpoint.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Should I eat black pepper or not? I am 78, and have been operated on for stomach ulcer and also am taking a heart tablet. — Mrs. L. C.

It wouldn't affect your heart. If you have no further amounts shouldn't harm you, but if you are having any stomach distress I would avoid pepper as well as other strong spices.

LIBRA (Sept. 23— Oct.—22): What appeared buried in past is apt to make reappearance. Best to place cards face up. If you hide, dark or weak, others see through you. Stick to principles. State beliefs.

UN Assembly Likely To Meet at Weekend

Russian Move Aimed at Israel

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations General Assembly probably will begin an emergency session this weekend to debate a Soviet demand that Israel withdraw from the Arab territory it conquered.

Secretary - General U Thant began polling the 122 UN members on the Soviet request for the session after the Security Council refused Wednesday to approve a Soviet resolution, condemning Israel's "continued occupation" of Egyptian, Jordanian and Syrian territory taken in the war last week.

The Russians wanted the council also to demand that Israeli troops pull back to the lines they held before fighting began June 5.

Thant must call the assembly session within 24 hours after receiving affirmative responses from a majority of the members—62 nations. Diplomats generally believed that a majority would agree by Friday and that the session would begin Saturday.

Speculation continued that Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin would attend the session. Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko as his letter requesting the meeting said the Soviet delegation would include "leading statesmen of the Soviet Union."

AP correspondent Henry S. Bradsher reported from Moscow that Kosygin was likely to be among them.

The Soviet Union based its call for the emergency session on the United-for-Peace resolution which the United States pushed through the assembly in 1950 to circumvent the Soviet veto in the Security Council.

The provision in the Soviet resolution to condemn Israel received the votes of only four council members — the Soviet Union, Bulgaria, India and Mali. The 11 other council members abstained.

The provision calling for Israeli withdrawal was supported by six members—the four that voted for the first provision plus Ethiopia and Nigeria. The other nine council members again abstained.

The council gave unanimous approval, however, to a resolution sponsored by Argentina, Brazil and Ethiopia calling on all governments concerned to treat war prisoners and civilians caught in the war humanely. It also asked Israel to facilitate the return of refugees from the fighting.

African States Backing Egypt

CAIRO (Reuters) — Egypt was reported today to be carrying out contacts with African states on the Middle East crisis as Arab nations continued to seek support in its post - war confrontation with Israel.

The authoritative Cairo newspaper Al Ahram says a number of the member states of the Organization of African Unity consulted by Egypt had expressed support for the Arab cause.

The newspaper also says President Gamal Abdel Nasser received an important message from the Soviet Union Wednesday.

The message, which was delivered by Soviet Ambassador Dmitri Pojidaev, followed a sudden trip to Moscow earlier this week by Algerian Prime Minister Houari Boumediene to sound out Soviet intentions in the Middle East.

Al Ahram says Arab capitals now are holding discussions in the light of Boumediene's Moscow visit.

There has been no official indication what the Algerian leader talked about in Moscow but observers in the Russian capital said the Kremlin was believed likely to help re-equip Arab armies.

Meanwhile, Syrian President Nureddin el-Atassi arrived in Algiers unexpectedly today for talks with premier Houari Boumediene of Algeria.

The two leaders were certain to discuss Boumediene's visit to Moscow, where he held eight hours, of discussion with Soviet leaders.

Boumediene, who returned Wednesday from the Russian capital, was understood to have sounded out the Russian leaders on the extent of their commitment to the Arab socialist countries—Syria, Algeria and Egypt.

Al Ahram also reports that Rumania agreed to supply the United Arab Republic with 30,000 tons of wheat immediately.

Stamped Summons Legal

TORONTO (CP) — Court officials today said a recent Ontario Appeal Court ruling that rubber-stamped signatures are illegal applies only to court documents, not to summonses sent to motorists charged with traffic offences.

They said some motorists have been ignoring summonses and not showing up in court to face the charges.

Warrants for arrest will be issued for those who fail to appear, they said.

The rubber - stamped signatures have been ruled illegal on sworn police informations—documents the accused does not see except in court. They are legal on summonses.

A police information is a statement given by an investigating officer before a justice of the peace.

R. W. Ruggles, administrator of Toronto courts, said fines paid by motorists since the ruling was handed down June 12 are being kept in trust until the Supreme Court of Canada hears an appeal. The money will be returned if the Ontario Appeal Court decision is upheld.

July 1 Remains Holiday

OTTAWA (CP) — July 1 remains a statutory holiday despite the fact the government has proclaimed July 3 a federal holiday, Prime Minister Pearson said in the Commons Wednesday.

He said the government's proclamation applied only to banks and federal public servants and the provinces would have to make their own decisions on the extra Monday holiday.

NATO Ministers Call For Middle East Peace

LUXEMBOURG (CP) — Foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization expressed determination Wednesday to support all efforts to find a lasting peace in the Middle East. At the insistence of Canada, the 15 - nation alliance unanimously recognized the international peace keeping activities in the area.

A communique ending a two-day conference here of the Atlantic alliance's ministerial council ended with satisfaction that a ceasefire in the Middle East had been achieved.

But the passage on the Middle East was couched in the most cautious and general terms, reflecting NATO's concern to demonstrate impartiality.

The communique said that during the Middle East discussion the ministers "noted with satisfaction that a ceasefire had now taken place and stressed the urgency of humanitarian efforts to alleviate the sufferings caused by the war."

External Affairs Minister Martin of Canada said at a press conference that he and the Canadian government believe a UN peacekeeping force will be required in many situations in the world in the future.

But with the experience Canada had in seeing its troops forced out of the Gaza Strip on orders of President Nasser at the height of the Middle East crisis, countries participating in UN forces would have to be more certain of their terms of reference.

The original draft of the communique contained a passage stating that the NATO partners "seek good relations with all countries of the Middle East," but informed sources said this was dropped on French objections.

The foreign ministers generally agreed on two main points. One was that the best hopes of a lasting settlement in the Middle East lay in helping to get the Arabs and Israelis to come to terms without imposing a solution from the outside.

The other point was that while the Soviet Union had taken a strong pro-Arab stand, it had not wished to become directly involved in a military way.

Viet Cong Force Hits Marines Near Air Base

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. Marines battled Communist troops today in two points south of Da Nang as the war's tempo rose again after a lull.

A marine spokesman said a battalion of the 5th Marine Regiment fought a Communist force of undetermined size that had pounced on two or three marine platoons with heavy mortar and automatic weapons fire 25 miles south of Da Nang. There was no announcement of casualties on either side.

Elements of the 7th Marine Regiment battled about 60 uniformed Viet Cong in Operation Arizona, 14 miles southwest of Da Nang. The marines, saying nothing about any losses of their own, reported killing 15 of the Viet Cong.

U.S. and South Vietnamese forces, seeking Viet Cong troops within 80 miles of Saigon, said today they killed 271 Communist troops in two major battles.

Units of South Vietnam's crack 21st Infantry Division reported 211 killed in a Viet Cong battalion they had been tracking for months deep in the Mekong Delta. They said their own casualties were "extremely light."

White Youth Slain By Negroes in Car

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Racial rioting eased in Cincinnati Wednesday night in the face of heavily armed national guardsmen and reinforced police patrols. But a white man was shot and the trouble spread to Dayton, 80 miles away.

The white youth, James Shirk, 15, of Cincinnati, was struck in the back by a bullet fired from a speeding car reported loaded with Negroes. The shooting happened one mile from downtown Cincinnati. The youth was reported in poor condition.

Seventy persons were arrested by early today, bringing the total for three nights of violence in Cincinnati to more than 270.

Rioters smashed windows, looted, threw rocks and bottles and set fires with gasoline bombs. But there were fewer trouble calls than Tuesday night and there were no major fires.

The trouble spread north to Dayton after H. Rap Brown, new national chairman of the Student Non - Violent Co-ordinating Committee, urged Negroes at a rally there to take the "pressure off" Negroes in Cincinnati.

Negro Boys Calm Mobs

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — White-helmeted Negro police troops restored calm to the streets of Tampa Wednesday night where rioters ruled earlier in the week.

Sheriff Malcolm Beard calmly told his massive armed force of national guard troops and police in check while 120 youngsters in borrowed helmets broke up unruly crowds without incident.

Firemen reported only two fires Wednesday night were set

Picton, Marysburg Library Among 40 Opened This Year

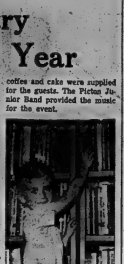
PICTON (Staff) — The township of North Marysburgh and the Town of Picton last night held the official opening of their joint centennial project the Picton Public Library. Master of ceremonies was chairman of the Public Library Board George E. Elson. Guest speaker, introduced by Major C. T. Walmsley, was W. A. Roeddo, director of the provincial library service, Toronto.

Cutting the ribbon on the 39 year-old library were His Worship Mayor H. J. McFarland and Reeve of North Marysburg, Harold Harrison.

In opening the ceremony, Mr. Elson said, "It is indeed strange to be officially opening a 60-year-old building for the original building actually cost less than the new addition.

"Unless the doors of the library are open to all the project could not really be a success. Success in this venture means the number of times this door opens to the people of the community."

Following the dedication by Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt, Mr. Roeddo said 40 new libraries have been opened this year at a cost exceeding $20 million and some 80 millions of books and films are available. Mr. Roeddo paid tribute to the Board and those responsible for the fine job on the local library. "I compliment you on your accomplishment, he said, "it is a great centennial project and I wish you luck for the next 100 years."



Mayor H. J. McFarland on cutting the ribbon said: "I am pleased to see so many young people in the audience. This library can greatly aid your education and I know you will use it."

Reeve Harold Harrison said: "I believe the public library is one of the most important things in the community. This new library will be a great service."

Miss Mary Dunkley a retired Picton School teacher stole the show when she unveiled the centennial plaque. Although she would not disclose her age, she was overheard to say later it was in the neighborhood of 85 and many of the "oldboys" in the crowd were her students. Miss Dunkley started the children's section of the Picton Library many years ago.

Renovations to the old library were begun in 1965 with the remodelling of the stackroom and an office added for the librarian. In 1966 the children's room received a complete renovation and in 1965 the library was accepted as the town's centennial project. The main renovation and added wing were completed in 1966 and the final renovation is the children's room is now completed.

The first full-fledged library was set up in Picton in 1880. Open house followed the official opening ceremonies and coffee and cake were supplied for the guests. The Picton Junior Band provided the music for the event.

Six - year - old Ben Walmsley checks over the many new books in the children's library. He's the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walmsley, Picton.

Tyendinaga Twp. Tagged With Increased Tax Rate

Township and elementary school costs remain practically the same, but ratepayers in Tyendinaga township will have to dig a little deeper this year to pay increased tax tabs for county and high school purposes.

The general rate for residential and farm properties is up 12.3 mills to 67.7 mills, while for commercial properties the rate is up 13 mills to 71.1.

The increased tax tab is due to a 4.8 mill increase for county purposes and an increased high school requisition amounting to 7.5 mills for residential and farm, and 8.3 mill increase for commercial properties."

For township purposes the rate on residential and farm properties is the same at 16 mills, and the rate for commercial properties up 1.9 mills to 22.3 mills.

In addition to the general rate there is the public school rate of 13.8 for farm and residential, and 15.3 for commercial. The rate for the Read separate school is 16 mills farm and residential and 17.6 commercial.

For the Marysville separate school the rate is 17 mills farm and residential and 19 mills commercial. In all instances, the elementary school rates are the same as for 1966.

The auditor's report showed the township ended the year 1966 with a surplus of $234.92.

The 1967 township road budget provides for an expenditure of $52,000 for ordinary expenditures, and an additional $50,000 for the purchase of a new truck and snowplow and for surface treatment on three miles of road and other road improvements.

A development road grant of $50,000 has been approved from the province for grading, granular base and drainage on the 8th line, road.

Druggists Protest Increases

The Ontario Pharmacists Association, meeting this week at St. Catharines, passed a resolution protesting alleged price increases by some Ontario pharmaceutical manufacturers and distributors.

The retail druggists' organization says these price increases are aimed at beating the September removal of the federal 12 per cent tax on drugs.

A story in yesterday's Intelligencer carried the headline "Some Druggists Raising Prices." This was incorrect. As the story beneath the headline stated, the alleged increases are being made by manufacturers and distributors, not by retail druggists.

Centennial Park Opens

7,000 Get Peek at New Facilities

TRENTON — To a provincial cabinet minister it represented "a fitting reminder of the heritage and progress of a municipality." But to several thousand Trenton children, the town's Centennial Park was much more than that — "a nice place to play."

About 7,000 Trenton residents got a preview peek at their town's official 1967 birthday present yesterday. The Hon. James Auld, provincial Minister of Tourism and Information raised a centennial flag over a special cairn and declared the site open.

Preceding the platform portion of the afternoon's program, 2,500 public school children, three bands, clown, a dozen floats, and a similar number of antique cars paraded through town en route to the park site.

In opening the park, Mr. Auld said he had a particular "bias" towards municipal parks as Centennial projects. "I act as chairman of the Parks Integration Board, which co-ordinates the creation and operation of all parks in Ontario," he noted.

"The importance of providing ample parklands while land remains available can best be illustrated by comparing your own community with what is happening, say, in Metropolitan Toronto. Authorities there now have reached the point where they find they have to expropriate private homes to make way for green areas which are as important a service to the residents as schools and highways."

The minister said he was particularly pleased to see an accent on youth in Trenton's project. "You now have the nucleus of a recreational complex that will further enhance and enrich community life as additions are made to it in later years."

Mr. Auld's Provincial Conservative Ontario Government has contributed more than $18,000 in grants to the Trenton project, which in about a year has transformed a sanitary land fill area into scenic park facilities fronting on the Bay of Quinte.

Civic officials expressed the town's appreciation for the efforts of Park Committee chairman, Kenneth Couch, who had tackled the mammoth coordinating job for the project. Mr. Couch replied "I only hope there are as many hours of pleasure enjoyed in this park as there have been hours of hard work in creating it."

And Mayor James MacDonald added "We are depending on you children of all ages to take care of this park."

Platform guests included Trenton's Centennial Queen, Susan Brown, G/C D. R. Adamson, C.O. CFB Trenton, Hastings South MP Lee Grills, and Rev. J. S. A. Spearman, who spoke the prayer of invocation for the park opening.

For the children there were clowns, ice cream, and a pinto pony. Demonstration of skydiving by a trio of local parachutists.

Prize-winner as the best parade float was an entry from No. 6 Repair Depot of a 1918-vintage fighter plane containing two World War I flying aces.

The things he did to some juniper berries are unspeakable.

To make gin, you need a number of rather exotic ingredients. Including Italian juniper berries.

So in 1769 Alexander Gordon bought sackfuls of the best Italian juniper berries money could buy. Experimented and experimented. And one day discovered that if you took the berries and ...well, something exciting happened.

You could make the best tasting gin ever. So naturally, he did.

200 years later we still do. And Gordon's is now the largest selling gin in the world.

Still made everywhere to the same secret formula.

And, so that it always remains a secret, what Alexander Gordon did to those berries must always remain unspeakable.

You always could buy a bottle of Gordon's though. And let it speak for itself.

A Vision for Belleville

British comments about Expo have been more critical than most. Amid the welter of praise showered on the event there have issued from Britain some less than flattering observations about Expo and Canada at large.

But then the British are good at this sort of thing. Their criticisms may be painful and incisive, but at the same time they are generally stimulating and constructive.

"To see ourselves as others see us," in the words of Robbie Burns, is always a salutary lesson.

For instance, Roy Strong, writing in The Spectator speaks of Canadian life and environment being "either dowdy provincial British, cast-off tatty French or anonymous mid-west American. . ."

Now apply this all-embracing stricture to Belleville and it can be appreciated that the city as it appears today, and the community of the future — one embracing all the best concepts of planning and efficient use of existing resources, business and industrial potential — are two very different things.

Thus anyone who viewed the film presentation of the Belleville of the future Tuesday evening could not fail to be impressed by the possibilities, at the same time startled by the stagnation and strangulation that characterizes the city's existing image.

"The Magic Circle" concept of a ring-road around the downtown business area, permitting free movement of traffic, facilitating shoppers and business development, and releasing the city's vital core from the tyranny of the automobile, is an exciting one.

Canadians are often criticized for failure to protest wrongs, for docilely accepting the status quo. Thus the film laid skilful emphasis on the extent to which the automobile — or "chrome-plated monster" as the commentary described it — dominates and constricts and takes precedence, at the expense of the more essential needs and social requirements of the city.

In Belleville, in the perhaps not too far distant future, the "fantastic and insolent products of the United State car industry (as an American authority once termed them) will not be permitted to strangle the town as they have the way they do today. At the same time provision for parking and servicing of the business area by delivery vehicles have not been forgotten.

Naturally road transportation in the area will still be indispensable, but its movement will be greatly facilitated in the event of the plan becoming a reality. And with such an arrangement would come an atmosphere less poisoned by fumes and pollution. There would be a mall, flowers, lawns, fountains and the like.

Business development, including construction of apartments and town houses overlooking the river would be encouraged. The clutter of overhead signs and wiring would be removed and store facades would go through the paint and facelifting process introduced by the city of Norwich in England some years ago.

Belleville could be a model for other cities of its size. The community needs revitalizing, and the plan of the Chamber of Commerce committee is an important contribution to the end. A great deal of study and effort and co-operation by many groups and individuals have gone into its making. Its realization is still years away, but the vision is there. It is now up to the city to consider financing and other practical factors associated with giving effect to a plan of this magnitude.

Refugee Problem

Some 100,000 Arab refugees are reported to have arrived in Amman, Jordan, and are being accommodated in makeshift camps on the outskirts.

Thus to add to the miseries of the Arab nations in the wake of military defeat, here is yet another refugee problem in a region where thousands of Palestinian Arabs have already been uprooted by the earlier confrontations between Arabs and Israelis.

Like the other Arab nations, Jordan had social and economic problems enough before the recent hostilities without going to war. Now the situation must be infinitely worse, and constitutes a strain not only on the remaining resources of the Arab world but on such bodies as the United Nations relief organization.

For this matter, neither Jordan nor its neighbors will be able to count on much economic help in the immediate future. Canada, for instance, has announced it will devote a substantial part of its $75-80 aid program to the needs of India, with emphasis on food supplies and agricultural development. India will receive some $104 million worth of aid from Canada.

It is ironic to consider that India itself was at war not very long ago, and that the Arab states are now joining it as one of the nations of the world which can least afford military adventures of the type just witnessed in the Middle East.

Joe Greene Flays Pressure Groups After "A Bigger Buck"

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Very late in the game of power politics as played by pressure groups, a member of the Federal Cabinet at last has spoken up boldly in the name of domestic peace, order and good government.

Was it Prime Minister Pearson?

Or even Finance Minister Sharp?

The most the Prime Minister has said in the massive labor disputes in which the Federal administration, one way and another has been involved — the railway, postal, air and dock strikes — has been to speak of "moderation."

Nor there was nothing "moderate" about the 30 percent settlement—the "Pearson formula," as it became known — that ended the strike of longshoremen in the St. Lawrence ports which was blockading wheat exports to Russia and China.

The 30 percent "formula," as things turned out, set the price style in strike negotiations, and worse, seemed to prove that by getting unreasonably tough and completely uncaring of the public and national interest, easy labor victory could be quickly won.

So, in reality, the Prime Minister has said little that did not really anything to cool down what convinces to be strike and strike-threat fever, often intensified by mass demonstrations.

Then just the other day, the Finance Minister had about the best of all possible chances to say something and make it count.

There he was, on the national stage, front and centre, the star of one of Parliament's top shows, "Budget Night."

And what did he contribute that might be calculated to slow down the wage-price-cost spiral that he says could split us deeper into dangerous inflation and further out of world export markets?

Not a plague on both your-houses admonition to all concerned — including you and me — to slow down.

The economy could be seriously damaged by the exercise of the "market power" of business and "strike power" of labor, he told them, appeared to wish his benefit of the whole thing, offering no solution in these soft words:

"Most of us are better organized and active in promoting our own particular interests than we are in safe-guarding the public interest—the good of us all collectively."

The use of the term "us" would seem to include him in. Then, sounding sort of helpless, he simply shrugs.

How refreshingly different was Agriculture Minister Joe Greene.

There was nothing mealy-mouthed about the way he stood up and sounded off.

His voice, albeit stiff," he has confessed in a public declaration, by the displays of what he bluntly named fear and naked power by pressure groups against established authority" is not pursuit of "a bigger buck."

What pressure groups?

Joe Greene called the pressure roll: the farmers, 30,000 of whom marched on Parliament Hill and stormed the outer doors of the Commons . . . teachers wielding the weapon of mass resignations . . . railwaymen "defying" Parliament's back-to-work orders, and with Quebec dock workers, choking off grain exports . . . merchants talking tax boycotts . . . all of them "normally responsible people."

Of course, the Agriculture Minister was angry — and a good thing.

His "mad as hell stu

Bank of BC Equity Offer Biggest Ever Made in Canada

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's youngest bank, headed by Canada's youngest bank president, today launches a drive to sell $75,000,000 worth of shares, biggest equity offer ever made in Canada.

The Bank of British Columbia, headed by 39-year-old Frank D. Trebell, expects to reach its objective by mid-July, have its banking certificate eight weeks later and be operating in February, 1968.

Mr. Trebell, a native of Picton, Ont., has elected to move to the West two years ago, said the Bank of B.C. does not want eastern participation in its operations.

Thus, shares are being offered only in the four western provinces at $25 a share through investment dealers, stock brokers and banks throughout the West.

Mr. Trebell said he expects 10 per cent of the $75,000,000 capital stock will be bought by foreign companies. Orders will be confirmed as received, he anticipates.

The Bank of B.C. opened its first branch this week in downtown Vancouver, not to accept deposits or make loans but as an operational base. It will become a permanent branch next February, when additional branches also will be opened in Victoria and Toronto.

"Toronto is the head office of most Canadian banks and we should have a branch there to know what our competition is doing," he said.

The bank expects to open six other branches in B.C. during 1968. A Montreal branch is planned later, he said.

The seven-year projection is for 120 branches, employing 2,000 persons. Deposits are expected to total $1,000,000,000, about $600,000,000 of it from B.C.

Mr. Trebell said the projected deposit total will be reached in seven years will be about $3,000,000,000 in the province. He estimated 25 per cent of the bank's deposits will be in foreign currencies.

Of the 120 branches the B.C. bank eventually expects to operate, 30 will be in B.C., 10 in Alberta, five in Manitoba and five in Saskatchewan. Mr. Trebell said the remaining branches will be in Toronto, Montreal and elsewhere.

The share - sale campaign, with its minimum offering of four shares to customer, will attract customers for two reasons, he said:

"One, for the long-term interest, and secondly because people believe in B.C."

Picton Native Bank President

Frank Trebell, Canada's youngest bank president and head of the new Bank of British Columbia, has ties with the Picton area in Prince Edward county where family members still reside.

His mother, Mrs. Gwen Trebell, lives at R. R. 10 Picton, while a twin brother Fred, and a sister, Mrs. Dorothy Hylton, live in the same area. The Trebell family operates the East Lake Canning Factory.

Mr. Trebell attended the Picton high school and Royal Roads Military College in British Columbia where, according to Mrs. Hylton, he acquired a liking for the West Coast.

He was formerly with Greenshields Investments and at one time served as the firm's vice-president in Montreal. More recently he was with Yorkshire Trust in Vancouver from where he went to the new Bank of British Columbia.

E. A. DOUGLAS, C.G.A.

The Certified General Accountants Association of Ontario elected Eric A. Douglas as president for 1967-68. Mr. Douglas is secretary-treasurer of Webster Air Equipment Limited, London, Ontario. He assumes the office of president at a time of record expansion for C.G.A. As an indication of the acceptance of the C.G.A. course of study, Mr. Douglas draws attention to the fact that the student enrolment exceeds the number of graduates. The Association is doubling the number of centres where its lecture course is available, in addition to continuing its correspondence program in the smaller centres. C.G.A. last year introduced a unique Computer Course to supplement its regular degree program in continuation of its policy of constantly updating its courses so that its graduates remain among the most competent in the profession.

Making Hay the Modern Way

Area farmers pay close attention to the demonstration of forage harvesting equipment at the Martindale Farms south of Tweed. Close to 800 farmers attended the Quinte Soil and Crop Improvement Association forage day program.

Hay Crops for Quality Feeds Outlined by Soil Specialists

Close to 800 farmers from the four county Bay of Quinte district turned out yesterday at the Martindale Farms south of Tweed to see how hay was made the modern way.

The occasion was the annual forage day sponsored by the Quinte Soil and Crop Improvement Association. The day's theme was "Sell the Provider."

The day's program included tours of a series of hay demonstration plots where the value of fertilizers and types of hay mixtures were pointed out by soils and crops specialists from the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Other topics discussed during the morning included weed control, field enlargement, drainage, capital grants, farm planning and production costs and the handling and storage of forage crops.

Close to 500 farmers enjoyed the noon luncheon catered to by the Crescent Rebekah Lodge at Thomasburg.

Association president Grant Huyck and hosts Albert and Donald Martin welcomed the visitors following which Dr. W. h. Young, crop science department, OAC, Guelph, gave a talk on "Hay Crops for Quality Feeds."

Farm machinery dealers from throughout the Quinte area were on hand with the latest in forage harvesting machinery.

The dealers were allowed a five-minute talk on the merits of their harvesting equipment and then staged demonstrations to make quick work of cutting a field of hay on the Martin farm.

The Martins (father and son) owners of 450 acres three miles south of Tweed, farm themselves "average" farmers for the area.

But they have been quick to adopt the latest in farm operating techniques.

Following a fire in 1960, the Martin boys among the first in the county to construct a modern type barn and milking parlor and more recently have built a new forage silo. The farm dairy herd, including young stock, numbers 120 animals.

Currently they are thinking in terms of a farce removal program to allowing fields for more efficient operation of mechanized equipment.

The wonderful thing about Dry Rye is the fact that it makes every other ordinary rye taste unusual.

That's how different the taste of Grand Prix is!

You'll suddenly realize that Grand Prix is not an old whisky with a new slogan.

You'll know it is a new whisky with a new taste. A dry taste. A full rye with every shred of sweetness removed.

When you try Grand Prix it could make your favourite rye taste unusual.

Or: Grand Prix could become your favourite rye.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

One Can't Resist Heavenly "Twists"

By MARY MOORE

How can anyone resist a re-Twist(y)?

Ope called "Heavenly

On Mother's Day I was expecting the arrival of Pete and his family and had waiting on the counter 24 of these irresistible "twists". When they went into the kitchen I did not have to twist their arms to encourage them to taste them. As one man they each reached for one and ate it on the spot. I was tickled to pieces of course but said "Now don't spoil your dinners."

HEAVENLY TWISTS (24)

1 pkg. granular yeast
2 tsps. sugar
½ cup lukewarm water
½ cup scalded milk
¼ cup sugar (second amount)
1 tsp. salt
3 tsp. finely grated orange rind
¼ cup margarine or butter
2 eggs
4¼ cups sifted but not sifted all-purpose flour
2-3 cup melted butter or margarine (second amount)
1¼ cups granulated sugar (third amount)
2-3 cup finely chopped walnuts

In large mixing bowl soak yeast and 2 tsps. sugar in lukewarm water 10 min.

Scald milk; remove from heat, and add ¼ cup sugar, salt, orange rind and margarine or butter and cool to lukewarm. Add to risen yeast liquid along with 2 cups of the flour and the eggs and beat until perfectly smooth. Add remaining 2½ cups flour, mix as well as you can then turn out on floured board and knead for 2 min. or knead with dough hook in electric machine as I do. Cover and let rise at room temperature 2 to 2½ hrs.

Punch down dough and knead 5 min. on floured board. Cut in half, shape each into long roll and cut each roll into 12 even pieces. Roll and stretch each piece under palms into a 10" long rope, lining them up at your far right at side of board. Do not make a long job of this—work deftly like professional bakers do.

Have ready at left of rolls first, a shallow pan containing the 2-3 cup melted butter or margarine, second, a dinner plate covered with the 1¼ cups granulated sugar and third, a dinner plate containing 2-3 cup finely chopped walnuts. Carefully roll with melted butter, drain a bit, then roll in sugar. On the nuts, loop each rope into a U-shape, then give it two turns to make a twist. Press into nuts and place, uncoated side up, on well-buttered cookie sheets. Let rise 2 to 2½ hrs. until puffy. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 20 min., switching pans at halftime.

Luv-er-ly.

Dear Doris: I have met a truly wonderful boy named Steve. The trouble is that he lives about 200 miles away, and I wonder if I'll ever see him again. He is the most perfect guy!

He and I really like each other and we correspond. Have you any idea how we could meet (again)? — Hoping.

Dear Hoping: Well, you've got a foothold if you are writing to each other. Some mighty fine romances have started as pen pal affairs.

My advice, then:

(1) Fill your letters with friendly chat about real-life subjects; put some fun into them, even corny jokes. Avoid dreamy romancing.

(2) There is such a thing as saving pennies until they add up to a plane or train fare. But see how the correspondence thrives, first.

(3) Keep your fingers crossed. When you can't write big letters, put him in the back of your mind and enjoy the boys and girls where you are. You can't build a future on love-at-first-sight; even a most-perfect guy warrants a second look.

•

Dear Doris: Our daughter-in-law calls us "Mr. and Mrs." and refuses to call us "Ma and Pa". We have outdone ourselves, and she has no reason to feel "ill" at all. What wrong have we done, that we get no respect from her?

My son isn't happy about it, but he can do nothing about it. They are both 25 and are not stupid.

Does it mean she doesn't like us? Should we eyerlook it and not make an issue of it by our calls her parents "Ma and Pa". — A Faithful Reader

Dear Faithful: Make no issue. You surely have other ways of knowing whether she likes you.

Some folks feel extremely self-conscious about giving the title "Mother" to anyone who isn't that. It may even seem ridiculous to her, especially since she has a very-much-to-the-picture pair of parents of her own.

The coming of babies may settle it by getting you the titles of Gram and Gramp (or Granny Jones, maybe).

Here's a thought: Have your son try calling her parents "Mother Black" and "Pa Black". This might give her an idea.

Confidential to Worried: Whether you should retrace your steps about this small error I cannot decide for you.

But I can make a common sense observation: Canadian customs officers are not trying to make things difficult for travellers; they are looking for the larger, delicate offences.

For future reference you can banish all concern by doing as I do: keep the sales bills in your purse, listing them all on a slip and pinning them together. At the border give your customs man your list and slips. He will either staple them to the declaration form and have you sign it, or ask you to copy the information off. Then you get a receipt to say you have declared your purchases.

To reader requesting "Foreman Young Munroe": A reader in Niagara Falls has kindly sent us the poem you requested, which is entitled "The Jam on Gerry's Rock".

Now I find that there is no street address on your most recent letter. Would you please write in again, enclosing a addressed envelope, so that we may send you the poem.

Do you wonder why the people you care about act as they do? Let Doris shed light on your particular human problem. And remember that stamped envelope!

Ann Landers

Grandmother Doubts Columnist's Advice

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How can you be so positive your advice is always right? I did what you advised, Ann, and now I am not sure it was the wise thing to do.

Our daughter had a baby out of wedlock three months ago. The social worker, our minister, our doctor — everyone — said she should put the baby up for adoption. She was barely 18 and the boy 17. Marriage was out of the question.

I went to the hospital and stayed with my daughter until her child was born. Her little girl was the most beautiful baby I'd ever seen. Now that the ordeal is over things are back to normal and my daughter is reasonably happy. The bad dream is over for her, but it will never be for me. I am bitter and depressed. I have a dull ache in my heart for my first grandchild who is lost to me forever. I wish I had said "To hell with morality" and taken that baby home and raised it as best I could — HEARTSICK.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR HEARTSICK: You did what was best for the baby, best for your daughter and best for the father of the child. And it was best for you, too, although you may not believe it now. You will believe it one day, however — when your daughter is married and has a family. When that day comes, please let me know.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 16-year-old girl who has a father problem. He is a wonderful man but he has the crazy idea that he must keep proving how much he loves me by kissing me all the time.

I get embarrassed in front of my friends when he pulls me on his lap, or kisses me on the neck but I hate to say anything for fear of hurting his feelings. Is it my mother's place to tell him, or do you think I should mention it?

I am the only girl in a family of four boys and I know my father favors me. Should he would stop petting me such a show for everybody. What should I do? — OVERLOVED.

DEAR OVERLOVED: Tell your father you are a big girl now and you don't want to be smoothed by daddy. A hello or good-bye kiss is just fine, but that should be it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please help me. I am a 15-year-old boy who hates school. I am not learning anything. When the teachers talk I block out their voices and think of other things.

Homework is a bore and all the shrill they try to cram into our heads is a waste of time. Most of the things they teach in school these days will not help a person make a living. Why should I knock myself out trying to memorize Spanish words when I know I will never go to Spain? Who needs it?

In two months I will be 16 which is the legal age a kid can quit school in this state. I plan to dog it until my birthday, and then take a powder. I promised by dad I would write to you so I am doing it. I am not promising I will pay attention to your advice. — FED UP TO HERE.

DEAR FED: Stay in school and get your diploma. If you think you are bored now, just wait until you get trapped in a nothing little job at the bottom of the pay scale and discover you are stuck there for the rest of your life.

Not a day goes by that I don't get a dozen letters from kids 19 and 20 — begging me to tell high schoolers to stick with it. So — I tell 'em, and I hope they listen.

Take it easy.

As it happens, we can't. Making whisky that goes down this easy is a difficult job. It means selecting whiskies from our five distilleries across Canada (only Seagram's has five, by the way). Then blending and re-blending them to get 5 Star's easy taste.

How can you find out if the taste is worth all the trouble? That's easy, too.

Lawn Bowlers Hold Tea at Club House

A successful tea and bake sale was held at the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club on Tuesday afternoon, and as a pleasant surprise a number of guests arrived in centennial dress. The newly panelled club room was tastefully decorated and set up by convenor Ann Avery and her committee of Mildred Smith, Millie Wright and May Semple.

Guests were greeted at the door by the president's wife, Mrs. William Wright, and the president of the Ladies' Club, Mrs. F. Graham.

Four past presidents, Cleis Gilbert, Laura Ryde, Dorothy Argue and Ann Walkin presided at the tea table which was decorated with a spring floral centre arrangement made up and donated by Thelma Fitzgibbon.

Fleesie Coleman and Rita Lloyd reported a brisk business at the well-stocked bake table.

Hemlines Still Three Inches Above Knees in Collection

NEW YORK (AP)—A half-dozen Mia Farrow - like mannikins raced breathlessly through the crowded Christian Dior showroom here as if they feared the styles might change before they reached the end of the collection opening.

It was not likely. Though this fashion house has dealt some low blows in the past to family budgets by making women's wardrobes obsolescent overnight, that was not designer Gaston Berthelot's game Wednesday.

The more than 200 style status symbols his mannikins wore were neither erotic nor erratic, neither mod nor mad, not cute but chic, and as ever, very, very expensive.

The rules of Dior dress seemed to be:

1. Hemlines three inches above the knees.

2. Simplicity and restraint in all things for day time wear, except the hats.

3. Glitter or rustle in gems or metallic cloth, with fur added for opulent good measure.

4. Dress up the legs with dark laces and textured patterns for day and gold and silver lame at night.

5. Use belts but loosely, anywhere from bosom to hipbone.

6. Use dark greens, purples and oxford grays — yes and stark blacks, too, with orange and yellow chapeaux. Use lots of dark brown.

7. Adhere to the female figure as nature intended it.

Strawberry Social Starts PC Women's Carousel

Confederation Carousel, an indoor fair of fast-moving auction bargains, fashions and fancy food unfolded itself on a day-long merry-go-round of activity at Belleville armory yesterday.

The show, sponsored by the Quinte Riding Women's Conservative Association, drew a steady stream of Bellevillians throughout seven hours of eventful programming.

By the time the women had called it quits for the day, they estimated at least 4,000 spectators and customers had turned up for the big one-day stand with the Confederation theme.

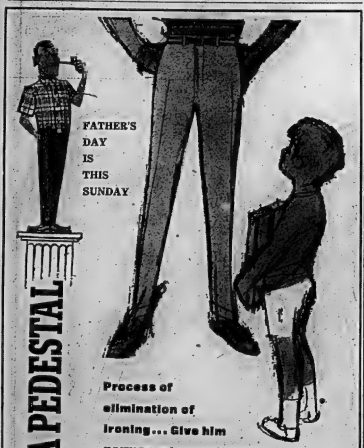
The program was launched on a sweet note — a strawberry social that saw hundreds sit down to early-afternoon mouthfuls of strawberry shortcake.

Highlight of the whole event was an evening auction sale that sold off such novelties as Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker's tie and a hat, once the property of Secretary of State Judy LaMarsh.

Proceeds from the auction still were being tallied today.

Bargains also were offered for sale throughout the day at a simulated country store on the armory floor that drew curious shoppers by the score.

Keeping the menu on the move was a monster outdoor barbeque outside the armory's Pinnacle Street entrance, where huge cuts of beef disappeared under a steady demand.



Emphasizing the Confederation theme, the women organizers dressed themselves in period costume.

More than a score of the women paraded in the costumes before judges during an afternoon fashion contest.

Winner — and wearer of the best costume — was Mrs. Catherine Pape of Belleville.

Students Get Representative, But Not One of Themselves

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario legislature ruled Wednesday that Ontario university students may have a voice in the conduct of university affairs through representation of a former faculty member or a graduate out of university for a year.

The legislature voted 58 to 21 to allow students of the University of Western Ontario to be represented on the board of governors by anyone—except a student—duly elected by the student body.

The university had approached the legislature Feb. 13 with a bill revising the university's charter. It called for students to be represented by a non-student.

Subsequently, a student delegation proposed to the legislature's private bills committee that students have direct representation on the board.

The committee approved an amendment providing that students be represented by any person, even a student, elected by the student body.

University officials responded by threatening to withdraw the entire bill but reconsidered and allowed it to proceed through the legislature. It was approved in principle June 8.

Education Minister William Davis gave notice Friday of an amendment that would wipe out student representation. He did not move such an amendment on Wednesday's five-hour debate on the subject.

Clause-by-clause study of the bill proceeded Wednesday and Thursday. John White (PC—London South) introduced an amendment, substituting for the committee's revert the exact phraseology originally proposed by the university.

The legislature voted against a motion that the students be represented by a student. Mr. White's amendment, providing for student representation but not from the student body, was approved.

Elmer Sopha (L — Sudbury) predicted a contribution to the debate by Mr. Davis would destroy the minister's political career.

The minister said his only object in amending the bill had been to allow the matter of student representation to be considered within the university.

But Mr. Sopha said the minister had turned his back on Western students and would garner the contempt of those who trusted him."

Premier Roberts defended his education minister.

"We see no reason why a student cannot be on the board of governors," said the premier. "There is only one reason why: such a request has not come from any university in this province."

The legislature should let a university move at its own pace in granting a voice to students.

The university, at present, had asked only for indirect student representation.

Mr. Davis said the legislature his amendment was meant to give time for discussion of the issue of student representation.

"I do not object, nor does the government object, to student representation."

"Your actions help your profession," said NDP Leader Donald MacDonald.

"Boy Wonder has fallen badly in my estimation," said Mr. Sopha.

The bill eventually was approved — as the government wanted it — without further amendment.

Municipal Taxation Seen Issue at Next Election

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon of Ontario said Wednesday municipal taxation will be the major issue in the next provincial election which he predicted will be next October or early in November.

He told a news conference the 1967 session of the legislature failed to relieve the burden of municipal taxation although both opposition parties now are "largely in agreement" that the government should assume 40 per cent of the cost of secondary education.

The government now pays about 30 per cent of the cost.

The Opposition leader said a special session of the legislature to consider the Smith report on provincial - municipal financing would be "very valuable."

The report is expected to be completed in the next few months.

Mr. Nixon said the government has indicated it may take another two years to implement recommendations in the report, but action is needed now.

Attendance Up Sharply

TORONTO (CP)—The legislature was told Wednesday the number of paid admissions to Upper Canada Village, so far this year is up 85 per cent from a year ago.

Fernand Guindon (PC—Stormont), chairman of the St. Lawrence Parks Commission, attributed the increase to an advertising campaign to the United States aimed at having tourists visit Ontario in going to or from Expo 67.

Mr. Guindon said another operation of the commission, Old Fort Henry at Kingston, has reported an attendance increase of 30 per cent.

Surge of Youth Into Jobs Keeps Unemployment Figure Up

OTTAWA (CP)—A surge of young people into the labor force during May kept unemployment at an abnormally high 304,000. It was 305,000 in April and 247,000 in May of last year.

A joint report today by the manpower department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said there was an above-average increase in jobs during the month, with total employment rising by 284,000 to 7,408,000.

But there were also 223,000 additional workers on the scene, due mainly to university students entering the labor market, and the drop of 61,000 in unemployment was less than usual for the time of year.

The jobless represented 3.9 per cent of the labor force, compared with 4.9 per cent in April and 3.3 per cent in May of last year.

Two years ago May unemployment was at 3.7 per cent.

The job picture in brief, estimated in thousands:

	May 1967	April 1967	May 1966
Labor force	7,713	7,490	7,283
Employed	7,409	7,125	7,136
Unemployed	304	365	247

All regions shared in the job increase. Almost half the gain, 127,000 jobs, was accounted for by persons under 25. Yet unemployment among teen-agers rose by 14,000 to 78,000 because there still was not enough work to go around.

Even after discounting teen-agers, the drop in unemployment among persons 20 and over was smaller than usual at 15,000.

After adjustment for seasonal factors, the unemployment rate was 4.3 per cent nationally. It is the first time in almost two years that this figure has exceeded four per cent.

Regionally, the actual percentage of unemployment varied from two per cent on the Prairies to 7.2 per cent in the Atlantic provinces. Quebec was at 3.6, Ontario 2.6 and British Columbia 4.7.

Of the total jobless, 207,000 or 68 per cent had been out of work for less than four months. About 57,000 had been job-hunting for four to six months and 40,000 for seven months or more.

Gordon Aubrey Smith, BA, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. F. Smith, Belleville, was graduated first in his class with a Bachelor of Physical Education degree from Waterloo University May 28, 1967. He is a graduate of Queen's University and Quinte Secondary School, Belleville, and has accepted a position on the staff of Moira Secondary School, Belleville.

Welfare Unit May Be Joined To CAS

Contrary to the suggestion given yesterday in the headline of a Picton story appearing in The Intelligencer, there is no thought of the Prince Edward Welfare Unit being joined with the Belleville Children's Aid Society.

The headline said the welfare unit may join the Belleville CAS.

What did happen is that the Prince Edward county council voted to set up a special committee to investigate the possibility of the Picton Children's Aid Society being amalgamated with the Prince Edward welfare department.

Yesterday's Intelligencer story said that in recent weeks there had been pressure for the Picton CAS to join with the CAS unit in Belleville.

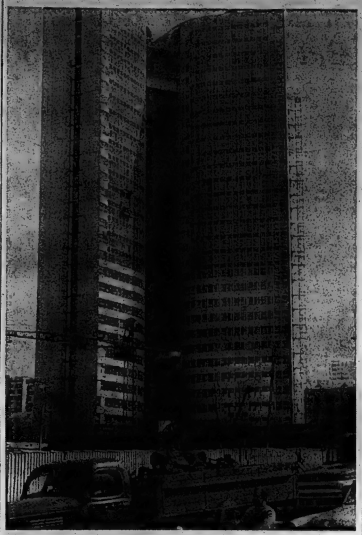
General Practice Urged

TORONTO (CP)—Efforts are being made to influence medical students to choose general practice as a career, the committee on the healing arts was told Wednesday.

A two-man delegation from the University of Toronto's medical alumni association said they would like to see every teaching hospital establish units to introduce students to family medicine. One such unit was set up a year ago at Toronto Western Hospital.

But the delegates, Dr. Reginald Perkin and Dr. D. H. Johnson, said their proposals do not mean a return to the all-purpose doctor.



The new units would enable medical students to know something of the satisfaction of the general practice doctor who is able to follow a family's development over a period of time.

Dr. Perkin said the modern general practice doctor should not be doing what the specialist can do better. But he should not be prevented from doing what he can do equally well.

Dr. Perkin said that during the last 10 years, there has been a 94.6 per-cent increase in the number of specialists in Canada and a 4.1 per-cent increase in general practice doctors.

SEEK TAX RELIEF

EDMONTON (CP) — Delegates to the annual conference of the Canadian Postmasters' Association have voted to ask for a doubling of the basic personal income tax exemption for government workers. Another resolution Tuesday asked that the wife of a deceased postmaster be given the full pension earned by her husband. A postmaster's widow now receives 50 per cent of the pension earned by her husband.

Gibraltar Referendum Designed To Determine People's Wishes

LONDON (CP)—The people of Gibraltar will be given the opportunity this year to decide whether they want to be under Spanish sovereignty or retain their link with Britain.

Judith Hart, minister of state for Commonwealth affairs, announced in the Commons Wednesday that a referendum will be held in Gibraltar in early September.

About 11,000 eligible voters in Gibraltar's 24,000 population will be given ballots with the clear choice of staying British or joining Spain.

But few have any doubts about the outcome. As one London newspaper put it: "Anything less than a 99-per-cent vote for staying British would be sensational."

Observers in London say the British initiative is an attempt to counter world opinion and the United Nations committee on colonialism that Gibraltar is not being refused independence against the wishes of its inhabitants.

A UN resolution in December, 1966, asked Britain and Spain "to expedite the decolonization of Gibraltar . . . taking into account the interest of the people."

But negotiations to this end have been disrupted by disagreements over frontier restrictions and new air navigation regulations.

The referendum throws a challenge to Francisco Franco's Spanish government. If the solution to Gibraltar is absorption by Spain, Britain wants it to be tested democratically at the ballot box in conditions of impartiality.

If Britain wins the vote, it will be regarded as continuing a free and voluntary relationship of Gibraltar with Britain. Discussions would then be opened with Gibraltar officials for constitutional changes and residents of Gibraltar would still retain the right in future to express by a free choice their wish to join Spain.

To satisfy the UN that the vote is impartial, Mrs. Hart has invited U Thant, UN Secretary - General, to send observers during the referendum.

Provinces to Conduct Crash Study of Carter Implications

TORONTO (CP) — A crash program to study the effects on the provinces of putting the Carter report on taxation into law is to be carried out this summer, it was announced Wednesday.

The decision was made at a day-and-a-half meeting of the federal-provincial tax structure committee, called to take its first top-level look at the implications of the report's far-reaching proposals for tax reform.

The study, to be carried out by senior officials attached to the committee, will examine the effects implementation could have on provincial revenues, special geographic regions, social aspects and financial institutions such as the bond and stock markets.

The officials are to report back to their respective governments in time for another ministerial conference on the report in September or October.

Finance Minister Sharp, who led three other federal ministers into the conference, said he was happy with the meeting. It had produced an excellent discussion of the fundamental issues raised by the report, which calls for a complete overhaul of Canada's existing tax system.

Not all delegates were as happy.

Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan told reporters it would be a "sad day for Canada" if Ottawa proceeds with the Carter recommendations.

He said its proposals discriminate "viciously" against western provinces and its implementation would mean Canada was heading for a socialist state where incentive, investment, thrift and saving were discouraged.

He added he got the impression that Mr. Sharp had decided to go ahead with much of the report—a comment that Mr. Sharp later denied.

Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton called the meeting a "thoroughly satisfying and enlightening review."

He said a constant thread of discussion throughout the meeting was protection of provincial revenues. More time was needed to study the implications of the report on the provinces.

He warned that if the report were adopted without proper protection for provincial revenues, Ontario might have to look to other taxes to keep up its coffers. Those taxes could be regressive, if they were needed.

Other sources said the discussions made it clear that there are a lot of unanswered questions raised by the report, and until these answers are obtained it is impossible to adopt a policy on the recommendations.

Mr. Sharp said the summer study of the potential effects of the report will be limited to facts, leaving policy decisions to be made by the government.

Mr. Sharp also refined his timetable for action on the report slightly, saying he now hopes to present a white paper outlining the federal government's general thinking in December.

Before the paper was prepared, the government would have the results of the fall meeting of the tax structure committee as well as comment from private organizations and individuals to assess.

If the government decided to adopt a major portion of the recommendations, a bill would be introduced next year for discussion and then almost certainly withdrawn and replaced by another that would take into account various points that had been made.

Nine provincial finance ministers attended the meeting. The 10th — British Columbia — was represented by a deputy minister.

Primitive Living Conditions Drive Young Reds Off Land

MOSCOW (CP) — A major problem that has long faced Soviet agriculture is the great disparity between living conditions in the countryside and city.

Soviet authorities say they now are on their way to correcting the imbalance. But it will be a slow process.

The relatively primitive standard of living in the villages adversely affects agriculture in two ways. Young people are driven off the land to seek their fortunes in the cities. Widespread apathy is created among the peasants, with consequent inroads on their productivity.

The lack of amenities in rural communities is visible to anyone driving through them. The poorly-constructed streets turn into quagmires in winter and spring, the lighting is poor and there's no running water.

Educational facilities are lacking and there is a chronic shortage of teachers.

Worse still, as far as young people are concerned, is the lack of recreational facilities. Each collective farm is supposed to have a club for showing movies and staging dances and games but these aren't always provided.

Financially the collective farmer is far worse off than the urban industrial worker. Until the last year he didn't even have a guaranteed wage but had to wait until the farm's profits were distributed at the end of the year.

Now he gets a minimum monthly wage but it's far below the $100 to $110 average for the factory worker in the city.

Soviet economists say the five-year plan that began last year will go a long way toward bringing rural living standards closer to the urban level. It will be a benefit of greater farm production, they say.

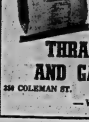
More money is being diverted to developing agriculture and this is supposed to result in a more rapid rise in farm labor productivity—seven to 7.7 per cent compared with 3.9 to 4.2 in industry.

This in turn is calculated to accelerate the rise in earnings of agricultural workers—35 to 40 per cent compared with 20 per cent for all wage and salary workers taken together.

Along with higher prices paid by the state for farm produce and a revised system of income tax levies affecting collective farmers, these changes are expected to give farms at least 22,000,000,000 rubles of extra income in the current five-year period.

At the official Soviet exchange rate this comes to about $24,000,000,000 Canadian.

The countryside is also to get a higher proportion of what economists call "social consumption funds." This is money spent for such things as schools, hospitals, clubs, libraries and movie theatres.



However, in the light of present conditions and the job that has to be done, it will be a long time before young people stop wanting to quit the farm and move to the city.

Lutheran Philosophy Must Change: Bishop

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—Lutherans must develop a new relationship with the world because of the concept of collective interest sweeping society, says Bishop Hanns Lilje of Hanover, West Germany.

"In our days the social structure of mankind has won a new powerful meaning," he told a meeting Wednesday of the executive committee of the Lutheran World Federation.

"Individualism does not seem to be capable of understanding the real problem of our generation.

"Some writers insist that we can no longer separate the church from the world. Even the organized church as a whole is being questioned in its validity."

In attendance as he spoke were two East German delegates, Dr. Wolf Schamm of Weimar and Rev. Fritz Reider of East Berlin.

Conference officials said two other invited Eastern Europe delegates were denied exit visas. They were Bishop Friedericb - Wilhelm Krumacher, outspoken leader of the Evangelical Church of Pomerania, and Bishop Andrzej Wantula of Warsaw, head of the Evangelical Church of the Augsburgtz Confession in Poland.

Eradication of TB is Aim

Referring to the governmental agency and the voluntary agency as a marriage, Dr. C. H. Rorabeck who is chief of tuberculosis prevention with the Special Health Services Branch of the Department of Health, called TB their problem child at the annual meeting of Hastings County TB Association at the Shrine Club last week.

Mr. Rorabeck said that agencies working in the field of tuberculosis must be prepared to change with the changing nature of the child. "As the problem gets simpler, it gets more complicated," the speaker said. "Now that the disease is so rare, we must become more selective in our methods of dealing with it."

"Progress," Dr. Rorabeck said, "has been good but it was nothing much to take credit for as there were 1,400 cases in Ontario last year." "We're aiming at eradication, and before that, control," the expert said. Reviewing progress over the past 40 years he pointed out that in 1906 there were 3,000 deaths from TB while in 1966 the figure was down to an all-time low of 122 deaths.

In the future, the doctor said that although the agency will always have a place it must be prepared to change. "Once we take on the problem, we have to develop our strategy." The areas he referred to as needing activity were case-finding and treatment. Case-finding, he suggested, should be concentrated on the group of previous cases from which one third of the current cases come.

Concluding his speech by emphasizing the need for cautious change the doctor also pointed out that parents could help by pooling their efforts and eliminating overlapping. "Any lack of success won't be because we aren't trying to do something. We must not do away with anything, unless we're sure we do not need it, or have something else available. Things get more cautious now. All of us are going to have periods of bewilderment. We must start by recognizing that the problem exists. We are both needed. We are both motivated."

Dr. Rorabeck was introduced by F. S. Beckley, principal of North Hastings High School and thanked by Arthur D. Doran, Bata PR officer. Other speakers of the evening were Enos David, city alderman and Dr. Bruce H. Hopkins, founder and medical director of Ongwanada Sanatorium in Kingston. A cheque was presented to E. J. O'Brien, the executive secretary of the Ontario Tuberculosis Association, who spoke briefly. The annual meeting closed with Richard Press of Belleville conducting the nominations for the 1967-68 Executive Council.

Rain-caused Blackout Halts Expo Expresses

MONTREAL (CP) — South Korea marks its national day at the world's fair today after a heavy downpour Wednesday forced West Germany's national day celebrations indoors at Expo 67.

Dr. Doo-sam Choi, former premier of South Korea and now head of the country's Red Cross, will officiate at the flag-raising ceremonies in place of General Park, the South Korean president.

Wednesday's morning rainfall amounted to about an inch but that was enough to force the West German flag-raising ceremony into the Expo Theatre and to close down the Kaleidoscope pavilion for the remainder of the day.

The rain also was responsible for flooding the Wellington Street hydro sub-station which resulted in a power blackout at part of the Expo site.

The failure threw visitors to Expo into chaos when the Expo Express train loaded with passengers came to a sudden halt during the noon hour.

It took about eight minutes to remove the passengers after the seven of the eight express trains in operations were shunted to the nearest stations.

The power failure affected the entire Expo Express service but only the buildings on Cite du Havre, an area of the world's fair which extends out of Montreal harbor. The remainder of the Expo site is on St. Helen's and Notre Dame Islands and the pavilions and other buildings on these sites were not affected.

The rain damaged the projection at the Kaleidoscope pavilion after water seeped in through the ventilation system. The pavilion was scheduled to be opened today after repairs are completed.

The wet weather did not prevent the usual crowds from pouring into the site and Expo recorded its 12,000,000th visitor in the afternoon.

President Heinrich Luebke, president of West Germany, and Mrs. Luebke were welcomed to Expo inside the Expo Theatre rather than at the normal open air ceremony at Place des Nations.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

Death, the grim Co-Pilot that haunts the controls of man-made mechanical monsters ashore and afloat, claimed another victim the other day.

Bill Brow, noted among the tops in American unlimited hydroplane speedcraft drivers, was the victim of the nautical daredevils to die after his boat "Miss Budweiser," exploded while racing with all guns out.

Apparently drivers may come and drivers may go for although Brow was the second "Miss Budweiser" driver to meet death at the controls, the sponsoring firm says it will build another. "Pshh," they claim, "in the way Bill would have wanted it."

But in hydroplane racing as in the "Indy 500" and other top racing car events, death is no deterrent to the ambitions of men who risk their lives for fame, — and more so of late — the gold that goes to the winners.

The Dark Spectre wrote finis to unlimited hydroplane racing in Canada a few years ago when it rode herd on Canada's ace driver Bobby Hayward in the Detroit River and claimed him as its own.

Hayward, who drove Canada's undefeated "Miss Supertest III" to a world championship and the famous Harmsworth Trophy in Picton frantically met death while driving an inferior boat, "Miss Supertest II."

The tragedy halted the racing hydroplane activities of the Supertest Thompsons of London, designers and owners of the Supertest family. Their world champion boat was retired and presented to Canada's Sport's Hall of Fame.

But tragedy and other disastrous events have not changed the minds of other Canadian speedboat enthusiasts below the unlimited class of boats.

Picton, always the scene of outstanding summer speedboat regattas, has been strangely silent this year. Last year's speedboat enthusiasts and the Prince Edward Yacht Club sponsored a six-meter regatta for the Maple Leaf Trophy that ended in something like a big scramble.

This year the scene changes. Valleyfield, Quebec, always a hotbed of the sport, is gearing itself for what could turn out to be the best regatta ever held in Canada, so the sponsors claim.

The extravaganza — the World Exhibition Power Boat Regatta — will be raced on St. Francis Bay July 7-8-9 and 14-15-16 and several of the world's best power boat pilots have already entered.

In all over 700 entries are expected to be competing for the $17,000 worth of prize money and several of the drivers are acting as representatives of their country.

Pilots from Switzerland, United States, Austria, Germany and New Zealand have already registered. The program includes competitions in nearly every world class of competitive power-boat category, inboard and outboard.

Outboard events in 10 classes plus the C-Class Racing Hydro championships for the John Ward Trophy will be raced on July 7-8-9. Nine classes of inboard competitions and the "World Limited Inboard" championship for the Maple Leaf Trophy will be held the following weekend.

On peak days over 100,000 spectators are expected to line the bay for the 20th annual Valleyfield regatta.

With the exception of the $1,500 Maple Trophy contest, the two richest events are the .266 class inboards and the Class C racing hydro outboards. The .266 class will be competing for $600 per heat and $1,200 total purse. The C hydros $125 per heat and $350 total purse.

The course is one and two-thirds miles oval and is officially recognized as a championship course by both the Canadian Boating Federation and the American Power Boat Association.

Sport Miniatures

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Pete Brown, a Los Angeles professional, withdrew from the United States Open Golf Championship Wednesday and was replaced by Al Balding of Toronto. Brown withdrew after one of his children was critically injured in an automobile accident in Los Angeles.

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — The lady 500 race claimed its first auto casualty Wednesday when Garry Congdon crashed his roadster in practice for Saturday's 200-mile race. Congdon's Harry Jo Chev Special went off the track at No. 1 corner and damaged its radiator but Congon was unhurt.

Riot Halts Game

DETROIT (AP) — A player riot flared in the closing moments of the Detroit - Houston United Soccer Association game Wednesday night, halting the game with 17 minutes still to play and Houston ahead 2-0.

The fight erupted when Detroit, represented by Glentorians of Belfast, was awarded a free kick 10 yards outside the Houston — represented by Banks of Brazil — penalty area.

"Houston's fullback Lois Alberto laid out Detroit's Tommy Jackson cold with a kick to the kidney," said a Cougar publicity official.

"Then players from both teams swung into the melee," he said. "The benches cemptied and several more were injured in the all-out kicking and fist fighting."

Nobody needed hospital treatment, the official said.

Grandslams Upset 'Walk' Strategy

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Let's play baseball manager. It's early in the game, there are runners at second and third with a tough hitter at bat and a lesser threat on deck. You issue an intentional walk, right? Wrong.

CLETE BOYER

Harry Walker of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia's Gene Mauch played the obvious strategy of the deliberate base on balls Wednesday night and both regretted it later.

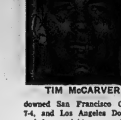
Walker ordered Mike Shannon passed in the first inning against St. Louis and then watched Tim McCarver wallop a grand slam home run that triggered Cardinals' 7-4 victory over the Pirates.

Atlanta's Joe Torre got the intentional treatment from Mauch in the fourth inning and then trotted home behind two other runners when Chris Boyer unloaded a grand slam that helped the Braves to a 15-7 triumph over the Phillies.

In other National League action, New York Mets Bob Shaw shut out first place Cincinnati Reds 4-0, Houston Astros downed San Francisco Giants 7-4, and Los Angeles Dodgers ended an eight - game losing streak with a 4-3 victory over Chicago Cubs.

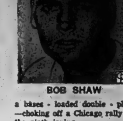
McCarver's homer, on an 0-1 pitch, was his sixth this season and his third career grand slam. Bob Gibson survived an 11-hit Pirate attack to go the distance for his eighth victory.

Boyer's slam was the fourth in his career and his ninth home run this season. Hank Aaron added his 17th later and Tito Francona, traded by Philadelphia to Atlanta only Sunday, socked his first against his ex-mates.



Shaw scattered six hits and Tommy Davis drove in three runs as the Mets defeated the Reds.

Houston jumped on Gaylord Perry for five straight hits and five runs in the first inning and then held off the Giants.



Jim Wynn's two-run triple and a two-run single by Bob Aspromonte were the key blows in the Astros' spurt.

Ron Perranoski, the Dodgers' fourth pitcher against the Cubs, got Lee Thomas to ground into a bases - loaded double - play —choking off a Chicago rally in the ninth inning.

Lee Gabrielson and Dodger starter Claude Osteen homered in the fourth while Ernie Banks and Ken Hubs connected for Chicago.

Canadian Finishes In Third

BRONXVILLE, N.Y. (CP-AP) —Ben Merwin of Sudbury finished third Wednesday in the Eastern Senior Golf Association championship.

Curtis Person of Memphis, Ge., won the title for the second straight year as he shot a final round of 72 to finish the two - day, 36 - hole tournament with a 143 total.

Merwin shot 77 Wednesday to finish with a 146.

Third Time In Row

Carm's Clean Cementmen

The Point Anne Cementmen are likely hoping they saw the last of Trenton Carm's Cleaners for a while last night.

Carm's dumped the Cementmen for the third consecutive time, scoring once in the 13th inning for a 6-5 win.

Point Anne had a 4-0 record just a week ago but Charlie Drake's Trenton crew now rests comfortably atop the Trent Valley Softball League standing.

The Cementmen play host to RCAF Flyers tonight at 6.45 and need a win to protect their second-place standing.

Jim Whyte strolled, was safe at second on an error and rode home with the winning run as Ron Chambers singled through short in the 10th inning.

Carm's other five tallies came in the fifth when they broke Ron Marcele's no-hit bid. Barker doubled to ignite that rally. An error followed, then hits by Lewis and Drake before Don Cole slammed a bases-loaded triple, scoring himself on Chambers' double.

An error, Carm's sacrifice and R. Maracle's fly ball netted one in the Ox-pointers' first frame. Carr's double and C. Maher's single made it 2-0 in the top of the third.

Cook, R. Maracle and Horwood hit safely for two in the sixth while another hit by Maracle and two Trenton miscues tied it in the eighth.

Clair Leahy got the pitching win in relief of Jerry Fayette. They gave up nine hits, fanned 12 and walked four. Maracle struck out 16 batters and allowed eight hits in a tough loss, taking five.

Ron Chambers' double and single and Don Cole's triple were Trenton's big "shots". Art Baker, Dale Lewis, Roger Drake, Leahy and Fayette had the others.

Ron Maracle with three, Mike Cook two, Claude Carr, Gerry Meagher, Vern Nelson and Jim Horwood, handled the losers' hitting.

Point Anne 100 012 010 0 - 5 3 2
Tr. Carm's 000 050 000 1 - 6 8 4

Batteries: R. Maracle and C. Carr; J. Fayette, C. Leahy (7) and J. Whyte.

The local bantams' next start is at home against Bowmanville Saturday. Game time is 2 at Parkdale.

Saturday morning of this week, films will be shown at the Recreation Centre for all minor baseball players. The films cover batting, fielding, pitching, etc and will be shown at 10 a.m.

Wayne Farrell Has Second No-Hitter !

Wayne Farrell pitched his second no-hit victory of the young season as Trenton blanked Cobourg 9-0 in an EOBA bantam game at Cobourg last night.

Farrell threw a no-hitter at Ajax in the season opener but looked even better last night. He brected third-strikes peat 13 Cobourg batters and did not walk a man. Lineup-wise only runner came on an error in the seven-inning game.

The bantams got their pitcher plenty of scoring help, plating runs in every inning except the second, while rapping Cobourg pitcher Kelly for 12 hits. Kelly fanned 12 and walked five.

Catcher Paul Hall spearheaded the Bellcity attack with a double and two singles. Glen Carleton and Don Banksy had 4 double and single each while Terry Meagher also doubled. Rick Meagher, Randy Burke, Barry Cleaver and Stan Brooks also hk safely.

The local bantams' next start is at home against Bowmanville Saturday. Game time is 2 at Parkdale.

BID FOR GAMES

VANCOUVER (CP)— Mayor Tom Campbell says Premier W. A. C. Bennett has joined him in a bid to obtain the 1976 Winter Olympics for Vancouver. Campbell said the premier agreed to put up $5,000 to compile technical information supporting Vancouver's bid if city council will match the amount.

Golf Battle Lines Drawn

Touring Pros Issue Ultimatum!

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP)— There appears no immediate solution to the bitter fight between the Professional Golfers Association and tournament players for control of the $4,500,000 tour.

Predictions in informed golf circles today were that Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Bill Casper and 130 other touring pros would strike out on their own next month after the PGA national championship tournament, scheduled at Denver.

The question is: Can these transient guns run their own show?

The players gave the PGA until today to accede to their demands for greater control of the tour, including the privilege of setting tournaments, handling television proceeds and naming administrators for the tournament bureau.

The PGA insists it won't give in "We can't live with that king of arrangement," said PGA president Max Elbin of Washington.

The PGA has issued an ultimatum of its own — effective also today. Under it, the 150 players who have signed a protesting petition must remove their names or be subject to possible suspension and withdrawal of playing privileges.

The players say they won't do it.

So the U.S. Open championship, not affected by the feud because it falls under the jurisdiction of the U.S. Golf Association, will proceed as scheduled with the player revolt temporarily shelved.

The day of accounting may not come until the PGA championship at Denver, July 20-24, although Elbi and the PGA executive committee have invited the players to air their grievances at an open meeting in Cleveland, Tuesday.

Every prominent tournament player except Doug Sanders has signed the petition threatening a boycott and an independent association. Arnold Palmer and Julius Boros signed Tuesday, Bill Casper added his name Wednesday. Jack Nicklaus was one of the more than 130 who signed two weeks ago at Memphis.

Kaat Scratches Tigers; Chisox Split

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Staff Writer

Lefthander Jim Kaat beat Detroit Tigers 7-0 Wednesday night with a five-hitter, his second straight complete game victory since new manager Cal Ermer took over Minnesota last Friday.

The 28-game winner of last year had won only one game and lost twice under former manager Sam Mele and failed to complete any of his four starts.

Kaat insists it is just a coincidence—and it probably is—but whatever the reason, he has the once-sluggish Twins in a first place tie in the American League.

They share third with Baltimore and Boston Red Sox after Kansas City Athletics belted the Orioles 9-3 and the Red Sox split a doubleheader with first place Chicago White Sox, losing 5-7 before winning 6-1.

New York Yankees split with Washington Senators in another twinbill, winning 7-1 and losing 3-2, and California Angels slipped Cleveland Indians 5-3 on Bob Rodgers' two-run single in the ninth inning.

Kaat resumed his turnabout before former Twins' pitching coach Johnny Sain, the man whose firing last fall at the request of Mele promoted a controversial letter by Kaat praising Sain and criticizing Minnesota for letting him go.

Sain, now the pitching coach at Detroit, fell Kaat "looked like the same old Kaat to me."

Kaat struck out six and walked none as he allowed only two Tigers to second base. Harmon Killebrew, Jerry Zimmerman and Rod Carew supplied the power, each with two-run homers. Zimmerman also singled home a run.

Chuck Dobson, also coming strong for KC, stopped the slugging Orioles as one run before a jammed Regar on his pitching hand forced him out in the seventh inning. Entering the game with two straight shutouts, he allowed only five hits in six innings to raise his record to 4-2.

The White Sox won their opener on home runs by Tommie Agee, Dick Kenworthy and Mike Williams, but Wilbur Wood had to strike out George Scott with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth inning to end the game. Scott and Rico Petrocelli had homered earlier for Boston.

IN TITLE DEFENCE

TOKYO (AP)—Flash Elorde, 32, who has been having trouble with weight, makes the 11th defence of his world junior lightweight boxing championship tonight against young Yoshiaki Numata of Japan. Numata, 22, won the Orient lightweight championship from Elorde in a 12-round bout in Tokyo a year ago.

With The Trotters

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The first leg of the City of London pace series was run off in six divisions at Western Fair Raceway Wednesday night with each division worth $1,325.

Ancaster Morey won the first division in 2:07 1-5, Sharon Sue the second in 2:06 2-5, Mary Glenford the third in 2:08 3-5, Good Time Henry the fourth in 2:06, Herbie Johnson the fifth in 2:07 3-5 and Dream Castle the sixth in 2:08.

Richard Gaines and Muddy Patrick combined in the tenth for a $44.40 exactor.

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Diller a Dollar, six-year-old trotting stallion, won the fifth at Garden City Raceway Wednesday night for his first victory of the year. He paid $6.70.

Keith Waples scored his 200th win of the season with Top Notch Frick in the seventh.

Will Name Football Boss Later

By DON MacLACHLAN

REGINA (CP) — Nominations for a new Canadian football League commissioner will be "made at a fairly early date," CFL president Al MacEachern of Vancouver said today, but it won't be at the CFL's Toronto annual meeting.

MacEachern said in an interview Wednesday general feeling of clubs at the two-day meeting was that they wanted a commissioner as soon as possible.

At the meeting today, Ed Sexton Eskimos were to bring up a proposal that players in U.S. colleges "who could be classified as ineligible" should be included in the CFL's college draft.

Norm Kimball, general manager of the Eskimos of the Western Football Conference, said this was the first time the club had brought it to the CFL level. The idea was raised but later withdrawn a couple of years ago.

The Eskimos suggest general drafting of such players be preceded by a "territorial round" which would give each club a chance to pick up one hometown player before all clubs entered the draft.

US Open

Nicklaus; A 62 In Tune-up!

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (CP)—Jack Nicklaus served notice Wednesday, on the eve of the U.S. open golf championship, that he is ready to rebound from his season-long slump on the golf tour.

Nicklaus posted a record eight-under-par 62 in his final tune-up before today's Open at the Baltusrol Golf Club. He ripped over the 7,025-yard, par 70 course in 31-31, breaking the course record of 64 set in 1941 by home club pro Johnny Farrell and tied by Ben Hogan in 1954.

Nicklaus birdied eight holes, including six in a row from the eighth through the 13th.

Meanwhile, Al Balding, pro from Markland Wood in Toronto, has replaced Pete Brown in the starting lotaly in the fourday, 72-hole event with 135 professionals and 15 amateurs.

Brown withdrew after one of his children was critically injured in an automobile accident in Los Angeles. Balding was named as his replacement as the PGA rules state that identical qualifications, where Brown qualified.

Balding is the only Canadian in the tournament.

California Seals

Wanted Brewer; Rejected

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says California Seals, new entry in the expanded National Hockey League approached Toronto Maple Leafs about a deal for defenceman Carl Brewer and were turned down.

The paper quotes Barry Van Gerbig, president of the Seals, as saying:

"I hear Brewer wants to return to the pros, and we'd like his return to be with us. I placed Toronto with an offer to negotiate but got nowhere.

"Imlach says he doesn't owe Brewer anything and wants to make him ask us long as the NHL rules say he must. He told me: "Hell, no!"

Brewer, 28, quit Leafs' training camp two years ago to spend the 1965-66 season completing a bachelor of arts degree at University of Toronto.

He was reinstated to amateur status Dec. 4, 1966, after signing voluntary retirement papers from professional hockey. Last March he played for Canada's national team in the world hockey championship in Vienna.

A bylaw devised by the NL last year during Brewer's fight for amateur status states that any player desiring to return to the pros after signing voluntary retirement papers must obtain from the pros for two full calendar years.

Brewer, under the bylaw, is not eligible to return to the NHL until Dec. 4, 1968.

The Globe and Mail quotes Vea Gerbig as saying he is ready to follow proper channels to restore Brewer's professional status before the December date.

"I asked Clarence Campbell (NHL president) how to go about it, and he told me the best way was to get the bylaw rescinded," the Globe and Mail quotes Gerbig.

Departmental Softball

Two runs in the sixth inning gave the Combines a come-from-behind 3-3 deadlock with the Intelligencer in the tightest game of the Departmental Softball League season last night.

Ron Colloden for the Intelligencer and Hitty Gary Reid of the Combines hooked up in a good pitching duel, aided by some heads-up infield and outfield plays. They allowed eight and six hits respectively.

Hits by Merv Thompson and Gary Wood, a fly out and Steve Lang's sacrifice gave Intelligencer a 3-0 lead in the second and Gord Green's home run got one back in the bottom of the inning.

It stayed that way until Green's single, Greydon Rodgers' triple and an error tied it for the Combines in the sixth. The Combines got a man to third with one out in the first frame but a strikeout, two intentional walks and a ground out stranded him there.

Hits for the Combines were Gord Green with a homer and single, Greydon Rodgers and Sad Boys thumped Foundain Park 16-7 in a pair of Belleville Minor Baseball Association peewee games last night.

Bobb winners overcame early deficits to pull out the decisions.

David Smith and Dean Lang tossed four-hit ball, with 12 strikeouts and six walks, for Bobby Tho. Burke gave up seven hits for I.B.E.W., fanning seven and passing four.

Smith hit a triple and single to lead his own attack and Lang also tripled. Larry Kirby had two hits, Thomas Boyd a double and Jim Stadber a single. Jim Wood singled twice, Vic Power once and Mike Burley doubled in defeat.

A six-run third frame put Sad Boys ahead to stay as Mike Bell and Brian Cousins pitched 4-hit ball. They fanned nine and passed six. John Mulvihill and Danny Lupenette gave up eight hits, struck out eight but walked 11 for Fountain Park.

Danny Coulson hit a home run and single and Andy Rickella also honored for the victors. Brian Coulson had a double and single, Mike Yost, Mike Bell and John Donovan a bit each. Lupenette and Sandy Caleta each poked two losers' safeties, Stewart Hilchon doubled and Mulvihill added a base knock.

Nicklaus battered long-time opponent Arnold Palmer into submission in a head-to-head final practice.

Palmer, the 6-to-1 tournament favorite, was off his game and his score was figured around 74 or 75. He did not hole out every putt.

Billy Casper, who came from seven shots back with nine holes to play to tie Palmer last year at San Francisco and then win the playoff, is a 10-to-1 second choice at 8 to 1 with 47-year-old Julius Boros, who won his third tournament of the season last week.

Clock Only Competition

Clarke Fails To Eclipse Records?

TORONTO (CP) — Australian Ron Clarke made a gallant bid to eclipse at least the Canadian open three-mile record here Wednesday night but he had to set his own pace.

After a slow first half, the 30-year-old holder of every distance running record from three miles to 10,000 metres went out on his own and crossed the finish line in 13 minutes, 4.8 seconds.

The time was more than a second off his Canadian mark and 14 seconds away from his world standard, but it was all the more remarkable in that his only competition was with the clock.

Clarke said before the race he'd like to inaugurate the new all-weather track at the Canadian National Exhibition with a world record effort.

PACES LAGS

However, the expected pace setter, Kerry Pearce, a fellow Australian, failed to meet the challenge and finished only a lap in the field.

Clark later apologized to the crowd of nearly 3,000 for not even threatening his world mark but thought that perhaps another time, when conditions were better, he's make another assault on the record in Toronto.

Shortly after his race, the lanky globe trotter was taken by limousine to Toronto International Airport for a flight to Paris where tonight he'll perceive the sportsman-of-the-year award from the—International Academy of Sports.

Clarke said:

"I guess I'm not good enough at the present time to break a world three - mile record. The track was good but I guess a combination of factors made me perform below par."

The most exciting race of the evening turned out to be a three - way battle between Tim Davidson of San Diego, Dave Bailey of Toronto and Ray Earwell of Edmonton.

Bailey, the only Canadian ever to run a mile in less than four minutes, led most of the way with Harwell just off the pace and Davidson staying close, but Davidson caught the Canadian in the final few yards, and finished in 4:01.4.

SPRING CHAMP

Wynonia Tyus, another world record holder, was well off her targe of 10.3 when she won the women's 100-yard dash in 10.7.

But the major upset of the meet came in the women's 880-yard race when Madeline Manning of Tennessee State University defeated both Charlotte Cooke of Washington and Canadian record holder Abby Hoffman of Toronto. Miss Manning covered the distance in 2:05.5, more than a full second off the Canadian native and open standard of 2:04.3.

Miss Cooke was second, with Miss Hoffman a close third.

Bill Crothers, silver medallist at the 1966 Olympics, won the men's 880-yard event handily in 1:47.2.

Mamie Rollins of Chicago upset Canadian record holder Jenny Wingerson Meldrum in the women's 80-metre hurdles. Miss Rollins won the race in 10.9, one - tenth of a second off Mrs. Meldrum's Canadian open and native mark.

Hindu Golfer

Southpaw Uses 'Right' Clubs

By STERLING TAYLOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The next time golfing frustration prompts you to wrap a three-wood around a tree, consider the plight of fellow-sufferer Sewgolum, a left-handed golfer who uses right-handed clubs.

Sewgolum, a Hindu from South Africa, couldn't find a set of left-handed clubs as a boy so he learned to cope with the unorthodox overlapping grip as well as the game's more normal frustrations.

He got so good at addressing every shot with his power hand below that he is now rated one of his country's top golfers.

Sewgolum's eighth - place finish in the world championship in England last year gave him automatic entry to this year's $200,000 tournament at the Toronto Board of Trade course in Woodbridge, Ont., Sept. 7-14.

Sewgolum, nicknamed Papwa by his mother, started playing golf while caddying at the Beachwood club in Durban and took up the game seriously when the city built a nine-hole course for Indian golfers during the mid-1950s.

He showed enough promise to gain financial sponsors for a trip to Europe in 1959 and was an immediate success, winning the Dutch title that year and in 1960.

He won his first major South African championship, the Natal Open, in 1963 but not without suffering some of racial policies that prohibit mixing of whites and colored athletes.

Papwa, who chain-smokes his way around a course, finished seventh in the South African Open two months later. He tied for 12th in the British Open in 1965, collecting the $180 but finishing ahead of defending champion Arnold Palmer.

A year later he tied with countryman Gary Player for fifth place in the South African Open.

"This man can really play golf," said Player. "He does especially well on short courses. There's no better chipper or putter in the world today. He doesn't shoot in the 60s very often but he doesn't shoot higher than 71 very often either."

Sewgolum shot a pair of 75s after an opening 71 at the 1966 World Championship and finished with a 72 over the Royal Birkdale course. But every golfer in the field had at least one round of 78 or over, including winner Bruce Devlin of Australia and runner-up Billy Casper of the United States.

Picton Defeats Kingston

Three-run bursts in the first and fifth innings carried Picton Kinsmen to a 7-3 Quinte-KASA softball League decision over Kingston Prince George Regals at the Picton Fairgrounds last night.

Ken Denille was one of the Picton stars, pitching the victory and driving in three runs with a triple and double. Denille scattered nine hits, struck out seven and passed a pair.

The Kinsmen collected eight hits off their old pitching mate, Duke Palmer, who toiled the route in defeat. He struck out nine and did not walk a batter.

The Regals scored one in the top of the first before Picton replied with a six-run fifth. Stacey's bunt single, a Stacey's run-scoring fly ball, Ostwinder's single and Denille's triple.

In the fifth, St. Denis and K. Stacey opened with base hits and both scored after two were gone on Denille's double.

Assisting Denille in the hitparade department were Jim Guernsey and Keith Stacey with two singles each, Leo St. Denis and Dave Ostwinder also had base knocks.

Bob Senior punched out three Kingston singles, Chris and Granville two each, Mitch Monette a triple and VanHoover a single.

The win was Picton's second of the campaign and the Kinsmen visit the LaFontaine Clippers in Kingston tonight. Also tonight, Kingston Lake Bus Service play in Belleville.

Indians Have Sign On Lombanks!

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Belleville Lombanks may be in first place in the EOBA senior grouping but when Kingston Ladywire Indians come to town they sure must wonder how they got there.

The Indians scalped the Lombanks for the second time in two meetings here last night. The score was 6-4 and few of the votes of the "clean" variety.

Each club plated three unearned runs in the fourth and Kingston's fifth run, coming when they took a 6-3 lead in the seventh, was the game's only earned tally by either side.

Keith Wesse was the winning pitcher, before giving way to Art Leeman in the sixth, and also drove home three runs on his own behalf. Wesse gave up half of Belleville's eight hits, struck out six and walked three. Leeman was strong in relief, whiffing eight and not walking a batter.

Bill Lankford gave up six hits in a route-going but losing cause. He blew strikes past 10 batters but walked his mates area five times and left 10 stranded to give their pitcher little support.

Mozon missed a poppy back of first to open the game in the Indians' fourth. After a strikeout and walk, B. Wesse rapped a hit through Forsythe to score con. Climmer went down on strikes.

Boomhower appeared to lose Keith Wesse's habit to bolt and it went for a two-run triple.

Three Kingston players went after Hunter's infield pop and While finally dropped it in Belleville's fourth. After two outs, Mozon walked; one run scored on a wild pitch; Plaza singled a second home; Boomhower singled and another wild pitch tied it 3-3.

Ralph Plaza pulled off a great diving catch to rob McIlroy opening the ninth but an error, B. Wesse's base hit and Keith Wesse's Texas-league double got the lead run home.

A walk, While's triple and an interference call on Woods, which erased a fine relayed out at the plate, upped Kingston's lead to 6-3. Lombanks got one back on a two-out error and Forsythe's double but that was it.

The Wesse boys accounted for four of the winners hits, a triple and double for Keith and 2 brace of singles by Brian. Guy While tripled and Bill Kyle singled.

Larry Mawdsy and Carl Boomhower stroked two sings-

"Grasshopper" Tied Game

Somebody's got egg on his face and grass in his mitt out Consecon way.

Shannonville scored a sole run in the top of the seventh and first baseman Ron Consecon Plate's 4-3 at a South Hastings Baseball tilt last night.

But how they scored that tying run!

Segar was on second base with a double when Doug Dafoe punched a ball to the short outfield. Pete Consecon outfielder came in for a running pickup, reached down and started to throw but he thought was the ball toward home.

All he had was a hand full of mud as Segar came home to tie it and Dafoe wound up on third, credited with a double and an error on the safety.

Somebody forgot to cut the grass!

Larry Lewis with brother Norm taking over in the ninth, struck out four and walked four while tossing five-hit ball for Big Shannon.

Terry Thompson, with relief from Cornet Adams in the seventh, gave up six hits, fanned four and walked two for Canniftons.

Wayne Segar rapped two doubles, Doug Dafoe one, Dave Lewis two singles and Jerry St. Denis one for Shannonville.

Plate's singles were divided among John Tweedy, Terry Thompson, Larry Adams, Hugh Peters and Court Bradley.

Shannonville 300 000 1—4-6-2
Canniftons 001 021 0—4-5-1

Minor Softball

A couple of close games and some wide-open affairs were played in the Belleville Minor Softball Association's squirt division last night.

On the West Hill, Stevenson Ford edged the Cubs 11-10. Peacock Plastering shaded the Bombers 8-6 and Erzie Tuck Electric overpowered the Reds 40-17.

In the East Hill, Stephen Lennox defeated Vaughan's Auto 9-5, Indians scalped the Redskins 20-9, Shopping Plaza shaded the Sevens 14-13 and Kiddies' Korner dunked the Seals 28-8.

FIGHT FAVORITE

CARDIFF, Wales (AP)— Vincent Saldivar of Mexico is rated a big favorite to retain his world featherweight boxing championship in tonight's 15-round bout against Howard Winstone of Wales. Saldivar outpointed Winstone in a 15-round title defence in London, Sept. 7, 1965.

Pickles Linked To Cancer

TORONTO (CP)—Three Vancouver doctors have found pickle-eaters have a predisposition to ulcers and a kind of gastritis associated with cancer, the Canadian Medical Association Journal reports.

Drs. W. C. MacDonald, F. H. Anderson and S. Hashimoto of the University of British Columbia and Vancouver General Hospital have found highly salted soy sauce pickles and sweet vinegared gherkins can produce inflammation of the stomach lining, the magazine says.

The doctors used a suction method to retrieve pieces of stomach lining from three male subjects and found marked changes in their cells after they had consumed 30 ounces of tsukemono, a Japanese dish containing pickled vegetables in soy sauce, or vinegared gherkins over a three-day period.

The doctors say the death rate from gastric cancer and gastric ulcer is higher in Japan than in Canada or the United States. They said the Japanese, who migrate to other countries maintain a high death rate from stomach cancer.

College To Study Criminals

OTTAWA (CP)—A new criminology centre at the University of Ottawa is launching a study of the corrective treatment and handling that Canadian criminals should get.

The university announced Wednesday that it is hiring Dr. Tadeusz Grygier, research director in the Ontario department or reform institutions, to get the study off to a good start.

The provincial department and the federal justice department are expected to benefit from research service provided by the centre, which is part of the university's faculty of psychology and education.

The faculties of law, medicine and social sciences and the school of social welfare also are involved.

"The ultimate aim of the research is to enable Canada to prescribe the best type of corrective treatment for each type of criminal offender," the university said in a press release.

A first step will aim at improvement of classification systems now used for criminal behavior.

"New discoveries in corrective treatment then would be incorporated, together with statistical data on results."

Dr. Grygier, 52, born in Poland, is chairman of the Canadian Corrections Association's penal reform committee.

Doing Is Best Clue to Being

Thoughts at Large:

No one can get to "know himself" better through introspection, but only through action; doing is our best clue to being, and it is how we relate to the world (and not what we think about it) that determines our character.

We complain about the "apathy" of the people — but if people were less apathetic, might they not be more likely to respond to wild emotional appeals than to rational decisions, and might the "apathy" of the public not be as unconscious guard against being aroused to primitive instincts by the witch doctors?

The ignorance of the unlearned is called simply "ignorance"; but the ignorance of the learned is dignified by the term "scholarship."

Almost nobody today gets "fired" from a job in the old-fashioned sense; those who are dismissed have put their heads on the chopping blocks and smoothly prepared the way for their own execution.

Some problems present a vicious circle that cannot be broken within their own context: For example, as pollution gets worse, we have to drive farther to find clean air — and the farther we drive, the more we pollute the atmosphere.

Every weekend, the squares troop down to the neighborhood of the beatniks, to gawk and gape and giggle; but (along with a sense of superiority) there is also in them an envy and a wistfulness that they would be unwilling to admit, for the last part of their nature.

The invariable sign of a bad writer is the use of strong adjectives and weak verbs; this is especially true in fiction, where poor writers are fond of "describing" what is happening, rather than making it happen.

One fears that the public temper hasn't changed much in the 40 years since Wilde uttered his wickedly accurate appraisal: "The public have an insatiable curiosity to know everything, except what is worth knowing."

A man finds it easy to be a friend to another man only if they share common goals; but a woman does not take to another woman unless they have different goals — this is why a woman very interested in men always picks as her best friend another woman who will serve as a confidante but never as a competitor.

Hospital Antique Show Highlights Week's Events

NAPANEE — The antique show connected with the hospital Centennial project was outstanding, not only because of its diversity, but also because of its organization. In reality, it was a collection of displays, each complete in itself.

Mrs. Linda Querilhen and Mrs. Flora Barr jointly responsible for the display, had guns for afield for some of the exhibits. Many treasured heirlooms had been volunteered from homes in the area, also.

The collection of hospital and sickroom supplies and surgical instruments attracted much attention. In most cases the antiques article had beside it the article which is in use today in its place. A clumsy wooden wheel chair stood beside one borrowed for the day from the hospital. Equipment used in giving intravenous not long ago was contrasted with today's counterpart, plastic and disposable. A needle cleaning machine run by pressurized air was effective, but a time-waster. An ancient anesthetic machine aroused much comment. Those were among the antique articles appearing through the courtesy of the Kingston General Hospital.

From the Brockville General Hospital came the most curious of the exhibits in this display. It was a Singer surgical stitching machine.

A second display warranting detailed description had been brought by Melville Hill from the museum which he has in his home on the Tyendinaga Reserve. The largest article was an authentic birchbark canoe well over a century old. A corn pounder made from an upright section of a log hollowed out, was used to pulverize the dried corn. Also on display were many carved stone and wooden articles and a quantity of bead work. Mr. Hill was on hand at all times to explain the articles.

Attracting much attention was Miss Carol Brant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earle J. Brant of the Tyendinaga Reserve. She was dressed in a buckskin costume, made by her father who shot the deer himself.

The country store was another point of interest. On the shelves in the background was a collection of crocks and bottles, the property of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dalziel of Stirlville. Many of the articles here were lent or found closer to the counter. Here spectators were given a taste of Selby cheese, donated by Ivan Whitney.

One section displayed household silverware, such things as ard iron, muffin tins, pan lifters, ladles, and a set of household scales. In all probability, some of these articles was under 100 years old.

Bonarlaw

BONARLAW — Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Broadworth visited Mr. and Mrs. Tom White at Thomasburg Sunday and attended the baptism of their grandson, Steven White.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Steele of Sudbury are holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Burkitt.

Mrs. Don Crowe and boys of Stockdale and Mrs. Gerald Broadworth attended a shower in honor of Muriel Mumby at the home of Mrs. G. McKeigan, Marmora.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Neal spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Rod McKenzie, Kingston.

Men from the community have painted the trim on St. Mark's Anglican Church and on Saturday afternoon several men with tractor and mower worked on the surrounding grounds. Trees were planted.

ANCIENT ART

On show at the Fine Arts Museum at Expo are works from Egypt and Mesopotamia dating from 3000 BC.

End of the Line

Five of Six Crane Eggs Hatch

WASHINGTON (CP)—Five of the six whooping crane eggs plucked from northwestern Canadian nests have hatched successfully, U.S. wildlife service officials said Wednesday.

The chicks—the sixth died when it hatched prematurely on the plane en route to the U.S.—are reported doing well. Their diet at the nearby Patuxent, Md., research station consisted of real worms and, later, worm-shaped portions of fine-ground beef.

A research veterinarian is standing by to treat any infant maladies that might threaten the chicks. The last emerged at 7.55 p.m. EDT Tuesday and was popped speedily into a separate cubicle under infra - red heating which provides a range of 87 degrees to 92 degrees.

The only other "domesticated" whooper at the Patuxent station is Canus, named after Canada and the U.S. He's a "docile, dignified" bird discovered injured in 1964 near the breeding grounds in Wood Buffalo National Park straddling the Alberta-Northwest Territories boundary.

Whisked to the U.S. by air for treatment, he had a partial wing amputation last year.

The successful hatching here followed Canada-U.S. participation in a lengthily-explored plan to start a captive breeding stock of the cranes.

The five new members raise the total known population to 48 and the captive population to 10. Orip and Rosie at the San Antonio, Tex., zoo are awaiting a two-egg hatch about July 4.

UNVEIL BUST

OTTAWA (CP) — A bronze bust of former Liberal senator Marianne Jodoin was unveiled by Prime Minister Pearson in a ceremony in the Senate antechamber Wednesday. Mrs. Jodoin, 85, her four children and four grandchildren were present at the unveiling. In 1953 she was the first French - Canadian woman to be named to the Senate.

Night on Town Strenuous For Man, 95

VANCOUVER (CP) — Peter Stanger of Vancouver decided to have a night on the town a couple of weeks ago, but wound up having a fight instead.

He was battered about the head by a couple of young thugs and wound up in Shaughnessy Military Hospital.

Nothing unusual — except that Stanger is 95 years old.

"They jumped me from behind before I had a chance to clobber them," he said Wednesday night. "They got me good."

He was transferred to hospital in suburban Burnaby, which is where Reeve Alan Emmott found him Wednesday to give him a Centennial medallion as a Boer War veteran.

Stanger said he still has one ambition in life.

"I'm still hoping some rich widow will ask me to marry her," he said. "I'm easily caught these days."

SENATE ADJOURNS

OTTAWA (CP)— The Senate adjourned Wednesday until June 27 after House Leader John J. Connolly said all the work on the program had been completed except debate on the throne speech.

Presbyterians Attack Gas Company Prizes

OTTAWA (CP) — Bonanza prizes given by gasoline companies to lucky winners were attacked by the board of evangelism and social action at the third day of the general assembly Wednesday night.

Rev. W. L. Young of Hamilton, chairman of the board, said there had been an alarming increase in giveaways, sweepstakes and trading stamps in the past 10 years. If gasoline companies did not attempt to attract customers with bonanza gifts, they might be able to lower prices or give their operators or mechanics better remuneration, he added.

He suggested the government could help by fixing a limit on the amount that can be claimed for tax deductions as advertising and promotion.

Presbyteries and Kirk sessions were urged to seek the appointment of appropriate legislation in every province to curtail these practices.

Control of the sale, use and possession of the drug LSD also was urged upon the federal government by action of the general assembly.

Rev. Douglas Atherton of Verdun, Que., asserted that the presbytery of Montreal is short $6,000 on a $20,000 objective for the Christian services' list. Expo 67 and asked for help of congregations and individuals across Canada.

U.C.W. Meetings

DESERO TO — Mrs. Leonard Wilson opened her home last Thursday evening for the meeting of the evening unit of the UCW, with 10 members present. Mrs. Percy VanVleck presided. Mrs. George Lyons, a third member of the committee conducted the devotional period.

Most of the business was in connection with plans for the Centennial strawberry social to be held in the church hall later in June. Mrs. Howard VanVleck, Mrs. William Wiggins, Mrs. Lyons and Mrs. Gladys Gould were named as a committee to carry out the project. The meeting decided also to have three sale tables at the event. One will feature baked goods, a second will display a variety of articles, and the third will be a white elephant table. Since this is a centennial event, it will be an opportunity for those who wish to wear their garb of olden days.

Plans were discussed for the joint meeting of both units when activities begin in September after the recess of the two summer months. Among other tentative plans was one for a potluck supper.

At the close of the business meeting Mrs. Wilson entertained by showing pictures taken in Bermuda and in Western Canada.

Firemen Give Assistance At Park

DESERONTO — At last weeks meeting of Centennial Park committee, it was learned that the members of the Deseronto Volunteer Fire Department have been doing all sorts of work to help the project along. They have been watering the newly planted trees, and have volunteered to see that the grass is kept watered. At their meeting the previous evening they had agreed to spend at least two hours each week working at the park.

Just now they are spending time on their centennial project, which is the erection of a community barbeque approximately 28 feet long. Ralph Lawlor, who represents the PUC on the committee, and is a fireman, is chairman of the committee in charge. He told the park committee that the firemen have a quantity of flags and pennants in their possession which they are willing to put up for decorating on special occasions. The first such occasion will probably be on opening day.

Although the firemans' organization is in no financial position to give a cash donation to the project it was brought out that, individually and collectively, the members are behind the project and will give whatever practical assistance they can.

"Do you ever wonder where the next trouble spot will flare up?"

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

A municipality inspecting a set of plans and then issuing a building permit does not imply that any guarantees are being given as to the structural adequacy of a building.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My weight-lifting hobby outgrew the basement, so I decided to make a gymnasium by adding a second floor to the garage. A total carpenter and I drew up plans, the building department gave us a permit, and the job was finished in less than two weeks.

I then eagerly moved in my weights. That night there was a loud noise I ran outside and the building had collapsed. My expensive body-building equipment had not only flattened out the building, but also the two cars stored in the garage.

Somebody should be paying me for the damages, but I can't find out who. The carpenter does not have two cents in his name going after him. The insurance company says their policy does not apply. I've been told, however, that the one to sue is the municipality which issued the building permit for the unsound structure. Should I? — Mr. W.P.

ANSWER: I don't think you will find an attorney to take your case. A building permit is not a contract with the municipality. It is merely evidence of the applicant's compliance with existing codes and regulations. Apparently, they were not adequate in this case. In short, a municipality does not guarantee anything when issuing a building permit beyond that the permit meets municipal regulations — good, bad or indifferent.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I'm a first year law student. I've either discovered a great truth or a monstrous bit of trivia. For fear that it is the latter, I'm afraid to ask my professor.

In my reading of legal theory, I have become aware that historically, rent was paid by the lessee out of profits earned by the land, therefore, rent was due at the end of the period of occupancy. I have searched the law books and find that almost unanimously the courts state that rent is not due until the end of the rental period.

Now that I have my law straight, I'd like to ask a simple question, "Why, therefore, does everybody in our town pay their rent on the first of the month and not on the 30th or 31st of the month?" — Mr. Y.W.

ANSWER: Your legal theory is sound. Tenants should be paying their rent at the end of the month and not at the beginning — but, unfortunately, this is not the case in the real world. The reason: every lease of which I have knowledge provides for rent due at the beginning of the rental period. In other words, the tenant voluntarily has agreed to something counter to the logical legal theory. This appears to be one case where real estate agents have outsmarted legal theorists.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: How can 25 feet be 50 feet when a tape measure says it's 25 feet? My deed and the city plans say that my house is on a street 50 feet wide. If you measure from curb to curb, the street is only 26 feet wide. Who stole 24 feet of the street? — Mr. M.

ANSWER: The 24 feet is in the form of sidewalk and front lawn on both sides of the paved area. The publicly dedicated right of way is 50 feet but the paved area is only 26 feet.

Therefore, if you measure 12 feet (half of 24 feet) from the curb line, you will know where your property line starts. The 12 feet between the curb line and your property line is not owned by you but is part of public right of way for the street.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Every time I buy wallpaper for a room, I go through a guessing game with the salesman. There must be an easy way of calculating the number of rolls required for a room. What is it? — Mrs. A. G.

ANSWER: The following is a simple yet rather accurate method used by many decorators:

Calculate the area of each wall and ceiling requiring wallpaper. Make no deductions for windows, doors or other cut-outs unless the walls have an extreme amount of glass and doors. Add up your walls and ceilings in square feet area. Then divide by 30. You will know how many single rolls of wallpaper (18 inches wide and 24 feet long) you need. If in doubt, order an extra roll.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I ordered 1,000 square feet of lumber to cover a floor of 1,000 square feet, but it was no match. I am still short about 200 square feet. Short count probably! — Mr. T. M.

ANSWER: Mathematics is an absolute and unvarying science, except when it encounters the building industry. 1,000 square feet of boards will cover from 750 to 850 square feet of floor. Some reasons are:

1. The finished width of a board is less than its designated size (a 4-inch board is really 3½ inches wide.)

2. Wastage resulting from cutting boards to required size, and knots, etc.

Our correspondent was not given a short count, for even a builder orders 15 to 25 per cent extra, depending on grade of lumber, size desired and length.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter in to personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

May Be Tradition Supreme Court Seat for Negroes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The appointment of Thurgood Marshall as the first Negro member of the United States Supreme Court has stirred speculation that a new American political tradition is being inaugurated.

For many years, the nine-member high court has included one Roman Catholic and one Jew.

Observers now say Marshall may become the first occupant of what could evolve as an informally recognized "Negro seat" on the court.

A big, distinguished - looking man with graying hair and moustache, Marshall is already well acquainted with Supreme Court procedure.

As U.S. solicitor-general, the position he held before his appointment, Marshall argued 19 cases before the court. Earlier, as solicitor-general for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, he presented 32 cases.

President Johnson, who announced Marshall's appointment Tuesday, said only one or two living men have argued as many cases before the court — and perhaps less than half a dozen in all the history of the nation."

The president added that the 58-year-old Marshall lost only eight of the 31 cases in which he appeared before the court.

Although Marshall had climbed to the top of the ladder in the justice department before his appointment, his selection is the climax of a story in the Horatio Alger tradition.

Son of a pullman car steward, Marshall was born July 2, 1908, in Baltimore with apparently little better prospects than hundreds of young Negroes who become high school dropouts.

But his parents believed in education. His mother sold her engagement ring to help pay his college expenses, and Marshall did his part.

He graduated with honors as a pre-dental student from Lincoln University in Pennsylvania, but decided to become a lawyer. He graduated at the head of his class from Howard University here in 1933.

He returned to Baltimore to practice law and in 1934 began legal work for the NAACP, becoming chief counsel for its legal defense and educational fund. This association lasted until he was appointed to the federal appeals judge by President Johnson in 1962.

Marshall's most famous victory with the NAACP came in 1954 with the Supreme Court's historic ruling that race segregation in public schools is unconstitutional.

His first wife, Vivian Burey Marshall, died in 1955 after they had celebrated their silver wedding anniversary. He was married a year later to Cecelia Suyat and they have two sons.

In the Senate Judiciary committee, which will consider his nomination to the Supreme Court, three members — all southern Democrats — voted against his nomination as solicitor-general.

Marshall said after his appointment Tuesday he would hold no interviews or press conferences, but he predicted there might be a long delay in Senate confirmation of his nomination.

There was immediate speculation Tuesday that Marshall's nomination might lead to a more liberal stance by the Supreme Court. Justice Tom C. Clark, whom Marshall is succeeding, took a liberal stance on civil rights but was considered a conservative on most other issues.

Some indication of the philosophy Marshall might take to the court may be drawn from an address he made last year at Johns Hopkins University.

He said he was not troubled by critics of the court's "activism," and said their quarrel "is with Adams, Franklin and Jefferson" — U.S. founding fathers—rather than with the present court.

In another address last year, Marshall denounced "book trowers and Molitov cocktail-throwers."

"Lawlessness is lawlessness. Anarchy is anarchy. Neither race nor color nor frustration is an excuse for either lawlessness or anarchy."

Salaried Sales Representatives

CIA sales representatives are backed by a co-operative company with 40 offices across Ontario, over a quarter of a million insurance policies in force, and a reputation for prompt, fair and friendly claims service. A CIA representative enjoys satisfying and productive employment—helping applicants meet their insurance needs adequately and economically.

There's an opportunity now in Belleville for an alert and able man to become a CIA sales representative. The Association's extensive training program and office support make sales or insurance experience unnecessary.

Applicants should be energetic, have junior matriculation, several years successful business experience, be prepared to study insurance and obtain an agent's licence, and be interested in meeting people.

Starting salary about $110 weekly, including training allowance which will be replaced gradually by production bonus payments. Good staff benefits, transportation and expense allowance.

Civil Rights Leaders Agree To Work on One City at Time

NEW YORK (AP)—A summit conference of civil-rights leaders pondered a formula Wednesday for concentration of their full power in one city at a time across the United States. It would be their first such joint venture.

Cleveland, Ohio, was chosen as the initial target at a secret meeting of nine national civil-rights leaders. In a statement, they called that city "an example of many communities in which racial tension and the probability of renewed violence are increased."

This they attributed to "a mayor and city administration that are tragically unco-operative and unresponsive to the needs of all the citizens."

A spokesman, Dr. Kenneth B. Clark, said hopes learned to Cleveland in the fields of voter-registration, housing, political action, union integration, urban economic boosts "will be applied to other cities in turn."

Mayor Ralph S. Locher said in Cleveland he had no comment on the action of the group.

Jordan King Seems Stronger Than Ever

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—King Hussein of Jordan seems to have emerged from the Mideast war more firmly in the saddle than at any time since he ascended the throne in May, 1953.

The 32-year-old monarch has come out of the fighting with added respect and prestige, though he lost a considerable part of the country of the Jordan valley, racist.

The wholehearted participation of the king and his army in the battle against the Israelis appears to have removed the stigma of past Arab claims that his grandfather, the late King Abdullah, sold out to the Jews in the 1948 war.

Before last week's fighting, the Palestinians, who, formed two-thirds of Jordan's 1,600,000 population, were at best divided in their loyalty to Hussein.

Hussein's arguments that his army was too small to defend his 350-mile border with Israel, and that vaulted Arab action was needed, fell on deaf ears.

Even by Israeli accounts, the Jordanian army put up a resolute fight, especially in the Jerusalem area.

Spirit of Walt Disney Still Driving Empire He Founded

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Six months to go today, Walt Disney died, leaving an entertainment empire without the creative force that shaped its destinies for 41 years.

Walter Elias Disney has been the innovator and driving genius behind an enterprise that grew from Mickey Mouse cartoons to diversified entertainment for uncounted millions in almost every nation.

To many observers, his has seemed circles in the company that he and his brother Roy founded. Yet such was his ruggedly forward - looking nature that his plans continue to propel the Disney empire, and well for years.

There have been changes, of course. Key decisions do not come with the crackle of finality, as when Walt was in charge. Now policy matters go to committee, with consequent delay and watering-down.

Yet top executives are still astound to Walt's way of thinking that decisions bear to his philosophy. Brother Roy, 73 years old, admits the committee system has faults:

"It is not logical for the long pull, but it is logical for this period we are going through. The system is working, and everybody is in perfect harmony. As long as that continues, we're all right."

Roy continues as president and board chairman of Walt Disney Productions, and makes command decisions that once were Walt's. Roy was always the moneyman, content to remain in the shadow of his younger brother. His new position as top head has required adjustments.

"I've tried hard not to do anything that I didn't do before, but it hasn't always been easy," said Roy. "I want to stay out of the show world; that's not my field. I couldn't possibly fit into Walt's shoes."

"The committee system is working well," says Bill Anderson, the hearty chief of productions. "We've had a couple of knock-down, drag-out fights, but that's healthy."

Charles T. Steele, son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Steele of Reed graduated from the University of Windsor at the recent convocation with a Bachelor of Arts degree (honors) in English and history. Charles, a graduate of Moira Secondary School, Belleville plans to return to school in the fall and study for his Master's degree.

Television Comedy Writer's Life Said to Be Happy One

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Is a television comedy writer's life a happy one?

A. Mike S. Most writers are happy guys. We live ordinary, everyday lives and go home to our wives and kids.

Q. Is there a trend in TV comedy?

A. The public is becoming much more difficult to please—which is good. Whether it's slapstick, farce or logic, if it's done well, it can succeed.

The winners: Sam Denoff, 32. He won an Emmy June 4 for helping to write last April's Ed Cassmir variety special. So did light other writers including his partner, Bill Persky, 33.

Denoff-Persky previously won two Emmys apiece writing the Dick Van Dyke show and for creators-writers-producers of a new fall comedy series, Good Morning, World!

Q. Does winning an Emmy mean a pay raise for a writer?

A. No, but it helps you maintain a reputation.

Q. I guess it would be an attractive thing to ask how much you make.

A. Ask my accountant—or her lawyer.

Q. But how much do top writers in general make?

A. A good writer of situation comedy can make $2,500 per half-hour script—and write 30 or 40 of them a season if he really works at it. He also gets residuals, as I do from the Van Dyke show. In the variety field you can make $2,000 to $3,000 a week. A lot make $1,000, which is good, too.

Q. How does a young fellow with talent get started earning this kind of gravy?

A. Writing. Believe it or not, is the easiest branch of show business to get into. All you have to do is sit down and write. We look at everything that comes in—if it's accompanied by a release to indemnify it from a plagiarism suit by an unscrupulous person. It takes time, but if a writing fellow has 50 good pages if a script has anything.

Merry Wives Pleases Critics

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP)—The Merry Wives of Windsor left the critics pleased but not entirely Wednesday night as the Shakespearean Festival presented the third production of its 15th season.

Stewart Brown of the Hamilton Spectator found it "often lousy . . . a riot of color and laughter." But Ron Evans, Toronto Telegram, wrote that "seldom has comedy called as lastingly" at Stratford—"scene after scene hinged by . . . Tyrone's second-rate elephant in a backwoods circus."

Herbert Whittaker, Toronto Globe and Mail, said the production "has its brighter moments and is sparked by Rosalie enriched characterizations, but takes considerable time in unrolling its panorama of provincial life. . . ."

Nearly all the critics were from either extreme and there was universal praise for Tony Van Bridge as Falstaff and Kate Caldwell and Frances Hyland as the merry wives.

Disagreements centred on the way David William is handling of the play. Did he trim its text enough and did he take the action along fast enough?

The story of the Merry Wives of Windsor presents Falstaff, old and broke, trying to raise money by seducing two respectable and rich wives, who join forces to make a fool of him. Their series of encounters are fleshed out with a sub-plot of young love, a couple of comic foreigners and a ludicrously jealous husband.

Alan Bates, the English actor who is also playing Richard III at Stratford, had the role of the husband. His biggest scene is when he goes berserk in a laundry basket, after being told Falstaff earlier escaped detection when the basket was called this place a "a twitching low" while for Mr. Bates it was "beautiful slapstick."

Jean Gascon, the actor-director who with John Hirsch takes over the festival when Michael Langham retires as artistic director at the end of this season, also played most comedy roles. Scientific reviews from his Dr. Caius, a caricature Frenchman in yellow and black stripes capering about the stage wagging his sword.

Merry Wives was clearly ranked by both indexes of opinion as better than Richard III but not as good as Gogol's The Inspector General, its companion-piece in opening the Stratford season.

The repertory will be completed at the end of July after the openings in that month of Antony and Cleopatra, starring Christopher Plummer; Coleen in The Dark, the festival's commissioned centennial play by Morley Callaghan retires as artistic director at the end of this season, and Richard III, Tyrone Guthrie's classic reviews from his Dr. Caius, a caricature Frenchman in yellow and black stripes capering about the stage wagging his sword.

Hamilton Sees Possible Clash Between U. S., Canadian Boards

OTTAWA (CP)—Trouble will develop between the national energy board of Canada and the U.S. Federal Power Commission unless the government sets out a clear policy on resources development, Alvin Hamilton, former Conservative agriculture minister, warned Wednesday in the Commons.

The MP for Qu'Appelle, Sask., a Conservative leadership candidate and a staunch defender of Canadian autonomy, also called for a policy statement on a national hydro-electric transmission grid.

He said such a grid is "vital to the whole concept of sovereignty and using our energy as a basic part of strengthening our bargaining power in the field of resource use on the continent."

Mr. Hamilton threw a barrage of questions at Energy Minister Pepin as the minister introduced the $142,000,000 spending estimates for the energy, mines and resources department for the 1967-68 fiscal year.

He did not specify in what area he felt trouble might arise between the energy board and power commission but said he had been waiting four years for the government to outline its policy on oil and gas transmission, oil and gas regulations in the North and on the continental shelf, the relationship between atomic electric power and hydro resources and a national water policy which "we desperately need."

Mr. Hamilton said the U.S. has undertaken studies, but it was embarrassing to have to extrpolate from their figures. Yet he accused the minister of frightening the Canadian people by talking in generalities when figures were available, even though those figures were adapted from American studies.

He said studies showed the U.S. water requirements were 650,000,000,000 gallons a day whereas minimum flows of Canadian rivers totalled 1,620,000,000,000 gallons a day, "so there is no need for the Canadian people to be terrified" about their future water requirements.

The 130,000,000 acre-feet of water the U.S. "had the colossal gall to come to us and ask for" would generate 1360,000,000,000 worth of industrial production per year, according to estimates in a study published in the United States, he said.

He said it was the duty of the minister to give those facts so the Canadian people will not be "robbed of their heritage."

Mr. Hamilton praised Mr. Pepin for the research work done by the department, but said he is distressed at the absence of policy statements by the minister.

Mr. Pepin introduced the estimates with a half-hour review of the work undertaken by the department and the projects under way to study water and mineral resources.

Murdo Martin (NDP — Timmins) said Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. had ignored the growing needs for gas in eastern markets and had stalled for 18 months while "playing games" with the government.

He said it didn't matter which route was used as long as work started immediately on a bigger gas pipe line through Northern Ontario.

H. A. Olson (SC — Medicine Hat) joined Mr. Martin in urging immediate action on the new natural gas transmission line. It would soon be too late to get lines built in time to prevent a serious shortage in Ontario and Quebec next winter.

Campbellford Bridge Re-opened to Traffic

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford bridge re-opened to traffic Wednesday after having been closed for several days while temporary repairs were made on a break.

The bridge has been the centre of discussion for the past year, but Council has been notified that a definite decision must be made not later than June 30.

Arguments have been heard for a high level bridge, for which the Federal government will assume all costs, or a wider, low level bridge whose costs would be shared by the province and the town.

Closing of the bridge for construction will mean considerable inconvenience for local people. The detour is a matter of three miles and includes two narrow bridges. Present bridge length is 400 feet.

The bridge is now considered to be unsafe, especially when traffic is at a peak.

Storms Fail to Break Heat

Fretful thunderstorms broke over the Quinte district late this morning, but they are no reliable indication of relief from prevailing, sweltering humidity.

The duty forecaster at Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, warned today that weekend temperatures, if anything, could be slightly warmer.

Relief depends on a cold front, centred earlier today in the Sault Ste. Marie - North Bay region.

Behind it, temperatures have cooled considerably.

The Trenton forecaster said weekend weather could continue humid with temperatures relatively unchanged.

The high predicted today was 82 degrees with a low tonight of 70.

Today's thunderstorms are an offshoot of the northern cold front and are expected to increase in extent and severity. Heavy rain — even hail and high winds in isolated instances — could accompany the storms in some areas.

Meantime, the sustained swelter has pushed up the flow of cool water into city homes.

THE TEMPERATURES

	Max.	Min.
Today	89	70
Year Ago	66	55

Rainfall .97 inch.

City utilities officials today reported the water supply system at one point this week was pumping 7,000,000 gallons daily — not yet a record, but a considerable increase.

Sales of soft drinks also have received a noticeable fillip in recent days.

The Quinte area flies uncomfortably across the current heat belt.

The official high registered yesterday at Trenton was 82, while Peterborough recorded a baking 88, Toronto 86 and Ottawa 85.

Warmest spot in North America yesterday was the region around southwestern Ontario.

Both Windsor and its transborder neighbor, Detroit, had highs of 93.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Temperatures above the upper lakes have moderated considerably but it remains very warm and humid in southern Ontario. A slowly approaching front of cooler air will bring thunderstorms and during the peak period of heat today there will increase in contrast and severity. A few of the anticipated thunderstorms in southern and central Ontario will cause heavy rainfalls and in isolated instances could be accompanied by hail and heavy winds.

Strike Pinches

Layoffs Likely At Northern Electric Here

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Northern Electric employees in Belleville are being cautioned on the likelihood of layoffs in coming weeks, a company spokesman confirmed today.

Curtailment of operations if threatened by a shortage of components resulting from the prolonged strike of 7,500 office and plant workers in Montreal.

The situation was being discussed by management officials this morning, while employee representatives were scheduled to be called in at 1.30 p.m.

The company's 850 employees were expected to receive the caution at 1.30 — before the plant closed for the weekend.

An official notice drafted for the employees warns that the Montreal strike now is beginning to affect the production situation in Belleville.

The announcement states: "... you should be informed if the situation continues it may be necessary to close down, or severely curtail, operations at the Belleville works."

The company spokesman said he could not now give any further details on the situation facing the Belleville workers, nor if any date had been projected for possible layoffs.

"This is a cautioning notice," he said.

The notice drawn up for the employees says management is endeavoring to analyze the situation and will keep workers posted on developments.

Meanwhile, the threat to Northern's operations at its big Bramalea plant, near Brampton, has been more explicitly outlined.

About 2,000 workers will be laid off June 30 for at least a month, an official at Bramalea said Thursday.

Resumption of operations at the plant will be delayed for two or possibly three weeks after termination of the Montreal strike.

Negotiations in Montreal have broken down and no definite date for resumption has been set.

China Able To Develop Atom Arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — China has a "very large capacity for nuclear weapons development" but can't overtake the United States or the Soviet Union for some time, a congressional study committee concluded Thursday.

The estimate was among the findings the Senate-House of Representatives economic committee included in its report on the economy of mainland China.

Other findings:

—China has the conventional military capability to support "a major involvement in a land war." But if she should undertake to supplant the guerrillas in Vietnam, the war there would change into a more conventional clash of "regular" forces and "the constant world pressure upon relative firepower with the advantage going to the industrially stronger country."

—China can be expected to maintain a militant mood for some time and to try to promote her brand of revolution where possible, but the writers "did not envision any effort toward expansion by force."

Ruling Conquered Difficult Task

JERUSALEM (AP) — For the Jews of Israel, victory has brought peace but more peacetime problems.

The exhilaration of swift triumph over the Arabs is less than a week of war is beginning to fade. Now the Israelis face tasks of reorganization and even longsighted before the war erupted June 5.

Israel, a nation of 2,000,000, has at least temporarily swallowed about 1,000,000 Arabs in the Gaza Strip and on the west bank of the Jordan River. Toward the Jews of Israel, they have only implacable hatred.

One Israeli bank official had estimated that the annual cost of maintaining captured areas would be about $60,000,000.

"We can handle that, if we have to," he said. "I am confident we can stay in the territories for a long time if the Arabs refuse to talk. If this goes on long enough, perhaps we shall develop the occupied areas ourselves."

Kosygin Off To UN Meet

UNITED NATIONS (AP)— With Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin already en route to New York, UN Secretary-General U Thant announced today the General Assembly will meet in emergency session Saturday to deal with the Middle East situation.

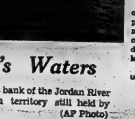
The session, scheduled to open at 9.30 a.m. EDT, is expected to turn into a high-level meeting with other government chiefs, possibly including President Johnson, appearing at later stages.

The first debate is scheduled to begin Monday. The United States will lead off, followed by Kosygin, who will launch the Soviet drive for UN censure of Israel and for a withdrawal of Israeli troops from occupied areas of Egypt, Syria and Jordan.

Saturday's meeting will be devoted to formalities.

The secretary-general called the emergency session after a majority of the 122 member countries gave their approval to a Soviet request.

U Thant spokesman said Pakistan headed in an affirmative reply at 9.30 a.m. and this rounds the 62 required.



Only the United States and Israel declined to concur.

In Ottawa, government sources said a decision on whether Prime Minister Pearson or External Affairs Minister Martin would attend the session would be delayed until the United Nation's intentions are clarified.

In Tel Aviv, political sources said Maj.-Gen. Moshe Dayan, the Israeli defence minister, would not attend the session because he is needed at home. Earlier it had been reported that Dayan might come to the UN with Foreign Minister Abba Eban to strengthen Israel's case.

In London,the British government announced Foreign Secretary George Brown will lead the British delegation to the session. A foreign office spokesman said this did not rule out the possibility Prime Minister Wilson also will attend.

Amid speculation that Kosygin's first visit to the United States would also produce his first meeting with Johnson and a summit discussion on Vietnam, White House press officer George Christian said Thursday that the presidential would, of course, be glad to see" the Soviet premier if Kosygin wants to see Johnson.

"It's been done, Mr. Kosygin!"

Algerian Plots Arabs' Revenge

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Algeria's deceptively mild-mannered President Houari Boumedienne is spearheading moves to regroup the Arab world for revenge against Israel.

Boumedienne has condemned the Soviet policy of peaceful coexistence and threatened to break away over its Chinese views.

"There can be no neutrality in the forthcoming struggle," he told his people in a broadcast.

Boumedienne is regarded convinced that Israel's war against the Arabs was part of a British-American plot to reimpose a form of colonialism on the underdeveloped countries.

Boumedienne was the only Arab leader to fly to Moscow seeking further Soviet support for the Arab cause. Demonstrators in Algiers accused the Kremlin of collusion with the West, echoing Peking's constant bias.

Boumedienne advised the Arabs that the best way to resume the battle for the liberation of Palestine was to inflict the maximum economic damage on the United States and Britain regardless of the cost to the Arabs themselves.

Russia Offers Oil to Britain

LONDON (Reuters) — The Soviet Union is trying to sell oil to Britain in an effort to exploit the situation created by the Arab oil embargo against Britain, the Financial Times reports.

It says a number of British oil importers have been approached in recent days.

The Soviet Union is known to have offered oil to Spain.

Arab Paper Charges CIA Armed Israelis

CAIRO (Reuters) — A close friend of President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt says the United States poured bombs and planes into Israel before the Middle East war and its Central Intelligence Agency planned U.S. collusion with Israel.

Mohamed Hassanain Heykal, editor of the authoritative Al Ahram newspaper which usually collects the views of President Nasser, says in a newspaper article that between March and May this year the U.S. provided Israel with 400 new bombs and about 250 planes in a military build-up of "unimaginable levels."

Martin To Meet De Gaulle

PARIS (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin will talk with President de Gaulle today about Canada's belief that the Big Four sessions must work together in encouraging and guaranteeing a permanent settlement of Middle East tensions.

Martin, here on a 24-day visit following the NATO foreign ministers meeting in Luxembourg, was scheduled to have a 20-minute meeting with the French president.

Dayton Is New Centre Of Ohio Racial Riots

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A rash of fires, apparently caused by gasoline bombs, and other incidents of racial violence occurred at Dayton, Ohio, Thursday night while relative quiet was enforced in Cincinnati by police and an expanded force of national guardsmen.

About 15 fires were reported in Dayton, including a spectacular blaze that destroyed five adjoining buildings housing businesses and residences.

Police Maj. R. M. Igleburger said there was also a lot of rock-throwing. This led to the cancellation of all bus service to Dayton's west side because of "potential danger to the public."

While the racial trouble continued in the Ohio cities, Tampa, Fla., the scene of three nights of violence, marched a day of peace by disbanding a 500-man national guard force.

Cincinnati went through the fourth straight night of racial violence despite the increase in the national guard force to more than 1,000 from 800. Armed with machine-guns and rifles with bayonets, the guardsmen accompanied police into the predominantly Negro areas that have been trouble spots.

H. Rap Brown, chairman of the Student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee and a black power advocate, issued what he termed a "declaration of war" in the Watnut Hills area of Cincinnati. He also demanded that Negroes jailed in connection with the rioting be freed.

More than 310 have been arrested this week and 12 rioters were convicted Thursday of violating the state riot act, fined $500 each and sentenced to a year in the city workhouse.

Although none of the new prisoners had been admitted to the city's ancient workhouse, 400 prisoners set fire to their mattresses, smashed windows and threw debris out of windows.

Sewer Start In Fall

Construction of sanitary sewers in the Foster Ward area, already approved by city council, will not get underway until the first of November.

This was learned last night by approximately 50 area residents who turned out to an information meeting at the Wharf Street Debating Club where sewer construction and urban renewal plans were discussed by city officials.

Mayor J. R. Ellis told the sweeting the city engineer's report on the sewer installation would be ready for council next week following which the project will be advertised and called.

However; in order to take advantage of winter works grants, it was not expected sewer construction would commence before November 1.

Ratepayers were told that the local improvement charges for the sewer installation would amount to about 80 cents per foot per year for 15 years.

Plans call for construction of a main sewer along St. Paul Street from the water pollution control plant to South Front Street with connections both north and south on Front Street and on John Street.

The hope is that sewer connections for Pinnacle, Church and George Streets can be installed next year.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said the sewer installation would all be below the CPR tracks.

Resident Survey Would Precede Urban Renewal in Foster Ward

Residents of the Foster Ward area will be given every opportunity of expressing their thoughts with respect to urban renewal before any proposals are put forth by the city planning department.

City Planning Director P. J. Beavis told a meeting of area residents at the Wharf Street Debating Club last night that a house to house survey by his department would be done, not only to get information from the planning standpoint but also from a dignity social point of view.

"We don't want to go into urban renewal proposals for the Foster Ward area with preconceived notions," said Mr. Beavis. We want to understand the situation from all angles.

Mr. Beavis was quite certain of one thing, however. That is that the present zoning regulations for the Foster Ward area are unfair and should be more suitable.

Under the present industrial zoning, no new residences are permitted and even additions to homes are restricted.

Mr. Beavis feels that if the city wants the Foster Ward to be industrial it should be prepared to purchase properties for industrial use and assist families in locating elsewhere.

The planning director felt that last night's meeting with Foster Ward residents achieved its principal objective of improving communications with city hall.

He feels there is a hard core of home owners in Foster Ward who would not want to move from the area.

On the other hand, if an urban renewal scheme were approved and undertaken by the city, there would be sizeable grants from the two senior governments.

The son of David Brant and his wife, formerly Susan Penn, he had lived all his life on the Reserve. Except for his years of service overseas. His wife, who was Emmeline Barnhardt before her marriage, predeceased him by almost two years. He was a member of the Mohawk Pentecostal Church, and held the office of steward of that church for many years.

Dr. George H.C. Stobie Gets Position in New Hospital

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Special) — Dr. George H. S. Stobie, formerly of Belleville, an expert on the use of computers in medicine, is the first person appointed to the staff of Georgetown University's "hospital of the future."

His appointment, effective July 1, was announced today by the Rev. Gerard J. Campbell, S. J., president of the university.

Dr. Stobie will serve on the staff of Georgetown University Hospital as assistant medical director and as an assistant administrator.

Father Campbell said that Dr. Stobie, as a research analyst, will initially help design plans for the installation of electronic computers in the Concentrated Care Centre, expected to be a design blueprint for future hospitals throughout the world. In the new facility, scheduled for completion in 1970, computers will be used for record-keeping and bedside care.

The Concentrated Care Centre, which will be an addition to the present hospital, will separate the critically ill patients from those undergoing diagnosis or receiving convalescent care.

Dr. Stobie will come to Georgetown from Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit, where he is an assistant administrator in charge of medical computer development.

A native of Belleville, Ontario, Dr. Stobie studied engineering physics at the University of Toronto and later, in 1950, received a medical degree from McGill University.

After completing a residency in 1956, Dr. Stobie received a fellowship in general surgery at the Royal College of Surgeons of Canada.

From 1957-59, he was in private practice and, for the following two years, worked as a research assistant at the Mayo Clinic.

In 1961, Dr. Stobie was appointed director of surgical research at the Hospital for Sick Children's Research Institute in Toronto. While there, he planned the surgical research facilities for a new wing of the hospital.

At that time, Dr. Stobie also served as associate surgeon at the hospital and clinical instructor in the Department of Surgery, University of Toronto. He joined the staff of Henry Ford Hospital in 1964.

Dr. Stobie is married to the former Beth A. Francis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon L. Francis, 195 Forest Hill Road, Toronto. Dr. Stobie's mother, Mrs. George H. Stobie, lives at 205 Poplar Plains Rd., also in Toronto.

Dr. George H. Stobie, who died in 1962, was well known in Belleville where he practiced surgery from 1920 until his retirement in 1951.

Now Is Time To Check Boat's Safety Equipment

"Fish are jumping and the living is fine" aptly describes this time of year. More and more people are getting their boats into the water to enjoy the plentiful lakes and waterways but regrettably many of them do not realize that the safety equipment in their boats is inadequate.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police are enforcing the small vessel regulations of the Canada Shipping Act and they are no longer just warning the public. The reason for tightening up enforcement is that the Canada Shipping Act was last revised in 1952 and for the first few years only warnings were issued to educate the public as to the contents of the act.

It is now 1967 and there are still plenty of violations so evidently warnings have not sufficed and the only course left open is prosecution and fines. The booklet, "Safety Afloat," distributed by the RCMP gives all the regulations that owners of pleasure craft and small commercial craft need to know in order to adequately equip their boats.

There are two important points that are not mentioned in "Safety Afloat." The first is an amendment which states that every vessel powered solely by oars or paddles shall carry one bailer and one approved life-jacket or cushion for each passenger. If the boat is over 16 feet only one approved life-jacket for each passenger is acceptable.

The second point is that the owner of a vessel as well as the operator is responsible for the equipment aboard and if such is lacking both shall be prosecuted.

Besides the RCMP checking boats in the area the Ontario Provincial Police will also be out on the lakes. They now have their own patrol boats and between both organizations violators should beware.

Township Consultant Claims Picton Doesn't Need Land for Declining Population

PICTON — A top town planner claimed here today that Picton has a downward population trend and no need for more industrial land.

The charge came from Dr. Eugene Faludi, planning consultant retained by Hallowell township in its fight to stave off Picton's annexation ambitions.

"No evidence of a requirement for additional land in the town of Picton is available," claimed Dr. Faludi as he testified before an Ontario Municipal Board hearing on the municipal dispute today.

"... The town should not annex more land from the township."

The hearing, now in its third day, is debating town designs on 770 acres of land in the township.

Today, Dr. Faludi submitted a study on boundary revisions involving both municipalities and said a development program was needed for the whole area.

"By changing the (present) boundary we may destroy the usefulness of men working in the area at the present time," he warned.

However, under cross-examination by Picton town solicitor R. E. Nourse, Dr. Faludi admitted Picton has not enough land for certain industrial developments.

"Small industries will come if housing is supplied," he told the lawyer.

Much discussion centred around accepting as evidence of the report presented by Dr. Faludi.

Partial acceptance of the study on boundary revisions would gain little, OMB member R. A. Roberts said.

"Everyone goes along the good sections of the report — but they seem to fret about the problems," reminded the hearing.

The report eventually was admitted as evidence.

The hearing, the latest development in a drawn-out hassle between both municipalities dating from September, was expected to conclude later today.

School Is Out; Games Are In

The display may be static — but not the response of its young viewers.

Stimulating excited attention among the youngsters all this week is an exhibition of industry equipment by the 1st Canadian Guards on the Legion Hall lawn.

The display is part of Veteran's Week celebrations — but, with school out, it's attracting more than a fair share of smaller fry.

And the guardsmen apparently match the interest by making things a little more available to some of the youngsters.

Like Paul Vickie and Brian Hogarbrue, (above), both of Picton, who had a first-hand demonstration from Cdmn. J. Simmons, on the operation of field telephones.

Or the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Walt Fraser, of Picton, (left). For a few brief moments he was allowed to play soldier with the real — and latest — thing in jungle warfare.

Also on display is a wide range of weaponry, and various communication devices.

The Rural Scene

PICTON — The 8000 Quart Strawberry Club of Ontario which is made up of strawberry growers who have produced at least 8,000 quarts of strawberries per acre on four or more acres in one season again opens the competition for another year.

Any strawberry grower who grows 4 acres or more and feels that they might get at least 8,000 quarts of berries in the acre should apply for membership.

Application forms are available from your Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food Office and should be sent in by June 25th.

Finishing Touches Are Being Put on Senior Citizens Housing Complex

Finish carpenters, tile layers, painters and decorators are busy putting the last minute touches on the new senior citizens housing complex on Turnbull Street in readiness for next week's official opening.

Honorable Stanley J. Randall, minister of Economics and Development, will officially open the building next Tuesday afternoon following the official opening of the new College Street bridge in the morning by Highways Minister Hon. George E. Gomma.

The new senior citizens complex built on the site of the old Turnbull street arena, will have a total of 37 apartments. The attached apartment units have a combination living room and dining room, a kitchen alcove complete with electric stove, refrigerator, sink unit and exhaust fan.

Each apartment has its own bath and also utility closet containing separate electric hot water heaters. Heating is by electric baseboard units.

The apartment complex is built in the form of a nearly closed square, with open central court and patio. Just over one half of the complex is of two-storey construction to provide for additional apartment units.

Although the official opening of the building is on Tuesday, occupancy is not expected until about July 1.

City council was told two weeks ago that there were double the number of applicants to fill the 37 apartment units.

Racial Prejudice

Racial intolerance in Belleville? It does exist, as it does elsewhere in Canada. Yes — in Canada, and not just in South Africa and Rhodesia and other countries looked upon askance by the whites of this country while conveniently forgetting their own provincialism and prejudices.

The seeds of such attitudes are planted early in life. A University of Toronto anthropologist noted recently that there is bitter racial and religious prejudice among children.

It is an old problem of course, but none the less reprehensible for all that. Children get the message from their parents. They are, in the words of the song in South Pacific, "carefully taught . . . to hate all the people your relatives hate." And so on.

As for Belleville, the other day we observed at first-hand the fruits of such twisted thinking. An attractive young Negro woman was walking home along a residential street close to the downtown area.

A group of small girls, aged perhaps six or seven, were playing outside one house. As the colored woman approached one child clapped her hand to her mouth and gestured to the others. These kids just did not giggle, a relatively innocent reaction, rather their faces contorted and they made as if to move closer to the woman. Just then a loud blast on a car horn pulled them up short. Was this a gesture of anger on the part of the driver as a witness to the incident, or was he concerned only with keeping the kids on the sidewalk? It could have been either, but the memory of those grimacing youngsters remains.

In Canada you don't have to travel far in any direction to find racial prejudice. Or religious prejudice, or any number of other types of prejudice.

Lenders and Borrowers

Ever lend articles to people? You know, books, equipment, even money — however paltry the sum — and that is the last you see of them.

This is possibly the most refined form of larceny in the whole history of man. Because somehow it is accepted as an engaging weakness, an aberration, on the part of poor forgetful homo sapiens. But what a tiresome and aggravating trait it is, in reality!

Recently we received two sets of slides lent some time previous to friends, getting them back only after considerable prodding. Then there are a couple of magazines we would like to have back from other friends. They evidently gave them to somebody else to return but so far they have not shown up; and there is so much mystery attached to their apparent disappearance that the people concerned are unable even to volunteer an explanation.

Of course it may already be a case of the magazines having been lost, or thrown out. But for that there is no excuse because they were of more than ordinary value to the owner.

Talk to any librarian, and particularly those who deal almost exclusively with checking up on books that are overdue, and a faraway look will come into their eyes as if they too are reflecting on the strangeness of human nature.

But there are compensations. Baffled but unbowed, they very often track down the offenders who have failed to return books. Some may even have left town and when contacted may say in amazement, "But how did you find me?" Yes, librarians know a lot about people and about human nature. Indeed, if they were not librarians they would make good detectives.

Of course if you are just a private citizen, and not in the business of lending money, books or whatever, the safest rule to follow is the old one, "Never a Lender nor a Borrower be."

Latin Rumpus

Speaking of war and rumors of war, there is always something going on somewhere.

Latin America used to be good for one revolution or another, but in recent years it has been relatively quiet. Then last week came a report that the government of El Salvador had ordered a mobilization because of what it called a threat by Honduras to its territory.

A number of frontier incidents have marred relations between the two countries recently. El Salvador borders on both Honduras and Guatemala which in turn has been laying claim for a number of years to neighboring British Honduras.

Really, there is never a dull moment!

Middle East

Algeria Leads Efforts to Keep Moscow on Arab Side

By JOHN STEPHENS

PARIS (Reuters) — Algerian Premier Houari Boumedienne emerged this week from the Middle East conflict with enhanced military and political prestige.

In the two years since he ousted Ahmed Ben Bella, the army colonel has earned the respect of Arab leaders, including those who admired his predecessor.

Backed by an efficient Soviet-equipped military machine, an estimated $300,000,000 in foreign currency reserves and Algeria's huge economic resources, Boumedienne has become a major force in Arab politics.

Algeria moved swiftly to swing its sophisticated army, navy and air force behind the Arab armies when hostilities broke out last week, but Algeria was about 2,000 miles from the front line.

The Algerian armed forces did not come to grips with Israel, and its 70,000-man force, equipped with Russian built MiGs, surface - to - air missiles and latest missile-launching patrol boats, was virtually untouched after the week - long war.

On the political front, it was Boumedienne, 42, who sounded out the Soviet Union's intentions toward the Arab states. He paid a lightning visit to Moscow Monday and Tuesday at the end of hostilities.

The visit apparently had the blessing of Egyptian President Nasser. The authoritative Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said Boumedienne flew to Moscow on behalf of all Arab nations.

Despite officially - expressed Algerian displeasure with the Soviet attitude, it is a measure of Boumedienne's standing that he conferred with top leaders of the Soviet Communist party as well as Defence Minister Andrei Grechko.

Boumedienne was believed to have urged party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev, Premier Alexei Kosygin and President Nikolai Podgorny to give quick help in rebuilding the shattered Arab armies.

Although the lack of a communique indicated Soviet reservations, Boumedienne was believed to have left at least partially successful.

A Pravda commentary said Communist countries would continue to give all necessary material aid to expel aggression.

On the economic front, Algeria immediately clamped state control on American, Dutch and British oil companies, banned all exports to Britain and the United States and closed Algerian ports to American and British shipping.

Foreign experts in Algeria believe these measures could hurt Algeria more than the foreign countries.

Two-thirds of Algeria's total natural gas exports go to Britain.

Too Old at 45?

A Question of Survival

Corner Brook Western Star

Time was when the occasionally disconsolate individual in his late 30s was cheered by the assurance, Life Begins at 40. That trusty weapon is losing its edge for cutting the blues.

Now, the group nearing 40 gets the sombre warning that employers are beginning to look very closely at the 45-year-old class of workers. Many of these are now considered "over the hill" by reason of unemployment or lack of any particular skill.

The growing accent on youth is unavoidable, but this is ridiculous. The nation is faced on one hand with a growing number of active, professionally capable people forced to retire at 65, despite their ability to continue to be productive, and on the other with a growing number forced to "retire" at 45 because they cannot be productive.

If this is a dangerous trend as society becomes more oriented to the millions of young workers, now is the time to begin anticipating its consequences. Because of the number of unskilled and semi-skilled jobs being phased out each year, retraining becomes a matter of survival — not only for the workers but for the society on which those workers will have to depend if they are unemployable.

The prospect of mass forced "retirement" of 45-year-old persons suggests a staggering increase in the costs of welfare and jobless benefits. And the possible social and psychological consequences in terms of alcoholism, law enforcement and mental health — to name just a few — are equally frightening.

There may prove to be more truth than one realized in the aphorism, "The devil makes work for idle hands," unless society decides to do so first.

Today in History

June 16, 1967 . . .

The prelude to the Battle of Waterloo was fought at Quatre Bras, Belgium, 152 years ago today—in 1815. Napoleon, once more the emperor of France, struck at the Anglo - Dutch and Prussian forces in Belgium determined to defeat them before the Russian and Austrian armies arrived. The Prince of Orange held up Ney's troops at Quatre Bras giving the Duke of Wellington time to withdraw in good order to Waterloo where the decisive battle was fought two days later.

Reversing the Brain Drain

Vancouver Sun

Britain's campaign to reverse the flow of scientific and management talent to the United States reflects a concern about the brain drain which is not confined either to Britain or Europe but to other areas of the world.

U.S. industry has an insatiable hunger for talent. The technological gap between the U.S. and Europe's industries is widening and not only the British lead domination by the new science-oriented economy to our south. The British, however, like the Canadians, have additional reason to fear the current drain of talent because the absence of a long-used barrier makes it easier for the American recruiter.

The British campaign is being handled by a management consultant firm under the auspices of the ministry of technology. Its first project is to recruit British graduates of American business schools, of which there are many who never come home; a second project is to attract experienced British managers, scientists and engineers now working in the U.S.

It is questionable whether these measures go far enough to meet the larger world problem. The developing countries need management and technological skills, too. They send their young people to the developed countries, such as Canada, for training, but not all come home, and in any case the number would never be enough.

It is odd that while U.S. industry campaigns to bring others' people's brains to this continent, the U.S. government, through the Peace Corps and other agencies, tries to export talent as developmental aid.

The problem is one which in all its complexity would be solved simply in a totalitarian state. Citizens would be no export of talent allowed at all. A free society cannot act this way and the British method is probably the best that can be devised to serve the interests of the country.

On the other hand, the free international movement of talent can serve to improve economic and cultural links. It should be encouraged. More talent can be supplied by making more educational facilities available and perhaps the rich nations of the West have a duty to co-operate and lead.

Fishing for Fun of It

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

One of the supreme heresies of fishing as a sport is that it provides the fisherman with almost unlimited excuses for not catching fish.

The golfer, for example, who turns in a poor score, can blame no one but himself. But in fishing so many different factors are involved that the man whose basket has been used for no better purpose than to carry his lunch has at his disposal a range of alibis which renders him virtually immune to criticism.

It may be the temperature which is at fault. As everyone knows, fish do not bite when the water is cold; and when the water becomes warm, they are too exhausted to rise.

It could be the wind. It is common knowledge that an east wind or a north wind are completely hopeless for fishing.

Perhaps the water is too high; possibly it is too low. Maybe the sun is too bright, or contrariwise, there is not enough sun.

Maritime Union Still Far Off

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

Toronto journalists must have attended the same journalism school for their first part, they prefer the breezy generalization, rarely qualified for accuracy's sake, at least when they visit Nova Scotia.

Now that the election is over, and they have returned to the Ontario metropolis (soon to be despatched by their editors to cover a hot race in prospective place?), we are relieved to get our province back. For days, they had been in a black, wind-swept landscape, cursed by poverty, an inadequate school system, and the corruptions of sinful men (mostly politicians who bought favors with large sums of the devil fre-dollar bills). It was a depressing place, to be sure. Thankfully, we were able to return quickly to reality after suffering their grim, vividly written accounts.

There is poverty in places. There are education problems. There are political problems. But no one denies that there are a few political hacks, who, in the manner of their colleagues in holy Ontario, waste their talents on the fruitless business of "buying" votes. Yes, all too many Nova Scotians leave the province every year.

But there is more, much more, and blindness must be adduced as the reason why Toronto's newspaper analysts failed to see it. Certainly, one of them had a hearing problem. Premier Stanfield, with us, will be surprised to discover that he has "an echo of English sound" in his voice.

An estimated 550 persons from the Belleville and Napanee districts will be attending the Marian Congress in Ottawa.

Combining the dual purpose of a sun trailer and a fishing and pleasure boat, the new Trailer-Boat offered by the Belleville Motor Car Co. The boat is a Canadian product, manufactured by the Trailer-Boat Co. of Toronto with factory at Barrie, Ont.

Racial Prejudice

On Being "Carefully Taught"

St. Catharines Standard

In the musical "South Pacific," Rodgers and Hammerstein's song "Carefully Taught" explains how prejudice becomes a mental reflex. To hate all the people his relatives hate, a child, the songwriters remind us, must be taught before it's too late — before the age of eight.

Well, there's one group of parents in Toronto that's doing an excellent job of teaching how to hate.

A University of Toronto anthropologist who is supervising a continuing study of 1,200 school children reported last week that the study indicated a widespread and bitter racial and religious prejudice. The study of the children was between 13 years ago when the children, chosen as a microcosm of Canadian youth in the middle-class bracket were three years old. They were chosen from a community that is relatively free of Negroes, Jews and Roman Catholics, and most of the children under study have had virtually no contact with someone of different race or religion. For the past 13 years, the children have been examined and interviewed twice a year by a medical team.

Today, these 16-year-olds show a shocking degree of home-bred racial and religious prejudice.

The results of the Toronto study are hardly a good omen for the world of tomorrow when these children will have to find a way of sharing our shrinking globe with people of many colors and faiths.

Saskatchewan's Plan Needs Only Minor Adjustments

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Third of a Series

Manitoba's approach has been to enact a compulsory plan and acquire the doctor-operated Manitoba Medical Service. The plan will be administered by a Crown corporation. Manitoba Medical Insurance Corporation, whose board of seven directors will include two representatives of the province's medical association.

Dr. G. E. Mosher, Manitoba Medical Association president, publicly criticized the province's choice of a compulsory plan on the grounds that it destroys the individual's right to enter the market in medical services.

He also raised objection to provisions that prohibit the offering of alternate plans in the province. He said this denies individuals the right to buy insurance protection against the cost of services not provided by the government plan.

Under Manitoba's plan, employee premiums will be collected by the employer and remitted to the corporation. The self-employed will remit theirs to the corporation or their municipality. Still to be worked out are the regulations embodying the operating rules of the plan.

Saskatchewan's pioneering medical care insurance plan, in effect since 1962, requires only minor adjustments to qualify for federal payment in the view of federal and provincial authorities.

An estimated 99 per cent of the population is covered at premium rates of $30 a year for single persons and $72 for families. The Saskatchewan Medical Care Insurance Commission does the job of claims assessment and payment for most of the province.

One section of the province, the Swift Current Health Region, still operates its own plan, which has been in force since 1945 and receives annual grants from the provincially-operated commission.

Integration of the Swift Current claims assessing procedures with those of the rest of the province is expected to be undertaken. So is action to drop the deterrent fee attached to the Swift Current plan.

With these modifications, the province would qualify easily for federal funds.

Auto and Equipment Sales Continue to Drive Trade Higher

OTTAWA (CP) — The U.S.-Canada automotive agreement continues to drive trade higher in both directions, and to Canada's advantage, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday.

Analysing balance - of - payments figures for the first quarter of 1957, DBS credited sales of motor vehicles and automotive equipment with more than 40 per cent of the increases in both Canada's exports and her imports.

The bureau did not give total figures for this trade. But it estimated the trebllnend deficit for automotive products was narrowed by more than $35,000,000 from the first quarter of 1956.

All current transactions in goods and services with all countries skewed led to a first-quarter deficit of $240,000,000, This was down from $407,000,000 or 16 per cent from the comparable $405,000,000 in the first quarter of 1956.

It is about standard for previous first-quarter deficits during the 1950s.

The first three months of 1956 were unusual in many respects because of the boom conditions at the time. An unsustainable level of demand resulted in heavy imports and led to government restrictions on consumer and business spending during later quarters.

DBS reported total receipts from sale of current goods and services abroad of $2,202,000,000 in the first quarter of 1957, up 16 per cent or $451,000,000 from 1956.

Total payments in the same category rose 13 per cent or $396,000,000 to $3,543,000,000.

To meet the $340,000,000 current-account deficit, Canada attracted a net $327,000,000 in foreign capital and its official reserves of gold and U.S. dollars declined slightly.

After a $1,000,000 deficit on merchandise trade in first-quarter 1956, Canada moved to a $77,000,000 balance this year, with its improved sales picture in the U.S. and United Kingdom more than offsetting a small decline in the current surplus with wide ilnproved sales picture other countries.

The over-all deficit on current non - merchandise transactions widened slightly to $417,000,000 from $404,000,000.

Total merchandise exports, previously reported, increased 18 per cent or $401,000,000 to $2,618,000,000, highest total for a first quarter. Imports increased by $323,000,000 or more than 14 per cent to $2,536,000,000, also a record.

DBS warned that late-arriving data may result in a significantly smaller surplus on merchandise trade for 1956 than reported earlier.

A total of $20,000,000, largely automotive products exported to Latin American markets, has been uncovered.

An even bigger item is a lag in receipt of import documents from a major port. The port was not named.

Commodities besides automotive products exported in greater quantities this year have been fish products, vegetables, non - ferrous metals, crude petroleum, lumber, wood pulp, newsprint, agricultural machinery, communication equipment, aircraft parts and fertilizers.

Declines from 1956 have occurred in sales of meat, flour and iron ore.

Among imports, increased purchases have been recorded for textiles, machinery, equipment, aircraft and many consumer goods.

Canada's deficit on non-merchandise transactions—the "invisibles"—widened by $13,000,000 to $417,000,000.

Within this category Canada spent more on aid programs and more Canadians were travelling abroad.

Net payments of interest and dividends declined fractionally to $189,000,000 from $193,000,000.

Canada's current-account deficit with the U.S. declined to $337,000,000 from $396,000,000, entirely because the export balance dropped by $77,000,000 or 2 per cent to $726,000,000.

Exports for the three-month period were up 20 per cent to $1,650,000,000, imports up 15 per cent at $1,904,000,000.

Among capital movements, long-term inflows fell to $286,000,000 from the unusual level of $448,000,000 a year earlier.

Short-term movements, which had resulted in a net outflow of $152,000,000 in 1956, produced an inflow of $81,000,000 this year.

The net capital inflow for direct investment was $126,000,000, identical with the first quarter of 1956.

Ontario's Agreements No Challenge to Ottawa

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Roberts said Thursday agreements between Ontario and foreign states "pose no challenge to the treaty-making power of the federal government."

He told the legislature an analysis of the province's international agreements shows Ontario "has not entered into any formal arrangement with a foreign state in which the province itself was a party to the treaty."

The premier was amplifying on a reply made May 11 to Opposition Leader Robert Nixon who sought details on formal or other agreements which the government or its agencies had with foreign powers.

In making the request, Mr. Nixon referred to statements by Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson on the right of provinces to enter into international agreements on matters within provincial jurisdiction.

Premier Roberts said that in cases where formal agreements were needed, such as construction of international bridges by the province and neighboring states, enabling legislation was always obtained from Ottawa.

Existing relationships with foreign states could be divided into three main categories—informal co - operation, formal agreements and diplomatic representation.

Informal co - operation was generally between provincial departments and their counterparts in American states, and usually involved exchanges of technical information or provisions for mutual assistance in carrying out their responsibilities.

Formal agreements include joint federal and provincial arrangements of the type followed in constructing international bridges and some agreements reached without seeking federal approval.

In the latter category were pacts between Ontario and a dozen foreign states, including Britain, on reciprocal enforcement of maintenance orders against deserting husbands. The Supreme Court of Canada had upheld the constitutional validity of such arrangements.

Diplomatic relations are involved in Ontario's establishment of offices in London, New York, Dusseldorf, Milan and some other areas engaged in promoting trade and attracting foreign capital and immigrants.

Wage Parity Next Reuther Promises

TORONTO (CP)—Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, says most of the contract proposals the union has made over the years have been borrowed from General Motors.

Mr. Reuther said Thursday night at a celebrating marking the UAW's 20th year in Canada that everything proposed by the union—from pensions to guaranteed annual income—were part of GM's executive benefits.

Before members of the union's international executive and 200 top officers of Canadian locals, Mr. Reuther made it clear that this year the automobile companies will be expected to come up with one of their best settlements ever.

He said that for 30 years, General Motors had said no to every union proposition, but it really had wound up by agreeing.

"Before the final chapter is written in this year's bargaining, General Motors will say 'yes' to the question of wage parity."

Among other things, he said, the union will insist that benefits increases be provided for pensioners and their families and for the widows of those who have retired.

The executive committees of the international union, meeting in Toronto for the first time, said Thursday that the productivity gap between the United States and Canada has been closed and it has become essential to eliminate wage differentials.

"Establishment of wage parity is a matter of economic necessity and of economic justice in any area which constitutes a single, integrated market," the committees said in a statement.

It said U.S. workers are motivated in their quest for wage parity by the need to protect their own job security and economic standards.

Women's Institutes Advocate Changes to Legalize Abortions

GUELPH (CP) — The Federated Women's Institutes of Canada Thursday advocated changes in the Criminal Code to legalize abortions and the use of contraceptives.

Delegates meeting this week in national convention, recommended that abortions be allowed if the proposed results from criminal assault or if there is danger of mental or physical health to the mother.

They will also ask the federal government to amend the code to legalize advertisements, sale and use of contraceptives.

The convention also wants a law compelling couples to have medical examinations before they marry, and establishment of family planning centres across the country.

The delegates elected Mrs. G. W. Clarke, wife of the Speaker of the Newfoundland house of assembly, as president for the next three years. She succeeds Mrs. J. P. Nusbaum of Oyster Bed Bridge, P.E.I.

The conference advocated setting up a federal fund to compensate victims of criminal violence.

A resolution dealing with declared wives and children said family courts are under-staffed and under-financed.

The courts are seemingly reluctant to force husbands to support deserted families by imposing jail terms or garnisheeing wages, the resolution said.

Another resolution recommended establishment of an office to work with provincial education departments to study the different curriculum which school children face if their family moves from province to province.

Delegates also called on the federal government to refrain from making agreements to change the courses of the rivers in Canada or to build canal systems to divert Canadian waters to the detriment of Canada.

Other resolutions advocated doubling the $1,000 personal income tax exemption and ensuring that proposed educational television programs be made available to communities with limited TV reception.

WCTU Camp Will Open On July 3

Concession WCTU Camp for girls will be opening again July 3rd to 12th for girls 8 to 13 years of age. This is a non-profit camp and operates at reasonable rates for all girls. The County Unions send girls to camp who may not otherwise be able to attend a camp.

This is a well equipped camp on a beautiful site on Lake Consecon. It has operated under the WCTU for girls for over 40 years. In 1957 it became necessary to purchase the land on which the buildings were located. An appeal was made to the citizens of the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward and Lennox - Addington. From the funds received at that time the WCTU were able to buy the land, install hydro and electrical appliances as well as build a new dining hall.

The camp is operated by leaders of high Christian standards. Capable camp nurses and swimming instructresses are always in attendance.

During the rest of the summer other youth groups occupy the camp which is at present to the young people of this area.

Factory Whistle Replaced By Scream of Fighter Jets

COLD LAKE, Alta. (CP)— In Marg O'Brien's town, the scream of Starfighter jets takes the place of a factory whistle.

Wife of an RCAF corporal and mother of a three-year-old boy, Mrs. O'Brien is one of 4,000 inhabitants of one of Canada's largest military installations.

Almost is 200 miles southwest by road, through patchy woodlands and small farm towns. North and east the roads dwindle out amid lake-filled bush.

If the soldiers were an incorporated city, it would be Alberta's eighth in size. It has a shopping centre, schools, 30-bed hospital and suburban homes for 1,100 families. They elect their own community council and the calendar is filled with activities.

They even have their own language.

"You learn to speak in initials," Mrs. O'Brien said. "AC.A.O. for chief administrative officer, SMO for senior medical officer, PMQs for permanent married quarters. If a thing is broken it's unserviceable."

"You learn to make your own entertainment too. There are clubs for every sport from sailing to badminton and curling rink, swimming pool, bowling alley and gym. There's a nine hole golf course and skiing and flying lessons are available.

Residents are building their own camp ground at a nearby lake. Their 24-hour-a-day radio station, CHCL, is staffed by 20 volunteers whose pay was last calculated at 21 cents an hour.

The weekly newsletter carries advertisements for home businesses from Fred's Rubber Stamp Shop to driving lessons "in English or French." Dance bands abound: the Northernaires, the Moon Glows, the Country Gentlemen, the Marquis, the Spectrums, the Pearls, the Panic and B.C. and the Cavemen.

Wives start a play school; church auxiliaries run a thrift shop.

"We're actually self - sufficient," said Mrs. O'Brien. "You need never be bored or lonely. And it's tremendous for the kids."

Her own son is an altar boy at the chapel and helps at the library. He skates every week end in the winter and in the summer moves with the family to a lakeside tent from which his father can commute to the base.

He will have seen a lot of Canada by the time he reaches high school. Already the O'Briens have lived in Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Quebec and Ontario. This summer they are moving again, from Alberta to New Brunswick.

Boy of 15 Cries Every Night Over Quarrelling Parents

Dear Doris: I am 15, the oldest of nine children. My father works on a fishing boat and is usually gone for about nine days and home the ten. The parents have next time and when Dad comes home he spends most of his time with them instead of with his own family.

SGEIS CLASS

Then when he comes home at night, Mom and Dad are always quarrelling. I know she has to stay home all day long, while Dad is going out alone enjoying himself. I tell them when I think of it but it doesn't do any good. I tell them "When I am old enough, I'm leaving home" and not coming back."

Every night I cry myself to sleep just thinking of the way they are. They are good enough to us but it is not a very nice thing to be at home when are all around. Please try to help me some way or another. — Disgusted.

Dear Disgusted: It's bad hoarding for peace and quiet, out of the turmoil of a house full of boys and girls? Some parents think they've done all they should when they bring home the bacon — or fish!

They haven't. Yours has forgotten the load he leaves with Mother every time he goes off; and her loneliness for some grown-up company or his. What a waste of those precious hours they do have together!

You are the oldest, and I don't blame you for speaking out. But they don't hear you. I'm going to suggest something practical for you to do about things:

Next time Dad gets home, tell both of them to go off somewhere and have a little fun together; that you'll look after things for a few hours. Maybe you'll surprise them into taking another look at themselves.

And a word to all short-tempered parents: Constant quarrelling can give your children a decidedly warped view of married life. Is this what you want to happen?

— Mrs. H. N.

Dear Doris: To Mrs. H., please tell her I welcomed her advice. Also I am a single woman come by with one of those Parents' Magazine subscriptions. I was tempted it now.

I—don't put everything out of reach; just strong foods, cleaner, wax, soaps and detergents, perfumes and anything else that can be awkward. He is at the in-the-mouth-with-everything stage.

I'm not one to turn a dresser around but I do tie drawers and doors that have a certain kind of Jiggle to open them. He does have a drawer to himself where he can put his own toys. And I'm helping him to select clothes to wear.

At 20 months see if I find he is trying to please, he empties his daddy's ashtray for him, and sometimes asks to go to the bathroom. He puts the plug in the sink before I wash his face, turns lights off and on and in general is trying to please.

Thank you very much for your consideration while we were trying to figure each other out. — A Wee Mummy.

Dear Mummy: Congratulations. It takes a good mind to profit by someone else's advice. I gather that some understanding has now replaced your previous emphasis on stopping.

Let's remember, too, that your boy is growing in understanding, too, and will respond better as he develops.

Ann Landers

Orphan Boy Wonders About His Relatives

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A recent column telling unwed mothers not to worry because their babies would land in the loving arms of eager parents was a trifle misleading. I hope you will print my letter in the interest of accuracy. I happen to be an out-of-wedlock boy who was raised in an orphanage.

ANN LANDERS

When I was small I cut out a magazine picture of a woman working in the kitchen. It was an ad for linoleum. I pretended the woman in the ad was my mother. When I was sick or hurt, or when things weren't going well I would look at that picture and play like my mother was coming to take me home with her.

She never did come. When I left the orphanage I knocked around a bit. Every time I hit a new town I would wonder if my mother lived there. I would wonder if she was happily married — if I had brothers and sisters and if they looked like me.

Many years have passed and I am still wondering. I'm sure I'll continue to wonder until the day I die.

So, please, Ann Landers, don't give unwed mothers the idea that life is going to be peaches and cream for their babies. It doesn't always turn out that way. — NOT SO LUCKY.

* * *

DEAR NOT SO LUCKY: Of course it doesn't, but it costs nothing to look at the brightest possible side of a situation that is agonizing at best. Thank you for writing.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We have known this couple for many years and I would say they are both good friends of ours. I have suspected for a long time that the husband has been cheating around behind his wife's back but of course I kept this to myself.

Three times in the last month the wife has called me and made reference to her husband and my husband going to a meeting together or, entertaining out-of-town lodge members. The way she worded it I am sure her husband is using my husband as an alibi. I have gone along with this monkey business because I hated to let the wife know her husband was lying, but my conscience is bothering me and I don't want to lie any more.

My husband says if I don't protect this man it will be the same as turning him in and I could be responsible for the breakup of their marriage. Please tell me what to do. — IN THE MIDDLE.

* * *

DEAR IN: A marriage that is glued together by the lies of friends isn't much of a marriage. Furthermore, it is bound to fall apart sooner or later because that type of montage is temporary at best.

Tell Romeo that he can no longer depend on you to cover for him. And keep your word.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please settle an argument. Should a 10-year-old boy be taken to the ladies' bathroom in a public place by his mother? It should be taken to the men's bathroom by his father — SURPRISED LADY.

* * *

DEAR LADY: A 10-year-old boy should be able to take himself to the bathroom.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Sour Cream Cookies

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I made the Aunt Rachel Sour Cream Cookies that were published Tuesday May 9. I found the dough much too soft to roll. It was more the consistency of drop cookies. Please check the ingredients and advice. They are delicious!

— Mrs. H. N.

ANSWER: Not more than an hour after your letter arrived I was making Aunt Rachel's Sour Cream Cookies again. But this time I added a few more flour. Did you chill your dough? I had one more comment about them from Aunt Rachel's own daughter Pearl: "Mama never put shortening in her sour cream cookies." So in my test of yesterday I left it out and streamlined the method. I want every cookie maker in this audience to make them and have the recipe on file, for it is genuinely a centennial item for Aunt Rachel was born around 1880.

Devilled Seafood (see Monday); Fluffy Boiled Rice; Broccoli; Fresh Crusty French Bread; Relish Tray; New Radishes, Dill Spears, Stuffed Olives, Orange Bavarian Heavenly Twists (see Thursday); Tea.

AUNT RACHEL'S SOUR CREAM COOKIES (retested and streamlined)

Note: This recipe makes 48 2½" cookies, cut out with 2¼" fluted cutter.

½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg
¼ tsp vanilla
1-3 cup sour cream
1 1-3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
¼ tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. baking powder
1-3 tsp. salt
¼ cup chopped and dried raisins (see below)

Measure raisins in measuring cup and pour boiling water over. Let stand 1 min. Drain and pat dry.

Cream butter with sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg and vanilla and beat well. Remove beaters. Sift together sifted flour, soda, baking powder and salt and add along with sour cream and raisins and stir until well mixed. Chill dough until firm. Remove half of chilled dough from bowl. Return remainder to refrigerator. Roll out to (¼") thickness on floured board with floured rolling pin and cut out with fluted 2¼" cutter. Assemble scraps and roll out again and cut out and place on buttered cookie sheet(s) (I used 2) about 1½" apart. Roll out remaining chilled dough the same way. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 10 min., switching and turning pans on shelves after 5 min. Do not overbake. Bottoms should be just pale gold. Aunt Rachel stored hers in a tightly covered cookie tin.

Mother: "How many times must I tell you? Don't dump the sand all over the grass. It will kill it. Keep the sand in the sandbox!"

A toy truck and sand add up to hauling and dumping, in a child's world. Use your ingenuity to make the imaginative playtime harmless.

Want Changes In Laws on Birth Control

TORONTO (CP)—The wording of Canada's Anglican Church have joined other organizations in calling for changes in the laws concerning birth control information and devices.

The 105 delegates at this week's national annual meeting of Anglican Church Women unanimously adopted a resolution urging the federal government to legalize "properly controlled" dispensing of information and means of birth control.

This is the first national meeting of the Anglican Church Women since they changed their name from Women's Auxiliary.

"Our renewal should involve more than the women community found in our groups," Mrs. John Robertson of Kitchener said in her president's report.

"Certainly we must look to the younger woman, under 25, the professional woman, the single woman, the woman with leisure."

Summer Hair Styles Have Variety and Flair

By Reba & Bonnie Churchill

Coiffures are on a rampage! Never before have hair styles had the variety and flair that this summer offers. The key to this rebellion with the brush and comb is easy on the eyes. The silhouettes are easier to care for and leave the wearer free to enjoy the sun and fun. Actress Pat Becker illustrates a trio of new looks. First, there's the four-inch "Saucer Cut" that calls for strategic combing, a few sittings. Hair is brushed forward from the crown and tumbled onto forehead, temples and ears. Top layer is lightly wisp-brushed and twirled into a series of curved strands.

"The "Colt's Tail" is the up-dated, more sophisticated version of the ponytail. Hair is brushed to the crown. Then, if tresses are long, a circle of hair is anchored at the top, and the ends looped through the "doughnut" and brushed over it to one side. Hence the name "Colt's Tail." If hair is short, a similar effect is achieved by adding a false switch. Secure it to three pincurls at the crown, then shape as you would your own hair. Pat, seen in the 30th film, "Golden Girl for Married Men," reminds coiff should be curtfree and blunt cut.

Latest innovation is summer coiffs is the "Sidewinder." With the aid of a false hair piece, any girl can copy this style in less than four minutes. Tresses are brushed away from the face with ends twirled into a fivelook topknot. Switch is fashioned into a thick braid. Latter is secured with crossed hair pins at the crown. Hair is draped down one side, as bottom loop rests against the neck. Style can be decorated with flowers or ribbons or, for more elaborate occasions, can be sparkled with jeweled pins.

* * *

P.S.: If you'd like to duplicate these three hair styles, with complete set and combout instructions, write for our 12-page coiffure booklet included are eight hair styles, geared for summer's Easter fashions, with photo illustrations of each.

New York City Police to Get King-sized Security Headache

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—An emergency session of the UN General Assembly, requested by the Soviet Union following Israel's defeat of her Arab neighbors last week, will give UN officials and New York City police big-sized security headaches during the next several days.

Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin announced Thursday he is coming to the session and it is fully expected that other national leaders will follow in his train.

UN officials can make their part of the security job easier by closing the secretariat building, assembly hall and surrounding grounds—all international territory—to the general public.

They did this during the visit of former Soviet premier Nikita Khrushchev and 31 other national leaders in the regular assembly session in the fall of 1960.

At that time, 8,000 of New York's 24,000 police were placed on security duty.

There was no immediate indication, however, whether security procedures would be as severe as they were in 1960 when even regular UN correspondents and UN employees had to get special passes.

Public tours of the UN were discontinued.

One UN security official said Thursday night arrangements were incomplete "but shouldn't be much different from those of 1960."

The emergency session is expected to begin as early as Saturday morning.

The regular contingent of blue-uniformed UN guards and plainclothes security officers totals 125 men. Forty more are recruited from other branches of the UN staff for security duties during a regular assembly session.

"At least that many will be added for this session," a security officer said.

The UN security force is composed of 34 nationalities, including Canadians but the majority are Americans. There are some Arabs, but no Israelis.

"We have some Jewish boys from New York and they get along well with the Arabs," the security officer said.

In emergency situations, the guards are given night sticks.

If somebody causes trouble, the security people are supposed to take him to a detention room, three levels below the ground floor and popularly known as "the UN jail."

They take his name and address, photograph him, and unless there are grounds for prosecution, they eject him from the UN premises with a warning never to come back. If prosecution is intended, he is turned over to the New York police.

The UN guards are trained to remember faces. This may not be enough to prevent an obnoxious heckler from returning to the UN months or years later, but it does spare many diplomats, correspondents and UN employees the necessity of showing their passes every day.

Government Likely to Take Bigger Role in Electronics

ESTEREL, Que. (CP)—Along with a booming future, the communications industry can expect closer attention by the federal government, electronic industry representatives were told Thursday.

J. R. Baldwin, deputy transport minister, predicted the increased government role in the field will result from the need for a national communications policy.

International co-operation will be necessary in the space-satellite age of communications, he said during a panel discussion at the end of the Electronic Industry Association annual meeting in this Laurentian resort.

If Canada wanted a good communications system within the rapid advances coming in the field, there had to be a national communications policy.

"This means federal involvement," Mr. Baldwin said.

The panel was looking at communications from 1970 to century's end. It forecast a virtual explosion in data handling and development of a system where every home or office would be able to plug itself into a computer system as easily as people now use the telephone.

A. G. Lester, vice-president of planning research for Bell Telephone Co., said Canada's 8,500,000 telephones will swell to 8-10,000,000 by 1970 and 30,000,000 by the end of the century.

The picture telephone was a physical reality now and in 10 to 15 years it would be a reasonable proposition economically—costing $30-$35 a month.

JACK H. SILLS

Jack H. Sills, President of Arthur A. Sills & Sons Limited is head of one of Belleville's leading building suppliers. The company is experienced in serving Belleville and the surrounding area with quality products and competitive prices for over 50 years.

THE MONTCLAIR

A dramatic sweeping roof with 4' eaves gives this deluxe split-level home a long low look. From the centre foyer you glimpse the formal living room and separate dining room or you can look to the right and see the sunken family room with its corner fireplace. Next to the family room is a den or fourth bedroom with an adjoining four piece bath.

On the third level there are three bedrooms and bath. The bath has a long vanity with double sinks and a panoramic mirror. There is also a door leading to the master bedroom. All rooms are large with zone controlled electric heating throughout.

The basement offers future rec room, work shop and laundry area. With an attached double garage, electric heating and situated on a lot with 130' frontage on Montrose Drive, this is certainly a winner for 1967.

A LOW RAMBLING COLONIAL FLAIR

JOHN M. PARROTT

MISS CHATELAINE

Regal in design, size and location. The French Provincial styling from its colors and keys and the subtle blending of brick and shutters complete this executive home.

Located on a country estate beside the golf course and overlooking the Bay of Quinte, the home is designed for gracious living. The huge centre foyer with Spanish mosaic floor opens to the living dining room with a floor to ceiling fireplace and wide colonial windows. Through the wide arch you can see the big family room with glass doors leading to the rear patio. The fireplace opens to the family room.

The Hollywood kitchen is the answer to every woman's dream. Many cupboards and room for the whole family to eat breakfast.

The master bedroom has a bath ensuite and a walk in closet. Two more spacious bedrooms and a large bath make this lovely home complete. Of course there's a two car garage and full basement and many other extras. See for yourself in this charming home on the Trail Road.

The principal of this firm, John M. Parrott, has been active in the home building industry for some 15 years.

John M. Parrott and Stanleypark Limited have been known for the development of large tracts of land for some of the area's finest residential subdivisions. Stanleypark is the largest subdivision ever developed in Belleville, and carrying the name of the company it is considered to be one of the outstanding home sites in Belleville's East side.

Stanleypark have developed subdivisions in the suburban areas, some of which are Greenfield Park, Fernwood Gardens, Huntingwood Hills, Montrose Drive and Oak Hill Acres. The most recent development, the site of the Model Homes "Miss Chatelaine" is just beyond the western limits of Belleville, known as "Country Club Village", being adjacent to the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club.

Many of the members of the Quinte Housebuilders' Association have taken advantage of the serviced land made possible by this firm for home sites for their new home customers.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

Sports Editor

They won't be the Spurs, West Ham United, the Arsenal or Chelsea, but the four teams that will inaugurate, what is hoped a new era of soccer in the city tomorrow and Sunday, will provide thrilling spectacles of the sport at the opening of the city's new "Wembley" at Zwicky's Island.

Peter Crovis, Bruce Parsons and the lads backs of the sponsoring Parsons Clippers club, are all agog over the first soccer tournament to be held in the city.

The two-day tournament will be alive with color and excitement with Parsons bowling teams from Kingston, Camp Borden and Toronto East York; drum majorettes and bands on Sunday, visiting dignitaries, ceremonies etc. and two thrilling matches scheduled for tomorrow afternoon and Sunday.

The Centennial Tournament winners will receive a special trophy at the conclusion while all clubs will be given handsome Centennial mementos by Mayor Jack Ellis. It is a "must" for soccer fans and a "should-be" for sportsmen at a loose end.

And if you want to sandwich in another exciting event between the soccer spreads try the harness meet of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club at the Fair Grounds Saturday tomorrow night starting at eight o'clock.

You had better take along an extra shirt for I am informed the Driving Club officials will introduce a new card wrinkle at the meet.

There will be five single events, including two special trot races and two double fixtures. This is a new departure from the usual four doubles and one single races and should cause some head-scratching on the part of patrons before they try to raise the deuce at the part-mutuel windows.

Tomorrow night's card is the best offered this season and officials predict a number of "banner-hooter" finishes with photo-finish cameras working overtime.

And there should be some excellent spot at the Bay of Quinte Country Club on Sunday if the weather man hasn't turned the course into a miniature Sinai desert.

It should be a breakfast-in-bed day for many of the golfing gals because they are due to join the spears in the annual "Mr. and Mrs. Tournament" battle for the Wilson Trophy.

Tournament chairman Joy Bowerman with hubby Steve, Fred and Anne Fisher, Don and Madge Cowley and Jack and Dolly Diamond are supervising the tournament and will look after a record field of 45 couples from nine clubs of the district and area.

President George O'Brien who with Mrs. O'Brien have eyes on the championship will preside at the post-tournament dinner where many handsome prizes will be presented to the winners.
